OPPOSITION TO SMALL BOARD

Officials of Union County Go on Record Against Making Freeholder Change.

GIVE THEIR REASONS

They Declare Under Act of 1912 It Would Be Possible for Elizabeth to Have all the Representatives in Absence of District Plan.

Opposing the Small Board of Freeholder Act of 1912, a number of officials from various parts of the county have put themselves on record to the effect and are urging the voters to cast their ballots against the proposition. The reasons for this action is set forth in the following statement made public today:

"We do not believe the Small Board of Freeholder Act of 1912 should be adopted by the voters of this county in its present form because:

"First: The Act does not provide for the election of the members by districts, making it possible for almost all of the members to come from the City of Elizabeth because of its large population to the exclusion of municipalities of less population, such as Summit, Plainfield, Rahway, Westfield, Cranford and the smaller townships and boroughs in the county, and therefor is an unrepresentative form of government, depriving each separate division of the county of a voice in the administration of county affairs.

"Second: It does not provide for a Commission or Board of Works form of government, making no provision for a change in the method of transacting the business of the county, or for increasing efficiency, but specifically provides that all laws applicable to the present Board shall apply to the Board created by the 1912 act.

"Third: The salary of $1,500 for each of the seven men provided for by the act, will not attract capable men, as they must first seek the nomination at the primaries, then seek election and, if elected, devote all of their time to the discharge of their duties.

Fourth: It means the appointment of supervisors for each municipality, thereby increasing the expense of administratioon, without the assumption of responsibility to the section attempted to be served; these supervisors will be responsible to the Freeholders who appoint them; under the present system the elected Freeholder performs these duties.

"Fifth: Without increasing efficiency, it increases the cost of administration.

"We urge the voter to vote "No" on June 13th."

The above statement is signed by the following: Mayor Harry W. Evans, Charles Clark, Leigh M. Pearsall, Lloyd Thompson and James O. Clark, citizens' committee of Westfield; Henry G. Lucas, chairman New Providence township committee; Thomas P. Crane, mayor, borough of New Providence; Richard Trivett, chairman Springfield township committee; Peter M. Eriksen, mayor of Garwood; Harry Simmons, mayor of Rahway; H. B. Hardenburg, Mayor of Linden; DeWitt C. Winans, chairman Linden township committee; Charles W. Low, mayor of Roselle; A. I. Nichols, acting mayor of Fanwood; I. G. Walker, chairman Fanwood township committee; J. Elliott Hall, chairman Hillside township committee; Ruford Franklin, mayor of Summit.

MISS ELSIE WILLIAMS TENDERED FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Elsie Williams who has been visiting her uncle, William Grobes, of 524 West Fourth street, was tendered a farewell surprise last night. She leaves today for Cape May, where she will spend the summer. The affair was arranged by the Misses G. Stearns and E. Greene. Those present are as follows: The Misses A. Alexander, M. Venable, G. Robinson, M. Vaughan, H. Vaughan, D. Butler, M. Laury, M. Lambert, P. Jones, A. Francis, F. Anderson, M. Burns, E. Williams, A. Johnson, M. Johnson, M. Flannigan, E. Cardwell, M. Carter, H. COURT EXONERATES MOYNIHAN AND FIKE

Robert N. Crane, Their Counsel, Proves They Were Innocent of Wrong Doing.

Newark, N. J., June 10.—On motion of the Prosecutor of Essex county, before Judge Harry V. Osborne in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday afternoon, the indictments against Michael T. Moynihan of Dunellen and Arthur C. Fike of North Plainfield were dismissed. Neither of the defendants were in court, but were represented by their counsel, Robert Newton Crane.

The indictments grew out of the crash of the Roseville Trust Co. of Newark, N. J., and the subsequent failure of the Home Ice and Products Co., of which latter company both the young men were directors and officers. The concern was engaged in the wholesale ice business maintaining ice houses in the Pocono Mountains and having property valued at one hundred thousand dollars and supposedly prosperous.

When the Department of Banking and Insurance closed the Roseville Trust Co., the auditors found that the Home Ice and Products Co. was indebted to the bank to the sum of forty thousand dollars. Later the ice company was forced into bankruptcy. As Raymond E. Smith was the treasurer of the bank and also president of the ice company, all of the officers and directors of the ice company were indicted with Smith for a conspiracy to defraud the bank of the sum the ice company was indebted to it.

The investigation which followed by the auditors of the State Banking Department and the Essex county prosecutor's office, definitely established the fact that neither Mr. Moynihan or Mr. Fike had been guilty of any personal wrongdoing, or that they had personally profited in any way from the money obtained by the ice company from the bank. Their indictment was made necessary, however, through legal technicalities because they were officers and directors of the ice company.

PYTHIAN SERVICES PLANNED FOR SUNDAY

Local Members of the Order Will Participate in Double Program Tomorrow.

Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., at its regular meeting last night completed all arrangements for the annual Pythian Memorial service to be conducted in Trinity Reformed church tomorrow night. Invitations have been extended to all Pythians in the city and vicinity, together with families and friends, and indications point to a large audience. The deliverance of the eulogy to the memory of departed fraternal brothers has been entrusted to Assemblyman William N. Runyon, a past chancellor of Perseverance lodge and an orator whose ability makes his address the feature of any program in which he participates. Special music will form a part of the exercises.

The members of the local lodges are requested to meet in Perseverance Castle Hall in the Babcock building, Sunday night at 7 o'clock sharp. From this point they will proceed to the church in a body, headed by Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., in full uniform.

A delegation from Crescent Company will make its annual visit to Portchester, N. Y., tomorrow morning to conduct the annual memorial service over the grave of the late Harvey L. Patterson, who was a member of the organization at the time of his death in the Westfield wreck in 1903. The delegation will be headed by Captain Flannery, and will leave the Plainfield station on the 8:52 train. Arriving at Portchester, the Plainfielders will unite with the Pythians of that city in its annual memorial day program. At the Patterson grave the ritual service will be in charge of Captain Flannery, assisted by C. S. Watkins as prelate. On the following Sunday, June 18, Crescent company will hold similar exercises in the Plainfield cemeteries, where departed brothers are buried.

WOMAN ARRAIGNED FOR THE THEFT OF $101.50

Emma Chapman, colored, charged with the theft of $101.50 from Thos. W. Rice, also colored, was arraigned in police court this morning. She was held under a bond of $500 for a hearing before Judge De Meza next Monday morning.

FESTIVAL AND SUPPER.

A strawberry festival and supper was held in the First Presbyterian church last evening, about 150 people attending the affair, which is an annual event, and which is held under the auspices of the Pastor's Aid Society.

ITALIAN TROOPS DROWNED AT SEA

Large Number Go Down When Submarine Sinks Big Transport.

VAUX VICTORY EMPTY

Germans Cannot Restore Defenses of Fort—Russians Tell of Success of Drive Against Austrians—Quiet at Verdun.

Rome, June 10.—The Italian transport Principe Umberto has been torpedoed and sunk in the Lower Adriatic with a loss of a large number of soldiers, according to a statement issued by the Admiralty today. The steamship, accompanied by two other transports conveying troops and war material and escorted by destroyers, was attacked by two Austrian submarines.

Cannot Use Fort Vaux.

Zurich, June 10.—The Lokal Anzeiger, of Berlin, states that Fort Vaux is so swept by the fire of the French guns that the Germans are unable to approach to restore the defenses.

10,000 Austrians Surrender.

Petrograd, June 10.—General Brusiloff, the Russian commander, declared to a representative of Slovo:

"We have undertaken a big operation and, with God's help, we will conduct it to a successful conclusion. The communications linking the Holm region with the Volhynian forests and Galicia in Austria, have passed into Russian hands. One Austrian division, counter-attacking, was so demoralized by the fire of the Russian artillery that 10,000 men surrendered. At another point 2,000 were captured with all their quick-firing guns.

Infantry Rests at Verdun.

Paris, June 10.—The French War Office announced today that violent artillery fighting was in progress on the Verdun front last night in the region of Avocourt, Thiaumont and the Chapitre and Fumin woods. There were no infantry assaults.

FLOWER GUILD PLANS FOR ITS ANNIVERSARY

Various Committees Are Appointed for Celebration at Monthly Meeting.

Plans for the anniversary exercises of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild which are to be held in September were tentatively arranged at the monthly meeting of the Guild held last night in the Friends' Meeting house. The meeting was opened with a devotional service led by Miss Myra M. Dunavan and was in charge of the Young People's Society of Trinity Reformed church. Reports were read by the chairman of the distributing committee and the treasurer. During the session Rev. H. Mesler, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, addressed the members on some of the problems that are constantly coming up in Christian and philanthropic work.

The committees appointed for the anniversary exercises were as follows: Entertainment, Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Harry C. Vail, Mrs. Charles R. Banks; publicity, Mrs. Maxson, Fred Mills, Elwood E. Waller, Jr.; decoration, Misses Lucy and Mabel Pound, Robert Love, Miss Kendall, Mrs. Hillman, Mrs. Davies; ushers, Howard B. Hall, Walter Sutphen, Harold Allen, Carman Trembath, Paul Peck, Parker B. Newell, Harold Dunavan, Dorchester Walsh, Randolph Douglas; committee to select place of meeting, Mrs. L. M. Case, Charles R. Banks, Mrs. Carter; program, Miss Suydam, Miss Ora Bush Robert Love; invitation, Miss Florence Hawkins, Miss M Cesner, Miss E. Mills; music, Mrs J. C. Evans, Elwood Waller, Jr., Randolph A. Douglas, Mrs. Maxson, Miss Dorothy Seader, Ralph Slonam, Harvey Naylor, Daniel McGinnis, Miss Harriet Higgins, Henry V. Kinney; speaking committee, Miss Grace Hunt and Mrs. George B. Suydam. The next meeting of the guild will be held on July 14.

MANY DOGS IN CITY NOT YET LICENSED

Only 232 dogs in Plainfield have been licensed and Chief Kiely is certain that a number of people have failed to comply with the law in regard to registering their pets. At this time last year more than 450 licenses had been issued. Chief Kiely has issued orders for policemen to make an investigation and all owners found with dogs not licensed will be brought into police court.

"TWELFTH NIGHT" ADMIRABLY GIVEN

Students of Hartridge School Present Shakespearean Play Before Large Audience.

PARTS ARE WELL TAKEN

Alumnae Association Holds Annual Meeting and Elects Officers—Miss Hartridge Gives Dance to Graduates and Friends.

The young women of the Hartridge School gave an excellent presentation of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" in the Hartridge Auditorium yesterday afternoon before a large and appreciative audience. It had been the original intention to stage this production on the lawn at "Oakwood" but the inclement weather necessitated a change in the plans.

Despite the fact that "Twelfth Night" is generally considered a play that can be best rendered out of doors, the production given yesterday was very successful from every viewpoint. The framework of the play is essentially serious, a beautiful vein of poetic feeling running through it and intermingling with uproarious fun. The more serious parts were ably taken care of by the Misses Dorothy Jewett, Elisabeth Brown and Grace Robinson, while the comedy roles were admirably rendered by the Misses Dorothy Mackenzie, Alice Joy, Jacksonia Watt and Catherine Ames. During the interlude sailor dances and the dances of the jesters were enjoyed.

The ultimate source of the play was probably Bandello's "Novelle," while incidents were, perhaps, furnished by the Italian plays, "Menaechmi" and "Ingami." It was first produced in 1691 at Christmas time and was very successful from the start. The character of Viola, which, by the way, was most accurately portrayed by Miss Dorothy Jewett, is Shakespearean to the heart, while that of Malvolio, ably taken care of by Miss Adle De Leeuw, was just as indicative of the character of the world's greatest literary genius.

After the presentation of "Twelfth Night" a meeting of the Alumni Association was held. At this meeting, which was largely attended, the election of officers was held and the following were chosen to serve for the coming year: President, Miss Edythe Foster; vice president, Miss Dorothy Lyon; secretary, Miss Ailine Lane; corresponding secretary, Miss Louise Patterson, and treasurer, Miss Edythe Beers. Business matters occupied the rest of the time at the meeting.

The players who took part in "Twelfth Night" were as follows: Orsino, Miss Helen Stewart; Sebastian, Miss Catherine Ames; Antonio, Miss Margaret Elgar Miller; Roberto, Miss Mary Mish; Valentine, Miss Lucille Marie Martin; Sir Toby Belch, Miss Dorothy McKenzie; Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Miss Jacksonia Watt; Malvolio, Miss Adle De Leeuw; Fabian, Miss Alice Joy; Feste, Miss Sadie Sandford; Priest, Miss Sarah Carvalho; officer, Miss Lillian Bymington; Ovilia, Miss Grace Robinson; Vialo, Miss Dorothy Pewett; Maria, Miss Elisabeth Brown.

Ladies-in-waiting, the Misses Christine Claybrook, Louise Earle, Margery Meigs, Barbara VanVliet; sailors, the Misses Anna Frazar, Helen Lounsbery, Julia Taylor, Margaret Thomas; servants, the Misses Charlotte Hawes, Constance Warnock; jesters, the Misses Margaret Borland, Margery Carlisle, Marian Drake, Anna Louise Medbery, Margaret Mellor, Harriet Milne, Dorothy Troth, Catherine Woodburn; singers, the Misses Albertine Osius, Keyo Tetsuka; pages, the Misses Eunice Holman, Kate Way.

Miss Hartridge gave the annual dance to the senior class and their friends in the Auditorium last evening, the affair being well attended.

MUSICALE AND SOCIAL AT ALL SOULS' CHURCH

The musicale and social gathering held at All Souls' church last evening, under the direction of Mrs. J. O Osgood, Jr., and Mrs. M. F. Draper, proved to be a decided success. An interesting musical program on an Edison phonograph was given by the organist of the church, Stephen Haff, as follows: Introduction to Act III of "Lohengrin," played by orchestra; "The Answer," sung by Thomas Chalmers, who is a nephew of Mrs. E. S. Brooks, of West Sixthstreet; 'cello solo, by Verdi, played by Leo Taussig; aria from "Madame Butterfly," sung by Emmy Destinn; plantation songs for violin, played by Albert Spalding; "O, Paradise," by Beyerbeer, sung by Urlus; "Frulingsrauschen," by Sindig, played by Andre Benoist; song from 'Louise," sung by Anna Case; patriotic airs, played by band.

These selections were preceded by an interesting talk on the subject of the reproducing instrument by Mr Haff, andfollowed by the serving of light refreshments and general social chat.

WILL ATTEND DANCE.

Clan Mackenzie, No. 205, Order Scottish Clans, will meet at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening and adjourn early to attend the dance to be given by the auxiliary, Craig-ie-lea Lodge, Daughters of Scotia, in Coward Hall, that evening. It is expected that there will be a large attendance of clansmen to enjoy a social evening.

Republicans Name Hughes Moose Nominate Roosevelt

Wild Scenes In Chicago Conventions as Peace Terms Are Rejected and Two Tickets Are Put in the Field.

Chicago June 10.—After Justice Charles E. Hughes had been nominated by an almost unanimous vote in the Republican convention the Progressives refused peace terms and named Roosevelt to lead a third ticket.

Wild scenes followed the presentation of Hughes' name to the Moose. Despite the report of the peace committee which suggested a compromise on him, the delegates voted solidly for Roosevelt. Whether or not he will accept cannot be known for an hour or two. He had proposed Senator Lodge, but had not agreed to Justice Hughes.

The stampede for Hughes began on the first roll call of the day in the Republican convention Practically the solid vote of the first few States called were cost for him, and news of his nomination was flashed over the country before six States had been called The roll call was repeatedly interrupted by long demonstrations.

While this was transpiring in the Republican convention the Progressives were enacting a similar scene only a few blocks away, with Roosevelt as their hero.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

FORMER PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

So certain were the delegates of the outcome that scores of telegrams of congratulations were sent to Justice Hughes before the gavel fell.

After conferences with various leaders former Senator C. M. Depew declared that Fairbanks would be the Vice Presidentail candidate.

Hughes will issue an official acceptance or rejection of the nomination at 3 p. m. today.

Hughes received 949½ votes in the Republican convention, Roosevelt 18½, DuPont 5, Weeks 3 and Lodge 7.

Senator Weeks was recognized and a big demonstration in his honor started. Senator Weeks released his delegates and withdrew. Representative Rodenburg, of Illinois, recognized to release Sherman delegates. Sherman delegates released. Medill McCormick recognized. He announced Progressive Republicans of Illinois would support candidate named by convention and that he would vote for Hughes. This started a wild hurrah, and the Hughes stampede was on.

While waiting for clerks to tabulate the official ballots the delegates in the Republican convention began marching around the hall with banners and pennants cheering wildly.

A motion to make the nomination unanimous was carried amid a riot of enthusiasm.

MRS. ANDERSON GETS DECREE OF DIVORCE

Mrs. Evelyn H. Anderson has been awarded a final decree of divorce by the Court of Chancery from her husband, Chester W. Anderson. The petition alleged desertion. Mrs. Anderson was also awarded the custody of her child. Robert Newton Crane was counsel for the petitioner.

OLD REGISTRATIONS WILL BE GOOD ON TUESDAY

All persons registered at the last general election are eligible to vote in the special election of next Tuesday, when Union county is to decide on the small Board of Freeholders plan. An impression that only those who registered this week are eligible has become general, but County Chairman Newcorn said this morning that the old registration certificates would be accepted. A meeting of the Union County Republican Committee will be held in Elizabeth tonight for the purpose of taking action on the issue before the people next Tuesday. Chairman Newcorn will preside.

A large quantity of heated oil scattered over the plant when a tank burst threatened the Saurer plant at 6:20 last night. A telephone call was sent in for the fire department, but before apparatus arrived workmen had practically eliminated the danger. But little damage was done.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN LOCAL CHURCHES

Children's Day to Be Marked by Special Programs Tomorrow.

BAPTIST.

Children's Day will be observed at the Baptist church at 7:45 tomorrow evening by a special service. A program of songs and recitations will be rendered by the Sunday-school and there will be a number of drills, while the musical program will be in charge of Charles Lewis. The other services will be as usual: Bible-school at 9:30, morning service at 10:45, with the pastor in charge, and Junior Society at 2 o'clock.

METHODIST.

Children's Day will be generally observed at all of the services in the Methodist church tomorrow. The services will be at the usual hours and the Rev. Raymond E. Marshal will preach at the morning and evening services.

EPISCOPAL.

Whitsunday, one of the five festival days of the church year, will be observed at the 11 o'clock morning service in the Episcopal church tomorrow. The Rev. Oscar Stuart Michael will preach, and Holy Communion will be celebrated. Sunday-school will meet at 10 o'clock.

A special program will be rendered at the Willow Grove chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in observance of Children's Day. The Rev. William I. Stevens, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Westfield, will speak to the members of the Sunday-school.

COMMUNITY PICNIC PLANS.

The first meeting of the people of the township and borough interested in the holding of the second annual "Community Picnic" will hold their first meeting in the Memorial Parish House on Grand street at 8 o'clock Monday night, when preliminary plans for the affair will be made. With the political issues that are now attracting the attention of voters, it should not be a difficult matter to secure some excellent speakers for the occasion, and with the early start the workers have, and a year's experience to help them, the project should prove more successful than the initial one.

Mrs. Bessie Collier, of Cranford, a woman who has gained considerable recognition in the concert and musical world as a contralto singer of ability, has been visiting Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, of North avenue. Mrs. Collier resides in Cranford and just now is taking a short vacation from her work.

The monthly dance of the young people of the Stony Hill parish for June was held in the parish house at Stony Hill last night. A Garwood orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

The Lend-a-Hand Society of the Baptist church held its weekly meeting in the parlors of the Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

ANNUAL EXCURSION PLANS.

Plans are now being started in preparation for the thirty-fourth annual excursion of the local Sunday-schools, together with some of those of Westfield, to Asbury Park. Although the date has not been definitely settled upon, it is expected to be on or about July 22.

A strawberry festival will be held at the Willow Grove chapel on June 24.

HIT A TRAFFIC POST.

Randolph Wandring, charged with violating the traffic laws, was arraigned in police court this morning. He knocked down a traffic post at the corner of Watchung and Front street Thursday. Judge DeMeza let him off with a suspended sentence.

JUNE DAYS IN HEARN'S

West Fourteenth St., New York.

Oliver Twist would have lots of company at this store just now during June Sale, for like him, many people are calling for more. Each day our store is filled with eager shoppers who come for more of these bargains. Our supply of goods never fails this demand for more. There's a reason for the signs in our store—"As Advertised."

Our June Sale month is a busy time—it always has been for twenty-two years—but the first week's sales did surprise us. Fortunately we had prepared enormous quantities of goods and a tremendous assortment—that's our hobby, you know. In this season of craze for individual apparel it means a great deal to say that we have huge assortments and we can and do say that with pride. We are continually on the lookout for the "new things," and our buyers vie with each other in making their departments distinctively new and up to the second.

Babies' things, even the simplest, are always alluring, but ours, we think, are really unusual. There is literally everything that the most exacting baby could want and these sheer dresses, dainty lay-away-bonnets, and quaint coverlets and rocks are included in this June Sale. Our Boys' Department is so large that it seems a regular store alone. We have everything the best and the cheapest for the boy.

A store or a sale without Sport clothes is not to be thought of this season, and you may be sure we have been thinking of them for some time. Sport dresses made in every conceivable way, sport blouses, sport hats, sport fabrics, everything that has either blazer or awning stripes. Our sport things suggest that dash and freedom characterizing the 1916 summer modes.

For those of you who are clever at adapting new ideas, our Wash Goods Fabric Department, the largest in the world, is a gold mine. We have every new fabric and many really unusual patterns at such low prices that one can often get several dresses for the cost elsewhere of one.

Did you know that we have a comfortable restaurant on the third floor where every day a delicious luncheon is served, either table d'hote or a la carte? And remember that the Hearn store is only a half a block from the tubes and always offers a cool place with a warm welcome.

DRIED FOODS IN CHINA.

An Art in Which the Natives Were Experts Before Our Era.

"In so far as good cooking consists in making the cheap as attractive and delectable as the most expensive, the culinary art in China is far in advance of that of all other nations," writes Wong Cin Foo, a Chinese writer, in the Hotel Gazette.

"In a land so densely populated the cook becomes at an early age an important member of the social economy. Not only the preparation of food for immediate but also for future use is his function. Long before Christ they learned to preserve fruits and vegetables by desiccation, compression, pickling, smoking, sousing and candying. They extended and applied these processes to animal tissue. Centuries ago they did what Americans cannot do today—dry clams, oysters and other shellfish until they are as hard as wood and would keep exposed to the air in any climate for years. They similarly desiccate shrimps, crabs, lobsters, flatfish, sturgeon and the like so thoroughly that they can use the unboxed goods, if necessary, for ballasting a trading vessel without injuring their quality or flavor.

"A good Chinese cook must confine his expenditures to the limit laid down by his employer—a practice in strong contrast to the loose methods in this country. He can calculate the cost of a meal to within a few cents. He can make an inferior cut of fresh pork resemble the best piece of perfumed pork, so highly prized by his employer or make a mock bird's nest soup scarcely distinguishable from the real. When the spring market falls in price he will buy a quantity of perishable goods and preserve them to last until the autumn."

OLD TIME COURT OPENING.

"Boys, Come In," Was the Call When the Judge Was Ready.

"Oyez! Oyez! Oyez! Know ye all that the honorable circuit court of Peoria county now stands convened pursuant to adjournment."

This is the impressive ceremony used and the words spoken aloud when circuit court judges step to the bench. In federal courts all spectators and attaches are required to arise and remain standing until the court has been seated.

In the days of 1818 to 1830 things were different, as early historical records show, observes the Peoria Tribune. Records of those days show one incident in which Judge John Reynolds was seated on the circuit bench in Washington county when the following was the procedure:

"Boys, come in. Our John is going to hold court," the sheriff said to the spectators, jurors and attorneys who had gathered on the grass in the courthouse yard.

The courts in those days were held mostly in log houses or in barrooms of village taverns fitted up for the purpose, with a temporary bench for the court and benches and chairs for the jurors, lawyers and spectators. In general, the judges were adverse to rendering decisions on points of law and preferred to submit all questions to the jurors for a decision.

One instance is cited when attorneys requested the court to instruct the jurors on questions of law. The judge, after rubbing his head and face with his hands and reflecting a few moments, said to the lawyers:

"Why, gentlemen, the jury understand it; they need no instructions; no doubt they will do justice in this case."

Get Up Right.

Get up right in the morning. Go to bed right at night. Start with joy in your heart, hope in the future, kindness in your purpose.

If it is a dark day never mind; you will lighten it up. If it is a bright day you will add to the brightness. Give a word of cheer, a kindly greeting and a warm handshake to your friends.

If your enemies look up pass them by, forget and try to forgive.

If all of us would bear in mind that happiness is from within and not from without there would be a wellspring of joy in every heart, and the sun would shine forever.

Try it!—Leslie's.

"The High Seas."

By "the high seas" referred to in article 1 of the constitution of the United States is meant the open sea—that is, the waters outside the civil jurisdiction of any country whatever, which, according to the law of nations, is limited to one marine league, or three geographical miles, from the shore. Even the great lakes beyond the limit designated above are regarded as "high seas."

THERE'S LOTS OF MONEY RAISING CORN AT THIS LAD'S PACE

MARIUS MALGREN AND HIS CORN.

There's lots of money in raising corn at a cost of eleven and three-fourths cents per bushel, especially when you get 205 bushels and 40 pounds from one acre. Marius Malgren, of Norfolk County, Virginia, won the state championship of Virginia, half a dozen prizes, two suits of clothes and sold part of his corn for three dollars per bushel for seed. Marius is only 14 years old, four years younger than Dewey Hanes, the Ohio champion corn and wheat grower. Both boys expect to enter their state agricultural colleges.

Both boys used plenty of manure to get their ground full of organic matter, and top-dressed their field with three hundred pounds of high grade fertilizer to hurry the corn along and bring it to maturity. Dewey doubled his application in growing wheat, using six hundred pounds and secured 55 and two-thirds bushels. This year Marius and Dewey are aiming at much larger yields, the Virginia boy expecting to get over 250 bushels and the Ohio champion expecting to secure at least 175 bushels of corn.

LONG NAMED HEAD OF POLICE CHIEFS

Newark Man Honored by National Association After Convention.

Chief of Police Michael T. Long, of Newark, was elected yesterday President of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at the closing session of the twenty-third annual convention in the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark. There was a spirited contest between Chief Long and Chief Walter J. Peterson, of Oakland, Cal. The balloting resulted in 88 votes for Long and 79 for Peterson. On motion of the defeated candidate Chief Long's election was made unanimous. Chief Peterson was again elected first vice president.

The other officers elected were: Chief Millard F. Kerr, of South Bend, Ind., second vice president; Chief Daniel Wolff, of Yonkers, N. Y., third vice president; Chief Garret J. Farrel, of Hartford, Conn., fourth vice president; Chief A. P. Sherwood, of Altoona, Penn., fifth vice president; Major C. G. Kizer, of Norfolk, Va., secretary; Chief Fred C. Roach, of Jacksonville, Fla., treasurer; and Chief Lona B. Day, of Scranton, Penn., sergeant at arms.

Kansas City was selected for the 1917 meeting. A resolution of thanks to the Newark Police Department was adopted by the convention for the hospitality and entertainment extended to the visiting chiefs of police and their families.

CHRISTIAN FIELD

Rev. Ivan P. Flood, superintendent of Young People's work in New Jersey, will lead the Christ Endeavor meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening at 6:55. All are cordially and earnestly invited to attend. Mr. Flood is a bright and interesting speaker, and you cannot afford to miss this opportunity. All attendants are requested to bring their Biederwolf hymn books.

The Monroe Avenue church will hold Children's Day exercises to-morrow morning at 10:30. A large number of children will be baptized at this service. At 8 p. m. the pastor, Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, will preach on "Bible Honey." All persons desiring to join the church are invited to present themselves at that time. The Epworth League will meet at 7:15. On Thursday evening next a reception will be given by the ladies with music, addresses and refreshments to those who have recently united with the church.

Rev. Mr. Baltzly's subject at All-Souls' church tomorrow will be "Father and Son." Children will be christened and new members are to receive the right hand of fellowship in a public service of recognition.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30. At that time the Sunday-school and the church will unite in a joint service. Recitations, music and songs will be features.

At 10:30 tomorrow morning Grace M. E. church Sunday-school will hold Children's Day exercises. In the evening the pastor will preach on the following subject, "The Secret of Constancy, or Get on the Job."

The First Baptist church Bible school will meet tomorrow morning at 9:45 for its regular session. At 10:45 the school will march up into and occupy the body of the church for their special Children's Day exercises. Some unique features will be a part of the exercises.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow morning at 11 a. m. In the evening the service will be held at 7:45, and the pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring will preach on "The Positiveness of Jesus." The pastor will meet those who signed decision cards on Sunday afternoon between 2:30 and 3:30, and on Wednesday evening after the preparatory service; also on Friday evening, from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Those seeking admission to the First Baptist church, and who would find it more convenient to meet the pastor and deacons tomorrow morning, may do so in the pastor's study at the church at 10 o'clock sharp. There will also be a meeting for the same purpose Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

MEN'S CLUB MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Men's Club of the Grace Church will be held in the Park Club bowling alleys on Wednesday, June 14. The meeting promises to be one long remembered by those who attend. While a brief business meeting will be held for the election of officers for the following year, the program of the evening will be one of enjoyment. All members and their friends are urged to attend.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM.

Children's Day will be observed in Trinity Reformed church tomorrow at the morning service at 11 o'clock. The feature of this service will be the baptism of children. The Bible school will meet at 9:45. The evening service will be held at 7:45. The Knights of Pythias will hold their memorial service. The pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, will preach on the subject, "Numbering Our Days."

STATE BOARD TO AID FIGHT OF COUNTIES ON MOSQUITOES

Trenton, June 10.—Believing it is entirely practical to rid New Jersey of the mosquito pest at a moderate outlay, the State Department of Conservation and Development is planning to inaugurate a positive movement in that direction by co-operating with and enlarging the work of the county mosquito commissions.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the advisory committee of the department at which plans were made to take over the duties of the State Water Supply Commission when it goes out of existence, July 1. The committee decided that for the present at least no separate bureau will be established in the Department of Conservation. The new duties of the department will be assumed by the geological division, which had charge of the work for forty years previous to the formation of the Water Supply Commission in 1909. State Geologist Henry B. Kummel is in charge of this division.

Plans are also being made to broaden the scope of the State Museum with a view to making it more effective as an educational agency. A number of new exhibits pertaining to school work and the products of the State will be arranged.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM AT PARK AVENUE CHURCH

An attractive Children's Day program will be presented at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, to be in charge of the Sunday-school. Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, the pastor, will preach in the evening on "Our Day," to be followed by baptism. The morning program follows:

Organ voluntary; recitation, "The First Children's Day," Frank Repp; recitation, "If You Have a Message," Helen von Tobel; song, "Hills Crowned With Roses," elementary department; recitation, "The Children's King," Ethelbelle Barrett; recitation, "The Law of Long Ago," Harold Parry; song, "Beautiful Flowers of Eden," Lucille Casner, Jean Vail; recitation, "Even Little Children," Dorothy Leveridge, Rose Mumford, May Dorman, Walter May; song, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," elementary department; reading, "The Happy Prince," Miss L. L. Lamson; duet, Mrs. Grace Robinson and Miss Marjorie Robinson.

ALLIES TO ASSUME CONTROL OF GREECE

Take Steps to Enforce Treaties Assuring Unity.

Paris, June 10.—The official press bureau states that the entente allies have notified the Greek government that as a result of its negotiations with Bulgaria and Germany they will take all measures necessary to enforce the treaties safeguarding Greek unity and the Greek constitution. These treaties are binding on the reigning dynasty, Greece is informed.

In consequence the Greek commander of the port of Saloniki has been replaced by a French naval officer, and entry to the port has been refused to Greek ships from Kavala. Moreover, an embargo has been placed on Greek ships in French ports.

The demobilization of twelve military classes means the sending back to civil life of exactly half of the army, ordinarily composed of twenty-four classes.

The mobilization has been unpopular from the first with the Greek people, owing to its harmful economic effects, and this is considered further to have influenced the taking of the step, as well as the fact that the government hopes thus to gratify a large number of supporters of former Premier Venizelos in the army who desire to recover their civil rights.

AMERICAN CARGO CONDEMNED

Fodder on Joseph W. Fordney Seized by British Prize Court.

London, June 10.—The cargoes of the American steamship Joseph W. Fordney and three Scandinavian vessels have been condemned as prizes by the British prize court. An appeal from the decision will be made by Arthur G. Hays, counsel for the claimants.

The cargoes of the four vessels consisted chiefly of fodder.

The steamship Joseph W. Fordney was held up in January, 1915, while on her way from New York to Malmo, Sweden, with a cargo of cattle and oil cake. During the trial in April the attorney general charged a plot to evade the blockade. Decision at that time was reserved.

GENERAL JOFFRE IN LONDON

French Commander and British Ministers in Conference.

London, June 10.—A number of high French officials, including Premier Briand and General Joffre, the French commander in chief, have arrived in London for a conference with the British ministers.

General Joffre conferred at the foreign office with Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister; Paul Cambon, the French ambassador, and members of the war council.

Gambling With Clothes Money is Bad Business

Let me make myself clear. To take the $12, $15, $20 or $25 you have laid away for a suit or overcoat and to spend it haphazardly in a store that you do not know, is to gamble—and gamble isn't a word a bit too strong!

Don't gamble—play safe. Get the idea firmly in your thinkery that you're going to get the best that money can buy.

Make a thorough canvass of what every store has to offer—and the store that wins, deserves to win your trade.

We want to inculcate that "may-the-best-man-win" spirit in clothes buying. We invite comparison.

For only by comparison can you appreciate the quality of the Rothberg suits with those priced elsewhere.

PROGRESSIVES WANT ROOSEVELT

Waited on Old Party to Make Its Choice.

COMPROMISE NOT IN SIGHT

Backers Still Confident That Former President Is the Only Man Who Can Defeat Wilson in November—Delay Was Pleasing to Members of Bull Moose Party.

Chicago, June 10.—Nothing but a miracle can prevent the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president by the Progressive National convention this afternoon. Only the repeated assurances of the leaders at the Auditorium that Colonel Roosevelt himself was very much opposed to his nomination so early in the proceedings prevented the delegates from sweeping everything before them yesterday and placing the colonel on their ticket.

For hours the bull moose leaders fought a losing fight with the delegates, which ended only when the adjournment of the Republican convention—and the consequent belief that Justice Hughes' chances had received a blow—was announced and followed by the adjournment of the Progressives.

All day the delegates kept on guard, while the leaders watched or listened over the telephone to detect any unexpected move by the Republicans. As the ballots were taken in the Coliseum they waited and listened and kept their tempers. They were told they must "keep the faith" and allow two ballots to be taken by the Republicans, according to the agreement between the peace conferees and approved by Colonel Roosevelt. The approval of the colonel was a trump card held up the sleeves of the leaders, but never played, for when the Coliseum quit for the night the delegates, tired out with long sitting in the hot, sticky theater, were willing to wait for a nomination.

Delegates Just Listen.

There was little routine business during the day. The platform was tentatively agreed upon with only a few changes. A fight to insert a prohibition plank was beaten by a vote of 523 to 82 after the leaders had explained at length that to put it in meant that prohibition and not Americanism would then become the main issue of the coming campaign.

For the rest the delegates just cheered and listened. Realizing that an outbreak might be averted only by keeping them in good humor, the leaders recognized man after man in the hall, called them to the platform and allowed them to play on the crowd's good nature and its sense of humor.

The evening session had barely come to order when the first ballot at the Republican convention was announced. It was received in comparative silence, the most noise greeting the statement that William H. Taft had fourteen votes.

Immediately a delegate from Kansas demanded the regular order. This would have meant nominating speeches, and Chairman Robins avoided the difficulty by recognizing Hiram Johnson of California.

SAY PLATFORM IS WEAK.

Even G. O. P. Preparedness Plank Vague, Overman's View.

Washington, June 10.—On the eve of their departure for St. Louis Democratic members of congress took occasion to characterize the Republican platform as weak. Senator Overman of North Carolina, one of the few Democratic senators still here, had this to say:

"I confess that I was agreeably disappointed when I read the Republican platform. I had expected a strong, vigorous document with something of a punch in it and a severe attack on the policies of the administration. I find it weak and meaningless. There is something in it of assertion and criticism, of course, but nowhere is there a suggestion of what the Republican party will do if it should be returned to power.

"On Mexico and on European affairs there is no suggestion, no pledge to the country, nothing beyond a few glittering generalities that can be construed according to the mind or the desires of the reader. Even the preparedness plank is weak and ambiguous."

AMERICANS HIT BY TAX.

Even Securities Deposited Here Liable Under British Law.

London, June 10.—The extra two shilling tax on American securities not sold or deposited with the British treasury will apply to all Americans living in England who are subject to the income tax, according to an official of the American dollar securities committee.

Even if the securities are held in the United States they will be taxed unless they are deposited with the government. In that event only the regular income tax will be charged.

It is possible that a number of wealthy Americans will leave England rather than deposit their securities or pay the new tax, as already on account of the war the income tax is extremely high, especially on unearned incomes.

Since the law has come into effect many Americans have come daily to the consulate or embassy to inquire whether they were affected by its provisions.

For The Home Builder

PERMIT GRANTED FOR BIG ADDITION

Niles-Bement-Pond Co. Will Erect New Structure 215 Feet by 46 Feet Wide.

WILL COST $25,000

Six Other Permits Issued by Inspector Doane During Past Week Represent a Cost of $14,139—Figures for the Year Now $402,283.

Added impetus to the healthy building boom now in progress locally was given yesterday when Building Inspector T. O. Doane issued a permit to the Niles-Bement-Pond Company for the erection of a $25,000 addition to its big plant on South Second street. Announcement that the firm intended to take this step was made in these columns several weeks ago, but heretofore the details have been lacking. The addition will be made to the north side of the present main factory and will be at the easterly end, occupying ground lying between South Second street and the New Jersey Central Railroad.

According to the specifications given in the company's application to Inspector Doane, the new building will have a total length of 215 feet and a width of 46 feet. It will be of the standard one-story factory type, with accommodations in the upper part for the installation of a powerful travelling crane. The foundation walls will be of concrete and the upper walls of brick. The L. A. Robb Company, of Philadelphia, has been awarded the contract and will begin work in the next few days.

The present main building of the Pond shop measures 1,000 feet long and 80 feet wide. The original portion was erected by the Flint Construction Company, of Worcester, Mass. in 1888, and twelve years later the same firm built a long addition to the easterly end. Several other additions and separate structures have been added from time to time, so that at present the Pond shop is the largest in the city. The plant has been rushed to its capacity day and night during the past year and the new building to be erected is the result of the officials' belief that the industrial boom now prevailing throughout the country is to become permanent.

Beside the permit for the Pond addition, Inspector Doane granted six other permits the past week with a total valuation of $14,139, making a grand total of $39,139. Of the six permits, two were for dwellings, three for garages and one for an alteration. The addition of the past week's figures of $39,139 make a total for the month of June to date of $43,439, and for the year, $402,283. The latest permits granted were as follows:

A. F. Feil, 614 East Front street, erection of a frame dwelling at that address measuring 36 by 36 by 36. W. S. Dennick has been awarded the contract and the estimated cost is $7,000.

Howard Williams, 915 Kensington avenue, erection of frame garage at that address, measuring 20 by 18. John S. Dahl will be the contractor and the cost is placed at $700.

F. Parker Loizeaux, 852 Berkeley avenue, erection of frame garage, 10 by 10 by 14. Estimated cost, $150. No contractor given.

G. Studer, 773 Arlington avenue, erection of frame garage at that address, size 12 by 12 by 18. Cost $150. No contractor named.

J. Van Wyck Du Bois, 143 Crescent avenue, alteration to building at that address costing $139.

Dr. T. A. Davis, West Front street and Mariners place, to erect two frame dwellings at that address, size 40 by 40 by 39, with an estimated cost of $6,000. C. L. Force is the contractor.

REALTY TRANSFERS

The following realty transfers of local interest have been recorded in the office of the County Clerk at Elizabeth during the past week:

Michael Walsh, et ux. to Abraham Deutsch et ux., middle Third street, southeasterly Fourth street, Plainfield $1

George F. Quinn et ux to Emily Farley et al., easterly side Lenox avenue, 300 feet northerly Laramie road, Plainfield $1

George C Otto to Maria L. Pollock, westerly side Watchung avenue, 580 feet easterly Hillside avenue, Plainfield $1,600

CONTRACT FILED.

Among the building contracts filed at the office of the county clerk in Elizabeth during the past week was the following local one: Dominico Merio with Santa Otranto, carpenter work, new building, McCrea place, Plainfield, $1,430.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR HETFIELD HOME

Assistant Corporation Counsel's New Residence of Colonial Architecture.

Local contractors will break ground Monday for the erection of a handsome residence on East Front street, midway between Richmond and Berckman street, for Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. The structure will cost about $12,000, and because of the conformity of exterior, with the surrounding landscape effect as designed by the architect, will make one of the most attractive homes of the many in that part of the city. Oakley & Son, of Elizabeth, drew the plans, and the work will be done by the following successful bidders: Carpentering, Alexander Milne; masonry, W. H. Pangborn & Son; plumbing, P. A. McVoy; heating, Charles Dutcher; electrical wiring, Ryder & Graves; painting and decorating, Woolston & Buckle.

According to the architectural plans, the residence will be two and one-half stories in height, with strict adherence to the Colonial idea. There will be no porch in front, the main entrance being through a glass vestibule, but a veranda will be at the east end. The west end will be occupied by a glass enclosed sun room. The total room capacity will be fourteen, with three baths in addition. Steam vapor, the last word in residential heating, will be used in the heating system, and there will be numerous original ideas for conveniences in kitchen and pantry.

The first floor plan calls for a commodious living room, 19 by 29 feet in dimensions; dining room, breakfast room, pantry, kitchen and sun parlor. On the second floor will be four large sleeping rooms, two bath rooms and numerous convenient closets for linen and storage. The third floor will also have four sleeping rooms and one bath room. The main stairway will be built in the open style of Colonial times.

The location of Mr. Hetfield's home is on the south side of East Front street on what was formerly known as the Kelly property. The lot has a frontage of eighty-four feet and a depth of 274 feet. Another lot adjoining to the east has been purchased by Counselor Francis J. Blatz, who is also completing plans for the erection of a home in keeping with the surrounding neighborhood.

CONTRACTOR C. L. FORCE IN ON BUILDING BOOM

Contractor Charles L. Force is one of the local builders who is now being kept busy with numerous jobs. Among the latest contracts he has received are the following:

Garage to be erected for H. E. Butler on Cushing road, to be two stories in height, 34 by 34 feet square, and with laundry addition in rear, 22 by 22 feet. The building will be of terra-cotta construction, and will be fitted with all modern improvements. The second floor will be equipped as chauffeur's living quarters, with bath, steam heat and electrical fixtures. Beside the accommodations for automobiles on the ground floor, a drying room will be located near the laundry. Lee Manning will do the mason work.

Beside this job Mr. Force is to build two garages on Second place, one at 814 for J. VanWyck Du Bois, and the other at 820 for Charles D. Du Bois. Both will be of frame construction, the former measuring 10 by 20 and the latter 12 by 20.

Another job secured by this contractor is the erection of a two-family dwelling at West Front street and Mariners place for Dr. T. S. David, costing about $6,000. It will be 40 feet over all in front and 39 feet deep. The interior plans call for modern improvements. Lee Manning has the mason work on this contract also.

Employes of Mr. Force are now at work on the residence at 926 Park avenue, owned by Miss Olive Z. De Laney, where numerous repairs are being made to the roof, gutters and porch.

IN THE SUBURBS

The most active section of Dunellen in the building line at present is Equator Park. Besides the large number of houses erected there during the past year or two, two more are to be run up at once, and the work on the foundations of the same will be begun forthwith by Contractor Walter G. Clawson.

The Perrine family, of Dunellen, who were moved from North avenue of Plainfield about ten days ago by Contractor Isaac V. Smalley, the moving man, moved back into the borough on Tuesday, having taken a flat over the drug store of John Marien in the building of the Standard Investment Company. Mr. Smalley moved them back to Dunellen.

THE ECONOMICAL SQUARE HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT

THE size of our illustrated square house is 26 ft. in width and 28 ft. in depth. It is of frame construction with concrete foundation, a good full basement and two full height stories, with square hip roof of sufficient height to give good rooms in attic if desired.

The first story is 8 ft. 6 in. in height. The second 8 feet and the basement 7 ft. 6 in. in height. The exterior is designed to be covered with cement stucco to the first story window sills and also the space above the second story window, and the space between to be sided with narrow siding mitred on the outer angles.

The first story is finished in hard wood with oak floor and the second story is in pine and painted and enameled. The plan is conveniently arranged, with a large living room across the front with a wide front piazza and vestibule entrance. The main stairs are at the left end of living room with platforms and combination arrangement, grade entrance and kitchen stairs leading to main platform. There is one central chimney with wide fireplace in living room and flue for furnace. At the right of living room are two book cases with central window between. The dining room is connected with wide colonned arch and the kitchen on the left is provided with ample cupboards, rear porch, etc.

The second story has three good-sized chambers and one small maid's room in the rear over the kitchen. Each of these chambers has a good closet also a linen closet opening in the rear hall, the bathroom also opens out of the rear hall. The attic stairs extend up over the main stairs and are shut off with a door at the foot. It is estimated to build this snug house complete, without heating or plumbing, for $2,800 to $3,500. The roof is shingled and the shingles stained and the outside of house painted a light cream color.

MIDDLESEX TRANSFERS

GIVING PUBLICITY TO LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

They Go Hand-in-hand With Real Estate Intrest, Helping the Thrifty.

Boosting the building and loan movement and thereby boosting the building of homes in every community is a subject which has been actively taken up by the leading building and loan men in practically every section of the country during the last year or two. Building operations, the real estate markets and building and loan association work go hand in hand in many ways and what will benefit one will prove of value to the other. Hence, there is wide worth for all in publicity by and for either. Publicity is now the strongest cry in building and loan circles everywhere. Writing recently in the Chicago Daily News, John M. Oskinson says:

"Building and loan associations ought to do more to make themselves known to the people. I criticise them for being over-conservative in that respect. The other day I had a letter from a woman in Chicago who said that until she read one of my little articles she had the impression that building and loan associations are rather shaky institutions; she didn't know of any such associations in Chicago; and she wanted to know if it is really true that in a short time, by turning rent money into a building and loan association, you can cease to pay rent and apply the payments on the purchase of a home.

"I'd like to see in every newspaper of general circulation a department devoted to the news and gossip of home builders, with a note of encouragement running all through it. Most city newspapers pay a great deal attention to ordinary real estate news, and they are justified in this because the real estate dealers make their transactions interesting. Let the co-operative home building companies pay more attention than they have done to letting the people generally know that they are on the job all the time."

THE INFLUENCE OF LAND DEVELOPMENT

Arthur B. Cozzens Says It is Essential Factor in Community's Worth.

"The development of real estate," according to Arthur B. Cozzens, secretary of the Newark City Plan Commission, "is fundamental to the growth of a community and determines whether that growth shall be good or bad. Upon its proper development depends the efficiency of the street plan, the character of occupancy and the general welfare of the community.

"Upon the real estate man, then, is placed a very high responsibility, and he holds a position of the utmost importance. He is in a position to do the community a very good service or a very great injury. His works long outlive the generations and leave a permanent imprint upon the city as a monument to his farsightedness and wisdom or as a record of his aviriciousness. The latter class of real estate operator is greatly in the minority, however, and is becoming more so. His place is being taken by the real estate operator who is alive to his responsibility for public service. He is a man who applies city planning principles to his land sub-division schemes, not only because he has learned that it pays in dollars and cents, but because the public is demanding better housing conditions, more light, more air and play space and more direct highways.

NO WORD FROM SAGAMORE HILL

Colonel Always Seeking Action and Is Optimistic.

HE SELDOM ADMITS DEFEAT

As All the Nation Waited No Word Came From Colonel—Making Plans For Critical Contest and Feels Assured That Democratic Nominee Will Be Defeated.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 10.—Colonel Roosevelt had not given up the fight to obtain the Republican nomination, and it appeared at noon today that he would not do so until Justice Hughes or another has received the majority necessary for the nomination.

He was in constant touch with his leaders at Chicago while the balloting was in progress and failed to be convinced that Justice Hughes could gather enough votes to put him at the head of the ticket. It was his belief that the maximum Hughes strength was reached on the second ballot and that his own chances of getting the nomination were thereby increased.

This belief may perhaps explain why the colonel held back the Progressives until the last moment and determined not to tell what course he will follow.

One of the encouraging features of the Republican session, according to the view of Roosevelt supporters, was that Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania asked for the adjournment. It is thought that this is a favorable sign, coupled with the fact that the Hughes leaders were unable to obtain the nomination of the justice on the first or second ballot. Roosevelt's adherents are working on the theory that Hughes will reach his full strength on the first few ballots without gaining a majority and that the trend will then be toward Roosevelt.

In this connection they did not give up hope that the Weeks delegates or most of them would go to Roosevelt in preference to Hughes. They expected also to have the Cummins delegates fall in line and thus to present such a strong front that others would be kept from Hughes and at least cause a deadlock if they remained unwilling to name the colonel.

Had these hopes been blasted when the convention assembled the colonel would certainly have been faced with the problem of making known his intentions.

There was much doubt expressed here whether he could hold the Progressive convention in restraint if the Republicans refused him the nomination. The Roosevelt leaders hoped that this danger may prove the added inducement to the delegates controlled by Weeks, Cummins, Du Pont, Brumbaugh, Penrose, Knox and others to get on the Roosevelt band wagon.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

The planks in the Republican platform, just built at Chicago, on the subjects of Americanism, firm but just assertion and defense of American rights everywhere in the world, whether on sea or land, and undivided and un-hyphenated allegiance and loyalty to the flag, must be gall and wormwood to the Kaiser's Republicans in Congress who voted against tabling the McLemore resolution and in favor of depriving Americans of immemorial rights on the high seas, to secure which our fathers' fathers fought more than a hundred years ago.

At this great Republican convention, the final Court of Appeals for the enunciation of Republican principles, attended by nearly a thousand delegates from all the United States, its territories and far-flung island possessions, only three votes were cast against these planks.

The Republican party has thus burned behind it the German bridges on which stood the Congressional pussy-footers, the weak-kneed, timid, jelly-vertebrated compromisers and betrayers of American rights and honor.

Thus also is vindicated the claim of the Republicans in this District that the vote of their Congressman was misrepresentative, unrepresentative, traitrous and unpatriotic.

Now for the next job, which is to retire to the rear all and sundry the Congressmen who voted for the McLemore resolution. They can't stand on the platform without standing on their heads! and the country has had enough of political acrobats and double-facers, whether of word or dood.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JUNE 10, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial column of the Daily Press is conducted, at our request, by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is William deLa Roche Anderson.

Union county is now discussing a question which has been discussed by Somerset county twice in the past, namely, the advisability of adopting a Small Board of Freeholders. Somerset county has twice voted this question down. The discussion, as it was brought forward in Somerset, showed on the side of those who were in favor of the small board—a less cumbersome form, theoretically, a quicker way to do business and a centralization of responsibility; and on the side of those opposed was the fact that there was no provision for equal representation from the various parts of the county and the probability under the general law which did not provide for the districting of the county that all representatives would be elected from that section of the county most thickly populated. It was deemed by the voters of Somerset county inadvisable to create a system in which each section, no matter how small, might not have its voice. The operation of the Small Board of Freeholders as against the present method, so far as I have been able to observe it, has furnished no material improvement either physically or financially to those counties which have adopted that system. While theoretically we will all agree that this small centralized system should be highly efficient and economical, it does not work out well, and the reasons are as follows:

First. A county is too large a governmental unit for a commission form of government, as supervision of all sections by relatively few representatives is physically impossible and resolves itself into the appointment of paid district supervisors who do at a higher cost to the county what the present Freeholders are now doing, and the reports of these district supervisors are taken as a basis of operation by the central body, which brings about the same effect as the workings of the present system.

Second. The salary which, under the law, is to be paid to the small board members, is entirely inadequate to secure the services of men of a calibre who can afford to give their entire time to this office.

Third. Under the present method the calibre of men who accept the office of Freeholder and give their time locally to the county's affairs is far higher than could be purchased at any reasonable compensation, and their work, through the acceptance of the office as practically an honorary position, is of a greater value.

Fourth. The theory of "Home Rule" is involved and a great majority of people feel that this principle is the safest one and the one in which they have most confidence.

Fifth. Under the present method which allows of a resident representative with power, allows of a greater opportunity for an accurate determination of the wish of the people, as, having a county representative in each community, all may have the opportunity of approaching him, notifying him of conditions and of the wish of the people of a community, and in various ways keep him accurately informed of the sentiment in regard to public improvement, extension and conduct of county affairs and allows him to go to the general meeting of the county officers as a spokesman for his community and not merely as an interested personal representative.

Looking this matter over pro and con, it would seem to me that the safest method would be the continuance of the present system. The general trend of affairs in municipal government is more and more coming to the "Home Rule" principle as against autocratic centralization. It is undisputed by me that the small centralized body moves more quickly, more efficiently and more desirably when the central body is of the proper calibre, but it is my experience that in public affairs the remuneration is insufficient to secure the calibre necessary for efficient action, and an inefficient and unrepresentative centralized body is far worse than the slower moving and possibly more cumbersome representative system.

TARRY-AT-HOME TRAVELING.

The Undearwood Stereoscopic Travel System is unique. It consists in travel of the truest kind, for the individual is brought into contact, through the mind, with objects and places of fame without bodily fatigue. It is a system of tarry-at-home traveling by means of the streographs consisting of two slightly dissimilar photographs, made with a two-lens camera, which gives two points of view, adjusted in such a way that when scientifically prepared and viewed through a pair of good prisms, the objects are seen standing out in natural perspective, natural size and at natural distances.

Accompanying these views is a guide-book written by an authority on the country, who knows not only how to make a journey delightful for the moment but permanently profitable; with this hand book is a map sysem definitely locating and numbering every standpoint, showing the direction in which one is looking and what the outlook covers.

Your Next Tenant Is an "Ad-Reader"

The tenant to whom your property would be most valuable is a reader of the "To Let" advertisements.

If your advertisement is factful, definite and fully informing he will recognize it as meaning OPPORTUNITY to him, and he will lose no time in getting in touch with you.

But if your advertisement should be vague, uninforming and written with a view to "saving space," it might not appeal of any personal interest at all.

Stung.

One day I met a maiden fair,
With golden locks beyond compare;
I wrote an ode upon her hair,
Enthralled quite, by her tresses rare.
Her guileless ways did me ensnare;
I lost my heart, but didn't care.
I called one fatal morning where
She lived to lay my secret bare,
All unannounced by trumpets' blare.
To go again I'd never dare,
For when I met her on the stair
Her charming tresses were not there;
She'd left them hanging on a chair,
Somewhere.

A Terse Report.

Danny O'Brien got a job on the section working for the B., U. and M. Railroad. The superintendent told him to go along the line looking for washouts.

"And don't be long-winded in your reports as ye have been in the past," said the superintendent. "Just report the condition of the roadbed as ye find it, and don't put in a lot of needless words that ain't to the point.. Write like a business letter, not like a love letter."

Well, Danny got on the handcar and went along the track looking for washouts. When he came to the river he stopped the car and wrote his report to the superintendent in one line: "Sir: Where the railroad was, the river is."

--Astor Theatre--

At the Astor Theatre today there will be presented Lionel Barrymore in a Biograh production, "The Woman in Black," a five-part thrilling drama—not a dull situation. It is very seldom that we have an opportunity to offer two stars as the Barrymores two days in succession, and there is no doubt that Lionel Barrymore will meet with the same reception as John Barrymore. In addition to this Biograph production we will show the 7th episode of "The Girl and the Game," which is becoming more interesting as it proceeds from week to week, with the daring Helen Holmes. "Friliby Frilled," a comedy with a laugh a minute, will also be added to this program. On Monday the ever-popular favorite, Hazel Dawn, in "The Saleslady," a Paramount picture by Willard Mack, produced by the Famous Players' Company. One of New York city's greatest department stores and her celebrated violin play important parts in Hazel Dawn's latest Famous Players-Paramount picture. This is the first time that any of the big New York department stores has ever been used as the setting for a motion picture. The violin which Hazel Dawn made unforgettable in "The Pink Lady," makes its motion picture debut in this film—not that it can be heard, of course, but anyone who is familiar with music can see at a glance that the star is actually playing her beloved instrument. Miss Dawn is unquestionably at her best in this picture, and is supported by an all-star cast who are all well known to the motion picture public. In addition to this production we will show the Burton-Holmes travelogue and other interesting photoplays.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Mary Miles Minter, the diminutive Metro star, appears in a delightful characterization at Proctor's today in "Lovely Mary," a romantic drama produced in five parts. It is a story of the South and tells how lovely Mary Lane is the last female descendant of the Lanes. The only male descendant is her worthless cousin, Claiborne. Upon these Lanes descend two land scouts from the North; one, Roland Manning, falls in love with Mary and attempts to get her a good price for the Lane lands, which he discovers are very valuable. The other, Wade Dempster, attempts to get the property from Claiborne, after plying him with liquor. A citizen of the town discovers the plot and arrives in time to stop it, but Dempster grapples with him; into the scuffle runs Manning, who pulls Dempster away from his victim, but his action is futile. Dempster shoots the local citizen, then cleverly turns the circumstances against Manning, who is arrested, convicted and sentenced to hard labor for life. Lovely Mary rescues him through the old convict farming law, by which any citizen may lease a convict from the State. She leases Manning and puts him to work in her garden. There he learns of Dempster's attempts to grab the Lane property, and again foils the villain. Incidentally Dempster is exposed as the real murderer and Manning is freed. Thomas Carrigan does some excellent juvenile work as Manning, and there is splendid character drawing by Frank De Vernon, Russell Simpson, Schuyler Ladd, Fred Tidmarsh, Myra Brooks and Harry Blakemore. In addition today a three-part drama, entitled "The Hare and the Tortoise," and a famous Goldberg comedy are shown. On Monday Fannie Ward appears in "The Cheat," together with the sixth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" and other features, while on Tuesday the first chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine," the new patriotic serial, is shown, in addition to Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore in a Triangle play, "Susan Rocks the Boat," a Keystone comedy entitled "Bathtub Perils," and the last chapter of "Mary Page." On Wednesday William Fox presents Dorothy Bernard and Stuart Holmes in the "Sins of Men," while on Friday and Saturday Charlie Chaplin is seen in "The Fireman."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Nightingale Answered a Sick Emperor.

The Real Nightingale Perched Outside.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"OH, daddy, please tell us a story!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"Once upon a time an emperor who lived in China had a make believe nightingale to sing for him. But one day the spring inside the bird broke, so the nightingale could sing but once a year after it was mended. After five years the emperor became very sick, so sick that his whole kingdom feared he might die. They choose a new emperor and stood about the streets near the castle asking the highest courtier how the old emperor was getting on.

"'Ill,' said the highest courtier, shaking his head.

"The poor old emperor lay very pale and sick in his gorgeous bed. The courtiers thought him dead and went off to pay their respects to the new ruler. The lackeys ran off to talk about the new emperor, and the chambermaids gave a great coffee party. All was very, very quiet in the castle, but the old emperor was not dead yet. There was an open window above him, and the moonlight streamed in upon him and his make believe nightingale.

"He was so sick he imagined that curious faces and evil deeds were talking to him. 'Do you remember this?' 'Do you remember that?' he imagined they said to him. This made the old emperor very nervous.

"'Music!' he shouted. 'Music, I say! Sound the great Chinese drums so I cannot hear what these faces say! You precious little gold bird that I have loaded with jewels and hung my gold slipper on, sing, I tell you!'

"But the make believe nightingale stood silent and still. There was nobody to wind it up, and it could not sing unless somebody wound it up. The poor old emperor was silent and still, too, for death had almost found him.

"Suddenly, close to his window, there was a burst of lovely song. It was the real nightingale perched on a branch outside the emperor's window. It had heard that the emperor was very sick and had come to bring him comfort and hope. As it sang the curious faces and evil deeds that had bothered the old sick man became fainter and fainter, the blood came back into his pale face, and new strength came to his tired body. Even death listened to the real nightingale and whispered to him, 'Go on, little bird, go on!'

"So the nightingale sang all about the quiet churchyard, where roses bloomed and flowers made the air sweet and where fresh grass sparkled in the dew each morning. This song made death long for his own garden, and, like a gray mist, he passed out of the window."

"Oh, daddy, the real nightingale saved the emperor's life!" cried Jack.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which a Genuine Helpmate Offers Some Suggestions to Ethel.

"I was so disgusted with my maid. It was her afternoon off, and she would not stay to help out, although she knew it would be hard for me to manage with the lunch alone," grumbled Ethel as she rose to leave and prepare lunch.

"Let me help you, dear," volunteered Margie Forsyth. "I always get Sunday evening lunch. My girl gets every Sunday afternoon off. I really prefer to have the house to myself and I leave the dishes for her to do in the morning." Margie had followed Ethel into the kitchen.

"Give her every Sunday off!" echoed Ethel in surprise. "Why do you do it? It makes it hard for you."

"I do not mind it a bit. I do most of the cooking anyway."

"Why?"

"For many reasons," laughed Margie. "I enjoy cooking, it is such fascinating work, and I can do so much better than any maid I can afford to hire. Cooks cost about twice as much as ordinary maids, you know. Then they are so wasteful. I save an enormous amount by keeping tab on all the eatables that come into the house." Margie was busily arranging the lettuce around the salad dish while Ethel looked helplessly on.

"Why do you make a slave of yourself to save a few dollars? You do not have to. Your husband is rich." Ethel's tone expressed surprise that any one should assume such burdens unnecessarily.

"I suppose it is the canny Scotch in me," was the laughing rejoinder. "I never could bear to see anything wasted. Our expenses are high enough anyway; besides I like to feel that I am a real help to my husband by keeping expenses down and being a capable manager. Men like efficiency, and I want my husband to see that I am as great a success in my buiness as he is in his."

"Your business!" There was wonder in Ethel's tone. "I do not understand."

"Yes, my business is making a comfortable home for my husband and children, and I pride myself on getting the maximum comfort out of the minimum expense." Margie's laugh was good to hear.

"I do not understand business, and never was a success in saving." There was irritation in Ethel's tone. "I like to get some pleasure out of life."

"Do you succeed?" Margie's tone was solemn.

"Oh, I suppose as much as the average person," answered Ethel evasively.

"I asked because I have a theory that anyone who makes a business of having a good time rarely succeeds."

"I know lots of people who have a good time, who do nothing else. I used to have glorious times, something doing every day. That was in good old Milwaukee," sighed Ethel.

"That was when you had no responsibilities, when you were a child. That does not count. Now you are a married woman in business for yourself, and your happiness must come through your life work; through your successful home making, and management is a big factor in that success." Ethel sighed and said nothing. She felt irritated also that this eternal subject of management must be thrust under her nose even by guests.

"There, that is all. Thank you so much. I will put all this on the table——"

"Why not put it on the tea-wagon and wheel it out on the lawn. Serving it there will be so much easier," suggested the capable Margie.

"All right. A good suggestion. It will be like a picnic," agreed Ethel gaily running to get the wagon.

HUGHES SILENT AS THE VOTING BEGAN

Justice Has Not Sent His Resignation to Wilson.

Washington, June 10.—"Mr. Justice Hughes has sent no word to Chicago." This statement was made today by Lawrence H. Green, private secretary to Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court.

"Mr. Justice Hughes has not resigned.' This statement has been made by Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. Secretary Tumulty talked with President Wilson over the telephone into the White House and asked the president the direct question as to whether Justice Hughes had tendered his resignation as a member of the supreme court. The president's response to Mr. Tumulty, in answer to this question, was that he had not received any resignation from Mr. Hughes.

The fact that Justice Hughes was voted for at the Chicago convention and received the largest number of votes on each ballot and has not sent word of his withdrawal to Chicago was generally regarded here as indicating that he is an open candidate for the nomination, unless it be his purpose to send such word to the convention. In political circles here the feeling is strong that Mr. Hughes must now be regarded as a candidate for the Republican nomination, but friends of the justice do not see it that way and point to his silence as evidence of their belief that he is pursuing the even tenor of his way and not turning his hand for the nomination.

On the other hand, it is difficult to convince veteran politicians that Mr. Hughes is not a candidate when he has known that his name had been presented for nomination at Chicago and now knows that his name has headed the list on two ballots in the convention.

Justice Hughes is not only inscrutable but likewise incommunicado. It was impossible to obtain any sort of statement from the justice himself for the reason that he saw no newspaper men. A small group of newspaper men visited the Hughes residence in the hope that they might be able to interview the justice or that a statement would be forthcoming. Their mission was futile. The newspaper men were cordially received by Justice Hughes' secretary, Mr. Green, and remained some time in the study of the justice, while the balloting at Chicago was in progress.

DESTROYERS IN BATTLE.

Both British and Germans Claim Foe Was Forced to Retire.

London, June 10.—Conflicting reports have been received here concerning an engagement off Zeebrugge between German destroyers and British monitors and destroyers.

According to the British statement the enemy was driven off after a brief action. No British warships were damaged and no men were injured.

The German statement is as follows: "Off Flanders our outpost boats engaged enemy monitors and destroyers with good effect. Our sailors observed the enemy withdrawing. The German vessels were not damaged.

"A French aeroplane was brought down by one of our submarines, which picked up the occupants."

FRANCE URGES TARIFF WAR.

Chamber Committee Demands Abrogation of Favored Nation Clause.

Paris, June 10.—A resolution requesting the government to denounce immediately all commercial treaties with countries containing a most favored nation clause has been drawn up by the customs committee of the chamber of deputies.

The action is urged in order that France may have absolute freedom of economic action. Deputy Reville, president of the committee, has been delegated to notify the minister of commerce of the resolution of the committee.

Mrs. William F. Day, of Duer street, who recently underwent a serious operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, was reported today as improving steadily.

Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, who has been confined to her bed by illness for the past ten weeks, has so far recovered as to be able to sit up a few hours each day.

Keeping the Skin Clean

The skin completely covers the body, but, unlike any other garment, it renews itself constantly. It is composed of many layers of tiny cells. The deeper layers contain the network of capillaries that nourish it, the secreting glands, and the sensory nerve endings. Being nearest the blood supply, these deeper cells are round and full. Nearer the outer layers, where there is less moisture, the cells are flatter and harder, until at the extreme outer layers the tiny scales or flakes are continually being shed.

It is by this process of renewal underneath and by a process of elimination from the top that a new skin is being constantly grown. So that if one has a badly functioning and unattractive skin, it is possible by hastening the casting-off process and by furnishing good blood to the deepest layers of cells, to create an entirely new and healthy covering for the body.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the new cells arrange themselves after the order of the old, so that while scars and pits and other defects of the skin will be softened by this process, they are likely to be permanent.

It is perhaps about the time of puberty that the fundamental principle of care—cleanliness and exercise and a properly nourished and aerated blood—are most neglected. At this age, owing to the tremendously increased cell activity of the body, an extraordinary amount of waste must be eliminated. When this waste is not taken care of properly the fact is evinced often by a pasty or anemic complexion.

The waste material clogs the pores of the skin, particularly of the face, chest and back. If neglected, in a short time this condition is likely to be followed by a pustular eruption and by unsightly blackheads. This will be a source of great annoyance and discomfort to the young man or woman thus disfigured.

A Daily Routine for Children

Rise promptly when awake. Throw the bed clothes over the foot of the bed.

Take breathing and setting-up exercises appropriate to the age.

Wash, hot water, soap and hand brush on face, neck, hands and chest. Cold douche on face, neck and chest. Clean finger nails.

Clean the teeth. Brush the gums and the whole mouth and rinse the mouth.

Drink a glass of water.

Dress with inspection of clothes as to cleanliness.

At breakfast eat slowly and masticate well.

Attend the toilet and wash afterwards.

Prepare for school. Books and clothes clean and in order.

Observe regulations as to entering school.

Care for outer clothing, attention to order of desk and prepare for "Morning Inspection."

Watch sitting posture and standing posture in school.

Drink water at recess. Use individual drinking cup.

Play and fresh air after school.

Lessons. Pay attention to study and finish the work.

Wash and prepare for the evening meal.

Prepare for bed. Attend the toilet, wash, put clothes in order, open window and go to bed early.

Diet for Sleeplessness

Treat sleeplessness calmly; recognize that it means nothing to the man who is sound. Also, return to simple meals.

For breakfast, at eight, and supper, at seven, two small ripe apples, grated with the skins and mixed with oatmeal, a dessert spoon of sweet condensed milk, and some ground nuts, to form a substantial plate of porridge. In addition, wholemeal bread and butter, or fat bacon, and a cup of all-milk coffee free from caffeine. Oranges, bananas, plums, and other fruits can be substituted for apples.

For dinner, at one o'clock, daintily-cooked vegetables, two or more kinds, or a savory made of vegetables and cereals; fruit, milk, or any nourishing and agreeable pudding, followed by lettuce (always lettuce) and salad-oil, fresh fruit, and nuts. No alcohol, no tea. This diet—no further drink will be needed—will mean health, sleep, and something to live for.

Olive Oil for Liver Spots

A teaspoonful of best olive oil taken every morning half an hour before breakfast and the same quantity half an hour after the latest meal of the day will be found very effective for liver spots on the face.

After a few months' treatment this will excite the liver to proper action, clear the skin and otherwise improve the health.

The unsweetened juice of a lemon in a glass of water every morning before breakfast is also beneficial for a sluggish liver.

Drink plenty of cool, not iced, water between meals. Never eat hot breads, rich pastries nor sauces. Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables that do not contain much starch.

HOW TO TAKE CASTOR OIL.

Squeeze the juice of an orange into a tumbler and pour two teaspoonfuls of the oil on the orange juice; then squeeze the juice of another orange on top of the oil and rub the pulp of the orange around the edge of the glass.

June Presentation of China, Dinnerware and Cut Glass

For Brides and Summer Homes

Six Special Offerings Below Current Rates

DINNER SETS CUT GLASS
TABLE TUMBLERS
ODD DINNERWARE PIECES
MARBLE STATUARY

ENTHUSIASTIC preparedness for every June need. For brides' gifts, for out-of-the-city homes and for the replenishment of winter supplies which it is hardly wise to put off until next Autumn.

Our stocks were bought in large quantities at prices prevailing months ago, before the advances went into effect. We sell as we buy—so practically all the china and glass here is at the old low prices.

To accomplish this our representative made a special trip to Europe, where we found ways to push our orders through, and to expedite foreign shipments.

For months past these importations have been coming in.

But difficulties of getting proper goods from abroad are increasing—not decreasing. We believe foresighted housewives will be quick to match their present patterns of dinnerware immediately—and also lay in supplies for the coming seasons—once they realize the conditions.

China Dinner Sets

Open stock patterns enough to make up nearly six hundred full sets, but which can be chosen in smaller assortments if desired; full sets, $16.50 to $335.

Complete dinner sets already assembled, 400 of them, $12 to $100.

French china dinner sets alone number 150 complete sets priced $30 to $100.

Special Dinner Sets

French China Dinner Sets, $20 and $27.50
Until today they were $25 and $32.50 here.
Last 31 sets of the kind we have. Spray patterns, gold decorated, 107 pieces to the set.

Imported China Dinner Sets, $15
Until today they were $22.50.
Last 14 sets of the kind. 100 pieces to a set.

English Porcelain Dinner Sets, $20, $22.50
New shapes, new patterns at the March china sale prices. 108 pieces to the set. 134 sets.

Stocks Complete with Everything and Priced Moderately in the Face of an Extraordinarily Difficult Market

American Dinner Sets, $12 and $15
Until today they were $13.50 and $16.50.
Porcelain in four new patterns. 108 pieces to the set, including bread and butter plates.

2,500 Pieces Odd Dinnerware 5c to $5

Third to half less for oddments left over from open stock patterns which we are discontinuing. Almost everything for the table included at these little prices.

Table Glass—Mostly Cut Glass

The bride's new June rose pattern in cut glass is shown only here in New York. The glass is clear, brilliant and beautifully cut—the roses have frosted petals and diamonds cut centers. Prices are not high. An eight-inch bowl at $6; a 12-inch vase, $8.50; a flower basket, $9; a dozen water tumblers, $18; a bon bon dish, $2 and so on.

Cut Glass for Half

Two tables of high grade cut glass, one or two pieces of a kind. $1 for a standard $2 nappie, up to $7.50 for a standard $15 vase.

Water Tumblers, 50c, 75c Dozen

Thin lead blown water tumblers, several designs.

Our 75c and $1.25 grades.

These, so far as we know, are the last we can get of these fine grades to offer at the prices.

Marble Statuary, formerly $1.85 to $37.50, now 90c to $18.50

50 pieces that were imported last year. With the exception of an odd piece or two they are all perfect. Second Gallery, New Building.

1,000 New Scotch Tablecloths at $3

In the Fine New Linen Store in the Daylight Corner of the Third Gallery—Bridge Floor

LINENS at last have come to their logical place as a part of furnishings—and one now finds them in the New Building along with furniture, rugs, draperies, bedding, etc.

TO celebrate the opening of their new quarters we offer this latest shipment from abroad of Scotch tablecloths. Splendid linens, they are. Some eight or nine patterns in a mellow finished close woven damask. The order was placed long ago and the prices are low accordingly.

2 x 2 yard cloths, $3 2 x 2½ yard cloths, $3.75
2 x 3 yard cloths, $4.50

Damask to match them may also be had by the yard.

Napkins, 22 inches square, $4 dozen and 24 inches square, $4.50.

June Sale of Towels

Big spongy Turkish cotton bath towels of our $6 grades at $4.80 dozen, with slight imperfections.

Third Gallery, New Building.

PLAINFIELD DAREDEVILS IN NOVEL AUTO MEET ON NEWARK TRACK

The great crowd that attended the first automobile race meet at Olympic Park track, Newark, on Decora-Day, manifested both by their presence and by the enthusiasm demonstrated the tremendous popularity of these events. The second meet takes place by artificial light on Saturday night, June 17, when such noted drivers as Bert Watson, J. J. R. Special, Jos. J. Ryan, New York; J. W. Dickinson, Stutz Special; A. Duryea, Ford Special; Thomas C. Fraser, J. & F. Special, R. D. Jackson, Cranford; George T. Theobald, of Brooklyn, National Special, will again compete for the cash prizes and for the magnificent winged-wheel trophy of silver known as the Olympic Park Trophy, which will be won outright by the competitor with the highest accumulated score after the last meet of the year.

Tom Fraser hails from Plainfield and has teamed with Joe Jackson, another local daredevil, in a number of previous Olympic Park meets. The two have manufactured a racing car of their own in the Jackson & Miller garage on West Front street and have been trying it out in this section.

Much work and the expenditure of several thousands of dollars have brought the Olympic Park track and grandstand into a condition that won the unqualified approval of the contest committee of the American Automobile Association, under whose strict supervision and control the races are held. Nothing has been left undone to make the track as safe as possible. It has been thoroughly scraped and rolled and is well-oiled for every meet; guard rails are erected at the dangerous portions of the track to safe-guards riders, and neutral zones are maintained by regularly uniformed police for the protection of spectators. The personnel of the management is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the high class of meets being given. Emil G. Meyer, president, is president of Meyer & Meyer, electrical engineers and contractors.

A. J. Guenther, treasurer, has lived all his life in Newark, is cashier of the Home Brewing Co., and is connected with a number of our leading building associations. T. B. Shoemaker, director of contests and secretary, was for six years secretary of the A. A. A. contest board and had active supervision of all A. A. A. sanctioned automobile races throughout the United States. It is the policy of the Racing Association to have only experienced professional drivers and specially constructed racing cars, thus reducing to the very minimum the possibility of accidents.

Press Amateur Team Directory

For the convenience of baseball managers and fans, the Daily Press will publish a directory of teams and their managers. This feature will appear daily and will be enlarged upon and made more complete with each succeeding issue.

Directory.

Plainfield A. C. (travels). Manager, Vincent Mullin, North avenue.

National A. C. (age 10 to 14 years). Manager, William Coogan, 428 West Third street.

Will the managers of the following clubs make themselves known to this office and gain due recognition in this directory?

Somerset F. C.; Inner Triangles; Quakers; Highlanders; Antler A. A.; Boys' Athletic Club; Laurel A. C.; Queen City.

Watch for this feature daily. It will enable out-of-town managers to write directly to local leaders and will also engender keener rivalry among local clubs.

"MIDGE" KLINE PLANNING FOR A BASEBALL START

Although the continued rainfall has put a decided crimp in the plans of William "Midge" Kline, manager of the newly organized Royal A. C., a local colored team, it has not succeeded in putting an end to these plans. While Kline is willing to admit that there never has been such disagreeable weather, he is rather optimistic and believes that we will get our share of the balmy "condition" later. However, there is no getting away from the fact that the Royal activities have amounted to nothing during the past two weeks, although those in charge of the club insist that something is going to happen shortly.

There has been one decided change in the policy of the club, however, and that change was probably brought about by the fact that H. G. Hobson's baseball bee has been slumbering. Contrary to original plans, the Royals will be made up of local talent, although the battery men will be outsiders. Tommy Washington, of Newark, will do the catching, while Murphy and McDonald, of the Philadelphia Colored Giants, are carded as the pitchers. If the team is anything more than a myth, Kline should get busy and consult with the management of the Annandale Baseball Club, inasmuch as it has been the local manager's expressed wish to get a whack at the "Annies."

KENNEL CLUB NAMES SHOW COMMITTEE

Searching for Suitable Site to Stage Annual Event This Year.

The president of the Plainfield Kennel Club has appointed the following committee for the annual show, which will be held on September 23: Edmund L. Mackenzie, John A. Conway, C. Fred Neilson, William B. Nash, Francis G. Lloyd, Morris Kinney, Richard J. Harrington, Thomas K. Bray, John G. Bates and John J. O'Donohue, secretary.

At a recent meeting a committee was appointed to search for a suitable place where the show could be held and to select a superintendent to manage it, but as yet nothing definite has been announced. Many unsolicited prizes have already been received and from present indications, the premium list will be a very large one.

RANDOLPH WILL PITCH; HAND OUT WITH INJURY

Cliff Randolph will twirl for the Washington Steel League team at Bethlehem tomorrow, but Cliff will not have his usual battery mate, Frank Hand, to receive his shoots. Frank injured his hand in a recent tilt and has been forced to remain out of the game since. This fact has made it necessary for Billy Pfau, manager of the Pacers and Washingtonians, to hire a couple of new catchers for the week-end. Joe Nolan will catch for the Pacers, while Art Pickering, the former Yankee, will take care of the same job for the Washington outfit.

The Manhattan College team is the attraction at Perth Amboy tomorrow, while Bethlehem will be invaded by the second section of the Jerseyites. As usual, Tommy Mullin, Red Grimes and Jim Emery will perform with the Pfau boys.

—Among the readers of this newspaper's classified columns are possible buyers for any desirable real estate in this city.

BIG BASEBALL BILL FOR AVON DIAMOND

Tabs Will Stage Excellent Program, Weather Permitting, Tomorrow.

Should the weather permit, a big double bill will be staged on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon, when Jim Scott leads his Sunday Tabs against the Harrison Field Club. The "prelim" will be furnished by the East and West End divisions of the club, the East Enders being under the leadership of Mike Montferrant, and the West Enders having Alec McDonald as manager.

In the big game Manager Scott will have all of his stars with Benny Rosenson on short, Teeling behind the bat and either Jack Denny or Mickey McFadden on the mound. It is probable that Art Kyle will perform with the team from now on, as the Plainfield High School season has closed. Art is a catcher of no mean ability, although he has been performing on the first sack for the Red and Blue, owing to the fact that Leroy Apgar has also been numbered among the catchers at the Ninth street institution.

The opening attraction is bound to be a "dandy" as the contending parties are bitter rivals. The game is the second contest of a set of five, the first match having been annexed by the Down East lads. The boys from the West End are out for revenge, and have added considerable strength to their forces in order that they may even matters up.

The battlers will line up as follows:

East—Roche, lf; Carney, ss; Haberman, 2b; Henzel, 3b; J. Force, 1b; Montferrant, cf; F. Force, rf; Gleason, c; stebor, p.

West—Winters, c; Mahoney, p; Lawton, 1b; Cullen, 2b; Deady, ss; Kane, 3b; MacDonald, rf; Wilson, lf; Smith, cf.

FIRST DOG SHOW FOR HUDSON COUNTY CLUB

The inaugural dog show of the Hudson County Kennel Club will be held on Wednesday, July 26, at Union Hill. This will be the first attempt of the club under American Kennel Club rules and the first show held in the county in ten years. The place of venue, Scheutzen Park, is the largest park in the State and the playground of New Jersey.

Exhibitors will find it to their convenience to attend this show as it is the easiest show to reach in the Metropolitan district and the nearest to City Hall, New York, there being but the width of the Hudson river between the two points. The best judges have been engaged and a full list will be published within the next few days. Many fine specials have been contributed and everything offered will be open to all. All information can be obtained from the secertary, Wm. H. Gall, Doremus place, North Bergen, N. J.

"MET" TENNIS EVENT.

Play in the twentieth annual metropolitan tennis tournament will begin on the courts of the Bronxville Atheltic Association, Bronxville, today. Among those contesting in the singles event, the following are well known locally: Dean Mathey, of Cranford; Harold Throckmorton, of Elizabeth, and Leonard Beekman, captain of the Princeton team.

TWO LOCAL ENTRIES IN ELIZABETH MEET

Singer's Employes Have Many Stars Lined up for Tomorrow's Event.

At T. A. B. S. Field, Elizabeth, tomorrow, the Singers' Employers' Association will hold a meet for charity and two local athletes will compete. In the 100 yard dash, open, J. Haffner, of the local Y. M. C. A., will take part. Among the many entrants in this event is one who has promised those in charge of the meet that he will lower a record. That man is Jack Eller, the New York policeman. Entered in the 440-yard run is J. Haffner and in the one and a half-mile walk handicap is Jack Fritts, the former local cop, who will run unattached. Fritts is also entered in the 880-yard run.

About 500 athletes have registered their entries for the meet, which promises to be one of the most successful ever held in Union county. Owing to the fact that the meet will be held on the Tab Field, Joe Burns has found it necessary to take his team on the road for that day.

MAKING PLANS FOR PARKER FIELD LOOP

Supervisor Wriston Anticipates Busy Season of Competition.

There will be a Parker Field League this season and the managers of junior teams are invited to consult with Supervisor George W. Wriston in regards to the matter. Mr. Wriston has formulated plans whereby all the youngsters of this city will have a chance to become "leaguers."

Last year, the Parker League was a decided success and was productive of keen rivalry, attended by unusual enthusiasm. This year the prospects are very bright for a successful season, more than a half dozen applications for league berths having already been received. The Lenox A. C., a uniformed team, has entered the league and is looked upon as a possible pennant winner. However, Maurice Roddy has a very formidable combination and his boys are certainly ones to be feared. The Quaker Juniors, led by Norman Lynch, have entered the circuit, as has the Curry Club, composed of boys from New York city and Brooklyn. These boys come in relays in the Curry Camp and among their ranks are several fast players.

For the older lads, a faster circuit will be organized, although it is highly probable that many of the older fellows will have secured positions for the summer and may not be able to enter the baseball field.

Must of the necessary material, including baseballs, gloves and bats, has already been furnished, although it is believed that additional material would be gratefully received and could be put to good use.

P. H. S. SPORT NOTES

Unless rain forces another postponement the Seniors and Faculty will hook up on Parker Field Monday afternoon in their annual baseball scrap. Albert Dealman is captain of the Seniors and will give all a chance to shine, while Physical Director Ralph Patch is leading the Faculty.

Girl's physical director, Miss Ruth Wean, has started the annual girls' tennis tournament to decide the championship of the school. All those wishing to enter may hand their names to Miss Wean, and the tournament will get under way the coming week.

Rain is camping on the trail of the P. H. S. tennis team most of the time these days. The N. P. H. S. match scheduled for yesterday afternoon was put off for the third time and the Barringer meet is not to be played this afternoon on the same account.

Inclement weather forced the postponement of the P. H. S. inter-class meet scheduled for yesterday afternoon to Tuesday afternoon. It will probably be the last track meet of the school year, and with medals and ribbons and prizes the affair has attracted considerable attention.

It is expected that the taking of the picture of the baseball squad, which was postponed from last week, will be held Monday. An election for captain will probably be held at the same time.

Leonard Lewis, who fractured his hip bone while sliding to base in the Somerville game several weeks ago, is improving rapidly and will be about on crutches in a few days.

INCORPORATION PAPERS.

The People's Bank and Trust Company, of Westfield, filed a certificate of incorporation yesterday morning with the country clerk at Elizabeth. The bank is capitalized at $100,000, and the fourteen incorporators have subscribed for all of the 1,000 shares into which this stock is divided. Among the incorporators are the following Plainfield men: Samuel Townsend and J. Herbert Case, who have subscribed for seventy-two shares at $100. C. W. McCutchen, of this city, has subscribed to seventy-one shares.

TED MEREDITH IS GREAT ATHLETE

Pennsylvania's Speed Boy Is In Class by Himself.

WAS SENSATION AT OLYMPIC

As a Mere Boy He Won 800 Meters Championship In Stockholm, Sweden, For United States—His Secret of Success.

Raking athletic history in the region of 1912 one finds emblazoned the name of Melvin W. Sheppard—Peerless Mel, they called him then. Track and field athletics had never known such a wonderful middle distance runner as Sheppard, and experts predicted that there never would exist a man his equal at foot running. Yet the day came—and was then not far distant—when "Shep" first hit the trail to oblivion. His star had only begun to fade when there appeared in the athletic firmament another star destined to shine even brighter than had Sheppard's.

James Edward Meredith—plain Ted, as he is known throughout the athletic world—first came into prominence about the time that Sheppard, after eight years of the most constant success ever enjoyed by an athlete, had virtually run out his string, and it was only a short time before his name eclipsed that of Peerless Mel.

TED MEREDITH, PENN'S GREAT RUNNER, READY TO START.

Meredith was a sensation of the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912, when as a mere boy he won the 800 meters championship for the United States and in doing so hung up new world's records for 800 meters and 800 yards, marks that compare favorably with any on the record books today. From the day of his triumph in the Olympic meet the Pennsylvania youth—he is only twenty-three today and with several of the best years of an athlete's life before him—ruled supreme as a middle distance runner, and those who once said that Sheppard would never have an equal are now making the same assertion with regard to Meredith.

Athletics is a game of the survival of the fittest, for the most part, and Meredith long since proved himself the fittest of them all in his line.

There are two predominating reasons why Meredith is today, besides the world's quarter and half mile champion, also holder of the national 440 yard championship and both the 440 and 880 intercollegiate titles. Figuratively speaking, he has the strength of an ox, and he possesses a fighting spirit that might have made him a formidable man in the ring had his inclination turned to boxing rather than to foot running.

Beyond question Meredith is the strongest individual who ever essayed to gain fame on the cinder path, and it is chiefly through his extraordinary strength that he has been enabled to attain the success that has been his for nearly four years.

A man of smaller and less rugged physique than Meredith would long ago have broken down under the strain of the strenuous campaigns that the University of Pennsylvania youth has been through. Athletic careers have been wrecked through the same course of work that has made Meredith the great runner he is. In order to keep in condition and to attain his best form after a layoff Meredith has to do almost twice as much training as the ordinary runner, but his remarkable stamina endures all the work that is asked of it by the stocky Pennsylvanian.

Meredith is a born runner. Had he never been put in touch with an athletic coach or trainer nor even eated from a training table he would have been a great runner just the same. He could not be held down. His ability could not be denied, nor could his great power of lungs, of legs and of arms have failed him before he reached the top.

New Cue Circuit Planned.

An interstate pocket billiard league on lines similar to the interstate three cushion league may be started in the near future.

STATISTICS TELL FATEFUL STORY OF PLAINFIELD HIGH'S BASEBALL NINE

With a record of six wins and ten defeats, the Plainfield High School baseball team has closed the 1916 season after establishing one of the worst records in years. Injury to players may have had something to do with the showing of the Red and Blue squad, but it was clearly an off year for Plainfield; and besides losing the city championship to North Plainfield in two straight games, the locals found it hard to beat teams that have in the past proven easy.

The batting and fielding averages do not make an especially impressive sight. Not a regular on the team batted over .300. Captain "Box" Apgar leads in both the fielding and batting, and was the only one that did any great amount of extra base-walloping.

Coach Patch had considerable trouble with his pitchers this year and didn't get them working until the season was nearly over. Butler was lost through scholarship standing and Victorson was out on account of a recent operation. Hutchcroft was wild as a hawk most of the time he was on the mound, while Eder and Dealman lacked the experience to last an entire game. Davidson was the most dependable pitcher and, with better support, would have made a better showing. He took part in half the games and hurled both the N. P. H. S. encounters.

The record of games follows:

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 5, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to further amend an ordinance entitled an ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force, approved February 28, 1882, as amended, approved December 5, 1912," approved June 7, 1915.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 1 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 3 of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force," approved February 28, 1882, as heretofore amended, be and is hereby further amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular policemen and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order to be appointed. The regular policemen shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen. Special Policemen shall not be ranked.

The duties of the several members and officers of the said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the City and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into six (6) classes, viz.:

Class A. Sixth year of service and over.
Class B. Fifth year of service.
Class C. Fourth year of service.
Class D. Third year of service.
Class E. Second year of service.
Class F. First year of service.

Provided that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time specified above or not, and upon like recommendation may require a Patrolman in any class except Class A to serve for a longer period than above specified on account of unsatisfactory service during the preceding year.

The salaries of the members of the force who are regular policemen are hereby fixed at the following rates, from and after July 1, 1916, that is to say:

Chief	$2,000	per annum
Captain	1,500	" "
Lieutenant	1,400	" "
Sergeants	1,300	" "
Patrolmen
Class A	1,200	" "
Class B	1,150	" "
Class C	1,100	" "
Class D	1,050	" "
Class F	900	" "

Personal equipment such as revolvers, ammunition, batons, shields, badges, etc., shall be supplied to each of such officers and policemen free of cost. Each of them, however, shall provide at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the department, except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for Patrolmen who have not reached Class C may be paid for by the City which shall be reimbursed for the cost of any such purchase by deducting from such patrolman's pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the city; and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as above specified.

No special policeman shall be entitled to any pay except for service rendered by virtue of an order of the Board of Police or Mayor specifying such service, and for such service shall be paid only such amount as may be fixed by resolution of the Common Council, or of the Board of Police and approved by the Common Council.

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be calculated are the dates at which the continuous service of said regular policemen, respectively, commenced. Said Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, and for such vacation periods as from time to time the Board of Police may determine, except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time not exceeding two weeks during which they severally shall be incapacitated from the performance of duty by reason of sickness or other physical disability; but if absent for any reason for more than two weeks, they shall be paid only if and as authorized by the Common Council.

Corporation Notice.

Corporation Notice of application of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, to the Court of Common Pleas of Union County, for the appointment of Commissioners to assess benefits for street improvements.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13, 1898, and amendments and supplements thereto, that application will be made by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the sixteenth day of June, A. D. 1916, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the said court can hear the said application, for the appointment of three commissioners, who shall be freeholders and residents of the City of Plainfield, as Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits, respectively conferred upon the several lots and parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by the permanent improvement of streets under the ordinance of said city whose title is hereinafter specified, and to perform the duties and execute the powers conferred by said Acts of the Legislature." The title of the ordinance above referred to is as follows:

"An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits." Approved October 4, 1915, and the streets and parts of streets macadamized under said ordinance are as follows

Sherman avenue, from the macadam on Grant avenue to a point 700 feet easterly therefrom;

East Fourth street, from the westerly curb line of Richmond street to the present macadam on East Fourth street;

Fillmore avenue, from the macadam on North avenue to the macadam on East Third street.

Clinton Place, from the macadam on Clinton Avenue to the northeasterly terminus of said Clinton Place.

Section 2. That Leland Avenue and Kensington Avenue shall be macadamized for a depth of seven inches, and that the other streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the depth of six inches and that all the streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the entire width of the roadway, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grades established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets, respectively.

Section 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the inhabitants of said city according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled: "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvements upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of $35,000 coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars each ($1,000) and amounting in all to Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000), which bonds shall be dated July 1st, 1916, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum, payable semi-annually and be payable six years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may, severally or collectively, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, be sold for an amount not less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during the year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Section 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

NOTICE is hereby given that at a Special Meeting of the members of "The Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work," held June 1, 1916, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That in the judgment of "The Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work," a corporation organized under the Laws of the State of New Jersey, for benevolent purposes and not for pecuniary profit, it is deemed advisable and most for the benefit of such corporation that the same be forthwith dissolved; and to that end it is ordered that a meeting of the members of said corporation be held on the eleventh day of July, A. D. 1916, at 10.30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., the usual place for meeting of said corporation, to take action upon this resolution, and, further, that the corresponding secretary do forthwith, and within ten days from this date cause written or printed notice of the adoption of this resolution to be mailed to each and every member of said corporation, residing in the United States, and also within ten days from this date, do cause a like notice to be published in the Plainfield Daily Press, a newspaper published and circulating in the County of Union, wherein said corporation has its place of meeting, at least four weeks successively, once a week next preceding the time appointed by this resolution for said meeting.

Notice is hereby further given that a meeting of the members of said corporation will be held on July 11, 1916, at 10.30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., to take action upon said resolution.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Plainfield Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Plainfield. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, says: "I confirm all that one of my family said in my favor in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store, some years ago. The cure they gave me has lasted."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Mattis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

GENERAL BRUSSILOFF.

Russian Commander and Map of His Movements Against Austrians.

The map indicates the importance of the recent Russian gains and shows how far the lines have been extended since the present offensive was instituted. Vigorous fighting in this salient continues.

RUSSIANS KEEP UP SUCCESSFUL ATTACK

Many Teuton Prisoners Taken Around Lutsk.

Petrograd, June 10.—The Russians have pierced the Austrian front at Lutsk with a magnificent dash. They have broken through not one or two lines of trenches, but through the whole deep and complex network of fortifications that guards one of the most important sectors of the Austro-German front. The force of their impetus carried them until they reached Lutsk itself, and they are still pushing forward for miles beyond.

Lutsk was the headquarters of Archduke Ferdinand's Fourth Austrian army. The importance of the victory there is that the Russians have broken through just south of the point where the Austrian front links up with the German. The triangular position Olyka-Lutsk-Kolki is in Russian hands, and from here lead roads and railways to Kovel and Brest, to Vladimir-Volynski and southwestward to Sokal and Rawa Ruska, in Galicia. Fascinating prospects open out before General Brussiloff, for the right wing of the German Polessian front is flanked and also the left wing of the Austrian front that commands the approaches to Lemberg.

Apparently during the battle the Germans threw up re-enforcements from Brest Litovsk, for among the prisoners captured are many Germans.

The Lutsk victory changes the whole position on the Russian southwestern front. Hardly less important is the Russian success in Galicia, where the Austrian positions between Trybuchovce and Jaslovits, south of Buczacz, have been forced and the Austrians driven beyond the Stripa.

Lemberg Is Menaced.

Petrograd, June 10.—Five days of furious offensive by the forces of General Brussiloff has crumpled the enemy's lines from the Kovelsarny railway line to Bukowina, driving them back an average of fifteen miles and resulting, according to available returns, in the capture of approximately 96,000 men, chiefly Austrians, Hungarians and Germans. They include a very small proportion of Slavs, who are mostly employed on the Italian front. The possession of Lutsk is a direct menace to Lemberg, upon which place the Austrians are now massing their forces and toward which the Russians are advancing, having already crossed the Stripa river at one place.

IRISH PARTY FIRM ON ULSTER

Will Not Accept Exclusion Except by Vote of Electorate.

London, June 10. The Nationalist party will hold a meeting in Dublin at once to discuss the suggestion for a settlement of the Irish questions.

The Dublin correspondent of the Daily News predicts that important developments will result from the meeting and affirms positively that the Nationalists will reject any terms excluding the northern counties from the operation of the home rule act by any other means than the vote of the electors of those counties. They say that the terms given in the newspapers as the suggested basis of negotiations give away more than was proposed two years ago.

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisement knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

Plainfield people who intended visiting the wonderful Allied Bazaar in the Grand Central Palace, New York, are once more reminded that next Monday, June 12, has been set aside as Plainfield Day at the New Jersey booth. Four local committees, whose efforts have been devoted to aiding suffering Europe, are to be in charge on that day, and the more patronage is accorded the New Jersey booth while they are suprvising, the more credit redounds to the benefit of "The Queen City."

The Allied Bazaar is open from 1 o'clock in the afternoon to 11 o'clock at night, and those who attend, beside aiding a good cause, get many times their money's worth. The New Jersey booth is located on the second floor, directly next the elevator, and Plainfielders attending will find a great assortment of articles from which to make purchases. These include a valuable platinum bracelet, set with four diamonds and three sapphires, contributed by a Plainfielder; a Jonas Lie painting, 300 garden and sport hats, porch cushions, children's bicycles, Victor records, tapestries and hundreds of other miscellaneous articles. Remember that next Monday is the day and that every purchase means higher recommendation for Plainfield, and the four committees in charge, those of the Prince of Wales Relief, the Mercy Committee, the King's Daughters and the Balgian Relief.

VICTIM OF FLAMES SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Miss Fannie Sabonavitz, the 20-year-old girl who was frightfully burned in an accident at Smelson's restaurant on Somerstreet last week, succumbed to her injuries at Muhl o'clock this noon. So far as known the young woman had no local relatives and disposition of the body cannot be made at present.

MEETING OF CITIZENS TO DISCUSS FREEHOLDER CHANGE

There will be a meeting of citizens at the Jefferson Democratic Club tonight for the purpose of discussing the small Board of Freeholders' proposition to be voted on Tuesday next.

There are many people who want to know why Union county should lag behind other counties of same class, and why they should not, if there be any reason, vote in favor of the small Board of Freeholders as they have done on two previous occasions, and why they should not re-organize a board which the Grand Jury has recently so strongly condemned.

Abram Morris, county clerk, who has been going into the records, will be on hand to tell of some of the present Board's extravagancies which he has unearthed.

OBSERVED THEIR FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Martin was celebrated Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wheeler, Mountain avenue. About twenty guests were present and the evening was spent in an enjoyable manner, games and music being features. The bride was given a basket of flowers during the evening as a gift in honor of the occasion. Refreshments were served and the bride's wedding cake of a year was cut. The dining room was prettily decorated for the event with pink peonies and daisies and white streamers of satin ribbon.

A feature of the gathering was the presence of the entire bridal party, and each wore the gown she wore on the day of the wedding a year ago. Beside the bride and groom, other members of the party were as follows: Maid of honor, Miss Ida Wheeler; best man, Claud Elphee, of Auburn, N. Y., and flower girl, Miss Ruth Wheeler. Both the maid of honor and flower girl are sisters of Mrs. Martin and reside on Mountain avenue.

MRS LOUISE F. MOORE.

Mrs. Louise F. Moore, wife of William A. Moore, of 723 South Second street, died last night after a brief illness. She was thirty years of age, and beside her husband, is survived by two children, her mother and two sisters. The latter three reside in Newark. The funeral will be held from the home of her sister, Mrs. John J. Abt, 488 Hunterdon street, Newark, Monday afternoon, at 2:30, and interment will be in Woodland cemetery, Newark.

CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES.

There will be a Children's Day program at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time there will be baptism and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie will preach a sermon to the little folks. The primary department will sing with the choir. This department will have other session in the morning. There will be an organ recital at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon and preaching service at 5 o'clock.

ADVISES AGAINST SMALL BOARD PLAN

The small Board of Freeholders plan which comes before the voters of Union county Tuesday of next week, is not practical, according to Senator Harold B. Wells, of Burlington county.

The opinion of Senator Wells is unprejudiced, as he has no interests in this county, and his letter on the subject is in the form of advice to a friend. Sometime ago Carlton B. Pierce wrote to Senator Wells, knowing that Burlington county had tried the small board plan, and he received the following reply:

"I understand that you are on the eve of an election concerning the adoption of the small Board of Freeholders and a substitute for the present larger Board and I thought it might be of some interest to be informed of the experience Burlington county had with the two Boards. We had a large Board for many years and finally voted to adopt the small Board of five members, but unfortunately there was no district plan in the act and the result was that practically all the Board came from the river front and from Moorestown, which left the remainder of our county unrepresented. This with other matters caused considerable dissatisfaction and another election was held which resulted in the reinstatement of the old Board in place of the new Board. Last fall you will recall that I introduced a bill in the Senate which provided for a small Board to be elected from districts. This seemed to me to be the proper solution to the question for it provided for representation from each district in the county and at the same time reduced the number of members to a good working unit and made it possible for responsibility to be fixed for the success or failure in the administration of the county affairs. Where the is a large city in a county, the small Board usually is not a representative body, for the city usually elects all of the members from among its inhabitants. This is impossible nuder the bill which I introduced. I believe that your constituents in Union county would obtain better results if they defeated the small Board plan at your election next Tuesday and then concentrated their efforts in enacting a district small Board act at the coming season of our Legislature next year and then adopt the provisions thereof. It seems to me that the district plan is most fair and practicable method of governing counties."

THRILLING STORY OF AN EX-CONVICT

John Callahan, who is to address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon, is a man who knows at first hand of the things about which he talks. He has followed those trails that lead down to where men grovel in the filth of lust and passion and along which as they travel they look back ever and anon with fear and uncertainty. Leaving an orphan asylum a mere child he became a bootblack, bartender, gambler, his haunts being around the Grand Central Station, New York. Later he found himself a convict in Joliet Penitentiary. One night strayed into a mission, later threw up his job as bartender and is now superintendent of Hadley Rescue Hall on the Bowery, New York, being also chaplain of the New York City Tombs. The subject of his address tomorrow will be, "From Barroom to Pulpit."

A strong musical program has been arranged, in which the Dutch Arms Band and the men of the Biederwolf chorus choir will have a leading part, while Arthur W. Manuel, Y. M. C. A. secretary at Rio Janiero, will sing. Assemblyman W. N. Runyon will preside and have charge of the service. The auditorium has been appropriately decorated and everything done to make the meeting unusually attractive. The doors will open promptly at 3 o'clock and the service will begin at 3:30. All men over sixteen are invited.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY TO HOLD PICNIC SUPPER

The last regular business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will be held on Tuesday next, June 13, at the home of Mrs. F. G. Crawford, 1130 Myrtle avenue. Mrs. Crawford has offered her grounds for the affair and the meeting will be held out of doors at 3 o'clock. At 6:30 the men will be invited to a picnic supper. The luncheon committee has arranged to have refreshments on hand for sale. Guests are expected to bring a basket lunch and provide their own cup and spoon.

At the same time and place the Home Missionary Society will hold a very novel sale. Articles by parcel post have been received from all over the country. They will be sold as received for a very small sum and each article is promised to be worth as much and more than the price asked.

SETTLING WAGE QUESTION.

The The journeymen carpenters and the master carpenters will hold a conference in Trades Hall tonight at which time final action will be taken on the matter of an increase of fifty cents a day in journeymen's wages. If an agreement prepared by the latter is signed by the bosses, the matter will be satisfactorily settled otherwise the journeymen will not return to work Monday.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

ARE YOU THE LUCKY ONE?

Somewhere on this page the name of a Plainfielder appears. If it is yours clip out the column in which you find it and bring it to the Plainfield Daily Press office, where you will receive in return a book containing twelve admission tickets to the Plainfield Airdome, valued at $1.20. A name will appear each night on this page; if you don't happen to be the lucky one tonight continue to watch. The tickets are good at any performance and will entitle you to the same privileges enjoyed at this popular amusement center by those who pay.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

4% SAVINGS BONDS

The first series of our 4% Savings Bonds matured on June 1st. Those who have paid in $25 monthly for the past 38 months, received more than $1,000; those who have paid in less than this, received relatively proportionate amounts.

All the participants agree that the method has proved of great assistance to them, and many feel that they could not have acquired an investment fund without such an aid.

New series are now being opened. Full information may be obtained on request.

It is to be hoped that every Plainfielder will be wearing a rose pinned on their dress or in the lapel on their coat by some one of the hundreds of women "taggers" who will be scattered all over this city on that day.

These "taggers," dressed as nurses, will cover the city from the Plainfield Country Club on one side to the Park Golf Club on the other—from the Netherwood station at one end to the Clinton Avenue station at the other—and all sections of the city in between these four points of the compass.

That day has been chosen by the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital to ask all men, women and children of Plainfield—whether rich or poor—to contribute as much money as they are able to this most worthy organization which recognizes no creed—except the creed of helping the suffering.

MILITARY DRILL FOR MUHLENBERG

Watchung Troop Ass'n Will Give An Exhibition at Horse Show Grounds Saturday.

MANY UNIQUE EVENTS

Rough-Riding Drill, Novice and Rescue Races Will Be Among the Features—Names of Those Who Will Participate In Affair.

Watchung Troop Association, First Squadron Cavalry, will give a military exhibition for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital at the horse show grounds, Saturday afternoon at 2:20 o'clock. The success of the affair will be of considerable importance to the hospital in a financial way, as well as the troop, and it is confidently expected that everyone will do his part in accomplishing the desired results.

The program will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The first number will be a mounted troop drill, for which purpose the troop will be divided into two platoons of sixteen men each, two platoon leaders, one trumpeter, guidon, first sergeant and troop commander. The following men are assigned to this duty:

Captain Alfred Borden, First Sergeant Brown Rolston, guidon, Corporal Vanderventer and Trumpeter Warren Ackerman; first paltoon, Lieut. Runkle, Sergeants Ransome, Alberts and McGee; Corporals Cox and Buttfield; Troopers Anderson, Rogers, Buttfield and Mellick 2d; second platoon, Lieut. Charles; Sergeants Andrews and Righter; Corporals Tyler, Brewster and Wardlaw; Troopers Cady Cook, Mellick 1st, Perkins 1st, Shoemaker, Weaver, Hedman, Koons, Stevenson 1st, Perkins 2d, Trumpeter Williams, Troopers Rogers, Rush, Stevenson 2d, Vanderventer, Fullerton, Feickert, Goddard.

Uniform will be O. D. woolen with campaign hats and cartridge belts. Quartermaster-Sergeant Joost will fall in at the rear of the troop with one wagon and a detail consisting of Wagoner Ransome, Troopers Ralli and Hall.

After the troop drill, the troop will form line facing the grandstand with the quartermaster's wagon on the left. The troop will then dismount, couple horses, remove saddles and equipment and pitch shelter tent camp. In the meantime the quartermaster detail will erect a picket line to which the horses will be tied. Then the following men will give a rough-riding drill:

Sergeants Rolston and Righter, Corporals Vanderventer, Buttfield and Wardlaw; Troopers Buttfield, Fullerton, Perkins 2d, Rogers, Stevenson 2d, Shoemaker, Vanderventer.

This will be followed by a novice race under the following conditions: Horses will be tied to the rail around the ring. Each man's equipment, consisting of bridle, blanket, saddle, etc., will be placed on the edge of the grass directly back of the horses. At a signal the men will take up their equipment, untie their horses, make circuit of ring, taking small hurdle and the trooper arriving first will be declared winner. Then there will be a rescue race, the details to be announced later. There will also be a wrestling match in which these men will take part:

Quartermaster-Sergeant Joost; Sergeants Ransome, McGee and Alberts; Corporals Brewster and Wardlaw; Wagoner Ransome; Troopers Alpers, Hedman, Anderson, Koons and Ralli. If the time permits there will be a head-cutting and tent-pegging contest and this part of the program will end with a melee, in which these men will take part:

Sergeant Andrews; Corporals Cox, Tylor, Vanderventer, Wardlaw; Troopers Cady, Cook, Mellick 1st, Perkins 1st, Rush, Weaver, Haughton, Fleming, Stevenson 1st.

After the melee the troopers will return to the stables and the quartermaster with his detail and wagon will remain in the ring. A squad of men will make an attack on the quartermaster's detail and when this develops the remainder of the troop will come to the rescue. The dismounted squad will be in charge of Sergeant Ransome and will include these men:

Corporal Brewster; Farrier Grandi; Troopers Feickert, Koons, Fisk, Ramsey, Hall, Haughton, Goodenough and Goddard. The committee in charge of the military exhibition is as follows: Brown Rolston, Austin W. Andrews, Jacob L. Vanderventer, Walter I. Righter and Daniel Burke, chairman.

RECEIVE 52 MEMBERS.

Sixteen adults were baptized at the First M. E. church yesterday, five were received on probation and six by letter. This makes a total of fifty-two new members who have joined the church since the Biederwolf campaign. The pastor, Rev. C. E. Anderson, preached on the subject of "Whitsunday" and "Testimonials" morning and evening respectively.

WHY "BERT" SMILES.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gray, of Emerson avenue, are parents of a son born to them on Saturday at Muhlenberg Hospital. The little fellow has been named Kenneth Edwin Gray.

NEW JERSEY SENDS MESSAGE TO HUGHES

David Baird Signs Telegram From State Delegation.

The following telegram is one sent to Justice Hughes by the New Jersey delegation, homeward bound from Chicago, Saturday night, by the chairman of the delegation, David Baird:

"To Hon. Chas. E. Hughes:

"New Jersey delegation, homeward bound, writes its hearty congratulations over the outcome of the convention and your response to the call of the nation to lead in the restoration of internal confidence and international respect. We pledge our enthusiastic support to your program of protection and preparedness, which means peace and prosperity, and are in hearty accord with the same Americanism displayed in your straightforward statement of acceptance.

MRS. NOAH W. PIKE DIES IN 72D YEAR

Well-Known Christian Worker Passes Away at Her Home After Brief Illness.

Mrs. Virginia Osborne Pike, widow of Noah W. Pike, died yesterday morning at 9:45 at her home, 408 East Front street, following an illness of only a few days. She was about the house as usual until Thursday, but on Friday was taken with a congestive chill which rapidly developed fatal complications. The seriousness of her illness was barely realized by the family and friends before the end came.

Mrs. Pike was born in Fairfax county, Virginia, seventy-two years ago and had made her home in Plainfield since 1881. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Osborne, whose family home was at Newburgh, N. Y. She was a member of the First Methodist church and for many years was president of the Home Missionary Society, although she did not hold this office at the time of her death. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society of the same church, taking an active part in its work for a long time.

Mrs. Pike is survived by two sons, William D. Pike of this city and James A. G. Pike, of Toronto, Canada; also two sisters, Mrs. Frances Harris and Mrs. Gustina Seymour, both of Westfield. Mrs. Pike's husband, the late Noah W. Pike, died on February 25, 1914.

The funeral service will be held at the late home at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson. Interment will be made Wednesday in the Osborne family plot of the cemetery at New Hurley, near Walkill, N. Y.

MISS WINIFRED VAN WINKLE BRIDE OF W. H. RICHMOND

Miss Winifred Adele VanWinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas VanWinkle, of North Plainfield, and William Harry Richmond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Richmond, of Trenton, were married at 6 o'clock Saturday evening at the parsonage of Grace M. E. church by Rev. C. S. Gillespie. The only attendants were Mrs. William G. Myers, a sister, and Mrs. George Adams, an aunt of the bride.

After the ceremony the couple left for Brooklyn to visit relatives, and upon their return will live in Trenton, where the bridegroom is manager for the Washington Market pharmacy. He is a graduate of Columbia University. Mrs. Richmond was the recipient of a large collection of gifts.

THOMAS MEANEY A DELEGATE.

At the annual convention of the Diocese of Trenton held at Trenton yesterday, Thomas Meaney, of the borough, and Hugh McAleavey, of Somerville, were selected as delegates to represent Somerset county at the annual convention of federated societies in New York next July. St. oJseph's church was represented at the gathering yesterday by Rev. Father P. J. Hart, Thomas Meaney and Robert McCormick, while St. John's church, Dunellen, was represented by Rev. Father Edward J. Dunphy and V. D. Manahan.

BIBLE CLASS TO MEET.

The Bible class taught by Miss Clyde Burnett will meet in the Washington School on Darrow avenue, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. It is open to men and women of the city.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The closing exercises of the public school at Watchung will be held Friday night, when an attractive program will be presented by the pupils. Music will be a feature.

HAROLD SCHENCK TO BE ORDAINED

Plainfield Young Man Will Become Pastor of Nutley Church Tomorrow.

IS RUTGERS GRADUATE

Rev. E. S. Ralston and Rev. J. Y. Broek, of This City, to Assist at Ordination and Installation Services of Minister.

Ordination to the ministry of Harold W. Schenck, of Plainfield, a New Brunswick Theological Seminary graduate, and his installation as pastor of the Franklin Reformed church, Nutley, will be held in the church tomorrow night. Mr. Schenck, with eight other students, was graduated from the seminary May 18 and obtained a license to preach after passing an examination held by the classis of Newark on May 19. Mr. Schenck preached at both services yesterday and following his ordination will occupy the manse in Church street. He has been acting as supply since October.

The installation sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. J. Preston Searle, president of the seminary. Rev. Edward S. Ralston, of this city, president of the Newark Classis, will preside. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, this city, will deliver the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Charles Beach Condit, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, Newark, wil make the charge to the congregation. Mr. Schenck will pronounce the benediction.

Mr. Schenck is the son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Cornelius S. Schenck, of this city. He was graduated from Plainfield High School in 1909, he and his brother, Cornelius S. Schenck, Jr., winning scholarships in Rutgers College. While in college he was a member of the varsity baseball team and was active in all kinds of athletic sports. He is twenty-six years of age. His father is pastor emeritus of Trinity Reformed church, this city.

The installation of Mr. Schenck in the pastorate of the Nutley church will make the third ordination service held in the institution since the retirement five years ago of Rev. William Stuart, who died on May 7. Ordinations held in the church were those of Rev. Gustavus Helbert and Rev. Milton T. Stauffer. Mr. Stauffer, who was installed in the pastorate July 10, 1913, afterward became a missionary in China.

A short time after the retirement of Mr. Stauffer, Rev. Roderick C. Jackson, a graduate of Union Theological Seminary, was called. This was in July, 1915. A veteran of the Boer War, Mr. Jackson decided to engage in the present European conflict, and went to Rogers Hill Center, Nova Scotia, to join the Canadian troops preparing to sail for England. On August 21, the same year, he sent his resignation to the consistory of the church. Unable to pass certain physical tests, he returned to Nutley to assume the pastorate, but upon ascertaining that he was eligible to become a drill master, again sailed for Nova Scotia.

During his first trip to Nova Scotia, Mr. Jackson married, but left his wife there while on his return trip to Nutley. He is an American citizen, having been born in California.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR INDIAN LEGEND PLAY

Everything is in readiness for the sixth annual portrayal of the Indian Legend, to be given at Watchung tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. With the reappearance of the sun today, after an absence of five days, there was renewed interest and enthusiasm on the part of those who are to participate in the play. Loads of sawdust will be spread over the ground, insuring dryness. Auto busses will leave Front and Somerset streets at 8 o'clock. Tickets purchased for last week will be good tonight and tomorrow night.

PLAINFIELD MAN IS WOUNDED IN FRANCE

Charles Perrin, under whose direction the factory for the V. Perrin et Cie glove concern, now occupied by the Berfelden Mills Company, was erected on Washington avenue, Plainfield, about eleven years ago, and who had charge of the business up to about six years ago when he returned to his native country, France, and erected a glove factory on his own account at Grenoble, has been wounded while fighting on his native soil, according to information received by Ivan C. Hardingham, of Dunellen. The extent of Mr. Perrin's injury is not known.

Mr. Perrin is a second lieutenant in the Fifteenth Territorials, having recently been promoted from sergeant.

WAGE QUESTION FINALLY SETTLED

Master Carpenters Grant Journeymen An Increase of Fifty Cents Per Day.

PAY IS NOW $4.50

First Raise In Six Years Came Saturday Night After Many Conferences—Settlement Satisfactory to Both Sides.

Satisfactory adjustment of the impending labor troubles between local master carpenters and journeymen of the Plainfield district was made Saturday night, when after a long conference between the two sides a committee of five representing the bosses consented to an increase of fifty cents per day in the wages of all working carpenters. By the terms of the agreement the change goes into effect today and the men will now be paid $4.50 for eight hours in place of $4.00 as heretofore. This is the first raise in pay the men have had in six years and they are naturally jubilant over the result of the recent agitation.

Through the efforts of Business Agent William H. Lunger, representing the local union, several conferences relative to the wage question were held during the past month but at none of them was any satisfactory arrangement made. Mr. Lunger finally sent individual communications to each master carpenter with the result that a committee composed of Alexander Milne, James W. Carver, Ira N. West, George D. Wilson and Walter Apgar visited Trades Hall Saturday night to talk the matter over. While the committee had full power to act and were inclined to give their consent to an increase, the amount of increase or the date on which the new scale is to go into effect, remained as obstacles for nearly two hours. Finally each side adjourned for a private discussion of the terms offered and when the Master committee returned to the open room they announced their willingness to meet the fifty cent demand. Practically every boss in the city fell in line in signing the agreement, and those who have not yet announced their determination will probably be heard from within the next few days.

The happy termination of the threatened trouble has left both the masters and the journeymen with the kindliest of feeling toward each other. If an agrement had not been reached Saturday night a general walkout would have taken place throughout the Plainfield district, a move that the journeymen particularly deplore. As it is now the men have been given what they believe to be a fair increase in wages in order to meet the advanced cost of living and it has been done without causing losses to any contractor through delay on jobs. Much of the credit for the successful ending of the argument is due Business Agent Lunger who has labored unceasingly for the past six months to get both sides together for friendly discussion. There were several times when it seemed as though his labors were useless but he persevered, confident that by using proper diplomacy each side would realize the rights of the others and act accordingly.

ITALIAN STABBED FOLLOWING ARGUMENT

Michael Omalio Severely Cut by Fellow - Countryman Who Makes His Escape.

For the first time in several years the residents of the Italian colony on LaGrande avenue had a stabbing affair last night, when Michael Omalio received a knife wound in the back, following a quarrel with several of his countrymen. After doing the cutting, an Italian, whose full name could not be learned, made his escape, but the police expect to apprehend him before night.

Omalio was having an argument with a relative when a fellow known only as John, and living on Terrill road, is said to have "butted in" and, becoming angered at being told to mind his bucness, stabbed Omalio in the back as he was entering the house. Dr. Ray Munger, who was called, said that the knife escaped a vital point by just a fraction of an inch and that the fellow would probably recover.

LOCAL BOYS TAKE PART IN RUTGERS CLASS PLAY

The annual commencement play of Rutgers College was given Saturday night in the Ballintine Gymnasium at New Brunswick before a very large audience, by the Queen's Players. Prominent in the cast were three local boys, Lawrence French, Elmer French and Duclos Van Mater.

PYTHIANS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Members of Local K. of P. Lodges Gather At Trinity Reformed Church.

ELOQUENT ADDRESSES

Discourse by Rev. J. Y. Broek Is Followed With Impressive Eulogy by Assemblyman W. N. Runyon—Music Feature of Service.

One hundred members of the order of Knights of Pythias, representing Perseverance and Unity lodges of this city and Somerset lodge of Bound Brook assembled in Trinity Reformed church last night for the annual Pythian memorial service in honor of departed brothers. The program of addresses and special music made up a service that was appreciated by the regular congregation as well as those connected with Pythianism.

The principal speaker of the evening was Past Chancellor William N. Runyon, of Perseverance lodge, who made the memorial address. Selecting the cardinal principles of the Knights of Pythias, "Friendship, charity and benevolence," he pictured the good that could be accomplished for all mankind by strict adherence to each and how the lives of all Pythians could be made better and brighter by remaining steadfast in the order, practicing these principles on non-members as well as those associated through fraternal ties. In his customary eloquent manner, Past Chancellor Runyon paid a tribute to the brothers who have crossed the "Great Divide" and besought those left behind to continue the work they started and of which they made so great a success before the Great Chancellor of all summoned them to the Great Lodge of Sorrow.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity church, also spoke, addressing the congregation on the subject of "The Flight of Time." In part he said:

"Years speed by swiftly. Life in the retrospect always seems short. It is like a romance, a dream, and a tale that is swiftly told. We cannot avoid time from making its inroads. The brevity of life should teach us the value of time. Are we doing things which are worth while?

"The future is full of uncertainty. We would not throw aside the veil if we could. Knowing the future would paralyze our present work. God does not permit us to see the future because he desires us to trust in Him. We do not reckon life in years, but in character which has been developed. Blessed is he whose old age is stored with the memory of good deeds. A life well spent in the service of God and fellow men will have its reward."

Musical numbers were provided by the Trinity church quartet and the organist, Arthur Titsworth, and also by Mrs. Theodore E. Davis, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church choir, who sang a soprano solo, "At Rest in Thee." The memorial was arranged by a committee from Perseverance lodge, composed of Clarence V. Rittenhouse, J. B. Higgins, John G. Bicknell, Fred Douglas and Albert Trotter.

G. W. V. MOY INCLINED TO SUPPORT HUGHES

Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of this city, the local Progressive leader, when interviewed last night concerning the action of the Republican and Progressive conventions, said: "While I have not been an admirer of Hughes, with Roosevelt out of the race, I would be inclined to support him. I believe that he cannot be elected without Roosevelt and the Progressives support. As for Barnes, Root & Co., they are no beter off than the Progressives.

"With a rejuvenated Republican party in which the 'Old Guard' is eliminated, I think I would just as soon fight within the party as without, believing that much can be accomplished in that way."

C. E. MASS MEETING.

Details are complete for the annual mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union to be held in the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church at 7:45 o'clock tonight. H. J. Martin will be in charge of the song service, in which the Biederwolf hymn books will be used. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the entertaining church, will conduct the devotional service. Robert B. Butler, retiring president, will deliver an address on "What We Stand For."

YEAR-OLD-GIRL HURT IN ACCIDENT

Spicer Auto Bus Overturned Wagon On Park Avenue Saturday.

As a Spicer auto-bus approached the garage on Park avenue, Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. William Fulton and child had a narrow escape from serious injury. The horse became frightened at the truck and made a wild dash, crossing directly in front of the truck. The radiator of the bus struck the rear of the wagon, unsetting it and throwing the occupants to the roadbed. Passengers from the bus lifted the victims from underneath the wrecked wagon and found that their one-year-old daughter had a deep gash over her right eye. She was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where she received treatment. It is said that the cut is not of a serious nature. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton escaped with a few slight bruises. The wrecked wagon was taken to Leaches' blacksmith shop for repairs.

VANDALS DAMAGE BOY SCOUT CAMP

Council Will Take Steps to Punish Intruders—Meets Tonight.

Vandals have broken into the Boy Scout Camp building on Terrill road so frequently that steps will be taken tonight when the Plainfield Boy Scout Council meets in the lecture room of the Libary to have the place put under espoinage to catch the culprits. When Commissoiner A. V. Searing, Jr., and Edward Harding, with Lieutenant Littell, of the National Guard, went up to the camp a few days ago to lay out plans for the summer encampment and to note the condition of drainage at the site, preparatory to establishing some 300 boys there this summer, they found serious depredations had been committed.

The locks on the rear doors of the building had been tampered with and forced and the suspected marauders had removed from the building some of the scout property which included a fine American flag, some tools, and several other things. There was some paint in the attic of the house and this was taken down into the main sitting room and liberally sprinkled and daubed over the floor and walls and window panes. The names on the scout registration board were also obliterated by the malicious visitors so that they are undecipherable.

About the building various writings were placed to complete the defacement of the property. Through the courtesy of Louis Hosmer, a member of the council, who lives directly opposite the camp and who has been largely responsible for its establishment and equipment, the place has been placed under observation and the name of one of the suspected marauders has been obtained. Steps will be taken to prevent any more visitatons of this sort at the camp. The camp is located outside of the jurisdiction of the Plainfield police, but the asistance of the Fanwood and county authorities has been obtained in safeguarding the camp for further attacks of this sort.

Among other maters to be taken up at the meeting tonight is the raising of $500 needed to carry on the work of the local boy scout movement this summer.

Scoutmaster W. A. V. Thomsen, of this city, but now of Stevens Institute, Hoboken, will be in charge of the camp all through the summer and more than 45 boys have signified their intention of availing themselves of the training it will offer.

It is planned to have practical expert instruction in first aid work, in trench digging and barrier building, in caring for war sufferers, in carrying and relaying messages, pontoon bridge building and other forms of constructive preparedness besides the usual scout work.

At this camp the preparations will be made for the big field day display to be held here on Columbus Day. The committee to be in charge of this year's championship competition will be appointed tonight by President Theodore G. Davis.

DEDICATION EXERCISES.

Despite the inclement weather, the dedication exercises of the new parochial school of Holy Trinity church, Westfield, were held yesterday, a parade being the main feature of the program. The parade was led by the members of the Westfield police department and the Westfield band, and included in the line were Holy Name men from this city and North Plainfield. The principal speaker of the afternoon was Father McCue, president of Seton Hall College. Monsignor Mackel, of St. Patrick's, Elizabeth, was one of the visiting clergy.

MISS SABONAVITZ' FUNERAL.

The funeral of Miss Fannie Sabonavitz, the twenty-year-old girl who died on Saturday in Muhlenberg Hospital following burns she received two weeks ago, will be held tomorrow morning in St. Mary's church, where a high mass of requiem will be said at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

DEMOCRATS MEET FOR CONVENTION

Roosevelt-Hughes Situation Sole Topic at St. Louis.

PREDICT LIVELY CAMPAIGN

Marshall Almost Sure to Be Renominated For the Vice Presidency—Preparedness and Suffrage Chief Worries to Framers of Party Platform.

St. Louis, June 12.—The Democratic clans are gathering to nominate President Wilson for a second term and a running mate for him. Leaders already on the ground realize that they must put their best foot forward, since the Republicans have nominated Charles Evans Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt has offended his following and may support the Republican candidate.

Chairman William F. McCombs, Norman E. Mack, Senators Taggart of Indiana and Owen of Oklahoma and Representative McAndrews of Illinois, who are among the first party leaders to arrive, believe that President Wilson will defeat Mr. Hughes, but they expect a spirited campaign.

Four Lobbies on Hand.

St. Louis opened up with a cold rain, an exact duplicate of the one at Chicago last week, but the weather bureau promises better days for the Democrats.

Four determined lobbies have already arrived to urge certain things upon the committee on resolutions. The suffragists and antis will fight for and against a suffrage plank and Prohibitionists and anti-Prohibitionists for and against prohibition.

The suffragists have planned a spectacular parade for Wednesday noon, the hour the Democratic convention assembles.

Democratic leaders think that a plank somewhat like the one adopted by the Republicans will be accepted, to hold women voters in suffragists states. They do not anticipate that the convention will go on record as favoring the principle of woman suffrage by federal amendment, but will recognize the movement and declare that the matter should be left to the various states.

"If the Democrats do not put a suffrage plank in their platform it will not be necessary to counsel the women to throw their influence and votes to some other party. They will do so of their own accord," said Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who is here to speak before the resolutions committee.

Shafroth Favors Suffrage.

Senator John F. Shafroth of Colorado is expected to advocate the adoption of a suffrage plank.

"Woman suffrage is an evolution in democratic government and because of its justice is sure to triumph," declared Mr. Shafroth. "The Democratic convention should indorse the cause."

The Democrats will not adopt a plank declaring for nation wide prohibition, although the anti saloon people will urge it with all their might.

President Wilson will be nominated by acclamation. He will have no opposition. Vice President Marshall has a contest. Roger Sullivan, Democratic boss of Illinois, and Governor Elliott W. Major of Missouri are being boosted for the vice presidential nomination. It is the consensus among Democrats, however, that the nomination of Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana has "clinched" the nomination for Mr. Marshall and that his will be the only name presented for second place. Indiana will elect two senators this year, and the Republicans will make a determined effort to defeat Kern and Taggart. If near the close of the campaign it looks as if Hughes would win the Republicans will pour lots of money into the Indiana campaign with the hope of gaining two seats in the senate.

A Ratification Meeting.

The convention promises to be more of a ratification and a demonstration than anything else. Special trains will bring enthusiastic Democrats from Missouri and all adjoining states for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Noon Wednesday is the hour fixed for National Chairman McCombs to call the convention to order. Ex-Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York is to be temporary chairman and make the keynote speech. Senator Ollie James of Kentucky is slated for permanent chairman.

The statement adds: "This is not a British estimate."

Knocked Into a Cocked Hat.

The expression "knocked into a cocked hat" is familiar to every one, but perhaps the origin is not so generally known. Cocked hat was a variety of the game of bowls in which only three pins were used, set up at the angles of a triangle. When in bowling tenpins all were knocked down except the three at the corners the set was said to be "knocked into a cocked hat," whence the popular expression for depriving anything of its main body, character or purpose.

A Little Chat On the Art of Listening

DO YOU know why the telephone operator repeats the numbers you give her? Her questioning repetition comes tripping back into your ear more quickly than an echo. Some people seem never to notice the repetition because they seldom, if ever, acknowledge it.

When the telephone operator takes time to repeat to you the number you have asked for, she does it with a distinct purpose—to give you an opportunity to correct her if she misunderstands.

Unless you listen to her and acknowledge the repetition or correct her, she can only proceed with establishing the connection she thinks you want.

Experience has shown that the operator's repetition, properly acknowledged, greatly minimizes the number of wrong connections due to faulty enunciation.

One word will serve to acknowledge the correct repetition, and if the operator has misunderstood, you will save time and trouble both for yourself and for others, by correcting her at the outset.

Next week we are going to tell you something you may not know about telephone etiquette.

Londoner Exposes Psychic Fakes

Arthur Delroy.

MR. ARTHUR DELROY is a Londoner who has traveled extensively investigating psychic phenomena and psychic fakes for certain newspapers and has since made his home in New York city and is president of the New York Psychic Club.

His address will be one of the extremely interesting numbers of the Chautauqua. He calls it a Psychic Melange. Of course there is a mystery end to it, and it is humorous from start to finish. You'll laugh at his take-off on certain so called mind readers and other delvers into psychic mysteries. He shows them all up. And then when Delroy has torn down and thrown aside all the buncombe he builds up a powerfully effective talk on the Development of Character by suggestion. He makes a pithy talk on personal magnetism along lines of self-construction. He has made this address at Yale, Dartmouth, Vassar and scores of the larger universities and colleges and many exclusive clubs, besides large bodies of business men. Hear him on

CHILDREN'S DAY AT 1ST BAPTIST CHURCH

Pleasing Program Given By Members of the School—Baptism In Evening.

Children's Day exercises at the First Baptist church yesterday morning brought out a capacity congregation, the service being a joint one in which the church and the Sunday-school participated. The edifice was beautifully decorated for the occasion with spring flowers and potted plants. The cut flowers will be distributed today to the "shut-ins" in the city. The children's exercises were carried in charge of Mrs. C. H. Harris, superintendent of the Sunday-school, while William Holmes led the congregational singing. The complete program was as follows:

Processional, "Brightly Gleams Our Banner," sung by the choir, Sunday-school marching, carrying flowers; recitation, "Children's Day," Ruth Miles; recitation, "We Thank You," Katharine Moore, Edna May Davis, Florence Biggs and Ruth Armstrong; recitation, "The Little Bird's Song"; song, "Keep Sweet," Edward Drake; recitation, "Beauty Everywhere," Margaret MacNab, Neva Miles and Marguerite Swelfel; song, "Joyfully Singing," by beginners and primary departments; recitation, "What We Must Do," Charlotte Johnson, Dorothy Hedberg, Elizabeth Donnelly; recitation, "Jesus' Little Flowers," Betty Case, Katherine Case, Ruth Donelly, Katherine Smith, Susie Laing, Emma Gindes, Ruth Leadbitter and Peggy Eggerding; recitation, "Every Little Children," Clifford Dorn, Betty Powlison and Oscar Donnelly; choir, "The Lord is My Shepherd"; recitation, "As I Pass Along," Allen Laing; recitation, "Little Things and Great Things," Harriet Milne; recitation, "This World of Ours," James Case; recitation, "Ideals," Evelyn Tennyson; offertory, contralto solo, "He Shall Feed His Flock," Miss Leontine De Ahna; children's sermon, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong. Last evening Rev. Dr. Strong baptized seven new members of the church.

Food Values.

"The thrifiest thing under my roof," says a writer in the American Magazine, "is the United States department of agriculture's famous bulletin 28, 'The Chemical Composition of American Food Materials.' It cost me 5 cents, and it saves me $5 every month. It gives a list of all the foods that any American housekeeper is likely to buy, and lays down with the projection of science, some for waste and the rest to eat, a guide what is more important than its use—the amount of nutriment in one pound."

BRITISH GAIN IN AFRICA.

Occupy Mombo and Bismarckburg In German Colony.

London, June 12.—General Smuts, commanding the South African forces invading German East Africa from the north, reports progress in the northeastern corner of the German colony, where the British and South African troops are fighting to gain control of the Usambara railway and the Pangani river.

Late in May General Smuts, finding the Germans entrenched near Mikoshenl, on the Pangani, occupied a strong position in a narrow neck between the Pare mountains and the sea, and now reports that his troops have crossed the Pangani by bridge at Mikoshenl. Mombo, on the Usambara railway, east of Wilhelmstadt, was occupied by the British forces on Thursday.

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

CANARY BIRDS SING IN FLORAL BOWER

Pleasing Feature of Children's Day Exercises at Grace M. E. Church.

Even the fifth consecutive day of rain and lowering skies was powerless to effect the enthusiasm of Children's Day at Grace M. E. church yesterday. Weather conditions were forgotten as one listened to the birds singing in a floral bower which had been constructed by a community committee of efficient young people headed by Benjamin Schuck.

Preceding the children's exercises, two babies were baptized—Arthur Roscoe Van Doren and Horace Mark Levinz. Five adults were also received on probation—Mr. and Mrs. Van Doren, N. L. Wiley, Mrs. Elizabeth Apgar and Mrs. Elmer Mantz.

The program was as follows: "A Speech of Welcome," Ella Schuck; "What a Flower Did," Gilbert Koechlin; "Buttercups," Florence and Mazie Garretson; solo, "Little Bunch of Roses," Mary Nichols; "Guess!" Marion Clous; "My Conscience Shoes," George Apgar; song, "Daisies," Elizabeth Wallace, Doris Elliott, Mazie Garretson, Mildred Bonfoy and Alice Conover; "The World Needs You," David Flammer; piano solo, Ruth Winkler; song, "Sunbeams," Ruth Nichols, Bessie Monck, Frances DeCamp, Madeline Uhrhahn, Florence Garretson and Mabel Voorhees; "A Boy's Advice," Kenneth Lippincott; song, "I Will Try," Frances and Helen DeCamp; "The Reason," Billy Schuck; "Errand Girls and Messenger Boys," Mildred Bonfoy, Alice Conover, Harold Apgar and Bobby Conover; solo, "Come Over on the Other Side," Doris Nichols; "Helping in our Sunday-school," Lester Morgan; "Everybody's Day," Mary Nichols; "Your Share," Paul Van Middlesworth; address, Rev. C. S. Gillespie. At the conclusion of the program each child was presented with a flowering plant.

TOLD TO STAY AWAY FROM HOME, HE WENT ANYWAY

'HANSEL AND GRETEL' GIVEN BY CHILDREN

Charming Exercises Mark Closing of Miss Ransome's School.

Miss Violet J. Ransome's school for little people in Netherwood was closed on Saturday afternoon for the term with exercises by the pupils, the entertainment being enjoyed by a large throng of parents, friends and acquaintances of the children and teacher. The new school building was handsomely decorated for the occasion, and the beautiful grounds surrounding it made a most fitting setting for the scene.

"Hansel and Gretel" which was given by the children in the large school room auditorium, was to have taken place on the lawn, but on account of the inclement weathr, it was changed to the interion of the building at the last moment.

Those taking part in the play, and the characters assumed by each, were as follows: Hansel, Alice Butler; Gretel, Adrienne Linbarger; Father, "Billy" Cooke; Mother, Sallie McKenzie; Sandman, Francis DuBois; Bird of Light, Peter Conger.

Angels, Sally McKenzie, Heywood Butler, Mary Elizabeth Stockton, Katherine Smith, Elizabeth Newall, Hess Houghton, Jeanette Myers, Margaret Lawrence, Ann Dumont, Betty Case, May Vie Stevens, Alice Canonne and Katherine and Dorothy Biss, of California.

Gingerbread Men, John DuBois, John Ransome, Gregory Ransome, Ferris Newall, Henry Adams, Bartolomie Vivani, Jack Schuyler, Henry Cochran and Christy Hamilton.

Little Miss Dorothy Boss, of California, who with her sister, are pupils in the school, sang a most effective solo entitled "If I Could Go A-Sailing." Miss Pringle, of San Francisco, presided at the coffee table and was assisted by the following in Dutch costume: The Misses Avery Ransome and Caroline Avery and Master Wilfred Ransome. Refreshments were served to all those present, including the audience. Another intersting number was one provided by Miss Caroline Avery, who sang several solos in a most pleasing manner. This is the first year of Miss Ransome's school in the new building which she recently erected on Dixie Lane, and she was heartily congratulated by all those present upon the success of the entertainment.

TRIED TO PUT HIM OUT WHEN BOARD WAS PAID

William Doll, charged with disorderly conduct in refusing to leave his boarding house after an argument with the landlady, was arraigned in police court this morning. When it was proven that he had paid a week's board in advance, Judge DeMeza let him go with a suspended sentence.

FIGHT IN WEST END IS AIRED IN COURT

Charles Lambert, alias Charles Lamas, and John Eskisen were in police court today, for being drunk and disorderly and fighting at the corner of Liberty and Third street. Patrolman Russ arrested them and Eskisen was also charged with resisting an officer. Judge DeMeza fined Lambert $20 or 60 days and the case against Eskisen was allowed to go over until tomorrow.

LARCENY CASE GOES OVER.

Emma Chapman, arraigned in police court today for the theft of $101.50 was not tried. Her case was continued indefinitely.

BIG CROWD OF MEN HEAR MR. CALLAHAN

Auditorium of Y. M. C. A. Filled to Capacity Sunday Afternoon.

A crowd that completely filled the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. heard the address of John Callahan, chaplain of Tombs prison, to men, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Callahan's subject was "From Prison Pen to Pulpit," and he recited in dramatic and forceful manner the story of his rise from a life of crime through his conversion to Jesus Christ. Judge William N. Runyon presided as chairman of the meeting, and a large number of the men who sang in the Biederwolf chorus choir were present to furnish music under the leadership of Clifford Beall. It was announced that the meetings would be continued during the week popular and a cheer greeted Mr. Hall when he made this promise.

SONGS AND RECITATIONS FEATURE CHILDREN'S PROGRAM

The Children's Day service at All Souls' Unitarian church will be remembered by those who took part in it, though its coming in a spell of weather so very unpropitious for such a service made for disappointment in the matter of attendance. The front of the pulpit platform was banked with flowers; the music served to express the sentiment of the occasion, as did Mr. Baltzly's sermon, which was based on David's lament for Absalom. Two children were christened—Katrina Van Duzer and Osgood, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hoff. The minister announced the enrollment of eight new members, five of whom received the right hand of fellowship in a service of recognition.

C. HORNER IS LET OFF AFTER BEING LECTURED

Clarence Horner, charged with embezzling $40 from the Zeek bakery of Plainfield, was given a suspended sentence when arraigned in Union county court last week. Assemblyman William N. Runyon appeared for Horner and his plea for lienency resulted in the suspended sentence. Horner has returned to his wife and two children in Plainfield.

DUBNO FORTRESS FALLS TO RUSSIA

108,000 Prisoners Taken In Last Eight Days.

GERMAN SUPPORTS ROUTED

2,000 of Von Hindenburg's Soldiers Are Captured Around Lutsk—Booty Seized Enormous—Russians Thirteen Miles From Czernowitz.

London, June 12.—The town and fortress of Dubno, twenty-five miles from the Galician frontier, fell into the hands of the Russians yesterday. With it the czar's forces are again in the possession of the Volhynian fortress triangle, consisting of Lutzk, Dubno and Rovno.

Dubno, which had been in the hands of the Austrians since Sept. 7 last, lies on the Rovno-Brody-Lemberg railway and is about eighty-two miles from the Galician capital, Lemberg.

So powerful was the Russian onrush on Dubno that the attackers swept westward apparently without meeting any resistance, for the official report from Petrograd says they have crossed the Ikwa river and swept as far westward as Demidowka and taken possession of the road from Mlynow to Berestechno. The town of Demidowka is twenty-five miles due west of Dubno. Thus the Russians have in Volhynia alone pushed the Austro-Hungarian lines back thirty-two miles.

Simultaneously with the drive in Volhynia the extreme left wing of the Russian southern army forced the Austro-Hungarians to withdraw their whole line in the northeastern Bukowina, invaded the crown land with strong forces and advanced to within sixteen miles of the capital, Czernowitz. The Austrian war office admits the withdrawal of the lines in the northeastern Bukowina.

The total number of prisoners taken up to date in the new Russian offensive is 107,650. The figure includes one general and 1,649 officers.

The Austrians on their part began the first important counter movement during the last twenty-four hours. Making a sudden stand after being driven over the River Styr, north of Lutsk, they turned on the Russians with the aid of the German detachments rushed to them by General von Hindenburg, drove the Muscovite troops back over the Styr and took 1,508 prisoners, including eight officers.

Petrograd admits this reverse, but adds that the Austrian counter offensive in this region has been halted. Vienna also claims the recapture of a height northwest of Tarnopol.

The new Russian gains in southern Volhynia indicate a new invasion of Galicia before many more days have passed, while the advance in the Bukowina threatens Czernowitz with capture, a success which if gained would go far toward influencing Roumania to drop her recent tendencies in favor of the central powers and decide her at last to cast her lot with the allies. With the Bukowina in Russian hands Bessarabia, ardently coveted by Roumania, would be an alluring incentive for intervention.

FOR G. O. P. CHAIRMANSHIP

Five Men In Race to Head the National Committee.

Chicago, June 12.—Five names were mentioned as possible candidates for chairman of the Republican national committee and manager of the Hughes and Fairbanks campaign in discussions by Republican leaders here.

The names were Frank H. Hitchcock of New York, Ralph E. Williams of Oregon, Joseph B. Keealing of Indiana, Fred C. Tanner of New York and Charles B. Warren of Michigan.

W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts is chairman of the special committee named by the Republican national committee to confer with Mr. Hughes in regard to the appointment of an executive committee which is to name the chairman and other officers of the national body. It is understood the meeting will be held within ten days.

BANDITS AGAIN IN TEXAS.

Steal Eighty Horses, but Do Little Damage to Property.

San Antonio, Tex., June 12.—Mexican bandits raided the Coleman ranch, about twenty-five miles northwest of Laredo, and were driven back across the border by a troop of the Fourteenth cavalry under Captain Ola W. Bell.

The bandits drove off eighty horses, but did no damage to the ranch property. The raid was reported to headquarters by General Mann at Laredo, who is in charge of the situation. It is expected he will send reinforcements to Captain Bell, who is without pack train or supplies. How far into Mexico he has gone is not known at headquarters.

The raid was first reported to Gen[illegible] by T. A. Coleman of San [illegible], owner of the ranch, who is in [illegible] on a fishing trip.

U. S. Destroyer Runs Aground.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

A few years ago New Jersey had the reputation of having many miles of very good roads, but there is no basis now for such a reputation. In the past few weeks I have been over about 500 miles of roads within 50 miles of Plainfield, and almost all are in very bad condition. In fact, the Pompton Turnpike and the gravel roads around Freehold are the only decent ones I have seen. On Tuesday we are to vote on the retention of the County Freeholder system of county government. The road system of New Jersey is the best reason for abolishing the present boards. They are wasteful and inefficient and, too often, corrupt. The taxpayers have put millions for the construction of good roads and much of this money has been wasted. The roads are flimsily built in the first place, and then not properly cared and allowed to go to ruin. A few years ago a macadam road was laid from South Plainfield to the golf club. It was so thin that heavy loads cut through in the spring. No repair work has been done on it and now it is in very bad order. Plainfield avenue is bad enough within the city limits, but beyond that it is unspeakable. Only a few years ago the road from New Brunswick to Kingston (the main road across the State) was laid new. On Saturday much of it was positively dangerous. The same can be said of the roads from Plainfield to New Brunswick, New Brunswick to Long Branch, Trenton to Princeton, Somerville to Bound Brook, Bound Brook to Plainfield and Somerville to High Bridge. Two years ago this county laid down a fine road from Plainfield to Westfield and it was considered the last word in road building. No repairs are being made, the earth shoulders have worn away so that the edges of the pavement stand up several inches, and, worst of all, holes are appearing here and there. If these holes are attended to at once all will be well, if not, they will get worse and eventually the road will be as bad as the others.

There is nothing in which the old adage of the "stitch in time" so well applies as to the upkeep of a road. In countries like France the roads are never made over; they are kept in perfect order by timely repairs and that is the cheapest and best way to maintain them. Our Boards of Freeholders make a road wherever there is a public demand for it, and make as much show with the money as possible, and that is the end. The road is used for a year, then it begins to develop holes, and after a few years it is a wreck and the work must be done over again. The Freeholders have shown utter incapacity to deal with roads or to spend properly the enormous sums which we place at their disposal, and it is high time they were abolished and their powers given to a smaller and more responsible body.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

When I throw in my clutch the car jumps forward with a bound upon starting. Can you tell me what might be the cause of this and how the trouble can be eliminated?

Your clutch is too harsh. When starting from a standstill you should let the clutch in slowly. If you have a metal to metal clutch treat it with a mixture of graphite and oil. If it is a leather faced clutch then treat the leather with castor oil or neatsfoot oil. In the latter case the oil should be soaked into the leather for a few hours at least.

There is a very bad knock when the motor of my car is running fast without much load, but as soon as it strikes a hill or sand and the motor has to pull the knock stops. This is not the bearings, as they have been tested twice. Could the knock be caused by a piston slap or wrist pin? If not, what is it?

It is probably an ignition knock, and it is evident that you do not advance the spark far enough when running at speed. This is borne out by the fact that when the engine is slowed down somewhat under load the knock ceases, indicating that the engine speed is then brought down to a point where it is in accord with the time of ignition. If your trouble persists try bending the timer control rod slightly. This runs from the steering column to the commutator at the front of the engine. Bending it will shorten it a little, thus advancing the spark. Or you could bend the spark lever a little inward toward the center of the car, this also serving to advance the control.

If it were a bearing knock it would be accentuated when the car was pulling. It is barely possible that it is a piston slap, but that is more remote than the possibility of ignition knock.

Can you tell me how to eliminate a noise occurring in the differential of my car and how to adjust it so that I will not have to buy a new gear?

The only adjustment of the rear axle gears necessary is to obtain the proper mesh of the two driving gears. If these get out of proper adjustment there will be an excessive humming noise in the rear axle.

To adjust the gears remove the plate at the top rear of the driveshaft housing. Turn the adjusting collar by placing a tool in one of the small holes through the collar, turning the collar to the right meshes the gears tighter. It is a good plan to make this adjustment while driving the car on a smooth road.

My car has been thoroughly overhauled by an expert, but it is very hard to start and hasn't much power. The water pump does not seem to work well because the radiator and engine get hot after running six or seven miles. Oil comes through the valves, and the engine is very hard to start when cold, but when warmed up it is easy. Should I get a set of spark plugs equipped with priming cups?

Priming plugs might help in getting started. It is likely that the cylinders are somewhat out of round and should have been rebored. This is borne out by the fact that oil gets past the pistons, and if the pistons and rings have been overhauled properly it would seem that the trouble is in the cylinders themselves. Leakage past the pistons would account for the lack of power also. The water pump might be out of order, but that is a thing which is easy to determine. See that the water piping is not clogged and that the rubber hose connections are in good shape. The lack of power might also be due to improper adjustment or action of the carbureter.

Would you advise burning off present paint on car in order to have change of color from deep navy to gray without varnish? Could finish be kept clean more easily without varnish?

If you have not had any experience in burning off paint do not risk a good car in order to learn how to do it. If you are skillful with the use of the torch burning is the most thorough way to remove the paint.

Regarding which finish is easier to keep clean, it is just as easy to keep an unvarnished surface clean as a varnished one. The only difference is that a varnished surface has a polished effect, whereas the unvarnished is dull and not so delicate.

After running twelve or fourteen miles my car sometimes bucks and slows down and on opening the cut-out the missed charge shoots out in a flame. What causes this?

From your description the trouble might be due to sticking valves, sticking air valve in the carbureter rendering the mixture too rich temporarily, a short circuit in some part of the ignition system or a number of other causes. It would seem, however, that the first two mentioned are the most probable. You should see that your valves are correctly timed and that the clearance between the lifters and stems is about the thickness of a visiting card. You should also make sure that there is no possibility of your auxiliary air valve sticking and shutting off the supply of air temporarily.

How does horsepower, as applied in mechanics, compare with the horsepower of a horse? In other words, how do they measure horsepower?

The rate at which an engine does work is often measured in units called a horsepower, one horsepower being work done to the extent of thirty-three foot pounds per minute, supposed to represent the maximum rate at which work could be done by a horse. Work done by an engine may mean either of two things—namely, the total work done by the engine, or the effective work done by the engine. Both kinds of work are obtained by calculation. The total work is called the indicated horsepower. The useful or effective work is that which remains of the total work after a deduction has been made of the work necessary to overcome the frictional resistance due to bearings and other working parts. This useful work is called brake horsepower.

In measuring the indicated horsepower of a motor there are several factors to be considered—pressure on the piston in pounds per square inch, the area of the piston in square inches, the stroke in feet and number of strokes per minute. The product of these divided by 33,000 will give the indicated horsepower.

I have a friend who cleans carbon out with salt. He runs his engine two or three minutes to warm up, then removes the spark plugs and puts one and one-half normal salt tablets in each cylinder and then runs the car about fifteen miles. By that time there is no carbon remaining in engine or valves. Will the chemical action set up by the salt and heat do any damage to the cylinders?

While salt will burn off the carbon by chemical action due to the combination of salt and carbon into sodium carbonate, it is very likely that the combination of chlorine with the hydrogen in gasoline would form hydrochloric acid, which would tend to have an intense rusting action on the cylinders.

The clutch of my car is faced with some fabric, and for the past month I have been bothered by the clutch slipping. Will you kindly suggest a remedy? The car will stand in the middle of the street on high gear and not affect the running of the engine—that is, the clutch in high will not retard the engine to any appreciative degree, although it will hold on low and second, but better in the former.

There must be something radically wrong with the particular facing on that car and would suggest your having a new clutch facing applied. If this does not remedy the trouble there must be some interference with the clutch entering the flywheel as far as it should. Perhaps the clutch pedal is striking the floorboard, preventing it from engaging. It is very possible that heavy grease has leaked into the clutch housing and that the lining is more in need of thorough cleaning than anything else.

An unpleasant sound issues from the rear wheels of my car when traveling over twenty miles per hour, and I have found that there is a little play in one of the rear wheels. By play, I mean that when rear wheel is jacked it can be pushed in and out about one-eighth or one-fourth inch. The trouble I am sure is not beneath the hub cap, as I had tightened this nut, and I think that the differential itself must be adjusted. How can I adjust it so as to stop this ringing, grinding noise? Also, when taking off the cover of the differential I have found that the edges of teeth of the large gear have been chipped.

The lost motion in the rear axle appears to be due to worn thrust bearings. If the car will be examined by a competent mechanic it is quite certain to be noted that the differential thrust bearings are badly worn and need replacing.

This same reason may possibly be assigned to the noise about which you speak, although this may also be attributed to the condition of the ring gears and pinion. These should be examined at the same time that the thrust bearings are replaced and the differential overhauled.

After a motor is loosened from running the amount of oil required is considerably less than when the motor is new. For ordinary driving we recommend that the adjusting screw at the bottom of the pump be closed entirely and then opened three-quarters or seven-eighths of a turn. Of course if you undertake long trips or run the car under unusual conditions, such as through heavy mud and sand, more oil will be required and the adjusting screw should be opened accordingly.

Recently my car has been giving me quite a little trouble. The battery seems to be all right, but when I put my foot on the starting pedal it will not crank the motor. If I use the crank handle and turn the motor over about eight times and then use the starting pedal it works all right. Can you tell me the trouble?

It may be that there are some short circuits which drain the battery, or it may be that the generator is not charging properly. Be careful to keep the specific gravity of the electrolite in accordance with the instructions of the battery maker.

ROOSEVELT SILENT AT SAGAMORE HILL

"Out of Politics," He Says With Emphasis.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 12. Colonel Roosevelt has barred all interviewers from Sagamore Hill. "It's no use coming to see me," he said. "I have nothing to say. I will answer no questions, so please don't ask me to. I am out of politics."

He passed a quiet Sunday in the seclusion of his big house on the hilltop except for his motor trip down to the village to attend church with Mrs. Roosevelt. It was reported that he had received several prominent visitors, but his secretary denied this. Political callers are not expected until this afternoon, and then they will come in large numbers, it is said, some from the Republican party to ask his support for Justice Hughes and others from the Progressive party, who may urge him to reconsider his conditional refusal of the bull moose nomination.

When Colonel Roosevelt said that he was out of politics he made the remark to a photographer who was soliciting a pose, but later he made it deliberately and with studied emphasis. It is accepted here as meaning that he will not go into the campaign actively to elect Justice Hughes, although the declaration comes so closely upon the heels of Hughes' nomination and Roosevelt's loss of it—believed by some to be the greatest disappointment of the colonel's life—that there is a great deal of speculation as to whether or not he might change his mind about political activity if Mr. Hughes should not come out more definitely for preparedness.

There isn't the slightest doubt here that Colonel Roosevelt will stick to his refusal to accept the Progressive nomination despite all efforts that may be made during the next few days to get him to head a third ticket. More than 400 telegrams have come to him from Republicans and Progressives and some Democrats from all parts of the country. Most of them were sent after the Chicago conventions had adjourned and the colonel's declination of the Progressive nomination had been made known.

Ninety per cent of these telegrams approved the stand he had taken, said his secretary. It is the opinion of the colonel's friends that he has fought the last big battle of his career.

JERSEY MOOSE TO SUPPORT HUGHES

Pleased With Nomination of Associate Justice.

SAY HE IS PROGRESSIVE.

Leaders of Party Assert He Stands For the Very Things They Have Demanded—See United Party to Oppose Democrats In November Election.

Jersey City, June 12.—"I think that Justice Hughes is by all odds the strongest candidate for president whom the Republicans could have nominated." George L. Record of Jersey City, once the chief adviser of the bull moose in New Jersey, says. "I believe that the Progressives will generally support him."

Mr. Record got back into the Republican camp after the camp[illegible] of 1912, when he was one of the leaders of the bull moose forces, saying he believed the fight for reform should be made within the party. He is now a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination at the September primaries and is running on a platform calling for local option, home rule and the exemption of buildings and the product of labor from taxation.

"Justice Hughes has always been opposed by the forces in the Republican party that we have been fighting in New Jersey for years. The reactionary leaders in the convention didn't want him. Big business interests also preferred some other man. The leaders, however, did not dare to turn down the man whom public sentiment demanded.

"The lesson in the nomination of Hughes is that the reactionaries realized that no man who represented the old guard in politics could win in this country.

"Justice Hughes is a progressive. His record as governor of New York is proof of that. He fought the leaders of his state who believed only in organization. The open primary law and the anti race track gambling law, which he had put upon the statute books, showed that he was free from the control of the interests.

"He once said in a speech, 'My conception of the way to make a party successful is to make it serve the people by putting upon the statute books laws in the public interest.' He drew the primary law and forced it through the legislature by the power of publicity.

"Justice Hughes has stood for the things for which the progressive element in New Jersey has been contending for years. He has always been against the political crook and has always believed in the people. There is no doubt but that he will receive the support of a united Republican party in this state."

When the news of Justice Hughes' nomination reached Jersey City the campaign committee which is doing the heavy work in the interests of Mr. Record's candidacy for governor, then in session, passed a resolution in part as follows:

"The selection of Justice Hughes heralds the return of Republicanism to the best tradition of the Republican party. Mr. Hughes has attained his great eminence by fighting corrupt political machines and bosses in New York. With Hughes, the foe of bosses and corrupt big business, as the leader of the Republican party it becomes specially necessary that the party in each state shall be led by men of the same type of Republicanism."

JERSEY PARTY IS BACK.

Delegates to Republican Convention Returned Last Night.

Trenton, June 12.—The special train which carried the New Jersey party on its return ttrip left the Union station, Chicago, Saturday night. It was the same train de luxe which took the party to the convention with the omission of a baggage car, the bulk of the baggage being carried on another train. The special arrived in Newark at midnight Sunday. All of the party who came out on the train went back with the exception of Sheriff Ralph B. Schmidt and former County Register Thomas P. Alworth, who intend to visit Yellowstone park before their return to Newark.

Philip C. Beard, from the Pennsylvania railroad's general offices in Philadelphia, who had charge of the train on the outgoing trip, also had charge of it on the return.

"There is nothing to be said," he replied. "We are going out there pledged to President Wilson, and he is going to be nominated."

HUGHES PAYS VISIT TO NEW YORK CITY

Political Importance Attached to the Trip.

New York, June 12.—Charles Evans Hughes, nominee of the Republicans for the presidency, today arrives in New York city. He is accompanied by Lawrence H. Green, his private secretary.

Former Attorney General Wickersham, who saw Hughes at his home in Washington, left here on the Congressional limited for New York and is reported to have made connections with the Oyster Bay train in New York. It was expected the two will confer in New York.

Candidate Hughes walked to the Calvary Baptist church yesterday, heard a sermon by Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Greene, its pastor, and walked back to his home, accompanied by his daughter, Catherine. After dinner Mr. Hughes motored in his box electric to the homes of the various members of the supreme court, to thank them individually for their congratulations and to bid them a formal farewell. During the afternoon James R. Mann, Republican floor leader in the house, called at the Hughes residence and extended personal congratulations. Later Associate Justices McKenna, McReynolds and Holmes called. The night Mr. Hughes spent quietly at home with his family.

No longer a justice, but once again a plain citizen Mr. Hughes is awaiting official notification of his nomination as Republican candidate for president before planning his campaign.

The committee headed by Senator Harding, which was named to notify the justice, is expected to come to Washington this week. Meanwhile Mr. Hughes is clearing up all private business in preparation for the campaign.

HOTELS AID Y. M. C. A. FUND.

Nearly Half of $75,000 Needed Is Raised In a Day.

Atlantic City, June 12.—as a result of a whirlwind campaign launched for clearing an indebtedness of $75,000 carried for five years by the Y. M. C. A. $28,490 in contributions was reported by the captains of twenty teams at a luncheon here. Of this amount five prominent beach front hotels contributed $5,000 each and Judge Clarence L. Cole $500 to his credit. The campaign will continue for eight days.

Thirty Deaths Due to Mine.

Bordeaux, June 12.—One survivor of the Norwegian steamer Prosper III. has been brought here. The vessel was sunk by a mine, and thirty of the crew were drowned. The Prosper III. registered 2,689 tons. She sailed from Newport News on May 20 for La Pallice.

The Modest Model.

Julia Ward Howe, though a woman of very good appearance, was extremely modest.

"She once posed for me," said a Boston painter the other day. "But she hesitated a long time before consenting. To urge her on I said:

"'Don't be afraid; I'll do you justice, madam.'

"'Ah,' she answered, 'it isn't justice I ask for at your hands; it's mercy.'"

ON MARCH FIRST there were at the Reo factory in Lansing orders for more than 4000 cars for immediate shipment.

THOSE ORDERS WERE about evenly divided between the two great Reo models—Reo the Fifth "The Incomparable Four" $875—and the New 7-passenger Reo Six at $1250.

THAT'S MORE ORDERS than ever were on hand at any previous time in Reo history—and yet "oversold" has always been the normal condition there.

NOW WHEN YOU CONSIDER that 150 per cent more Reos were shipped between January first and March first, than during the same period last year, you will appreciate that the over-demand is not due to "under-production" but to a tremendous increase of demand for Reos over the increase of production.

JUST THINK! Here is a plant that covers nearly forty acres—admittedly the most efficient plant in the industry too—and still not able to keep up with orders!

REOS MUST BE wonderful automobiles—must be. And are. Any Reo owner will tell you that.

BUT, YOU ASK, will those 4000-and-odd buyers whose orders are in get their cars?

THEY SURELY WILL—BUT, what of those tardy buyers who are still "thinking about it"?

WHAT OF THOSE who have made up their minds to quit experimenting in automobiles and buy one of known quality and with a real guarantee back of it—but are still delaying the important matter of ordering?

WHY THOUSANDS WILL—surely must—be disappointed.

IT'S BEEN THAT WAY every year since Reo began—for never since that day has it been possible to build enough cars to supply all who wanted Reos, and every year thousands of tardy ones have had to be denied Reos.

SO THE ONLY WAY, if you want a Reo for spring delivery, is to order now—at once.

AND, BY THE WAY if you want a Reo Six, you haven't a moment to lose.

THE POPULARITY of that magnificent big 7-passenger Six is the marvel of the trade.

CAN'T HELP BUT BE a greater shortage of Reo Sixes this year than last—and everyone who knows automobile history remembers what that was.

HOPELESS—SIMPLY HOPELESS—the shortage of Reo Sixes last season. And no wonder when you consider the size, the power, the quality and the beauty of this Reo model. At its price, $1250, it is the greatest value ever offered in a six or in a seven-passenger car.

THIS YEAR THE REO FOLK are making more than twice as many, but when the March order schedule was in, it was evident that there won't be enough Reo Sixes to go around—not by many thousands.

SO DON'T DELAY—decide now and let us have your order definitely. Then you'll be sure.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisement knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

HUGHES A HAPPY CHOICE.

In deciding upon Charles E. Hughes for the Republican nomination for President of the United States the Chicago convention selected the man best fitted for the responsibilities, and the man best qualified to carry the party to success over Wilson.

Hughes was a happy choice. He was not the popular favorite, but the "one greatest American" could never have polled anything like the Republican vote because of bitterness aroused when he fought the Old Guard four years ago, and, while he might have been personally victorious in November, it would not have been a reunited Republican party that elected him. There can be no disappointment in the ranks of the Progressives except that over their failure to get Roosevelt. They can accept every act, every word in the life of Hughes up to the time of his nomination, and his letter of acceptance is little short of a reiteration of the Progressive platform. The nomination of Hughes was not a victory for the Old Guard, the self-appointed guardians of things Republican who perpetrated the gigantic steal of 1912. They wanted him little more than they wanted Roosevelt, and their pill is as bitter as any the Progressives can be called upon to swallow, which makes the support of Hughes a sacrifice on the part of both factions for the good of the party.

The Republicans can be justly proud of their ticket. Both men—Hughes and Fairbanks—were sought by the office. The last expression heard from each before the nominations were made was that he did not want to be considered. Even so late as a few hours before the vote for vice president, Fairbanks sent a telegram to the convention asking that his name be withdrawn, if it had been presented, or was later presented. In the face of this he was selected as a running mate to Hughes, and the nomination of Hughes was brought about over his repeated statements that he preferred to remain a member of the greatest body in the land.

The campaign that is to follow will be a dignified one. Whatever politics is played must be handled by unappointed lieutenants, for the country sees the strange spectacle of its President seeking re-election against one of its greatest and most dignified jurists, a man whose shoulders are yet warm from the wearing of the robe of the United States Supreme Court. The result should be one peculiarly expressive of the will of the people.

THE FUTURE IN THE PRESENT.

The easy-going man who views most things in a detached sense may see nothing except, possibly, an Oriental coincidence in the death of Yuan Shi Kai, president of the "Republic of China." Yet the passing of the man of many political changes for his own personal interests may be a part of gigantic international politics and world program.

A few weeks ago the world was informed in a rather quiet and cautious manner that Yuan Shi Kai had been poisoned. Little was said of the circumstances, which was quite in keeping with Oriental poisoning cases, especially when occupants of thrones and other high spots are the principals. Then followed the announcement that he had died, and again there was little or nothing that was explanatory.

In another sense the death of Yuan Shi Kai may be an eastern parallel to the assassination of the archduke of Austria. There may be no war maneuvers to follow, but observers of international affairs have no trouble in seeing in this incident in China, following some queer political twistings, an event that is to make over the politics of China and Japan and perhaps other countries.

It must have been worth while to some political power in China, or perhaps Japan, that Yuan Shi Kai be poisoned enough to cause his death or it would not have happened. When we know just what interest believed itself prepared to profit by his removal we may be able to follow the course of future political happenings.

The world is being made over pretty rapidly just now, and even so minor a character as the president of a theoretical republic in China has his place in someone's scheme.

While suffrage leaders are highly elated over recognition at the hands of the Republican party as represented in the Chicago convention, they realize that the plank put into the platform means practically nothing. It expresses the belief of the party in the right of women to suffrage but adds that this question should be decided by the separate States. The plank is a great step forward, however, and unless the Democrats go further this week it will mean thousands of votes for Hughes.

• • • • • •

Forgetting Hughes for the moment, the one figure that stood out strongest in all of the convention deliberations at Chicago last week was George W. Perkins. As leader of the Roosevelt faction, he showed rare judgement and ability as a political manipulator. But for this skillful guidance through delicate moments the Progressive convention would have nominated Roosevelt early in its deliberations and hope for an agreement between the two factions before or after nominations would have ended then.

Tomorrow Union county voters are to decide on the small Board of Freeholders plan. Many have given the question serious study and are able to vote intelligently, but there are others who have heard nothing on either side except street gossip. There is still time left in which to digest facts from other counties that have tried the plan and those who fail to do so should stay away from the polls.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The June Event.

Now comes with robins on the wing,
The dainty blushing bride of spring.
A beauteous thing in filmy lace,
With pride writ on her haughty face.
The pretty bridesmaids all are there;
A galaxy that's passing fair.
The father's there upon display,
To give the blushing bride away.
The minister is at his post,
The one man who is needed most.
The best man is there with the rest,
In his boiled shirt and low-necked vest.
But there is one who's hard to find,
There are so few have him in mind.
He sort of gets lost in the crowd;
His mortal spirit is not proud.
He's elbowed 'round from place to place,
A selling plater in the race.
And not a person seems to care
A continental if he's there.
The humblest mortal in the room.
You guess correctly—he's the groom.

Uncle Abner

When a feller's wife picks out his clothes there ain't much doubt as to who wears the lower portion of 'em around the house.

Hank Spink says horseshoes ain't a sign of good luck. He's been pitching 'em for nine years and ain't won a game yet.

If a feller has got any doubts whether his gal loves him and is thinkin' of him seriously, they disappear when she begins to criticize his neckties and pick ravelin's off'n his coat.

The kind of gal to marry is the one that can look as neat at 10 o'clock in the morning as she does at 10 o'clock in the evening. N. B.—There isn't any.

Hank Tumms hunted for his razor strap six weeks before he discovered that his wife was using it for a belt. Some women are so ingenious.

There may somewhere in deep dark obscurity be a self-made man who ain't proud of the job, but if there is, he has kept himself carefully concealed from the public gaze.

Some men are born foolish and others raise pompadours.

There may be some difference between exercise and hard work, but it never has been discovered.

It is more blessed to give than to receive, especially if it is a sour tip on a hoss race.

One of the mysteries of this world is why a statesman always has to scowl when he has his photograph taken.

A Couple of Ideas.

The next great emancipator to arrive will be the fellow who can invent a cuff button that can be put in the cuff with one hand inside of ten minutes, believes the Osborne (Kan.) Farmer. The average man isn't smart enough to put his cuff buttons in a shirt before he puts it on, especially when he is in a hurry.

Oakley, Kan., has a housewife, according to the Graphic, who, when she wants to kill a chicken, disdains to chop off its head or wring its neck. Instead, she shoots it in the head with a rifle, and has never missed one yet. The Graphic, however, suppresses the name of the hero who holds the chicken while she shoots. More modesty.

Melodrama.

She struggled vainly to arrest
The villain's vengeful hand.
He dragged her 'round and 'round the stage,
And cussed to beat the band.
Said he: Your lover is a chump,
Your brother is a thief,
Your father stole a hoss one time
And druv your ma to grief."
"Unhand me, villain," then she cried,
Or you will rue this day.
"I'll scream for help," she did it, too.
But no help came that way.
"You love muh," cried the villain, as
He grabbed her by the hair.
"'Tis false," she cried, in anguish wild,
And wilted o'er her chair;
"'Tis false," she screamed. "'tis false," again.
"As false as false can be!!"
He found three switches in his hands;
"It surely is," said he.

"THE END OF A PERFECT DAY"

SINS OF MEN
WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION
AT PROCTOR'S WEDNESDAY.

Fannie Ward brings a full measure of talent to "The Cheat" at Proctor's today, and makes the role of Edith Hardy, the thoughtless, social butterfly, whose extravagances and impulsive conduct lead to grave family crises, one of the most impressive screen impersonations seen in some time. There has been no skimping in cutting the dramatic cloth of "The Cheat"; it permits full width to one's enjoyment of a story well told, for its quality, like an all-wool garment, makes the picture as distinctive from a patched and shoddy subject as the difference between a coat made by a Fifth avenue tailor and a "take me home for ten dollars before the fire sale ends." Director Cecil de Mille has produced a picture free from gross technical faults—there is not a foot of superfluous film in all the five reels—there is no unnecessary scene, no prolongation of important ones; no endless repetition of early parts of the story when a character has occasion to refer to previous events. Among added attractions today is the sixth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra." Tomorrow will prove to be a big day for patrons of Proctor's, for it is the day that "The Secret of the Submarine," the new patriotic film novel, is introduced to film fans in this vicinity. "The Secret of the Submarine," a serial in fifteen episodes, strikes the fever heat interest of every red-blooded American, pictures the subject of strongest appeal, in view of our nation's present relation to the world war. Shows the remarkable submarine invention-idea attributed to Thomas A. Edison, with which the United States could become mistress of the seas. Furious sub-sea struggles are enacted by an intrepid company headed by Juanita Hansen and Thomas Chatterton, the popular co-stars. In addition, tomorrow, Dorothy Gish appears together with Owen Moore, in a romantic Triangle drama, "Susan Rocks the Boat." Dainty Dorothy sets out to open a settlement house, reform a saloon keeper and make bad boys drink ice cream sodas instead of whiskey. She tries to correct the social evils of the world and narrowly escapes ruining her life. "Bathtub Perils," a Keystone comedy, and the last chapter of "Mary Page" are also on the program tomorrow. On Wednesday, Dorothy Bernard and Stuart Holmes are featured in "Sins of Men," a Fox production.

ITALIAN CABINET QUITS.

Failure of Deputies to Vote Confidence Provokes the Resignation.

Rome, June 12.—The Salandra cabinet has resigned as a result of the refusal of the chamber of deputies to grant a vote of confidence in the afternoon. The official figures of the vote were 195 against the government to 141 supporting it.

The crisis had been expected because of the suspicion in the chamber that the government's reticence was an attempt to evade parliamentary control.

Premier Salandra appealed to the patriotism of parliament in an address, asking that the country should not be unduly alarmed. The situation in the Trentino, he said, is not serious now, since the threatened invasion has been averted, but he admitted that had the Italian defense in the Trentino been stronger the Austrian advance would have been checked sooner.

The official announcement that the cabinet had resigned was made following the arrival of the king from the front. The prevailing impression in Rome is that the crisis will be solved within a couple of days and that the Salandra cabinet will return to power after it has been strengthened.

.· Plainfield Theatre.·.

Savo and Company, an international act that has been one of the greatest successes of the past season, will be the headline feature of the new bill which the Plainfield theatre will offer for the first half of the week, beginning today. Four people are in the company and they present an astonishing heavyweight juggling act, one of the most startling feats of all being the lifting of a heavy draft horse by Savo, the world's strongest man. The act is replete with amazing features and is counted upon by Manager Shannon to be the most appreciative number he has secured in several months.

Beside the headline number the bill today will present Harry and Elva Montgomery, the musical comedy stars, in a delightful singing and dancing act, beautifully costumed. Mark Hart and John Rogers, comedians, with many original doings; Little Jack Curtis, the juvenile moving picture actor who is widely known to Plainfield audiences through his Vitagraph pictures. Hackett and Lavere, novelty skit, and Russell & Co., in a farce-comedy playlet, "Tell It to Father." Pathe pictures, both comedy and dramatic, will form a portion of the program every day.

The bill for the last half of the week, to be shown Thursday for the first time, will be led off by the nine crazy kids, a juvenile act that has been playing the big circuits continuously for the past two years. This offering is one of the costliest that Manager Shannon has brought to Plainfield and will undoubtedly make an instantaneous hit.

--Astor Theatre--

Today at the Astor Theatre, Daniel Frohman presents the captivating Hazel Dawn in "The Saleslady," a Paramount picture by Willard Mack produced by the Famous Players Company. The violin that Miss Dawn made unforgettable in "The Pink Lady," makes its motion picture debut in this film—not that it can be heard, of course, but anyone who is familiar with music can see at a glance that the star is actually playing her beloved instrument. "Elusive Isabel" is the title of a highly sensational Bluebird photoplay that has been secured for exhibition at the Astor Theatre for tomorrow, with Florence Lawrence appearing in the leading role. The feature takes the title from the will-o'-the-wisp metaods Miss Lawrence, in the enactment of her part as a clever European spy, employs in her attempt to involve the United States in a diplomatic intrigue that, if successful, would violate this country's neutrality. The subject of the film is timeless itself, the large and clever company enacting the photoplay is involved in an almost endless amount of excitement before the climax is reached. The big double attraction at this theatre every Wednesday and Thursday is meeting with all-around approval; we show the serial picture, "Who's Guilty?" on Wednesday, you read it in the Courier-News on Tuesday. And on Thursday we show the ever-popular star, Billie Burke, in "Gloria's Romance." You read it in the Press on Wednesday. This sure is a treat to the pub-

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Nightingale Gets a New Plaything.

It Sang the Waltz Thirty-three Times.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

SOON as Jack and Evelyn had finished their bread and jam daddy told them: "Once upon a time a little nightingale sang beautifully for the emperor of China. It sang so well that the whole court talked about it. When two people met one would say 'Night' and the other would say 'Gale.' Then they would sigh and understand each other perfectly. Eleven different cheesemongers named their babies after it, but none of them grew up with a beautiful singing voice.

"One day a large package came for the emperor. On it was written 'Nightingale.'

"'Somebody has sent me a book about my celebrated bird,' said the emperor. But it was no book. It was a little work of art in a box, a make believe nightingale exactly like the living one, except that its body was studded all over with diamonds, rubies and sapphires.

"When the bird was wound up, just like Jack's beetle, it could sing one of the songs the real one sang. And it could wag its tail, which glittered with silver and gold. Around its neck it wore a ribbon which said, 'The emperor of Japan's nightingale is very poor compared to the emperor of China's.'

"Everybody said, 'Oh, how beautiful!' and the man who brought the artificial bird was at once given the title of imperial nightingale carrier in chief.

"Then the birds had to sing together, but they did not get on very well. The real nightingale sang as it felt, while the make believe one could sing only a waltz.

"'There is no fault in that,' said the music master. 'The waltz is in perfect time.'

"Then the make believe nightingale had to sing alone. It was just as great a success as the real one, people thought, and, besides, it glittered like bracelets and breastpins. It sang the same waltz thirty-three times and yet was not tired. The court would gladly have heard it again, but the emperor said the real nightingale must have a turn now. But where was it? Nobody had seen it fly out of the open window back to its own green woods.

"'We have got the best bird, though,' said a courtier. So the make believe bird had to sing the thirty-fourth time. But even then no one knew the song well because it was so hard to remember. The music master praised the make believe bird and said it was better than the real one because it sparkled both inside and out."

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ralph Has a Little Talk With His Wife on the Matter of Responsibility.

"I like Mrs. Forsyth very much," Ralph Gordon was smoking on the porch after the Forsyths' big car had driven away. Mrs. Mertage had gone with them to visit a Kansas City friend. "She has splendid ideas."

"She is not very pretty," remarked Ethel critically.

"That depends on what your definition of pretty is. If it is confined to coloring and dimples, she is not pretty; but if intelligence and expression count she is one of the prettiest women I know." Ethel pouted. Her beauty was her great asset and she could not endure any rivals in the field.

"She told me that she prepared for her life work much as a man would prepare for his," continued Ralph, oblivious of the pout. "She took a course in a domestic science school, studied marketing, home management, cooking—in fact, everything connected with housekeeping. She never has much trouble keeping a servant, for she knows just what to expect of them and they know that she is an expert in her line. I venture to say that it does not cost that family of five as much to live in the city as it costs us to live in this little town."

"It is a pity you didn't marry a paragon like that," snapped Ethel, her cheeks flushed with anger.

"Come, Ethel, be reasonable. I want to talk things over and see if we cannot find a way out of our difficulties; find a way to manage things so well that we can have a comfortable margin stored at the end of the year instead of living on the ragged edge of debt, with disaster staring us in the face if the least thing should go wrong. There is much more necessity for us to use wise management than for the Forsyths, who have plenty of money."

"I am tired to death, and I won't listen to any lectures on home economics," flared Ethel, bursting into tears. "I hear nothing else. It seems to me I shall scream at the mere mention of money." Ethel dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief.

"Perhaps I did choose a poor time to talk about it," said Ralph contritely, "but it is to obviate just this anxious, feverish state of the money market that I want a change. You are doing something that you know nothing about. You are feeling around in the dark and no wonder you make mistakes," continued her husband kindly.

"I wish with all my heart that I was back home where I could have what I wanted and not be called to account for every move I made and every dollar I spent." Ethel was sobbing hysterically now and Ralph rose and putting his arm around her gently led her inside and sitting down in a big chair took her on his lap.

"Ethel, dear little girl, listen to me. I am not finding fault with you——"

"Yes you are. You think everything Maggie Forsyth does is right and everything I do is wrong and——"

"Don't be unreasonable. Hear me through. You say you wish you were back home free from all responsibility."

"I do indeed!" she interrupted.

"Do you want always to live without responsibility; always to be a mere child?" Ethel nodded her head and continued her sobbing.

"Somebody has to take the responsibility for you till you take it for yourself. Don't you know that?" Ethel removed the handkerchief from her eyes to look at him in surprise.

"At home neither you nor your mother would help in facing money problems and what was the result? Your father had it all to do. His whole life was one long struggle to make ends meet; to pay the bills that you and your mother so selfishly contracted." Ethel was listening now. "Did you ever know him to take a vacation, or to have any pleasure?" Ethel slowly shook her head. "No, his life was one eternal grind that the women of his household might live in carefree idleness, contributing nothing to the industry, mere reckless spenders. Is it right?" Ralph was looking earnestly into the tear-stained face.

Ethel shook her head. "And don't you want to learn to take your share of the responsibility? he continued.

"Yes," she whispered, dropping her head on his shoulder.

DRINK WATER TO AVOID SICKNESS SAYS AUTHORITY

Glass of hot water before breakfast daily keeps the doctor away.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides, with results that are of untold blessings to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

EXPLAINS HOW CATS SHOULD BE CHLOROFORMED

Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, the local S. P. C. A. officer, gives out the following information on "How to Chloroform a Cat," so that local persons who have animals they wish to dispose of may do so in the proper way:

"Take a tin wash boiler and place the cat in it. Use from two to three ounces of chloroform either on a sponge or absorbent cotton. Place the latter into the boiler with the cat. Take a piece of muslin or a sheet and place it on top of the boiler before putting the lid on, this precaution being taken agaist letting air into the compartment. After the cat is dead, remove the cat from the boiler and place it in a pail of water for a time and weigh it down. Then take the cat out and bury it."

NEWARK AUTO HITS LOCALITE.

Richard Davis, of 116 Park avenue, who was to carry the banner of Camp Bagley, of this city in the Spanish War Veterans parade at Newark, Saturday afternoon, was struck by an automobile as he was crossing Broad street preparatory to falling in line with the procession. He was taken to the City Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a broken toe and several bad bruises. He refused to stay at the institution and later returned home. Davis' associates were unaware that he had met with an accident until the Camp Bagley banner was found lying on the sidewalk and an investigation disclosed what happened.

WEDDED IN NEWARK.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cuniff, of Plainfield avenue, received a telegram yesterday morning, dated at Newark, and signed by the daughter, Miss Julia Cunniff, seventeen years old, in which she stated she had been married Saturday night to E. J. Furey, of Raritan. No details of the ceremony were given other than that it took place at Newark and that the bridal couple would return to Plainfield tomorrow. The groom has recently been working at Dunellen and it quite well known in this city.

AFFIRMATIVE VOTE.

An affirmative vote for the formation of a Dunellen branch of the Local Option League was taken at a meeting of the boroughites held in the Whittier School, Dunellen, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A. F. Todd, D. W. C. Ramsey and Isaac J. Stites were appointed a committee to arrange for an organization meeting. Yesterday's meeting was addressed by an attorney of the league from Newark.

HORSE DROPS DEAD.

A horse owned by D. T. Heaume, the Dunellen grocer, dropped dead from heart disease in front of St. John's Roman Catholic church, Dunellen Saturday evening while pulling one of Mr. Heaume's delivery wagon. Horace Vail, who was driving escaped injury, through the fact that the horse was proceeding at a slow gait at the time.

Y. W. C. A.

The Bible-class supper will be served at the association tonight at 6:30, and Miss Aller's Bible-class will meet at 7 o'clock. The lesson will be taken from Acts, 21st chapter and 15th verse to the 24th chapter and 22nd verse.

The swimming class will meet in the High School pool tonight at 8 o'clock.

ELDERS IN CHARGE.

The morning service at the German Reformed church next Sunday will be in charge of Elders Wolff and Vogel, in the absence of the pastor, who is attending the regular session of the General Synod of the German Reformed church of America, which is being held at Holland, Michigan.

CIVIC ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The quarterly meeting of the Netherwood Residents' Association will be held in the parish house at South and Woodland avenues, tonight at 8:30. All members are urged to be present as business of mutual interest will be discussed. Refreshments will be served.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING.

The business meeting of the Young People's Society of the German Reformed church will be held tomorrow night. Arrangements are being made by the newly elected officers for an interesting meeting followed by refreshments and members are requested to bring their friends.

H. OTTO WITTPENN LEAVES FOR THE WEST

Believes That Democrats Will Nominate Next President of the United States.

Jersey City, June 12.—Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, Democratic candidate for Governor, left at 6 o'clock last night over the Pennsylvania railroad for St. Louis, where he will attend the Democratic National Convention. He was accompanied by former City Clerk John H. Morris and Deputy United States Marshall John Prout, both of this city. The party will return the latter part of the week, making a stop of a few hours in Chicago.

"I believe the Democrats of the United States will this week nominate the man who will be the next President of the United States," said Mr. Wittpenn before leaving. "The contrast between the Republican and the Democratic national conventions will be, in my opinion, the most remarkable the nation has ever known. In the Republican convention we saw nothing but discord and log rolling, while the Democrats are united upon the candidacy of the man they selected four years, a man, who, it is conceded, has made good in every sense of the word.

"The situation in the party nationly, I believe, is duplicated in New Jersey. Here I have found in my visits to various counties, the party is prepared to present a united front at both the primaries and the general election, and I am absolutely confident that the ticket will emerge from the fray triumphant."

'THY KINGDOM COME' THEME OF SERMON

President Demarest Delivers Baccalaureate Address Before Rutgers' Students.

New Brunswick, N. J., June 12.—President W. H. S. Demarest preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Rutgers College here last evening. He took as his text, "Thy Kingdom Come," and maintained that the Kingdom of God will only come by way of the great and increasing evangelism of the church, by wise, righteous and unselfish patriotism, and by the surrender of the human heart to the divine righteousness and grace.

"Divine rule is the only guarantee of righteousness and peace in human affairs," he said. "The boundaries of the Kingdom of God cut across the boundaries of nations, of race, color, and creed. The present world conflict is more than between nations. It is a great struggle of world evil against divine right. Right zest for national honor and preparedness merges in zeal for the greatest good. In the business world, the political world, the social world, true progress is the growing mastery of the laws of God. In the world-wide reaction, the responsibility and supreme duty of our nation is to extend a Christian civilization.

HOPE CHAPEL RECEIVES MANY NEW MEMBERS

The largest gain in membership ever made by Hope chapel at one time was accomplished last night when seventy-three persons were received into the congregation, most of them on confession of faith. Rev. Dr. D. W. Skellenger was in charge of the service and the attendance was so large that extra accommodations had to be provided.

In connection with the Children' Day exercises held in the chapel in the morning, held under the supervision of the superintendent, G. H. Condict, twenty infants were baptized by Dr. Skellenger. The children's day program was made up of exercises, recitations and songs.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Men's Club of Grace church will be held in the Park club bowling alleys, Wednesday evening. Following an election of officers and a short routine business session, the members will engage in a bowling tourney, and refreshments will be served.

RECREATION NOTES.

The Dramatic Club will hold a special meeting in the Washington School tonight. The Zephyrs and Athenians will meet in the High School gymnasium tonight.

SALE CONTINUED.

The Opportunity Class Sale will be continued this week and next. More articles have been added. They may be seen at the Stillman School at any time.

GOT A FREE BATH

He Didn't Really Need It, but That Made No Difference.

JUST SIMPLY HAD TO TAKE IT.

A Visit to a Hospital That Resulted in a Surprise to the Caller and Forced a Conscientious Orderly to Do His Duty as He Saw It.

A very much subdued officer from one of the Italian ships in the port left a Brooklyn hospital the other day after an experience like that of the man who was forced to take mustard with his boiled beef. The officer had been coerced into taking a bath in the hospital, albeit he did not need one any more than his vessel had need of a whiffletree—merely a blunder on the part of an officious but conscientious orderly. The hardy mariner could speak very little English, and that was partly the cause of the trouble.

The hospital in question has dealings with the merchant marine, and many sailors who come into port sick are sent to the institution for medical treatment. It chanced that one of the men from this vessel had been taken to the hospital and had a private room on one of the upper floors. The victim of the bath called to see him and made application in his halting English at the office of the institution. He was able to explain sufficiently that he had called to have a talk with his shipmate, and the superintendent gave him a slip to hand to the nurse, with directions to go to the floor where his comrade was temporarily interned. He went up in the elevator without mishap and encountered a dainty little nurse, to whom in his crude English he explained matters.

She motioned to him to take a seat on a bench that stood along the wall in the hall, and he just understood enough of her talk to know that he would have to wait. He was there about five minutes when the orderly came along.

Now, the bench occupied by the sailor was a bench for new patients. A new patient must submit to a bath unless there are orders to the contrary, and, although this particular ship's officer was as tidy and clean as could be, there were no contrary orders in his case. The orderly naturally supposed that the man on the bench was waiting for his tub and proceeded to get it ready for him. The hospital employee filled the bathtub and led the guest into the room. The water was hot.

"Now take your bath," said the orderly.

The sailor didn't want a bath and shook his head in a vigorous negative.

"See here, my good man," proceeded his volunteer valet, "you'll have to take it, and that's all there is about it. It is a rule of the hospital, and you can't stay here unless you jump into that tub."

With a delicacy that is not often met with in men orderlies in city hospitals, this particular official supposed that the new patient might be a bit modest about his tubbing and left him in the bathroom. But he took the precaution to lock him up.

Immediately after the orderly went a bundle of towels and soap came flying out over the transom. The hospital man threw them back again. The man inside just as promptly returned them flying back. A third time the towels and soap were thrown out, and this made the orderly angry. He went in and had it out with the recalcitrant.

"You've just got to take that bath, my man, and that is all there is about it. If you don't I'll bathe you myself."

The man evidently understood that there was no escape and, probably supposing that it was a custom of the hospital to bathe all visitors, proceeded to disrobe and dutifully jumped in. The orderly was satisfied and went about his other duties.

The man's visit to the hospital had been a long one, and the superintendent called up on the house telephone to find out what had become of him. The trim little nurse was asked to explain. She did not know where he had gone.

"I left him sitting on the bench here," she said, "and when I looked for him again he had disappeared."

Nobody had seen him go out. The elevator man was questioned, and he could not tell what had become of him. The mystery deepened until the orderly was found.

"Are you looking for the man on the bench?" he asked. "He's having a bath. He would not take it at first, and I just locked him in."

The involuntary bather was released, and many apologies were offered to him. He was permitted to visit his friend, and, sick as the patient was, he had a hearty laugh over his friend's odd experience. And the sailor in his very best English, which the trim little nurse until'ly declared to be "lingo," said that after he had his bath he felt better and added that he forgave everybody, even the orderly.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Asia Minor" a Puzzle.

"Asia Minor" is a geographical term of vague extension. It would puzzle any one to say exactly where it leaves off. The name dates only from the fifth century (A. D.), when Orosius used it evidently as a novelty. The Roman empire knew no Asia Minor. Indeed, the Roman province of Asia" was actually smaller than this lesser Asia. The alternative name Anatolia (land of the sunrise or east), which has found favor with the Turks, is equally indeterminate.—London Spectator.

Says "Educate For Self Mastery"

DR. EUCLID B. ROGERS.

DR. EUCLID B. ROGERS, who is to lecture here on the fourth day of the Chautauqua, has some decidedly original ideas on the subject of education which he will present in his great lecture, "A Living or a Life."

The doctor is an educator and orator of recognized standing and has long been a lecturer of prominence in the middle west, where he resides.

He says: "I believe in vocational training. Train lawyers—there's a bunch that needs training. Train farmers and preachers and teachers. Some training wouldn't hurt some husbands and wives. Educate for wood work and clay work and iron work and hard work, but don't forget that the fundamental reason for one's culture lies not in what he is to do, but in what he is. He is to be educated not because he's going to shine shoes or sell shoes or run a bank or go to congress, but because he is a man.

"Educate first and foremost to inculcate the great art of self mastery. It is a tremendous thing to really live, and it requires preparation and training of the whole man to live a whole man's life."

MISS WILDEY IN FINALS FOR TITLE

Plainfield Player Waiting for Winner of Semi-Final Round.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national singles champion, will defend her title in the challenge round of the women's national lawn tennis tournament today on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Her opponent will be Mrs. Edward Raymond, of New York, a former national champion, who won her way through the tournament here last week in an impressive manner.

Miss Eleanora Sears, of Boston, who with Mrs. G. Wightman, won the doubles title last year, is paired this year with Miss Bjurstedt, as Mrs. Wightman is not competing. They will meet Miss Dorothy Disston, of this city, and Miss Susanne White, of Baltimore, in a semi-final round match tomorrow, and the winners will meet Mrs. Raymond and Miss Edna Wildey, of Plainfield, for the title in the final round.

ANDREW MC DONOUGH WILL CAPTAIN BORO BALL TEAM

At a meeting of the baseball team of North Plainfield High School, Andrew McDonough, '17, was elected to captain the baseball team for next year. Playing for the first time on the maroon-and-black team, the prospective leader made a most admirable catcher, having a creditable record both in the field and at bat.

TRACK MEET OFF.

The national scholastic track and field championships postponed Saturday will be held on Saturday, June 24, at the Weequahic Park track, Newark. Rainfall Saturday morning saturated the track, but that was only a sprinkling compared with the storm of protest that arose from athletes, coaches and spectators when the Newark athletic committee in charge of the games called off the meet. As contestants of thirty-four schools, representing five States came on for the championships, accompanied by an army of rooters, their indignation may be imagined, especially in view of the fact that athletic championships invariably are run under any kind of weather or track conditions.

BOUT INSURED FOR $100,000.

An insurance policy for $100,000 will be written this week, it is said, on the Moran-Dillon contest. The Washington Park Sports Club is reported to have placed the insurance with Lloyd's, and it is designed to cover the club against rain on June 29, the date of the contest. This is the largest policy ever written on a sporting event.

ONLY ONE CONTEST IN LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Tabs and Hopes Furnish Only Game Saturday Afternoon.

Only one game was played in the City League Saturday, old Jupiter Pluvius having decreed that the weather should stay unsettled and that only the ambitious Tabs and Hopes should do battle. These two powers did clash with the result that the Abstainers are the proud owners of a 6 to 4 victory in addition to an equal footing with the Hopes in the league records. The Farmers failed to appear for their clash with the Netherwoods, although the latter team was on hand for the fray. The First Baptist and the Dunellen clubs got together and decided that it was best to lay off for the day.

Owing to the fact that only one game was played, there was no material change in the league standing. Of course, the Tabs advanced and the Hopes slid back a pace. The Baptists still retain their grip on second place, although a mere matter of 15 points separates them and the Hopes and Tabs. Inasmuch as the Abstainers get a shot at the Firsts next Saturday, something decisive can be looked for.

There is a rumor that the Netherwood team will claim a forfeit from the Farmers, since that team failed to appear for the scheduled tilt on the East End grounds, Saturday. Whether or not the Netherwood contention will be allowed will be decided at the league meeting in the Daily Press office this evening.

W. P. TAYLOR WINS SPRING CHAMPIONSHIP CUP

William P. Taylor won the spring championship at the Hydewood Golf Club on Saturday by defeating H. E. Benzler, in the final round, 5 and 1. H. W. Rush defeated R. F. Hand 6 and 4 in the second round for the Duffers' Cup.

The leading scores for the president's cup follow:

F. L. Titsworth, 109, 34-75; W. P. Taylor, 83, 7-76; F. I. Collins, 102, 23-79; W. H. Nischwitz, 96, 17-79; Walter Whitehead, 100, 16-84; R. M. Smith, 110, 25-85; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 98, 13-85; C. J. Hand, 102, 16-86; A. A. Cannon, 105, 16-89.

WEATHER DIDN'T KEEP WEST ENDS FROM DEFEAT

The inclement weather of Saturday did not prevent the H. A. C. lads from banding the West End Stars an 8 to 3 beating. Inability to connect with the slants served up by Friedman proved the undoing of the victims, who, although defeated, put up a game fight.

TABS DEFEAT HOPES BY CLOSE MARGIN

Only City League Contest Was Well Played Affair.

In the only City League game played on Saturday, the Tabs were victorious over the Hopes, the score of the affair being 6 to 4. The game, although played on a field that was rather water-soaked, was an interesting one, and was really not earned by the winners, who were unable to get to Dick Schott, the Hope prodigal, for more than five bingles, three of which were made by Benny Rosenson.

The game was not marked by heavy clouting, the only extra base hit being doubles registered by Luthman and Benny Rosenson. Unusually fast fielding marked the battle, no less than 26 assists being handled by the victors, all of which indicates that the Hopes were out to win.

In the fielding line "Sonny" Lee, the Scotch Plains youth; Tony Dentizio and Pop Martin were the individual stars, gathering in everything that came their way and making no mistakes about it.

The battle marked the return of Dick Schott to the Hope ranks. Dick recently deserted the locals to do duty with Hopewell, but it appears that he is anxious to redeem himself and gain a "rep" right here at home.

ATHLETIC experts are still talking over the remarkable performances of the various athletes in the recent Penn relay games in Philadelphia. The smashing of the world's record for the two and four mile relay races, which were won by Yale and Cornell respectively, will go down in history as extraordinary events. But the event which created the most talk was the 120 yard high hurdle on the grass won by Br. Sompson of Missouri university. Simpson, flying like a swallow with his swooping stride over the top flights of high hurdles, finished in the marvelous time of 15 seconds flat. As the event was on grass, his time was two-fifths of a second faster than the best previous world's record. However, an argus eyed official noted that Simpson had tipped over his second hurdle, far down the line, though he slipped over all the others cleanly. This, according to collegiate procedure, robbed him of a world's record. Photo shows Simpson going over the hurdles at the Penn relay games.

Francis Ouimet Will Compete No More In Big Amateur Golf Tourneys

BARRING Francis Ouimet from amateur championships means the passing of one of the most sensational players who ever lifted a golf club. For startling exploits on the links Ouimet's record has never been equaled. Now, while only twenty-three, the Boston wonder must close his amateur career because in "handling" golf goods he's broken the association's new amateur rule. Ouimet has repeatedly said he would never compete as a professional, which means he must now limit his playing to small club tournaments. In talking of the recent ruling, Ouimet said recently: "My new business will keep me so busy that I will have no time for competitive golf this season. Under no conditions would I compete as a professional. I made that announcement after winning the open title at Brookline in 1913, and I intend to keep my word. Personally I do not take the United States Golf association's decision regarding amateurism very seriously. It strikes me that the ruling powers went to unnecessary lengths to enforce their new amateur rule. I have played golf because I love the game. It wasn't my intention to capitalize what success I have had on the links. As for destroying one's amateur status, I don't see how selling sporting goods is any different from selling in-

POETS AS PUNSTERS.

Even Shakespeare and Milton Broke Into This Form of Humor.

Shakespeare was an inveterate punster, and Dr. Johnson in his preface to an edition to the poet's works deplores his habit of punning on serious occasions. Hamlet is made to pun when he asks the gravedigger:

"Whose grave's this?"

"Mine, sir," answers the clown.

Hamlet replies:

"I think it be thine indeed, for thou liest in't," and adds later: "Thou dost lie in't to be in't and say it is thine."

To King Richard's question, "What comfort, man? How is't with aged Gaunt?" Shakespeare makes Gaunt reply: "Old Gaunt indeed and gaunt in being old. Within me grief has kept a tedious fast. And who abstains from meat that is not gaunt?"

Milton is the last poet one would think to be guilty of punning, and yet he once wrote a punning epitaph upon a carrier who plied between Cambridge and London and who died after losing his trade on account of the plague.

This carrier was the Hobson whose "choice" is so famous. He used to hire out horses, but travelers had to take the horse Hobson offered or none, so that "Hobson's choice" came to mean no choice at all.

The whole poem, written on the death of this carrier, is full of puns. One passage runs:

Rest that gives all men life gave him his death,
And too much breathing put him out of breath;
Nor were it contradiction to affirm
Too long vacation hastened on his term.

Cowper made a pun which has become quite famous. In the poem describing the ride of John Gilpin, who had to go where his horse took him and eventually arrived at the house of a friend from whom the horse had been borrowed, Gilpin says:

I came because your horse would come.
And if I well forbode,
My hat and wig will soon be here.
They are upon the road.

Tom Hood's humorous poetry is full of puns. In "The Lady's Dream" he writes:

They talked together like two egotists
In conversation all made up of eyes.

And in "The Mermaid of Margate" he says:

On Margate beach, where the sick one roams
And the sentimental reads,
Where the maiden flirts and the widow comes
Like the ocean—to cast her weeds.

But examples could be multiplied indefinitely. Hood's best known pun reads:

His death, which happened in his berth,
At forty odd befell.
They went and told the sexton, and
The sexton tolled the bell.

—Pearson's Weekly.

The Three Scutaris.

By this time we should all know enough about the near east not to confound the various Scutaris—the one in Albania, the one opposite Constantinople and the one in southern Greece. It is curious that each name comes from a different cricket form. The Greek Scutari is otherwise Scutari; the Albanian one is the Illyrian Scodra, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Uskudar. This last means a courier carrying royal orders from station to station and commemorates the fact that this place, the ancient Chrysopolis, or City of Gold, was the starting point of the Asiatic couriers.—Youth's Companion.

The Limit In Politeness.

A certain professor is unusually courteous, both in and out of the classroom. One day he made a bonfire in his back garden. The flames, creeping rapidly through the dry stubble, frightened him, and he believed his house was in imminent danger. So he ran wildly down the street, crying at the top of his voice:

"Help! Fire! Fire! Help!"

And then, as if thinking himself too abrupt and urgent, he politely added, so his neighbors say:

"That is, all those who can conveniently do so."—New York Times.

A woman from the city was spending the summer in a small town, and one day while doing her marketing she asked the butcher how he happened to choose his business.

He hesitated a moment, and then—"Well, I don't know," he answered, "but I always was fond of animals."—

MAY INTERVENE BEFORE ELECTION

Washington Admits Situation In Mexico Is Very Bad.

Washington, June 12.—Administration officials now frankly admit that the anti-American demonstrations in Northern Mexico are extremely bad. In political circles it is openly predicted that intervention before the November elections is a strong possibility.

El Paso, Tex., June 12.—Gen. Gabrial Gavira, commander of the garrison at Juarez, has been called to Mexico City by Gen. Obregon, minister of war in the de facto government. The conference is believed to relate to differences which have sprung up between Gavira and Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander of the garrison at Chihuahua City. The Juarez garrison has been increased to 1,300 men, two trainloads of troops arriving after Gavira had left for the south.

CAMP NO. 1, P. O. S. OF A., ELECT NEW OFFICERS

The following officers were elected Saturday night at the regular meeting of Camp 1, P. O. of A., held in the lodge rooms in the Babcock building: Past president, Mrs. Andrew McDowell; president, Mrs. Willard Cook; assistant president, Mrs. Peter Johnson; vice-president, Mrs. William Clawson; assistant vice-president, Mrs. Sophie Wagner; conductor, Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt; guard, Mrs. Florence Waldron; trustee for eighteen months, Mrs. Peter Johnson. The office of secretary and treasurer is held over until the next meeting. Mrs. Willard Cook was elected delegate and Mrs. Andrew McDowell, alternate, to the National Camp, which will be held in Baltimore the third Tuesday and Wednesday in October. On July 8 the newly-elected officers will be instilled by District President John S. Titus from Camp 60, P. O. of A., Elizabeth. At that time a social will be held and the committee in charge are making necessary arrangements for a pleasing reception.

Four new members were added to the roll of the camp at the meeting Saturday night.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

BENJ. HARRIS C. E. PRESIDENT

Chosen Head of Local Endeavor Union at Annual Mass Meeting Last Night.

REPORTS ARE GIVEN

Question of Dances In the Public Schools Will Be Taken Up With Board of Education By a Special Committee.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, which was held in the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church last evening, was a marked success and well attended. The enthusiasm was great, as many of the songs which were used in the Biederwolf campaign were sung under the leadership of Horace J. Martin.

Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey was in charge of the devotional exercises, and read for his Scripture lesson, 2 Tim. 2:1-26, which was particularly applicable to the subject of the address by Robert B. Butler. Rev. E. C. Brown, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, led in prayer.

The report of the treasurer, George Hoagland, was read and accepted. This was followed by the excellent report of the secretary, Miss Marie C. Hahn. The secretary's report embraced the following statement:

"In outlining the work at the beginning of the year, it will be necessary for me to go back further than that, to March 11, 1915, when at a Congress meeting of the local C. E. Union, after a motion was made (I quote from the minutes of the meeting) "that the presiding officer appoint a committee of three to do all the preparatory work for a religious revival such as the Billy Sunday campaign in Paterson, and to report progress to the Congress, and that this committee be empowered to go ahead and call other sub-committees."

This motion went through with flying colors. The committee appointed was as follows: Mr. Butler, chairman, Mr. LaRue, Mr. Fountain. Later, at a meeting of the executive committee, April 1, Mr. Butler reported that several ministers had been consulted concerning the evangelistic campaign started by the Endeavorers, and had agreed to give their support providing a suitable evangelist would be obtained. Estimates of the expenses were discussed, evangelists such as Gypsy Smith, Jr., Jack Cardiff, and George Wood Anderson had been written to, and other initiatory work done.

A special Congress session was called April 5, and a motion made "that the committee be empowered to appoint sub-committees to look after the financing of the campaign, in other words, to have full power to go ahead with all the necessary work to make the campaign a success. At a meeting of the Congress May 4, 1915, it was decided that the campaign be held in April, 1916, as George Wood Anderson could be obtained then. Eleven ministers had been consulted, some of them in conference more than once, and the subject had been broached to the representatives of the Y. M. C. A. at the time the local representatives called upon them to co-oporate with them in arranging for a special train to carry a delegation from Plainfield to hear Billy Sunday.

In May we were surprised to learn of the Y. M. C. A. also beginning such a campaign, and after talking the matter over in a meeting of the Congress, it was decided to give up our plans in their favor. Representatives were appointed, the president and vice-president, to attend a meeting of the Ministers' Association, June 4, and they were instructed to co-operate in every way and to voice sentiments that we contend for a tabernacle meeting, for a live-wire, liquor-hitting evangelist, and were heartily in favor of, and ready to support such a campaign."

Following this report which was accepted, the roll call of the societies took place, showing that Dunellen Presbyterian society had 90 per cent. of their active members present, thereby winning the attendance banner.

A resolution was read by the chairman of the Good Citizenship Committee, Clarence B. LaRue, that the proposal of Dr. Biederwolf, whether or not the public schools of Plainfield should be used for dances without the consent of the taxpayers, should be brought before the Board of Education. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

President Butler suggested that a motion be made that letters expressing the thanks of the Union be sent to the newspapers of this city for their kindness in giving so much space to the interests of Christian Endeavor, both as individual societies and as a Union. This suggestion was carried out and the Union voted unanimously on the matter.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Benjamin M. Harris; vice-president, Douglas Demler; secretary, Marie C. Hahn; treasurer, George Hoagland; lookout committee, William La Tourette; prayer-meeting, Mabel D. Cronce; social, Dollie Bolsterle; music, Horace J. Martin; publicity, Horace Bunker; missionary, May Day; good citizenship, Clarence B. LaRue; Junior C. E., Elsie Schmidt; whatsoever, Nathan Wardner. The retiring president called for the newly elected officers, except the president, to come forward, and in a few words expressed the sentiments of the Union in wel-

JOY RIDERS AROUSE SLEEPING FANWOOD

Party of Plainfielders Come to Grief and Are Taken Home In a Taxicab.

Fanwood's residents were awakened from their slumbers at 12 o'clock this morning by the shrieks of a woman that echoed through the borough, and when Marshal Logan and a number of people had traced the sounds to the corner of Martine and South avenues they found an automobile party that had had their joy ride cut short by a breakdown. Although it is known that they were all people residing in Plainfield, the party, including two men and two young women, were anxious to keep their identity concealed and secured a Fanwood taxi man to bring them to their homes after the excitement had subsided.

The party had evidently been "making a night of it" and went through Fanwood earlier in the evening singing and making a great noise. As they were making their second lap a wheel of the machine collapsed as they rounded the corner of Martine avenue and it was only a streak of luck that allowed the occupants to escape with a few bruises.

The excitement proved too much for one of the young women and she became hysterical, her screams rending the air despite the efforts of her companions to quiet her. It was necessary to call Dr. Ray Munger to attend her. During the excitement one of the men in the party had routed a resident from bed and telephoned for a taxicab.

When seen this morning Charles Sheelen said that if he had heard of the matter they would have spent the remainder of the night in the borough lockup instead of being allowed to get away unknown.

MRS. MARY E. SMITH DIES IN 88TH YEAR

Passes Away at Daughter's Home After Patient Suffering.

Mrs. Mary E. Smith, widow of Stephen H. Smith, died at one o'clock this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Van Norden, of 329 Lyman place, with whom she had resided for the past fifteen years. Death was due to the infirmities of age and came after four months of patient suffering borne with unusual Christian fortitude. She maintained all her faculties until a short time ago, while her mind continued its activites until unconsciousness came in the last hours of her life.

Mrs. Smith was born in New York, on February 29, 1828, and she was one of the "Leap Year" babies who enjoyed the novelty of having only one birthday anniversary every four years. When she celebrated her eighty-eighth year last February it was with numerous satisfied smiles that she answered all inquiries as to her age by saying she had only had "twenty-two" birthdays.

Mrs. Smith removed to Plainfield in 1856, residing here continuously since that time. She and her husband became members of Grace Episcopal church and for many years the former was an active worker in every department. Later she transferred her membership to Holy Cross church through long acquaintance with the first rector, the late Rev. Mr. Embury, the families having lived near each other on Long Island. In this parish also, Mrs. Smith was a tireless worker and she continued to interest herself in the parish life until her health failed. She was possessed of a rare memory and by studious reading of newspapers and periodicals she was enabled at all times to discuss city or national affairs with keen delight to herself and those with whom she came in contact. She had a host of friends in the city and borough, all of whom will receive news of her death with keen regret.

Mrs. Smith is survived by the following sons and daughters: Sydney F. Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Stephen H. Smith, of Tenafly; Edward A. Smith, of Plainfield; Mrs. W. E. Van Norden, and Mrs. U. B. Crane, of Plainfield, and seventeen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held at the late home Thursday afternoon, at 2:30, and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mantz, of Jackson avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dolly Mantz, to Walter Henry Gennerich, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gennerich, of New York City. Miss Mantz recently received a divorce from her former husband.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wharton, Jr., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Wharton, to Byington Ford, of San Francisco. Mr. Ford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tirey L. Ford, of that city, and is a graduate of the University of California.

OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY URGED

Boy Scouts to Aid in Seeing That "Old Glory" Is Properly Displayed Wednesday.

CAMP FUND $204.39

Scouts With Camp Fire Girls Will Attend Service at Hope Chapel Sunday, July 2—To Establish Permanent Headquarters.

It was the unanimous decision of the Boy Scout Council last night to urge all scouts on Flag Day tomorrow, to be sure not only that the flag in their homes was displayed, but to see that due regard was given to the proper respect due to the flag when floated. Upon the invitation of the Rev. D. W. Skellinger, of Hope chapel, all the scouts and members of the council will attend a special patriotic service with the Camp Fire Girl organization of this city at Hope chapel on the evening of Sunday, July 2.

It was announced that $204.39 had been collected so far toward the $700 fund being raised by members of the Council to maintain a scout camp this summer.

Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., reported that plans were on foot for a civic Fourth of July celebration here this year and the field secretary was authorized to pledge support and approval of the Scout Council to the project and to offer the services of the boy scouts in the city to assist in the plan.

Plans were discussed last night for establishing a permanent Boy Scout headquarters in a store or second story office in either of the two principle business streets at the earliest possible momen..

Fifty boy scouts will be required by Watchung Troop at its military display at the Horse Show Grounds Saturday. Scouts desiring to serve will appear in uniform and report to Scoutmaster H. Douglas Davis or to Commissioner Searing before 2 o'clock.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

Rev. C. H. Mallery Chosen President and Plans For the Year Discussed.

Officers were elected and plans discussed for the coming year at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Clericus held yesterday at Truell Inn on Park avenue. These officers were chosen for the coming year:

President, Rev. C. H. Mallery, of Plainfield; secretary-treasurer, Rev. James R. Smith, of Westfield; executive committee, Rev. W. S. Baer and Rev. L. W. Hubbard of Elizabeth, Rev. Clarence S. Wood, of Roselle.

There was an interesting discussion of the subject, "Clerical Reading and Pastoral Visits," after which luncheon was served. The next meeting of the Clericus will be held with Rev. Clarence Sylvester ,of Somerville, on Monday, October 2.

HOLY CROSS CHAPTER REPRESENTED AT GATHERING

The local chapter, Church of the Holy Cross, No. 1136, was represented by F. R. Van Norden and Guy D. Peck, Jr., at a meeting of the Keymen of chapters in the Metropolitan district of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, held at Davidson's restaurant, New York, last night.

An effort is being made to increase the membership in the Metropolitan district by at least 1,000 by the annual Washington's Birthday meeting in 1917. Of that number 388 have already been secured.

Walter Kidde, of the Newark local assembly and chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting following the dinner. Reports were received from different chapters. Mr. Edmonds, of Philadlphia, associate secretary of the National Brotherhood, was the principal speaker. After the addition of 1,000 members efforts will be made to secure one hundred new chapters in which the local chapter hopes to co-operate.

PLAINFIELDERS TO GRADUATE.

Arrangements are rapidly being completed for the annual graduation exercises of the State Normal Model Schools, which will be held next week in Trenton. The exercises will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday. Among the students who will receive diplomas are the following Plainfielders: Edith Gray, Rhoda Gray and Olive Blackwell Griggs.

The Philathea and Baraca Classes of the Temple Baptist church will hold the regular monthly business meeting tonight at the home of P. H. Moore, 302 East Third street. A social time with refreshments will be enjoyed in conclusion

DISPOSAL OF OLD HOTEL PROPERTY

Netherwood Residents' Association Again Discusses Momentous Problem.

ACTION IS DEFERRED

Only Feasible Plan Suggested By Committee Awaits Final Disposition—Other Business Matters Transacted at Quarterly Session.

Meeting in quarterly session in the Parish House of St. Stephen's church last night, the Netherwood Residents' Association again took up the subject of disposing of the Netherwood hotel property, a matter which it has had under consideration for several months and which a committee has been studiously working upon. Numerous propositions have been looked into thoroughly with the result that only one plan remains feasible, but because the full membership was not present last night and such an important transaction requires the undivided attention of the association, it was decided to postpone definite action until a later date. President Wardlaw occupied the chair and numerous other important matters were discussed. A smoker with refreshments followed the business meeting.

The idea of disposing of the Netherwood Hotel is one that has effected widespread attention. The building is one of the largest of the kind in this section, but now stands idle, practically a heavy losing proposition to the owners. In its present condition it is not conducive to the upbuilding of the beautiful Netherwood section, even standing as a menace to property interests, and for this reason the association has interested itself for the benefit of the community.

One plan considered by the committee appointed for the purpose was to purchase the property and continue it as a hotel, placing a competent man in charge. This was afterward given up and another proposition of buying the property to tear down the big structure was deemed the only solution of the problem. A Brooklyn man, who is in sympathy with the association, has been given an optional price of $40,000 on the entire property and if a corporation is formed will turn it over at that price. A wrecking company has offered to tear down the old hotel and will pay from $3,000 to $5,000 for the materials in it. Beside this, it was stated last night that Nethorwood residents had pledged between $7,000 and $10,000 to aid in the work of clearing the site and afterwards selling the ground in suitable building lots. This is the plan that will be fully determined upon at the next regular meeting of the association.

Another matter taken up last night was the subject of a new fire engine for the Netherwood house. The fire committee, of which Edwin L. Allen is chairman, reported that the Common Council is in a quandary as to what make of engine to purchase, and as the Netherwood residents are the most concerned, his committee believed in making a suggestion. The various standard makes of pumping engines were looked over carefully and it was decided that either an Aaron-Fox or Seagraves machine should be bought. A letter to this effect is to be forwarded to the Common Council, not as a demand but simply a statement to show the Netherwood residents' preference.

The association has been making a custom of holding a "Safe and Sane" Fourth of July celebration in Netherwood, but it was stated last night that no steps had been taken as yet for this year's program. The members were in doubt as to whether or not the city would have a city celebration this year, and, if so, the organization would hold none of its own. President Wardlaw will appoint a committee today to take the matter up. It is quite probable that the association will have an afternoon athletic gathering for the children on the Fourth, terminating with a baseball game between the married and single men of the association.

Reports for the past three months were presented by all committees and they showed that the members have been doing a lot of splendid work for the community. One of the best of those submitted was presented by A. L. Seidler, chairman of the mail and telephone committee, who, with his associates, have secured material improvement in the service of each. The association assembles for its next quarterly meeting in September, and it is quite probable that the hotel matter will have reached concrete form and will be one of the most important items of business taken up at the resumption of fall activity.

WILL ATTEND CONVENTION.

Mrs. M. W. Vaughan, widow of the late Rev. M. W. Thousands of People Throng Mountainside and Enjoy Spectacular Production.

MANY NEW FEATURES

Beautiful Tableau Depicting "Liberty" Staged On Highest Cliff—Indian War Dance By Boys Makes Big Hit.

Fully one thousand persons coming from miles around Watchung attended the sixth annual portrayal of the Indian Legend presented for the first time on the mountain slope opposite Wetumpka Falls last night. Every reservation was occupied and the automobile parking space was filled to its capacity with cars bearing New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania licenses. The portrayal of the Legend started promptly at 8:30 and when the mountain was lighted up with the scores of electric bulbs the audience gave vent to their appreciation of the spectacle by prolonged applause. The production opened with a tableau in which every member of the cast participated. During this scene "Deer Prong," impersonated by Thomas Featherstone, rendered the solo number in which the entire gathering joined at the chorus. The scene opened with the Whites pitching their tents on the banks of the stream which boils through the gap in the first ridge and after their supper and social hour is finished all with the exception of the watchman, lie down to their slumber.

From this point events rapidly follow one another and the interest of the spectators is kept until the final pipe of peace is smoked by "One Feather" and "Capt. Michelson" and the hands of "One Feather" and "Wetumpka" are joined in Indian wedlock.

Among the new features added to the performance this year was the closing tableau on the highest cliff, which depicted "Liberty," by E. Adele Herrmann holding out the American flag with an Indian group, consisting of Elsie Schmidt, Effie Fell and Richard Moldenke. William de L. Anderson as "One Feather," acted as if he had been an Indian chief all his life, while Miss Theresa Schmidt, as "Wetumpka," the Indian princess, played her part with true Indian craft and cunningness. "Capt. and Mrs. Michelson," taken respectively by Lewis H. Snoden and Marietta Cass, aroused much sympathy by their pathetic parts which were also well interpreted. Thomas Featherstone as "Deer Prong" proved that pantomime was no new adventure for him, and "Blue Wolf," the sub-chief, played by Clarence B. Schmidt, was much applauded as the leader of the Indian dances and sports.

The Legend will be presented again tonight and a dance will follow in the old mill. The complete cast of characters in the Legend is as follows:

Indians, "Chief One Feather," William de La R. Anderson; "Blue Wolf, Sub-Chief," Clarence B. Schmidt; "Deer Prong," Thomas Featherstone; "Lame Dog," John Mobus; braves, Messrs. T. Moldenke, McWade, Patte, R. Moldenke, Von Ohl, Neier, Underhill, Stout, Kellogg, Schmidt, Texier, Snoden, Wakefield, Eaton, Demler, Terhune, Veysey, Spier, Conover, Hartling, Fell and Wenzel; Indian boys, Masters Leurssen, W. Snoden, E. Snoden, Schmidt, Cass, Featherstone, Titus and Meyers; squaws, Mms. Patte, Schmidt, Mlls. Griffeths, Eaton, Schmidt, Titus, Mobus, Koons, Neier, Lane and Davis; Indian girls, Mlls. Kleiber, Hirsch, Fell, Bartels; settlers, "Capt. Michelson," Lewis H. Snoden; "Wetumpka," Theresa E. Schmidt; "Mrs. Michelson," Marietta A. Cass; men, Messrs. Mobus, Schmidt, Herrmann, Kingman, Hance, Bodin, Gunn, Texier, Moldenke, Featherstone, Stites, Mobus, Gavin, Most, Mogey, Bercover and Hirsch; settler women, Mms. Cleaves, Mobus, Von Ohl, Mlls. Stevens, Harris, Titus, Bartels, Kuntz, Neier and Mobus; settler girls, the Misses Luerssen, Evans, Herrmann, Titus, Bartels, Liebanan and Mobus.

COMMUTERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

The Commuters' Social Club of Plainfield and Westfield held a meeting last evening in the bowling alleys of the "Playhouse," at Westfield. One new member, George Elridge, was elected unanimously. The club has hired a bungalow at Keansburg, where the members are all welcome to spend week-ends and vacations. Saturday, June 17, is to be the opening day, and a large crowd is expected. After the meeting the members all enjoyed their last bowling match of the season.

R. W. ALDRICH SURPRISED.

R. W. Aldrich, manager for the local office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was given a surprise party at his home on Vine street, the borough, last night by fellow-members of the I. C. S. fraternity. Games and speeches were features of the evening. Mrs. Aldrich, with the assistance of Miss Goldie Aldrich and Mrs. George Lewis, served refreshments. All had a very enjoyable evening.

SCHUYLER GIVES A SEAT TO CLERK

Local Man Rewards Service With $65,000 Exchange Membership.

In recognition of nineteen years of efficient and loyal service, Sidney S. Schuyler, of Plainfield, a member of the firm of Schuyler, Chadwick & Burnham, brokers, of New York, has presented to Ross Mendelsohn, his telephone clerk, a seat on the New York exchange. The seat is valued at $65,000.

The rise of Mendelsohn is a modern fairy tale of finance. In 1898 he came to this country from England. He was sixteen years of age. Mr. Schuyler gave him a job as telephone clerk and he is still employed in that capacity, although his name has been presented to the stock exchange and he will probably be a member within a few days. Mr. Schuyler is to give Mendelsohn a membership on the exchange in recognition not only of the length but on the character of his service.

CROSSING COUNTRY IN DONKEYMOBILE

Crippled Newsboy Has Only Made 25 Miles In Two Weeks.

If you had started out to travel by dirt road from New York city to San Diego, California, and hadn't got any further than Plainfield in more than two weeks, you would be a little discouraged, wouldn't you? George I. Covert is not. He is a crippled newsboy of New York city. More than two weeks ago he started for San Diego in a donkeymobile and he got into Plainfield at noon today. The delay was caused by the rainy weather, he says, and he laid over in Elizabethport. Covert is selling postcards to pay his expenses—also to take care of two husky friends who are along with him. If they do not sell more in other towns than they did in Plainfield none of the three will ever see California. Covert is a cripple. He says he is married and has several children. He rides in a little push cart with a mule hitched on behind. The two friends walk and sell postcards.

MRS. A. R. SAMPSON DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Helen A. Sampson, wife of Albert R. Sampson ,formerly of Plainfield, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning after an illness of three weeks. Mrs. Sampson, who was born here, will be remembered as a graduate of the Plainfield High School, Class '95, and a student at Mt. Holyoke College for three years. She married Mr. Sampson, son of William H. Sampson, formerly of East Fifth street, in 1901, and removed to Jersey City and later to Metuchen. She was the daughter of Mrs. Charles P. Hazen, of Franklin Place. Mrs. Sampson was formerly a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and later united with the Presbyterian church at Metuchen.

Beside a husband, Mrs. Sampson leaves three sons, Henry, Richard and Douglass; also a mother, three sisters and a brother. Private funeral services will be held at the late home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S Zelie, assisted by Rev. James G. Mason, of the Presbyterian church, Metuchen. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MONSTER TWO-DAY SALE OF VALUABLE ARTICLES

One of the most valuable array of articles sold here at auction in a number of years will be disposed of tomorrow and Thursday at the barns of Charles J. Fisk, at 211 West Seventh street. Many of the pieces offered for sale are some of the most valuable in the city and prospective buyers are expected from all parts of the State.

Among the most prominent in the list are several horse drawn vehicles and sets of fine harness that were originally purchased at big prices by former Mayor Fisk. Household furnishings of every description, a complete list of which will be found in another column of this issue, will also be sold. George York will have the auction in charge and it will begin promptly at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature recorded at the State Trust Company today was as follows: 9 a. m., 76 degrees; 11 a. m. 77 degrees; 1 p. m., 77 degrees.

Mrs. L. C. McCandess, wife of Prof. L. C. McCandess, of University of Pittsburgh, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Coe, of Summit avenue, the borough.

AUSTRIANS LOSE ON TWO FRONTS

Hard Pressed Armies Fall Back Before Russians and Italians.

GERMAN HELP NEEDED

May Take Form of Offensive On Riga Dvinsk Line—French Lose Little In Fierce Infantry Attacks Along Meuse.

London, June 13.—Giving way before the Russian and Italian offensives, Austrian troops are facing the most critical situation of the war. They are hard pressed on every front, and the recent reinforcements of German troops have failed to stem the tide of enemy advances.

The Germans have sent troops to the aid of the Austrians, but it is believed that the chief aid Germany will give Austria will be the opening of an offensive on the northern half of the front, particularly on the Riga-Dvinsk line, signs of which are to be seen in the heavy attacks they have already begun.

The latest despatches indicate that Czernowitz is again in the hands of the Russians, it being reported that the Austrians evacuated the Bukowina capital and withdrew four miles to the west. The reported capture of Czernowitz has not been officially announced by Petrograd, but severe storms have interrupted telegraph communication between Petrograd and the army.

On the western front the Germans are employing heavy forces in another attempt to pierce the French line north of the Thiamont field work, but their successive attacks all have been repulsed with heavy loss to the Teutons. While these attacks were in progress the bombardment of the entire area west and south of Fort Vaux and against the second lines in the Souville-Tavannes sector was continued with great energy. On the west bank of the Meuse the French lines about Chattancourt were similarly bombarded.

Alfonso May Be Mediator.

Madrid, June 13.—The German Ambassador to Spain took luncheon at the Royal Palace. This gives rise to rumors of a request that King Alfonso make peace overtures.

Greek Army to Disband.

Athens, June 13.—King Constantine decided today to order the complete demobilization of the Greek army.

Close the Bulgar Frontier.

London, June 13.—The Bulgarian Legation at Bucharest has received information that the Bulgar-Rumanian frontier will be temporarily closed against passengers and merchandise. It is believed that Bulgaria has taken this step to mask important troop movements.

MORE TROOPS SENT TO MEXICAN BORDER

Believed That Note to Carranza Will Precipitate General Fighting.

Washington, June 13.—Anti-American uprisings in Northern Mexico, coupled with the report that Villa bandits are joining with Carranza soldiers, has caused Secretary Baker to send 1,600 more U. S. troops to Gen. Funston. The troops ordered into service are parts of the Engineering Corps and the Coast Artillery. A band of raiders invaded American territory near New Hatchet, New Mexico, Saturday night and fired on U. S. troops. One soldier was wounded. Outbreaks are feared hourly at many places along the border.

President Wilson is drawing an answer to the recent Carranza note in which he will refuse to order the removal of troops from Mexico until the [illegible] which is to get Villa, has been fulfilled, and it is believed that this note will precipitate general fighting. The note will possibly accuse the head of the de facto government of acting with bad faith toward the United States. Diplomats point out that such a clause will mean the end of even a pretense of friendly relations.

BACHEMEYER TO LEAVE HOSPITAL ON WEDNESDAY

Henry Bachmeyer, the popular tenor with the Biederwolf Evangelistic party, who was operated on in a Philadelphia hospital last month, has improved wonderfully and will be dismissed from the hospital to-morrow. Paul R. Roberts, bass in the National Male Quartette, has been with Mr. Bachmeyer since the operation.

SANG A SOLO.

Miss Emeline T. Manning, of this city, sang the solo, "With Verdure Clad," from "The Creation," by Haydn, last Sunday morning at the Baptist church of Somerville.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

TWENTY-THREE GRADUATES WILL BE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

The graduation exercises in the Dunellen Schools will be held Tuesday, June 20, at 8 p. m., in the First Presbyterian church. There will be twenty-three graduates. Their names follow: Marion Bloomfield, Lillian Johnson, Elizabeth Kellogg, Kathryn Maier, Edith Mundy, Ernestine Pernell, Mary Pfister, Elmira Ratti, Jessie Sutphen, Bernice Smith, Natalie Terry, Eunice Waller, Eloys Vance, John Doyle, James Greenhalgh, Archibald Munn, Edward Murphy, Paul Nelson, Theodore Oakley, Kenter Post, Arthur Shaw, Elma Swackhamer, Alfred Spurdle. The first honor pupil this year is Elmer Swackhamer, and the second, Edward Murphy.

Closing exercises for the Lincoln School children will be held in the Lincoln School, Thursday morning, June 22, at 10 o'clock. The Whittier School will have closing exercises in that school on Thursday, June 22, at 2 p. m.

On Friday evening, June 23, a reception to the eighth grade graduates will be held in the Whittier School at 8 o'clock. The Parent-Teacher Association has this matter in charge and admission will be by ticket only.

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVED AT METHODIST CHURCH

A delightful program was presented in the Methodist church, Sunday morning, when Children's Day was observed by the Sunday-school. The church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers for the occasion.

The program follows:

Recitations: "Children's Day Welcome," Alvin Shively; "Welcome"; "The Little Bird's Song," Frances Heilich; baptism of children; recitation, "Some Dont's," Elizabeth Seal; drill, four boys; recitation, "The Pansy Bed," Doris Deering; recitation, "Children's Day," Helen Daniels; "A Day in June," four girls; recitation, "The Shell's Whisper," Evelyn Apgar; "What We Must Do," three girls; address by the pastor.

The Presbyterian Sunday-school will observe Children's Day this coming Sunday.

INCREASES WAGES.

In order to hold his men, about fifty in number, H. K. Corbin, the local sewer contractor, has been obliged to raise their daily wage from $2.25 to $2.50. This compares with a wage of a $1.65 when the work started before the war.

LeRoy Smith and George McHugh enjoyed a sail up the Hudson as far as Newburgh, Sunday.

RETURNS TO HOSPITAL.

Charles Dodwell, who was seriously injured about six months ago while serving as sewer inspector, has been obliged to return to the Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mrs. Robert F. Bogardus is spending several days in New York City visiting Mrs. A. S. Hawley.

VISITING IN VERMONT.

Mrs. George Vanderveer, who spent several weeks in visiting her son Karl, at Syracuse, and went from there to Alfred, N. Y., to see her daughter graduate, is at present visiting her other son, Schuyler, who went to Vermont for his health the first of the year.

C. L. Wahl, Jr., is planning a visit to the Pacific Coast.

Samuel Van Arsdale, who has been suffering from rheumatism, is better.

Mayor E. B. Latham has returned from a sojourn in Virginia.

Herman Beiler has left the employ of his brother Karl. He expects to take a position in a place near Jersey City shortly.

William Carroll has taken a job in the chemical factory in South Bound Brook.

Willard Tomlinson has discontinued his services with the Union Pacific Tea Company.

Magnon Johnson entertained friends from Brooklyn, Sunday.

William and Philip Thompson, students at the University of Pennsylvania, spent the week-end at their home on Prospect avenue.

John Moxencik has taken a job in the Bound Brook chemical factory.

TEAM TO MEET FARMERS.

The local team plays the Farmer A. C. in the race for the City League flag on Maurer Oval at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

AUTO CAUSES ACCIDENT.

A peculiar accident happened at 7:30 o'clock last evening, when a passing automobile struck a small stone in such a manner as to send it flying through one of the windows of a local store. A bullet could hardly have cut the hole, which is about the size of a walnut, any cleaner.

ITALIAN ARRESTED AFTER ALL-DAY HUNT

John Nunziatine Charged With Assault On Michael Omalio, To Be Given Hearing.

John Nunziatine, an Italian living in the colony on Terril road, will be arraigned before Borough Recorder Charles Sheelen tonight at 7 o'clock to answer to the charge of committing an assault on Michael Omalio, of LaGrande avenue, on Sunday night. Nunziatine, it is alleged, stabbed his countryman in the back, following an argument. After an all-day hunt, Marshal Logan found the man, and at a preliminary hearing last night the Italian was released on a $100 cash bail.

Immediately following the stabbing the Italian disappeared, and Marshal Logan got but a meagre description, because all of the Italians professed to know nothing of him. It was not until he had worked on the case all day that Logan caught him in the cellar of a countryman's house on Terril road. The man was making plans for leaving this section with several companions when the marshal broke in on them. They made no show of fight. Omalio will recover from his wounds, it is said.

PREPARING FOR SECOND ANNUAL 'COMMUNITY PICNIC'

The first meeting preparatory to the second annual "Community Picnic" of Fanwood and Scotch Plains was held in the Memorial Parish House last night and was attended by over fifty people from both places. An interesting discussion of the features of the coming picnic were discussed at length an from all indications the affair will be far more of a success than the first one. A general supervisory committee was selected with the Rev. J. Madison Hare as chairman, and John Z. Hatfield, Ira G. Walker and Burton B. Hall as the other members. The various committees on program, sports and other features of the day will remain the same as last year, and from now on the meetings will be held at regular intervals.

The weekly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Riblet, of Russell road, tomorrow afternoon.

South Plainfield.

The citizens of South Plainfield will call a mass meeting some time this week to protest to the Board of Freeholders on the condition of Plainfield avenue, the main highway to Plainfield. This avenue has been in such a bad state for the past year that most of the traffic has been diverted to Maple avenue, which leads to Park avenue. Last week the Suburban Company and the Spicer Company, which operates six busses over this route, had to discontinue trips on Plainfield avenue, and are now going by way of Maple avenue. With both streets, which are county roads, in such a condition, it will be almost impossible for the people of this town to get to Plainfield unless they walk. The Freeholders have promised to put both of these roads up in good shape, but as yet nothing has been done.

Miss Nora McDonough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McDonough, formerly of this place, but now of Plainfield, will receive her degree as Bachelor of Arts, at Smith College, Tuesday evening, June 20. Miss McDonough will continue her studies leading to a master's degree in Columbia University in New York.

The congregation of Marchonier chapel will hold its annual strawberry and ice cream festival on the church grounds tomorrow evening.

William Messenger has returned, after spending a few days with his family in Tamaqua, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Randolph have been entertaining Mrs. Randolph's sister, Miss May Bohl, and friend, Mrs. William Dwyer, of Newark, for several days.

Mrs. William Smith, of Stanton, has gone to her home after a few days' visit with her son, Raymond Smith, of Front street.

Mrs. Mary Smith, of Princeton, left for her home yesterday, after being the guest of her sister, Mrs Melvin Teeple, for a week.

Mrs. Thomas Saverd is quite ill at her home with an attack of tonsilitis.

Brockholst Miller, of Watchung avenue, who has been confined to his home for the past eighteen weeks, was able to sit on the porch yesterday for a short time.

CZERNOWITZ ON VERGE OF FALLING

Russians Continue Fierce Drive Against Teutons.

HALTED IN SEVERAL PLACES

Germans Take Offensive on the North in Endeavor to Relieve Pressure on Their Ally—Twenty Thousand Additional Prisoners Are Captured by the Czar's Forces.

Petrograd, June 13.—The Russian armies are hammering at the gates of Czernowitz, the fortress capital of Bukowina, and continuing the sweep forward in Galicia and Volhynia toward Lemberg and Kovel. The Germans have taken the offensive at several points along the northern front to relieve the pressure on their ally's line from the Pripet marshes to Roumania. German troops, in numbers not sufficient to weaken the kaiser's own lines, have been rushed to the weakest places in the battered 300 mile front, and trainloads of Austrians have been taken from the Italian front to bolster up the crumpling columns to the north.

So far the diversions have had no effect on the Russian offensive movement, except to slow up the advance of General Brussiloff's troops north of Tarnopol and Buczacz and near Kolki, north of Lutsk. The fury of the Austro-German attacks in these regions have forced the Russians to give way a little, but they are fighting to regain the lost ground with the desperation that has characterized all their assaults in the eight days' offensive.

The deadly fire of the Russians in the north, where, as along the southern front, they appear to have on hand unlimited supplies of ammunition, has checked all German attempts to smash through the opposing lines. At Jacobstadt, at Drisviaty, at Krevo and Kotchany, and along the bank of the Jasiolda river, violent attempts to take the offensive broke down with terrific losses to the attacking armies.

The greatest Russian successes yesterday took place in the region south of the Dniester. General Lechitzky's troops, flushed with the great victory of the day before, which brought them 20,000 Hungarian prisoners and sent the enemy fleeing in disorder, swept forward to the Zaleszczyky bridgehead, thirty miles northeast of Czernowitz, and after overcoming sharp resistance from the enemy forces pushed on toward the Bukowina capital.

The Austrians swiftly retreated to the fortress which twice before sheltered the Russians earlier in the war, blowing up bridges as they fled. Dobronovize, a commanding point ten miles northeast of the fortress, fell before the onrush, and the czar's hosts then pushed forward to the suburbs of Czernowitz. The capture of the stronghold is only a matter of hours, if it has not already been accomplished.

The total number of prisoners taken by the Russians was increased to more than 114,000 during the day's fighting. Conservative estimates place the total losses of the Austrians in the nine day offensive at from 250,000 to 300,000.

WHO WILL SUCCEED HUGHES ON BENCH?

Lane, Gregory and Davis Are Oftenest Mentioned.

Washington, June 13.—Already speculation is rife as to whom President Wilson will appoint to succeed Associate Justice Hughes of the supreme court of the United States. The political complexion of the court is now Republican, of which party there are five members, Associate Justices McKenna, Holmes, Day, Pitney and Van Deventer. The three Democrats are Chief Justice White and Associate Justices McReynolds and Brandeis.

The men mentioned oftenest just now as likely to get the place made vacant by Mr. Hughes are:

Franklin K. Lane of California, secretary of the interior, an eminent lawyer, who was seriously considered by President Wilson as the occupant of Associate Justice Lamar's seat, which Justice Brandeis fills.

Attorney General Gregory, able and supported by distinguished jurists.

Solicitor General Davis, whose learning has impressed the members of the supreme court.

Samuel Untermyer of New York, who, the opinion is, can scarcely hope for a seat on the same bench with Justice Brandeis.

Senator O'Gorman of New York and former Secretary of War Garrison are also mentioned, but to neither is President Wilson extremely friendly.

Rearrangement of seats was the only evidence of the resignation of Justice Hughes shown in the supreme court.

Judge Carmichael, New Jersey, Dead.

Toms River, June 13.—Judge I. W. Carmichael is dead at his home. He was appointed nearly five years ago by President Wilson, then governor of New Jersey. He is survived by one daughter.

Opened the King's Eyes.

When Fenelon was almoner to Louis XIV. his majesty was astonished to find one Sunday, instead of the usual crowded congregation, only himself and the priest. "What is the meaning of this?" said the king. "I caused it to be given out," replied the prelate, "that your majesty did not attend chapel today, that you might see who it was that came here to worship God and who to flatter the king."

Temperance

NEWS AND VIEWS Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Trinidad, Colorado, which faced the prospect of thirty-eight vacant buildings when the saloons and liquor establishments of the city were closed January 1, is finding that many new industries are moving in, and that former saloon sites are being remodeled for other purposes. The Trinidad News says: "Fully a score of new business establishments have started up in Trinidad since last January, and more are coming in. Walking on Commercial street and Main street, the main thoroughfares of the city one observes any number of new fronts glistening with new paint. One sees old structures that have not been touched by the hand of improvements for years, remodeled to invite tenants. The commercial appearance of the city has been greatly enhanced.

"Since the first of the year also, a successful campaign has been conducted to establish a recreation and community center and the 'Triple A' has specious quarters in Castle hall with fully equipped gymnasium, shower baths, reading room, etc. A number of new residences have been completed and work started on others, and the business aspect and prospect is most encouraging."

The liquor interests have all along conceded that they must expect opposition from the Protestant churches of this country, but have ranked the Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches as opposed to prohibition. It was inevitable that very soon the leaders of these great churches should see the light, and this is precisely the case at the present time.

It is said that for the first time in the history of the Protestant Episcopal church, a diocese placed itself on record for straight prohibition when the Michigan diocese in session recently at Port Huron adopted sweeping resolutions, without a dissenting voice, pledging the support of any legitimate methods which will combat the sale and manufacture of malt or spirituous liquors, and opposition to the saloon and the liquor business in all its forms. In its state-wide fight Michigan is also to have the support of Bishop Charles D. Williams, Episcopal bishop of the state, who said recently at a meeting of Detroit clergymen, "I personally shall vote for prohibition, though I have always believed in personal liberty rather than in sobriety compulsion, for public opinion everywhere is coming to view the saloon as so dangerous that people must prohibit it. My reason for this stand is that in every community there are a vast number of weak men, victims of the habit, who cannot resist the temptation of the saloon and who are eager to close the saloons for self-protection."

During the past month the Episcopalians of the Los Angeles diocese, in session in that city, adopted a resolution unequivocally and emphatically endorsing the efforts which are being made for the suppression of the liquor traffic and the abatement of the evils of intemperance.

Word comes from Omaha that a movement has been started within the Episcopalian church of Nebraska which discloses that that powerful ecclesiastical body is in step with other churches of the state which believe the saloon is indefensible and wrong.

The day is long past when the liquorites can claim that the Catholics are with them. Many prominent leaders in the Roman Catholic church are outspoken opponents of the trade, and every day one hears of new converts to our cause. The Butte, Montana, Daily Post of recent date contains a statement over the name of Right Reverend John P. Carroll, bishop of Helena, announcing his belief that "prohibition is justifiable theoretically and practically; that the state has a right to suppress the liquor business if it sees fit in the interests of the community to do so; and that the loss of public revenue will be more than compensated by the saving of money formerly spent on liquor." A few weeks ago Bishop Lannahan of the diocese of Great Falls took a similar stand.

The mighty army of the Church of God of every name and faith is mobilizing for the last great and triumphant encounter with the age-long enemy. Who doubts for a moment that the result will be a victory for righteousness?

"With personal assumption of all personal liabilities arising from the seizure and destruction of intoxicating liquor, the support of the city law department, the solid backing of the city council and the endorsement of the Seattle Ministers' Federation, Mayor Gill and Chief of Police Beckingham have a free hand to 'go the limit' in enforcing the anti-saloon law."

Thus speaks the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, and adds further that there is a disposition on the part of the courts "to see that persistent violators receive jail sentences as well as pay fines, and from every angle the conditions seem favorable for the enforcement of the liquor law to the fullest extent." The editorial above quoted closes with the following paragraph:

"Seattle is much in the limelight of the state press on account of its energetic campaign for enforcement. A very great majority of the state papers commend the mayor and chief of police for their zeal. Some of the editors take exceptions to the destruction of liquor and of drug store furniture before the courts have passed judgment and one or two are disposed to call it brigandage. But on the whole Seattle's course is commended."

The following from the Spokane Spokesman Review is typical of the spirit of the leading journals of the state:

"The Seattle authorities deserve the highest commendation for their drastic dealing with alleged violators of the law. It should be enforced closely in order that prohibition may be fairly tested and the public interests conserved. The example set by Seattle, where the difficulties are greater than elsewhere, should b emulated in all cities of the state."

SPIDERS AS FACTORY HANDS.

Spinning the Delicate Threads For Use in Telescopes.

Spiders are probably the most indispensable workmen in one of the largest English surveying instrument factories. It is their duty to spin the delicate thread which is used for the cross hairs to mark the exact center of the object lens in the surveyor's telescope.

Spider web is the only suitable material yet discovered for the cross hairs of surveying instruments. Almost invisible as this fiber is to the naked eye, it is brought up in the powerful lenses of the telescope to the size of a man's thumb, so that all defects, if there happened to be any, would be magnified to such a degree that the web would be useless.

Human hair has been tried, but when magnified it has the apparent dimensions of a rough hewn lamp post. Moreover, human hair is transparent, and cross hairs must be opaque.

The spiders produce during a two months' spinning season thousands of yards of web, which is wound upon metal frames and stored away until needed.

A spider "at work" dangles in the air by its invisible thread, the upper end being attached to a metal wire frame whirled in the hands of a girl. The girl first places the spider on her hand until the protruding end of the thread has become attached. When the spider attempts to leap to the ground this end is quickly attached to the center of the whirling frame, and as the spider pays out thread this line is wrapped around the frame. Several hundred feet of thread can be removed from a spider at one time.

The spiders are kept in a large room under the supervision of three girls and a forewoman. When not spinning the little workmen are placed in a large wooden cage. Flies are the chief article of diet.

During the winter months the spider colony usually dies, so that an entirely new corps of workmen must be recruited. Not every spider will do—only large, fat fellows that spin a tough round thread are suitable.

Singularly enough, the girls who have charge of the spiders in this English factory are not in the least afraid of them or their bites. On the contrary, they regard them as pets, are able to tell them apart and to call them by nicknames which humorously describe their appearance or their peculiar habits of work.—New York American.

Former Peace and War Cycles.

Isaiah had an inspired vision of a time when swords should be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks. By the Amphictyonic council the Greeks sought to mitigate wars between the Greek states, though their efforts did not reach as far as the barbarians, as they called the rest of the world. In the eleventh century A. D. a peace movement called the truce of God spread over western Europe. A peace palace was erected and conferences were held at Liege, and Christendom dreamed the same dream of peace that it afterward dreamed in the first decade of the twentieth century—a dream from which it was rudely awakened by the Crusades.—Christian Herald.

Dikes and Ditches.

The word "dike" used in connection with flood damage along the Zuyder Zee is etymologically akin to "ditch," the meaning of which is familiar, and for which it is commonly an interchangeable term. But in the sense now employed it of course means an embankment. Holland is the classic land of such dikes, which date from Roman occupation before the Christian era. In the fen neighborhood both ditches and embankments are found. Miles of the latter near the outlet of the Cambridgeshire Ouse protect many acres of land reclaimed from the sea.—London Mail.

Ireland's Golden Age.

There need be no "theory" as to the early culture of Ireland. It is a fact, for example, that the Abbey of Clonmacnoise, near Athlone, was once a center of learning so renowned that scholars repaired thither from the ends of Europe, and the great Charlemagne sent it presents. And in the realms of art "The Book of Kells," a Latin copy of the Gospels, executed at that time, had no rival for delicacy of illumination.—London Standard.

Worse Yet.

"My daughter is taking singing lessons, and she keeps up such a terrific yowling that I never go home except to eat and sleep."

"You're in luck. My daughter is taking cooking lessons, and I don't even dare to eat at home."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Explained.

"Look here, you promised to have my suit ready two days ago, and it isn't finished yet?'

"Yes, I know; but, you see, you promised to pay for it as soon as it was done, and I thought I'd give you a little more time."—Exchange.

Wanted It in the Bond.

Auto Agent—Of course you understand that if you fail to meet the first note we will take the car away from you! Jones—But you cusses will promise anything! Just put that in writing!—Puck.

An Eventful Sale of Muslin Underwear

BEGINS TOMORROW, WEDNESDAY, AT TEPPER'S

In the face of present conditions it is not fanciful to call this an extraodinary sale. Cotton today costs much, much more than it has in recent years, so naturally enough it is not an easy matter to assemble assortments of GOOD QUALITY at MODERATE PRICES

But we began early, hunting up the best, with a keen eye on quality, and price, and have been fortunate enough to secure a collection such as is not to be had one in a hundred today.

It contains everything in muslin wear for women and children. The variety is as large as ever, and the prices are worthy of your note.

MANY A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY IS OFFERED IN THIS SALE. 'TWILL BE AN UNWISE WOMAN WHO NEGLECTS IT.

CLASS SETS A RECORD

One Girl Will Persue Journalistic Course at Columbia—Complete List of Prospective Graduates Who Will Receive Diplomas.

Preparations are being made to graduate the largest class that has ever received diplomas in North Plainfield High School. With their high school days nearly completed, the prospective graduates are turning their eyes to the future. Nineteen of the forty-one pupils are determined to better their present education by attending higher institutions of learning, which is practically fifty per cent. of the entire class—an admirable record equal to that established by the preceding class, which had sixteen out of the thirty-four.

Principal Earley has been notified by college authorities that entrance examinations would be unnecessary, due to the general reputation of the school. The latest college to adopt this policy was Worcester Polytechnic Institute, which only allows eighteen schools in New Jersey to send pupils to that institution by that method, eight of the number being preparatory schools.

The course in music at Syracuse University apparently has an attraction, because Marion Avery and Laura Smith expect to take up their work there. The colleges in the New England States have a decided monopoly, eight of the graduates going in that direction. Marjorie Burtis will enter Wellesley College. Miss Burtis has been one of the best feminine athletes that has ever been turned out of the school, being a member of the girls' basketball team for four years. Not far from Wellesley, Mt. Holyoke is situated, where the Hughes twins, Lucy and Carol, will be enrolled. Both are excellent students, the latter being salutatorian, while her sister was a close third.

Colleges in New York will deprive Plainfield of four young ladies, namely: Emily Pleydell, Grace Townley, Naomi Wisch and Bertha Keller. Miss Pleydell will commence an elementary course in journalism at Columbia University, she having an aptitude in that direction. Gladys Sullivan and Grace Townley will enter Hahneman Hospital for a three years' training course, after which they will proceed to Johns Hopkins to study medicine. Bertha Keller completes the musical students. She will take a course in this subject at New York Conservatory of Music. Naomi Wisch will take a two-year course at Pratt Institute to become a domestic science teacher. Margaret Ewart and Marielle Dunham complete the list of girls, the former will take a course in gymnasium training at New Haven Gym. School, while the latter will go to Newark Normal.

There are only twelve male members in the present class and seven of these have elected further studying. LeRoy Adams will enter Rutgers College, taking up agriculture; Lawrence Robinson will study for a Bachelor of Arts degree at Williams College; Clarence Roddy will enter Colgate University to prepare himself for the ministry. The members of the class will have only one lawyer to defend any lawsuits which might be brought against them, that one being Martin McDonough, who will enter the law school of Catholic University at Washington. The three remaining pupils will pursue technical courses, each in a different engineering branch. Charles Roll will either go to Lehigh University or Worcester Tech. to prepare himself as a chemist, Sherman Chandler and Warren Townley will be classmates at Carnegie Institute of Technology, where the latter will study the practicabilities of mining engineering, while the latter has decided upon a course in metallurgical engineering. The remainder of the class will enter the commercial world.

The list of graduates, which is subject to changes, follows: Marion Avery, Marion Bartels, Bertha Boylan, Marjorie Burtis, Marielle Dunham, Margaret Ewart, Ethel Hall, Letha Hoagland, Carol Hughes, Lucy Hughes, Bertha Keller, Magdalene Layton, Dorothy Martin, Mary O'Connor, Emily Pleydell, Daisy Schmidt, Elizabeth Schroeder, Louise Seader, Katharine Sill, Laura Smith, Edna Stewart, Gladys Sullivan, Grace Townley, Naomi Wisch, Marion Wootey, Helen Yates, Amelia Bruzzie, Leroy Adams, Sherman Chandler, John Dawe, Harry Kirch, Oscar Dilts, Martin McDonough, Earnest Pruden, Lawrence Robinson, Clarence Roddy, Charles Roll, Alfred Seidel and Warren Townley.

COLONEL HOLDS OFF HIS DECISION

May Delay Answer to G. O. P. Until June 25.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 13.—Indications are that Colonel Roosevelt is going to take his time in making any definite answer as to whether or not he will support Justice Hughes, or as to the extent of such support. Perhaps not until June 25, the date set for the meeting of the Progressive national committee, will the colonel's final intentions be made known.

Many visitors have gone to Sagamore Hill, chiefly Progressives who desired to confer about Colonel Roosevelt's conditional refusal of the Progressive nomination.

"Colonel Roosevelt saw James R. Garfield and William Draper Lewis, who represented a number of members of the Progressive national committee. He had a full and frank discussion with them as to what he intends to say and the time when he shall say it."

That was all Secretary McGrath would announce.

Colonel Roosevelt himself had nothing to say, but his secretary's statement is taken to mean that there will be further conferences before the colonel reveals the exact stand he will take toward Justice Hughes.

It is not unlikely that Colonel Roosevelt might even go so far in his support of the Republican nominee as to make a few speeches. His feeling is that he would not go speechmaking and that he meant his declaration that he was out of politics to be a comprehensive one. It is now believed that the colonel is revolving this question in his mind.

No overtures from the G. O. P. or Justice Hughes have been made to Colonel Roosevelt thus far, despite the many reports set in motion by Justice Hughes' trip to New York city. No meeting between Hughes and Roosevelt has been arranged.

It would not be difficult for such a meeting to be engineered at once, however, for Colnel Roosevelt planned to motor into New York in the morning to stay until Wednesday afternoon. He and Mrs. Roosevelt will meet Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, who expect to arrive in New York from Panama this evening and will pass the night in the city.

LENORA SPARKES A BASEBALL FAN

Says She Takes to the Sport "Like a Duck to Water."

SINGS AT CHAUTAUQUA

To Appear in Recital With Marguerite de Forrest Anderson, Flautiste and Barrington Branch, Pianist.

Like her Metropolitan confrere, Geraldine Farrar, Lenora Sparkes, prima donna soprano, who is to appear here in recital at the Community Chautauqua, is an ardent follower of baseball, but her absorption in the game is more remarkable than that of the former, for while Miss Farrar can point to heredity as an explanation of her diamond interest, Mme. Sparkes is English and knew cricket long before she ever heard of Christy Mathewson or Tris Speaker. Nevertheless, since coming to this country, the famous soprano has thoroughly mastered the American sport and is a familiar figure in her box at the Polo grounds.

"Sometimes I read in the sporting pages of the daily papers an amusing account of a baseball game from a cricketer's viewpoint," says Mme. Sparkes. "The editor, you know, sends some Englishman out to—how do you say?—'to cover' the game, and his interpretation of the plays and their values are most diverting. But it seems to me rather artificial.

"As for me, I took to baseball like a duck to water. Thank heavens, I never had to have some poor chap 'explain' the game after the first time. I bought a rule book and found that my previous knowledge of cricket rather aided than hampered me in becoming acquainted with its technique. I should just like to see any native American girl who loves baseball more than I do. If ever they offer a prize for the champion lady baseball fan, rest assured, I shall compete for it!"

Mme. Sparkes is also very fond of yachting. At a recent visit to the home of Sir John Harcourt, governor of British Honduras, and Lady Harcourt, at Belize, Mme. Sparkes found unlimited opportunity for yachting in the tropical waters of the Caribbean. "How little I realized," relates Mme. Sparkes, "when I was a little girl sailing a catboat in the juvenile races at Cowes that some day I would navigate a swift yacht on the Spanish Main! Such fun as we had at Belize! All the pirate stories I had ever read I lived over again during those enchanted days. The big, fresh ocean breezes, the ardent southern sun and the inspiration of the wonderful surroundings could not but benefit a singer, mentally and spiritually as well as physically. It was a visit never to be forgotten!"

Mme. Sparkes will be assisted in her recital here by Marguerite de Forrest Anderson, flautiste, and Barrington Branch, pianist. Miss Anderson is described by the musical critic of the London Times as the "greatest flautiste in the history of music." She made her debut in London at Queen's Hall and has appeared on the programs of many of the world's greatest artists. She has played at Windsor Castle before the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra. Her flute recitals in London were given under the patronage of royalty and members of all of the great families of the nobility.

Mr. Branch distinguished himself as soloist with the Damrosch Orchestra and the Russian Symphony Orchestra. He has appeared in both European and American music centers with great success.

These will be the closing musical features of the five-day Chautauqua program. Others that precede are the American Quartet, O'Hara and Wetmore, Ole Theobaldi, the Dunbar Southern Singers and Victor's Florentine Band and Neapolitan Troubadours.

Among the lecture numbers will be Lee Francis Lybarger of the Philadelphia bar, who will make the keynote address on the subject, "The Community Conscience"; Arthur Delroy of the New York Psychic club in a "Psychic Melange"; Frederick Warde, distinguished Shakespearean actor, in a lecture-recital on "Shakespeare and His Plays"; Dr. Euclid B. Rogers in a popular lecture, "A Living or a Life," and Andre Tridon, Mexican war correspondent, on "An Inside View of Mexico."

The sale of the season tickets that make the Chautauqua so low in price is in the hands of a local committee. Get in touch with some of these today and plan to attend the Chautauqua on the season ticket plan. You'll not want to miss a number.

Arrested in Montreal as Fugitive.

Montreal, June 13.—James F. McDonald, alias James Dillon, alleged to be James F. Dinwoodie, wanted on the charge of robbing a bank messenger of $16,000 in Houston, Pa., on April 7 last, has been arrested here. He had been trailed through Canada by private detectives and was taken as he got off a train. McDonald will be held here until Houston police arrive to try to identify him as Dinwoodie.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

JERSEYITES ARE READY FOR FRAY

Democratic Party Arrives at the Convention City.

FIELDER VERY CONFIDENT

Governor Asserts That It Will Be Impossible For the Republicans to Defeat President Wilson in the Fall—Old Enemies United In Common Cause.

Newark, June 13.—Having reached St. Louis the New Jersey delegates to the national Democratic convention and other members of the party from the state are happy. The convention is to open Wednesday, so the local people will have an opportunity to do a little preliminary seeing, hearing and doing. National Committeeman Robert S. Hudspeth left Saturday evening on the New York Central and arrived in St. Louis Sunday.

Representative James A. Hamill, who is a delegate from the Twelfth district, left Jersey City accompanied by Carl Schumann. He takes with him a proposed plank, which he desires to have inserted in the national platform. This is a declaration in favor of the retirement upon pension of all civil service employees of the federal government. It will be in line with the bill he has introduced in congress on the subject.

H. Otto Wittpenn did not go on the special train, but left later accompanied by John H. Morris and Deputy United States Marshal John Prout. Prior to his departure Mr. Wittpenn gave out a statement in which he predicted the re-election of President Wilson and the success of the party candidates in the state next fall. Similar statements were issued by Governor Fielder and James R. Nugent.

During the absence of the governor Senator George W. F. Gaunt, as president of the senate, will be acting executive. Although the two men are bitter political opponents, they made arrangements several weeks ago regarding the conduct of state affairs during the absence of the governor. Senator Gaunt was at the Chicago convention, but returned. The governor plans to be back next Sunday night, as the St. Louis delegates expect to leave the convention city at 12:15 next Saturday.

Governor Fielder and Mr. Nugent both went on the special, as did State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup. Reservations were made for fifty-eight persons on the train.

The composition of the party that boarded the train here gave evidence of the process of reunion which has been effected in the party locally. Included in it, besides Mr. Nugent, were former Assemblyman John A. Matthews and Judge James P. Mylod, as sightseers. With both of them Mr. Nugent has been at odds for years. Others among the local contingent were Harry F. Backus, Charles F. Herr, John P. Monahan, Dallas Flannagan, Charles M. Myers, Valentine Braun, Richard J. Franz, Thomas F. Preston, James E. Connorton, Michael J. Quigley, James Purcell, James McCann and William J. McTague.

In a statement Governor Fielder said: "President Wilson is positively unbeatable. He will be re-elected to the presidency by a tremendous majority. The question as to whether there is to be a Progressive candidate in the field or not cannot affect the outcome of the election. New Jersey will give Wilson a big majority, and the entire Democratic state ticket will be elected with him.

"A reunion of the Progressives and Republicans would be a union only on the face of affairs. The real Progressives will not support Hughes. There will be countless numbers of Progressives—and Republicans, too, for that matter—who will support the president.

"There is nothing whatever to support Justice Hughes' allegations of un-Americanism on the part of Wilson. There is nothing at all in any speech or act of the president that could possibly be taken as a basis for such a charge."

PRINCETON COMMENCEMENT.

Seniors Awarded Their Degrees at This Morning's Exercises.

Princeton, June 13.—"Class day" took its place in the proceedings of Princeton university's one hundred and sixty-ninth annual commencement yesterday, and the graduating class took over complete possession of the campus for their final fling as Princeton undergraduates. The "reunion" grads, with their garish uniforms and their blatant bands, still played a part in the festivities of the occasion, but it was distinctly a senior day. This morning the seniors received their degrees.

The class poem, by Edmund Wilson of New York; the class history, by James Roosevelt Stockton of Jacksonville, Fla.; the presentation speech, by Neville Miller of Louisville, Ky.; the class prophecy, by Hamilton Fish Armstrong of New York city; the calling of the class roll, by Laurence G. Payson of Englewood, N. J.; the parting address of the class president, Edward Lane Shea of Nashua, N. H.—these were the events on the afternoon's program.

Last night the seniors gathered on the steps of Old North for their usual senior singing.

WILSON WRITES PARTY'S PLATFORM

More Drastic Policy Toward Mexico Is Promised.

LAUDS EUROPEAN COURSE

Democrats, Who Open Their Convention at St. Louis Tomorrow, Have Agreed on Draft—Harmony Reigns When a Scrap Is Sought For the Best Interests of All.

St. Louis, June 13.—President Wilson's platform is coming here from Washington piecemeal. That part of it which deals with Mexican and European relations has been known, subject to such slight changes as the president may make, for he kept a copy for possible revision. This part of the platform, as it now stands, admits that mistakes may have been made in the administration's handling of the American position with regard to the European war, but submits that the president "has steered our ship of state through troubled waters with a remarkable clearness of vision and steadiness of mind."

It is the Mexican plank which arouses most interest, for it answers the Chicago platform by taking a step forward in our relations with Mexico. The use of the American army in Mexico, originally purely punitive in purpose, is now extended to the protection of "American citizens against lawless aggression." Another change of policy is indicated in the declaration that the complaints of Catholics and American property owners in Mexico are "just and well founded complaints of grievous wrongs." In short, this plank foreshadows a much stronger Mexican policy than the administration has heretofore favored and is regarded here as a smart counterstroke to the Republican platform and to Justice Hughes' attack on the administration's Mexican attitude as weak.

The thing most urgently desired at Chicago was harmony; the thing most urgently desired at St. Louis is a fight. The Democratic national convention, which is to begin on Wednesday, could finish its business and adjourn on Wednesday. Its candidates are selected and its platform has been picked out by its candidate for the presidency.

European War Planks.

Following is the text of the planks of the Democratic platform concerning foreign relations of the United States as tentatively drafted with the approval of President Wilson:

As a result of this world disaster it can be truthfully affirmed that President Wilson has been compelled to meet more worldwide problems than any of his predecessors. Lamenting, as he did, in common with all his countrymen, the horrors of this wasteful and bloody war, the president set his mind and heart to the purpose of holding the American government and people to the policy

First.—Of honorable neutrality as between the belligerents, with all of whom this nation has many binding ties of friendship:

Second.—Of maintaining and insisting especially upon the observance by belligerents of the rights of the government of the United States and its people, incidentally of the rights of all neutral nations, as founded upon treaty obligations and the recognized principles of international law.

Third.—Of standing solicitously ready at all times to offer a sincere and friendly service in any acceptable way to the nations at war to bring about peace among them and restore normal world conditions.

To the accomplishment of these ends we submit that the president has discharged his duty with great wisdom and fidelity, and in the discharge of that he has performed an incomparable service to his country, to the integrity of international relations, to the cause of peace and to humanity.

Without claiming that no mistakes have been made, we submit to the candid judgment of the people that so far the president has steered our ship of state through troubled waters with a remarkable clearness of vision and steadiness of hand.

For Protection of Our Rights In Mexico.

Mexico.—To the perplexities of the European war have been added the burdens incident to the almost chaotic conditions in Mexico, inherited by President Wilson from preceding Republicans.

Realizing high ideals of the relationship to be observed between the American republics and the sincerity of impressing all American states with our national aspiration to maintain in common with them a policy of mutual friendliness, the president has diligently and patiently sought to avoid any violent intrusion upon or conflict with Mexico. His wish has been to contribute so far as possible to the establishment of a stable and truly representative democratic government in Mexico and through the agency of such a government to restore order, stability and industrial prosperity to our neighboring republic.

The difficulties of this arduous task have been and are apparent. In his brave effort to aid Mexico in solving this difficult problem, having always in view the promotion of American ideals of a true democracy, he has been compelled to face just and well founded complaints of grievous wrongs made to this government by well meaning men representing religious and individual interests. That indefensible wrongs against all these interests have been committed is indisputable. But like wrongs have been committed not only in Mexico, but in Europe—wrongs of war committed in foreign lands beyond our jurisdiction. None has felt this more keenly nor suffered more because of it than the president.

What the president has wished and still wishes to do is clear. He wishes peace, order and stability in Mexico accomplished by Mexicans themselves if possible, leaving actual outside intervention as a last resort.

Hughes Message In Record.

Bought in London By Our Commissioner—Nearly

300 Fine Antique Oriental Rugs

Last to Come from the Orient

Since the war, London is more than ever the rug market of the world.

Fine rugs are no longer coming out of the East; can't get out of the ports; and New York's supply practically has been exhausted.

London only has a reserve—and Britishers are not buying rugs when personal taxes are so high.

So we went to London recently to see what we could find.

The Trip was Fruitful

We went into every corner of the market. We procured many good bales. The particular lot which we now present came from a Russian importer there—bought for cash on the spot because he was closing up his affairs.

"Finest in 18 Years"

"They are the finest rugs, taken as a whole, that I have seen come into America in 18 years," says our expert.

309 rugs in all; more than 90 per cent. of them genuine antiques—

—undoctored
—unwashed
—of fine wool
—closely woven

Beautiful antique Daghestans, Shirvans, Cabistans, Shiraz, Royal Bokharas, Bakus and Khorassans.

The old-time weaves, unique and beautiful patterns, rich soft toned-down colors.

Totally unlike the modern sleazy "commercial" rugs that came into the country so fast just before the war broke.

For Wedding Gifts

these are ideal in their genuineness, worthiness, quality, good taste, price and size.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JUNE 13, 1916.

PIERSON'S BONDING BILL.

Regarding the bonding bill for municipalities, which was passed by the last Legislature, after being introduced by Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, the Trenton Times makes the following comment:

"Financial officers of counties and municipalities in New Jersey should be preparing to operate under the new Pierson bonding law, if they have not already made preparations. The act will go into effect on July 1, after which date cities, counties and school districts will be prevented from getting the hitherto valued premiums for their obligations, according to their credit. They will get only the total sum authorized in the bonding ordinance or resolution.

"This will be accomplished through bidders offering to take the number of bonds, at whatever premiums they choose to pay, which plus the premium, will make up the total amount of the face value of the bond issue for sale. In same cases, in past years, substantial sums have been obtained in premiums, which have been spent for purposes not strictly within the purpose for which the bond issue was intended.

"Another provision that should not be overlooked is the one limiting the time within which municipal bonds must mature. The life of road bonds, for instance, is limited to from five to twenty years, according to the materials used in the construction or improvements of the roads. There is a limitation, also, on the total debt of a county or municipality that may be created. But financial officers should study the new act, which is chapter 252 of the Session Laws of 1916."

The first sessions of the Community Chautauqua, the first gathering of the kind to be held in this section of the State, start in Plainfield on Friday of next week. A program, headed by former President William H. Taft, has been arranged, and it will be well worth the small fee asked for a season ticket. Individual admissions, in fact, would amount to many times that asked for a season ticket. While the affair is in the nature of an experiment, never having been attempted, it is probable that Plainfield people will respond in the usual "Plainfield way" to the splendid opportunity offered to hear such talented speakers and artists. The affair has been underwritten by a number of Plainfield people, but it is probable that instead of having to contribute to pay a deficit, there will be a profit to be applied to the uses of local charities. The local committee in charge has not decided as yet to what cause any surplus will be given, but it is probable that it will be divided among various worthy activities in the city.

• • • • • •

In a letter to the Daily Press, published last night, Albert H. Atterbury complained of the conditions of the roads throughout the State. There is plenty of cause for complaint in North Jersey, but in South Jersey, where yellow gravel is the principal material used for construction, the roads were never better. All along the Monmouth and Ocean county shore, and back inland, the roads are as smooth as billiard tables, and they do not seem to give way under automobile traffic as easily as do those of macadam. Permanent pavements, such as have been constructed in New York State and New England, and are being built in a few sections of New Jersey, are apparently the only thing that will stand the automobile traffic for any length of time. They cost more at the start, but in the long run are the most inexpensive.

• • • • • •

There is an ominous note of desperation in the announcement from Washington yesterday that the situation in Mexico was "very bad" and the open prediction that intervention would come before the November elections. Intervention at this time, or at any time before November, will savor dreadfully of politics. Anti-American rioting in Mexico appears no worse than at any time within the past four years, and the policy of the present administration has been hands-off. When intervention would have saved the lives of innocent American men and women watchful waiting would suffice. Not that it is needed to prevent the political death of an office-seeker, it is imperative and the country demands it. Such crude trickery is not going to advance the cause of Wilson before the people.

• • • • • •

If the election were to be settled tomorrow, on the basis of public sentiment in Plainfield Justice Hughes would be the next President. There is no disputing the fact that hundreds of local voters who cast their ballots for Wilson and Roosevelt in 1912 expect now to vote for the Republican nominee. But in these troublous times, with a war abroad and near-war in Mexico, there is no predicting what may happen.

HAROLD SCHENCK WINS HONORS AT RUTGERS

New Brunswick, N. J., June 13.—At the 150th Commencement of Rutgers College, held this morning, it was announced that Paul L. Robeson, of Somerville, had been awarded first prize in the Edward Livingston Barbour declamation contest. Elmer H. French, of Plainfield, won second honors.

Harold D. Schenck, of Plainfield, a student in the Thelogical Seminary, won the William H. Van Doren prize for essay on Missions, and William Chester Wells, of Bound Brook, was awarded the Alliance Francaise prize in French.

$11,000,000,000 ON DEPOSIT.

Reports Show Tremendous Strength of National Banks.

Washington, June 13.—More than $11,000,000,000 was on deposit in the national banks of the United States on May 1. This total was due to an increase of $341,000,000 in less than eight weeks, from March 7 to May 1.

The total resources of these banks in that period increased $356,000,000, pushing the total up to more than $14,000,000,000.

A year's increase in resources is given as slightly more than $2,500,000.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

To the Hotel Towel.

Farewell, a sad and fond farewell,
Old roller towel to thee,
Health sharks are upon thy trail,
The end is plain to see.
They say thou art a rendezvous
For microbes, deadly, grim,
Until the chances of the man
Who wipes on thee are slim.

How often have we whirled thee round
With mean and vicious twist,
And whirled again with force enough
To dislocate our wrist.
How often we have looked thee o'er
To find a nice clean spot;
How often have we vainly cussed
When we have found it not.

We've known thee now for many years,
Thy soiled and unwashed face
Has gazed upon us constantly
In every public place.
Take all thy microbes and depart,
They're sounding thy death knell;
This is the sanitary age;
Old roller towel, farewell.

An Old Friend Gone Wrong.

A bill has been introduced in congress to provide clean money and it grew out of the fact that a scientist discovered ninety-two million germs of various races, colors and conditions of servitude upon a one-dollar bill. Thus it is that an old friend has gone wrong, and it seems a terrible shame. If the microbes feel really in need of a cash diet, they should have tackled the five-dollar bills, or the ten-dollar bills, and we would never have been in the slightest danger. The only unhealthy bill reported upon is the one-dollar bill, and that is about the only one we ever come in contact with.

The dollar bill we had last Saturday must now have at least 91,999,999 microbes, for there was only time for about one of them to jump on us before we handed it along to the meat market proprietor, but even 91,999,999 microbes can stir up considerable trouble. Let the microbes confine themselves to the five-dollar bills which are handled by the predatory rich, for the rich can much better afford to be sick than we can. Let us have no more sickly one-dollar bills. The congressional measure should be passed at once.

The Changing Times.

If one should come and slap your face, would you stand by with patient grace and wear a meek, contented grin and say: "Please do that once again"? Oh, no, we don't think you'd do that. You'd gaily smash his derby hat and blithely poke him in the nose from which the carmine fluid flows. You'd suffer an enormous peeve and tear his necktie, we believe. You'd smite the gent both hip and thigh and place some mourning on his eye. You'd paste him in the solar plex and make him look like thirty, Mex. You'd fight to your last drop of gore and clean him up, then look for more. It doesn't profit to be meek and calmly turn the other cheek for in these days of "Might Is Right" a feller's got to scratch and bite when others jump upon his frame, according to the modern game. The policy of "watch and wait" seems to be slightly out of date.

The Regular Contributor.

There's "Liberty" and "Justice" and there's "Working Girl" and "Rex,"
All ready to wage battles on affairs that sorely vex.
But "Veritas" has got them all outdistanced by a mile.
For while the others sometimes rest,
he's at it all the while.
Philosopher and scientist, essayist,
critic, wit,
Most versatile of men is he. There's not a doubt of it.
Defender of the people's rights with sabre ever peeled,
He does not specialize at all, the whole world is his field.
Of course he's very seldom right and nearly always wrong,
But life would lose a lot of spice without his siren song.
For humor, unintentional, his like cannot be found,
It would be mighty lonesome with no "Veritas" around.

SEEN AT ST. LOUIS AS DEMOCRATS GATHER

- Proctor's Theatre -

Dainty Dorothy Gish, the popular Triangle star, who has been seen in such successes as "Betty of Greystone" and "Little Meena's Romance," appears today at Proctor's in her latest Triangle picture, "Susan Rocks the Boat." In this production she isn't satisfied just to stay home and enjoy life—to be of no benefit to the world at large. She wants to do things—to turn bad into good; to be an important figure in the community. When patrons see this play they'll find themselves asking the question, "Suppose I were a pretty young girl surrounded with wealth and luxury, would I spend my time in idleness and pleasure?" Dainty Dorothy sets out to open a settlement house, reform a saloon keeper and make bad boys drink ice cream sodas instead of whiskey. Just because she was sweet and innocent the big saloon keeper thought he could take advantage of her, but he failed to take Owen Moore into consideration. It is a real fight to a finish with fists, chairs and other things—one of those swift-moving affairs that make you sit up straight in a hurry. Dorothy tries to correct the social evils of the world, and narrowly escapes ruining her life. Added features today include the presentation of the first chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine," the new patriotic film novel that has taken the whole country by storm. In this episode, thrilling subsea struggles are shown, patrons see the smashing of the invention by the spy, his escape from the subsea boat into the ocean; the sinking of the submarine and deadly peril of the occupants. A Keystone comedy entitled "Bathtub Perils," will provide a whole half-hour of wholesome laughter. On Wednesday, Dorothy Bernard and Stuart Holmes, supported by a specially-selected cast of Fox artists, are co-starred in a gripping dramatic feature entitled "Sins of Men," and the sixteenth episode of "The Iron Claw" is also shown. On Thursday, Bessie Barriscale is presented by Thomas H. Ince in "Not My Sister," a picture with a wide appeal, while on Friday and Saturday, funny Charlie Chaplin will be seen in his second Mutual comedy, entitled "The Fireman."

.· Plainfield Theatre.·.

Fred Hackett, an actor whose face is familiar to thousands of local moving picture patrons through his characterization of "Louie" in the Pathe Company's laughable comedies, "Hynie and Louie," is one of the feature numbers of the bill opening the first half of the week at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday. Mr. Hackett is appearing in a comedy singing and dancing act with his partner, Miss La Van, but owing to the latter's illness, presented himself last night in an Irish monologue offering, making almost as big a hit as he does when posing as "Louie." Miss LaVan will return to the act today and it will enable Mr. Hackett to show his versatility as a comedian. As an added feature during the stay of Hackett and LaVan, Manager Shannon will present the latest "Hynie and Louie" comedies, and Mr. Hackett will tell about them in a humorous monologue as they are being reeled off.

Savoy and Company, four people in all, made a big hit with their marvelous "Strong Man" act, introducing numerous features never before seen in this kind of an attraction. Other numbers on the program are Ben Hildreth, in a clever tramp comedy single; Harry and Elva Montgomery, the musical comedy stars in a delightful singing and dancing act, beautifully costumed; Mark Hart and John Rogers, comedians; and Langdon and Company in a farcical skit.

Beside the special photo features, the Pathe semi-weekly news film will be shown this afternoon and tonight, and tomorrow night's big added attraction will be the presentation of the weekly amateur act. Six numbers have already been booked and any local aspirant wishing to appear is requested to leave his or her name at the box office before 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

--Astor Theatre--

Florence Lawrence returns to greet her thousands of admirers at the Astor Theatre today in "Elusive Isabel," the sensational Bluebird photoplay that was used to entice Miss Lawrence from her seclusion of more than three years. Sensational in the extreme, this feature offers every possible enticement. Novel devices have been used to involve thrills at unexpected moments. Tomorrow, Daniel Frohman presents Pauline Frederick in a vivid adaptation of Mary Johnsions celebrated novel and play, "Audrey," adapted by Harriet Ford and E. F. Boddington, produced by the Famous Players Company. Pauline Frederick, whose beauty and powerful emotional histrionism have made her the foremost dramatic actress on the screen today, is the star of this wonderful production. In "Audrey," Miss Frederick abandons the sirenic roles which she has so wonderfully presented in "Zaza" and "Bella Donna," and several other powerful dramatic Famous Players productions in which she has starred. "Audrey" escapes drowning only by the narrowest margin and it is the news of her peril that awakens in Lord Haward a realization of what this wild, carefree girl means to him. Despite his wounds, he rushes to her rescue. There is another lover to reckon with—a half-breed Indian, whose methods of wooing are picturesque in their crudity. "Audrey" differs from Miss Frederick's previous screen characterizations in the great feeling of sympathy which she arouses, and there is no doubt that this production will be met with all-around approval. In addition to this wonderful photoplay we will show the second episode of "Who's Guilty?." Read it in tonight's Courier-News and see it at the Astor tomorrow. On Thursday, for the benefit of those who did not see the first part of "Gloria's Romance," we will repeat. The first part will go on the screen at 2:30, and the second part at 3 p. m.

PRINCETON'S GRADS RETURN TO COLLEGE

Alumin of Old Nassau Are Streaming Over the Revolutionary Battlefield.

Princeton, N. J., June 13.—Old Princeton town, known over the world for its annual season of gayety during the second week of June, is outdoing itself today. For four days alumni of Old Nassau have been streaming over the Revolutionary battlefield and the romantic campus by the thousands. They are gathered from every corner of the earth and in ages they range from the "old grads" of 1860, out for their fifty-sixth reunion, to the youngsters of this year's graduating class.

Prosperous times may have much to do with the enormous crowds, but whatever the cause it is generally acknowledged that when the curtain falls on the gay reunions today the most elaborate and the largest of all Princeton's great alumni gatherings will come to a close.

Judging by the figures made public today, Princeton, always the father of college reunions, is still leading the way, for percentages show that few are the "reuning" classes who do not have more than half their members on hand and in many the proportion is considerably greater.

Probably the greatest moment of all in the renewals of Princeton sentiment occurred this year when "old grads" to the number of a thousand sat down together on the steps of Nassau Hall to sing the ancient songs. It was the first occasion of combined steps-singing of the alumni and with one voice the young and old Princetonians rambled through the songs that have delighted Princeton hearts for over a century.

The ranks of the older classes are growing grey and thin, but cares have been forgotten even by the veterans amid the galaxy of color and the ever-marching lines of uniformed alumni. There are sad and happy moments alike for the older classes. The "boys" of 1860, graduates of fifty-six years ago, are having their first reunion without their president, the late James W. Alexander. But they have nine of their twenty surviving members on hand and they make their camp at the historic farmhouse of Henry E. Hale, a fellow member, on the Princeton battlefield.

No finer spirit is being shown than that of the Class of 1866, back for its fiftieth reunion. Eighteen of the twenty-six living members are in line, judges and clergymen of distinction most of them, and they are all rejuvenated this week. Dr. Fred P. Henry, of Philadelphia, and William Hull Wickham, of New York, the Princeton baseball battery of 1863, marched with this class and attracted great applause in addition to refuting all statements about the short lives of athletes. Others in this line were Judge John C. McPherson, of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, of Philadelphia; Judge James A. C. Bond, of Maryland, and the Rev. Dr. J. Hall McIlvaine.

And the younger "grads" had their celebrations, too, in their tents, many of them coming from great distances. But ever and anon they took their places in line behind the "old grads," acknowledging again and again that these are past masters in the art of "reuning" and that to them shall be all honor.

HUGHES IN CHARGE OF HIS CAMPAIGN

Nominee Directing Activities From New York.

New York, June 13.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for president, is here to take personal charge of the opening of his campaign. He went to the Hotel Astor, where a spacious suit had been engaged for his temporary headquarters. The fight is on in full blast. Mr. Hughes, as he now prefers to be called, is at the helm. It was hinted broadly that the campaign which was outlined tentatively at the day's conferences will be a vigorous one, with the candidate on the stump a large part of the time.

Mr. Hughes was never apparently in better spirits; he never smiled a broader smile and he never talked in a more genial strain. His appearance has not undergone marked change since he was governor.

The facts which stood out most boldly in the day of many developments were that Mr. Hughes apparently will receive the support of a united Republican party, despite the reports that there was an undercurrent of no mean proportion against him before his nomination, and the firm conviction of these Republicans—the old guard as well as the more progressive element—that all but a few of the members of the Progressive party, and most important of all these, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, will give Mr. Hughes their support.

In fact, not a hard word about Colonel Roosevelt was uttered by any who conferred with Mr. Hughes yesterday. On the other hand, there were many of a complimentary nature. Joining in these were men like Herbert Parsons, successor to William Barnes as national committeeman from New York; Samuel S. Koenig, the county chairman; Frederick Tanner, state chairman, and George W. Wickersham. They all said that Mr. Hughes would have the Roosevelt support, in their opinion.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

An Emperor Promised a Nightingale Something.

"I will promise you everything."

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"ONCE upon a time," daddy began right after the children's supper, "an emperor of China had a real nightingale and a make believe one to sing for him. But when he was so sick he almost died the make believe bird broke its spring and could not sing, but the real nightingale sang on a branch outside the emperor's window and persuaded death to leave the room. So the emperor thanked the nightingale for charming him back to life and offered to break the make believe bird in a thousand pieces.

"'Don't do that,' said the nightingale. 'Keep it, as you always have, by your bedside. Your tears of thanks are my reward. Now sleep and wake up fresh and strong. I will sing you to sleep.'

"So the nightingale again sang beautifully, and the sick, tired emperor fell asleep. Horrid dreams that had troubled him in his illness stopped bothering him, the sunshine poured into his window, and when he awoke he was almost well. None of his courtiers or servants were with him, for they had all gone off the night before, believing him dead. Only the nightingale had stayed all night to comfort and take care of him, you see.

"At daybreak the nightingale came back to see how the emperor was, and when the old man asked the bird to stay with him always it said: 'I cannot build my nest and live in this palace and never go out. But let me come whenever I like and sit on this branch before your window, and I will sing for you. I will sing to make you happy and to make you thoughtful. I will sing to you about the good and the evil that are kept hidden from you. Little singing birds fly far and wide and sing to the poor fishermen by the sea and the poor peasants in the fields. They see and hear and learn things beyond your court. I love your heart more than your crown, so I will come and sing to you often. But you must promise me one thing.'

"'I will promise you everything!' cried the emperor. 'For did you not save my life by your beautiful song?'

"And he stood up in his imperial robes, silks he had just put on, and he held his sword, heavy with gold, upon his heart.

"'One thing only I ask of you,' said the nightingale—'let no one know you have a little bird that tells you everything. It will be better so.'

"Then the nightingale flew from his branch, away off into the woods by the sea, to sing to the poor fishermen, and when the courtiers came in to see after their dead emperor, there he stood in his robes bidding them 'Good morning.'"

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel's Money-Raising Campaign Does Not Start Very Auspiciously.

Ethel Gordon in a frantic endeavor to save money toward paying for the suit for which she had run in debt resolved to do all the buying herself instead of trusting it to the maid. The result was anything but satisfactory, for being utterly without experience she succeeded only in making the bills larger than ever. She was tempted to buy any expensive dainty that was shown, for her appetite was very capricious. Naturally, as she did no work and took no exercise in the open air, nothing tasted very good to her. So fearful was she that Ralph would get the monthly statement from the Kansas City firm that she visited the postoffice after every mail until Ralph commented about it. She explained the matter by saying she needed regular exercise. When the bill finally arrived she buried it deep in the lowest drawer of her desk where it would have taken a detective to have found it among the jumble of papers. Every time she went near the desk she thought of the hateful bill and wondered how in the world she was to get it paid. She figured up the grocer's and butcher's bills from the stubs sent with the goods, never by any chance getting the same answer twice, until she was fairly feverish.

"I'll have to send them at least five dollars this month," she thought. "I will have a talk with Julia and tell her that the bills must be made smaller next month. I'll cut out all candy, and I will not spend a cent for anything." After this righteous resolve she went down to the postoffice, got a money order for five dollars and sent it to the firm. The resolve made her so light-hearted that she bought an ice cream soda and a half pound of candy just to celebrate the prospective freedom from debt. When the receipt for the five dollars had been tucked away in the drawer with the bill she was quite light-hearted over the whole affair.

On the tenth Ralph paid all bills and when she saw him come to the table on that evening with a cloud on his face she knew what was the matter and began marshaling all her charms to drive the cloud away. After dinner she brought a tiny stool and placed herself on it. She knew it was a very charming position. With her sweetest smile she looked up in her husband's face, clasping her hands over his knee.

"Don't look so sober, dear. Wasn't the dinner good?"

"It was some grand feed," said Ralph sincerely.

"I am so glad you liked it,' she beamed on him. "I told Julia to cook the macaroni that way and to broil the steak rare." Ralph smiled in spite of his worry at her satisfaction in the infinitesimal share she had had in getting the dinner to his mind. He laid his hand on her golden head.

"Ethel, the bills are ten dollars higher this month than last," he began gravely.

"I am so sorry. I did all the ordering myself to make them smaller." A wave of tenderness swept over him. "She is like a child that in trying to help has done some great mischief," he thought.

"I suggested that, and it was kind of you to try, but I think you will have to learn how before you can be of any use in cutting down the bills," he said kindly.

"I am so sorry." Tears were slowly welling up in the blue eyes. Ralph kissed them away, while he tried desperately to think of some way out of his perplexities.

A CHANCE FOR A PLAINFIELD WIDOW

Man In Cleveland, Ohio, Wants One Who Is Not "Fast."

If you are a widow about thirty years of age, and not "fast," here's your chance. Gus Jannell, of Cleveland, Ohio, wants a wife. He has probably heard of the beauty of Plainfield girls, but somehow or other he is prejudiced against unexperienced ones, and "old maids" won't suit him. According to his letter to Mayor Calkins, the widow must be near thirty years of age, sweet, slow receptive. He promises her a good home and lots of love, but does not give much information about himself.

HAROLD W. SCHENCK NOW PASTOR OF NUTLEY CHURCH

Harold William Schenck, of this city, was ordained as minister and installed as pastor of the Franklin Reformed church, Nutley, last night, the ceremonies being held in the church at Nutley. Rev. Dr. F. P. Searle, president of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, delivered the sermon. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, gave the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Charles B. Condit, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, Newark, delivered the charge to the people.

Rev. Edward S. Ralston, of the Netherwood Reformed church, who is president of the Newark Classis, presided and conducted the ordination and installation. A large delegation of friends was present from this city. Mr. Schenck will preach in Trinity church next Sunday.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR REV. JOHN W. P. COLLIER

Rev. John W. P. Collier, pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, was surprised about 10 o'clock last evening when many members and friends who had gathered at the home of Mrs. Henrickson, entered the parsonage and marched around singing "We'll not go home till morning." Each member of the party had a switch that was used freely. When the conventional whipping had been given, a large cake with the inscription, "1883—I. W. P. C.—1916" was placed on the center table. That there was hoping that the "1916" will not have its usual significance was clearly shown when a purse from members and friends, and one from the Men's Club were presented to the pastor, Miss Laura V. Frazier and Edward Blair making the presentation speeches.

Mr. Collier said, "A response commensurate to this very pleasant surprise cannot be expressed by words; a befitting response can only be made in a life of consecration and service." Rev. E. B. Maynard spoke words of cheer to all, after which a refreshing collation was served.

Plantation melodies and selections made famous here by the Biederwolf campaign were sung by the party.

The pastor sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold"; Miss Patsie Lander sang "Calvary," and Jackson Ingram sang "Mother." Edward Blair presided at the piano. A little before 12 o'clock the party bade the pastor, and Mrs. Collier, good-night.

MARKING THE MAN

Origin of Surnames In the Good Old Days of Long Ago.

MANY SOURCES OF SUPPLY.

When Trades and Callings Were Exhausted Then Places and Events or Objects and Personal Characteristics Were Pressed Into Service.

It cannot but be admitted that considerable food for thoughtful reflection is offered in the study of the origination of names. It was all very well when the world was young; but, as a writer says, "As the population increased and communication became possible and easier the supply of single names was not equal to the demand, and people began to get individuals bearing the same name mixed. It was at this time that the surname was thought of and adopted, so that families might be distinguished one from the other."

Trades and callings are in this day represented in the names of Baker, Carver, Shoemaker, Tyler, Chandler, Mason, Cutler, Carter, Saddler, Slater, Butcher, Draper, Thatcher, Fletcher, Hooper, Cheeseman, Turner, Joiner, Cooper, Gilder, Mercer, Skinner, Coleman, Sawyer, Tanner, Spicer, Cook, Tutor, Miner, Driver, Weaver, Gardner, Archer, Merchant, Porter, Wainwright, Taylor, Shepherd, Glover and ever so many others.

Says Cliffard Howard, who has devoted himself to this pleasant study:

"Such names as Hall, Stair, Garret, Kitchin and Chambers also record the occupations of our forefathers, who in these cases were engaged in the households of the nobility and had charge of such apartments as the names indicate. Others held higher offices, and from them we have the surnames Page, Butler, Procter, Forester, Steward, Baily, Fowler, and Woodward and Hayward, the keepers, respectively, of the forest and the cattle."

In other localities it was usual to point out an individual by the place of his birth or residence, a custom which resulted in the adoption of such surnames as French, Scott, Welsh, English, Dan, Burgoyne, Cornish and Cornwallis, Kent, York, Chichester, Lincoln, Wells, Washington, Putnam, Hurst, Buchanan, Preston and Bancroft. A great many of this sort were originally the names of baronial estates, which names the barons adopted as surnames.

Those who were not of such high estate were forced to content themselves with humbler titles. Thus John, who lived by the brook, became John Brook, and David, who lived by a giant oak, was called David Tree.

Richard, who lived at the end of town, became Richard Townsend, while his brother, who lived under the brow of a hill, became known as Peter Underwood. Those who lived near the water took the name of Atwater.

At the time family names began to be used the shops of the merchants were not numbered as they are now, but were known by their signs, which were suspended at the front doors and bore pictures of all sorts of animals, vegetables, birds, flowers, fishes and insects. It was customary to speak of an innkeeper, then, as John of the Bear, or Dick of the Swan, and, as may be readily understood, these names were soon converted into Bear, Hogg, Hart, Bull, Fox, Wolf, Colt, Hare, Beaver, Lyon, Swan, Peacock, Heron, Dove, Partridge, Cock, Finch, Hawk, Crane and Drake, as well as Burt, Chubb, Haddock, Herring, Pike, Perch and others. From vegetables, trees, fruits and flowers we have Bean, Broome, Clover, Birch, Ash, Hawthorne, Hazel, Peach, Flower, Nettle, Vine, Plant, Budd, Branch and Root, besides dozens more.

The shop signs bore other devices, and from these we have such names as Bell, Hammer, Coates, Manteil, Jewel, Potts, Pipes and others.

A great many nicknames remained fixed as family names, the most important being those which referred to the color of hair or complexion, and from these come such well known names as Brown, Black, Gray, White, Reed (red), Blount (fair). Others were given for some personal attainment or characteristic, such as Armstrong, Mitchell (great), Singer, Whistler, Eatwell, Swindells, Strong, Weak, Small, Osgood (well built), Longfellow, Crookshanks, Longman, Whitehead, Broadhead, Swift, Sober, Noble, Hardy, Doolittle, Goodman, Darling, Long, Short, Bachelor, Savage, Wise, Sweet, Moody and others.

To these might be added King, Queen, Pope, Bishop, Knight, Prior, Abbot, Squire, Earl, Duke, Baron, Lord, Prince and others which were originally given to individuals because of their bearing the titles or because of services they may have rendered them.

There are many more which do not come under any particular heading, but owe their origin to some event which the names appropriately indicate—Joy, Bliss, Morrow, Winter, March, May, Weeks and so on.—Exchange.

Making Sure.

"I wish to buy some ointment."

"Yes, madam."

"Will you open the jar?"

"Why, this is a sealed package. Yours is an unusual request."

"I know, but I've often heard that there's a fly in the ointment, and I wish to make sure that there is none in what I buy."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is not so much being exempt from faults as having overcome them that is an advantage to us.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

JOY BIBLE CLASS ENJOYS JOY RIDE

Eighty Members Have Dinner After Trip to German Valley.

About eighty members of the Joy Bible-class of the First M. E. church enjoyed a "joy ride" to German Valley last night and a chicken dinner there. The trip was made in automobiles, and fifteen machines were required to carry the members. The class is named for Dr. James R. Joy. It was started less than one month ago and now has 87 men enrolled. Each Sunday new members are coming in and the officers of the class confidently feel that before their terms of office expire the membership will exceed 200. The men of the city would do well to visit them any Sunday morning, where they will be assured of a pleasant and profitable hour.

A. T. Goodenough, the president of the class, introduced the following men as speakers: George E. Horne, leader; Dr. C. M. Anderson, chief advisor; Dr. J. R. Joy, publicity agent; Harry Gee, official booster; L. D. Albin, official joker.

The event was under the management of the chairman of the social and membership committee, A. C. Wadley, who was assisted by A. H. Osmun, the secretary and treasurer of the class.

BOSS BARBERS RAISE THE PRICE OF HAIRCUTS

A meeting of the union boss barbers of the city and borough was held at the shop of Alfred Seidel on Park avenue last night, for a discussion of the demands made by the journeymen for an increase in wages and to decide upon an increase in shop prices. It was finally agreed that the men should be granted more pay, and it will probably be two dollars weekly, although this sum will be discussed further at a conference between the bosses and employes next Thursday. The minimum wage rate for barbers is now $12 per week, and the local union asked that it be made $14.

An increase in pay for journeymen calls for a revision of shop prices, and the bosses decided last night to make a five cent advance on hair cuts, plain shampoos and hair singes. This will make a uniform rate of twenty-five cents for each. Massages are to remain at twenty-five cents and shaves will stand at the customary union rate of fifteen cents. The new schedule is to go into effect next Monday.

PLAINFIELD DAY NETS $1,400 OR PERHAPS $2,000

"Plainfield Day" at the New Jersey booth of the Allied Bazaar in the Grand Central Palace, New York, drew many Plainfielders to the big affair yesterday and, as a result, the local committees in charge reported a handsome profit. A total of $1,400 in cash was taken in for the articles sold and nearly as large a number remained to be disposed of today. It is believed the total amount will go over $2,000, the sum turned in by the Princeton committee, following Princeton Day. Morristown holds the record for New Jersey towns, having turned in over $3,300, but a large portion of this was due to the receipt of a generous check before the sale of articles ebgan.

Representatives from four Plainfield organizations which have been aiding in the work of European relief were in charge of the booth yesterday. These were from the Belgian Relief Committee, The Mercy Committee, King's Daughters and the Prince of Wales' Relief Fund. Mrs. John A. Peterkin, president of the city union of King's Daughters, and Mrs. F. W. Wallace, president of the Belgian Relief, were among the women who have worked unceasingly for the success of Plainfield Day, and the handsome sum netted yesterday was a source of great satisfaction to both. The articles offered for sale included 300 garden and sport hats made by the King's Daughters of Plainfield, while many others were either made or contributed by local people.

WOULD BRING IDLE MAN TO IDLE LAND

The land cure for unemployment is proposed in a bill introduced into congress by Representative Robert Crosser of Ohio, who would have unoccupied American tracts used for colonization projects under the direction of the federal government.

Crosser, who is a single taxer, proposes to make single tax a feature of his colonization projects. Under the terms of his bill, no revenue would be derived from labor products, but all assessments be levied against the value of land occupied by each colonist, irrespective of improvements. It is designed by this means to encourage thrift and to discourage the idle holding of land.

Control of the project is to be in the hands of a board consisting of Secretary Wilson of the department of labor, Secretary Lane of the interior department and Secretary Houston of the agricultural department. A fifty million bond issue is to provide the initial funds.

Exhaustion of free land that can be worked for a living is Crosser's reason for introducing this measure. On the other hand, he points out that millions of acres, formerly belonging to the government are held speculatively out of use by those who acquired title from the original settlers. He would have the commission reacquire such land as is necessary for colonizing purposes.

While useable free land remained, Crosser points out, the nation always had a safety valve against the worst phases of unemployment. Today any sudden industrial depression throws tens of thousands of workers on charity for their substance.

'ANNIE OAKLEY' BASEBALL ENCOUNTER WON BY P. H. S. CLASSROOM MOGULS

The "Colgate twins," Professors Beers and Woodman, together with the help of some of the faculty and two under classmen, proved too much for the Seniors in the annual baseball circus of P. H. S., which was staged on Parker Field yesterday afternoon and the instructors registered a 9 to 6 victory. Woodman had the old college twist on the ball, and most of the time the Seniors were breaking their necks trying to connect with it. The faculty took the lead in the third frame and kept it throughout, helped along by the weird fielding of their younger opponents.

The Seniors nabbed a run in the initial frame. Semer started off with a walk, because Woodman insisted on thinking "Buck's" head was the plate, and came home on Noonan's two-base wallop. Beers did his first stunt to help the other Colgate twin out in the second inning when he started things off with a nifty single. Wriston sacrificed him to second and Apgar's fumble let Beers in with the first run. Woodman let the Seniors have one counter in the third before he tightened up and retired the side, while the "old timers" got their first chance for the lead in their half when errors by Coudray and Apgar, a walk, and singles by Kyle and Patch gave them three more runs. Two more came across in the fifth and three were dented off Linke in the seventh.

Woodman and his cohorts got tired along the latter part of the game and, after a hasty consultation of war, it was decided that two runs in the eighth was about enough for beginners, and so "Woody" went out and fanned Davidson, Rittenbusch and Williams so that everyone could go home for supper.

"Woody's" pitching didn't allow the inner breastworks, including General Patch and Lieutenants Beers, Wriston and the main army, Snyder and Kyle, much chance to show their ability. The only chance the three gardeners, Lindsey Best, Harold Biddle and John Noll, had during the two hours' pastime went to center and "Shorty" Biddle had the fly without hardly an effort. Nearly all the P. H. S. first team played for the Seniors, but playing out of their regular positions were like chickens without their heads and made fumbles and pulled "bones" every inning.

SHORT AND SNAPPY LEAGUE GATHERING

Moguls Decide When a Postponed Game Is a Postponed Game In True Colors.

Discussion relative to the future method of procedure in postponing games, whether for rain or something else, occupied the major portion of the City League's weekly session in the Daily Press offices last night, it being finally decided to instruct managers and captains to notify President Walter C. Dobbins of prospective postponements at his office prior to 2 o'clock on the date they are scheduled to be played. Last Saturday several mixups occurred because some of the players had personally decided it was too rainy to play baseball and, as a consequence, they failed to show up.

The following players were added last night: T. A. B., Lawton and Wall; Netherwood: Nebding; Clinton Avenue: Trust; Farmer A. C.: Thorn; Baptist: Mills and Garretson. Garretson was dropped by the Farmers.

MULLIN-RANDOLPH DUO THE SHOW IN THIS GAME

Cliff Randolph and Tommy Mullin formed the battery for the Washington (N. J.) combine when it fought a 2 to 2 tie with the Bethlehem Club in the Penn-Jersey League Saturday afternoon, the local hurler striking out thirteen batters in nine rounds of play. Mullin got a two-bagger and a single and Randolph cracked out a two-cushion swat. Washington plays Sunday ball at Perth Amboy, and when it arrived at Bethlehem Saturday afternoon, but seven players were on hand, a bat boy and a visiting rooter having to be signed up for the issue. Here's what the Newark News has to say about Randolph and Mullin:

"It was Randolph, the Washington pitcher, who saved the day, with Mullin, the impromptu catcher, to coach him along. Randolph struck out thirteen men and came near breaking the 2-2 tie in the fifth by walloping out a two-base hit with two men out. If wee Willie Wilentz, the bat boy, had not followed him at bat and gone out, second to first, the game would have been won right there, for the Bethlehem pitcher was showing signs of extreme worry."

Randolph retired the side in one, two, three order in five innings.

JOHNNY DUNDEE WON BY A SHADE OVER LEONARD

A crowd of 6,000 persons at Madison Square Garden last night saw Johnny Dundee, the Italian lightweight, win a close decision over Benny Leonard, the popular Harlem boxer. This was not the first meeting of this pair of boxers, anxious for a crack at Freddie Welsh's lightweight laurels, but it outshone any of their previous exhibitions.

The clever Leonard, with a more complete knowledge of the finer points of the game, at times made Dundee miss and flounder when the latter would lunge at him. Dundee, on the other hand, although frequently met with a left-hand jab, alternated occasionally with a right-hand uppercut, was constantly coming at his opponent, and several times during the ten rounds forced Benny to retreat under fire.

'ART' KYLE ELECTED TO HEAD 1917 BALL TEAM

At an election held by the P. H. S. baseball squad, following school yesterday afternoon, Arthur Kyle was chosen captain of next year's team. Kyle will be a senior next year and will have played on the team for three years. Last season and the year before he covered a section of the outer garden, and this year performed well at first base, while next season he will undoubtedly go behind the bat, the position Captain "Box" Apgar vacates this year.

The picture of the squad was taken with the following in the group: Apgar, Davidson, Semer, Mills, Dealaman, Hutchcroft, Lewis, Coudray, Noonan, Kyle, Linke, Dunham and Manager Stelle.

ELI-TIGER GAME TOMORROW.

The third and deciding game of the Yale and Princeton baseball series will be played tomorrow on the diamond of the Newark International League Baseball Club. In the first game of this series, played at New Haven on May 27, Yale triumphed by a score of 5 to 2. Last Saturday the Tigers evened the count when they won by 7 to 5 at Princeton. Link, who twirled successfully for Yale in the opening game, very likely will be called upon to repeat tomorrow, and the Princeton pitcher will be chosen from Garfield, Walsh and Watrous.

DEFEATED IN FINAL FOR TENNIS TITLE

Miss Wildey and Partner Succumb to Miss Bjurstedt and Partner.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Distant Norway again holds the tennis singles championship of the United States, for Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the 1915 title holder, repeated her feat in carrying off the honors in the women's thirty-first annual event at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, St. Martin's, when she won in easy fashion over Mrs. Edward Raymond of the West Side Tennis Club, New York, in two straight sets, by the scores 6—0, 6—1.

It was not the only title of the afternoon for Miss Bjurstedt. Playing with Miss Eleanora Sears of the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, the foreign court wonder won from Miss Edna Wildey of Morristown, N. J., and Mrs. Raymond. This match proved to be the best of the afternoon, the Bjurstedt-Sears team winning by the scores of 4—6, 6—2, 10—8.

The women's doubles match was a battle royal in every sense of the word, for Miss Bjurstedt and Miss Sears had to play their very best tennis to put Mrs. Raymond and Miss Wildey out of the running. Many were sorry to see Mrs. Raymond lose out in both the singles and doubles, for she did good work in the latter match and should have won, but fate was against her.

Miss Wildey just about broke even in the points she won and lost by her net smashes. It was easy tennis for both teams in the first and second sets, but after one set each had been won the players started to smash them over with more force. Miss Bjurstedt was the particular star, while Mrs. Raymond played the best game for the losers.

The point score of the match follows:

HUGHES IS FAVORITE.

10 to 7 Is Offered Against Wilson at Race Track.

New York, June 13.—Justice Hughes is the favorite at Belmont park over President Wilson. One wagered $6,000 to $5,000 against Wilson and later another offered a wager of $10,000 to $7,000 that Mr. Hughes will be the next president of the United States, but this was declined.

Though there was little betting in Wall street on the campaign, odds of 8 to 5 against Wilson were quoted with the proviso that Roosevelt does not run on a third ticket.

Queries--Comment--Answers

Query—Are you positively certain that no player in the City League is being paid? If not, why do the newspapers persist in referring to the city league as an amateur league? I am almost sure that six players are getting pay every Saturday and I think that you know it, too.—P. G. T.

Answer—We have no one's word for the fact that the players are not being paid but the managers'. There is a clause in the league constitution prohibiting paid players from playing, and if any manager is dealing out money each Saturday afternoon he's fooling himself more than he is the public. There is no need of paying players, so why should the managers throw money away. On the other hand, maybe you are one of those shady gentlemen who are being paid. If so, let us know and we'll see what we can do about having you fired.

Query—My horse ran away and knocked the wagon through a West Front street window several weeks ago. Am I liable for damages? I was not in the wagon. I had left the horse standing at the curb and he took fright while I was in a store and ran away. The owner of the broken window says it cost $500.—L. H. Y.

Answer—You are certainly liable and you'd better keep a stiff upper lip or you might find yourself before the police court judge for neglecting to tie your horse. However, that must have been some window if the proprietor of the store valued it at $500. Better inquire into this figure.

Query—When getting on a pay-as-you-enter trolley is it compulsory for me to pay my nickel in the box as I get on? The other day I was inside the car sitting down and the conductor made me come out.—T. W. P.

Answer—Habitual trouble-seekers like you should walk; trolley cars are altogether too good for your kind. What difference does it make when you pay the fare?

Query—How many newspapers are there in the United States?—T. W. K.

Answer—The latest newspaper directory gives the number at 29,422, the largest number being in the State of New York, which has 2,121.

Query—Could a boxing promoter arrange exhibitions to be staged in Plainfield?—C. A.

Answer—If you complied with the law. Better get a copy of the recent bit of legislation legalizing boxing in the State of New Jersey, and when you see the red tape you'll have to go through you may think better of attempting to promote boxing in Plainfield.

MRS. STOCKTON MEDAL WINNER IN QUALIFYING ROUND OF TITLE MATCH

Although both beginning and ending her round with a 7, Mrs. R. S. Stockton, of Plainfield, won the medal in the qualifying round of the annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association yesterday on the Baltusrol links, leading a field of 104 players with a total of 88.

Mrs. Stockton had a close call, as Mrs. W. A. Gavin, of Cherry Valley, the English player, who only last week won the Eastern Association championship and last year was runner-up in the national at Onwentsia, Ill., finished up with 89.

Mrs. Stockton's 7 on the first hole was the result of getting bunkered on her second shot and taking three putts. On the home hole she found her ball behind a rock, and after playing clear of this trouble she had the misfortune to get mixed up with a bunker. But for the bad lie from the drive she probably would have brought in a card of 85.

The medal winner had still another 7, but as this was registered on the fourth hole it did not represent anything like the same misfortune as the other two. It was a little error of judgment that caused the trouble, as in trying to play short of the big trap, so as to get on in four, Mrs. Stockton found the pit. On the fifth the Plainfield representative holed a ten foot putt, which was about her best effort on the greens all the way around. On the short ninth, however, she placed her tee shot, a mid-iron, a foot from the pin and made a 2.

Coming back, Mrs. Stockton played some clever golf, and had 4 for each hole right along to the fourteenth. She almost got a 4, too, on the long fifteenth, but after placing her second cleverly between the bunkers and her third on the green, she just failed to sink the putt.

Mrs. Stockton's card:

Out ...7 5 3 7 5 4 6 6 2—45
In ....4 4 4 4 4 5 6 5 7—43—88

In place of a 7 at the home hole, Mrs. Gavin had a 3, and she made the last two holes in seven strokes, which was five better than Mrs. Stockton. The Englishwoman's worst hole was the fourteenth, where she sliced into a trap and took three shots to get clear. On the twelfth hole Mrs. Gavin drove into the rough, but was so deadly with her pitch shot that she cut a stroke from par with a 3. Details of her card:

Out ...5 5 4 6 6 5 6 5 3—45
In ...6 5 3 4 8 5 6 4 3—44—89

Mrs. C. B. Lawrence, Jr., of Plainfield, returned a card of 73-61, 134 in the fifth sixteen against that of Mrs. Frank A. Enos, of Englewood, her opponent, which read 65-68, 133.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Harriett L. Victory and Henry H. Victory; Lloyd L. Osborn and Abigail A. Osborn:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey made on the day of the date hereof in a cause wherein The Morris County Savings Bank is complainant and you are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the thirty-first day of July next or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose two mortgages, one given by Henry G. Ostermoor and wife to The Morris County Savings Bank dated February 23, 1909; the other by you, Lloyd L. Osborn and Abigail A. Osborn to the Morris County Savings Bank dated April 16, 1910. Both of said mortgages cover the same lands situate in the City of Plainfield, County of Union. And you, Harriett L. Victory, are made a defendant because you are the record owner of the fee in said mortgage premises, and you, Henry H. Victory are made a defendant because you as the husband of the said Harriett L. Victory may have some interest therein, and you, Lloyd L. Osborn and Abigail A. Osborn are made defendants because it is in said bill alleged that you claim to have some interest therein, and also are liable under your sealed bill, the payment of which is secured by the mortgage stated made by you to The Morris County Savings Bank.

SAYS HUGHES IS A PROGRESSIVE

Sen. Ackerman Believes Republican Nominee Will Be Next President.

APPROVES PLATFORM

Development of Business Relations With South American Countries Appeals to Him—Tells of Need for a Tariff Board.

Former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who was a delegate to the Chicago convention, was seen today by a reporter for The Daily Press, who asked his opinion concerning the platform and the Republican candidate for President. Mr. Ackerman replied, giving it as his judgment, that the principles adopted were essentially constructive and thoroughly American.

Mr. Ackerman was asked what parts of the platform were most appealing to him. Mr. Ackerman said: "The idea presented in the plank dealing with Latin America was very suggestive of wonderful development of our future commercial relations with the countries of South America, and it is especially pleasing to notice that the platform dwells particularly on the cultivation of social relations with the people of the South. Another feature of the Republican declaration is that which calls for the conservation of the natural resources of the nation and which must appeal to every thoughtful citizen as being most necessary for the future well-being of the United States."

When asked what he thought of the merchant marine feature of the platform, Mr. Ackerman replied, giving it as his idea that the successful development of our business with South America and the Orient can best be assured and sustained by merchant vessels owned and operated by private enterprise and he thought that the Republicans showed good judgment in taking that stand on the question. The danger of government-owned ships lies in the fact that they might be directly charged with the violation of neutrality where none was really intended. If, however, a ship is owned privately, the charge embracing the violation of neutrality would not involve the government, as it might if the vessel was owned by the government.

Mr. Ackerman continued: "The platform in urging an adequate increase in the army and navy, takes a stand which is absolutely necessary

SPECIAL AID RECEIVE ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Members of Various Committees Are Enthusiastic Over Progress Made.

A special meeting of the directors of the Plainfield and North Plainfield Chapter of the National Special Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard, president of the organization.

The purpose of the meeting was to hear the reports of the chairmen of the various committees. Mrs. W. W. Coriell, chairman of the committee of "first aid and hygiene," reported on the progress made by that class, the meetings of which have been held at the Muhlenberg Hospital. The first half of the course has just been successfully completed owing to the enthusiasm of the pupils and the efficient instruction received by them.

The class in rifle instruction, which is also progressing satisfactorily, will close the first week in July for the summer. The course in scientific gardening, planned for this month, has been postponed until fall, when instructors from the experimental station at New Brunswick will be retained to lecture here.

A course of lectures in home economics, substitute foods and cooking without conveniences was also planned for the fall. Specialists in these subjects will lecture at this course, a perspectus of which will be published when more fully decided upon. Arrangements were also made for repeating in the fall the classes given this spring. When these were completed the meeting adjourned.

The directors and chairmen present were: Directors, Mrs. Goddard, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. J. M. Charles, Mrs. William B. Tyler, Miss Hartridge, Mrs. Charles Frost, Mrs. Elliot Barrows, Mrs. Arthur Otterson; chairmen, Mrs. W. W. Cariell, Miss Mary B. Wells, Miss Margaret Buttfield, Miss Dorothy Lyon.

TRIO OF NEWARKERS CAUGHT AT FANWOOD

Each Are Fined $5 On Charge Trespassing On Property of Bond Varnish Co.

William Bolton, John Copeland and Peter Copeland, three Newarkers, were fined $15 this morning when they were arraigned before Recorder Charles Sheelen at Fanwood on a charge of trespassing. The trio were arrested at 3:45 this morning by Marshal Logan on the property of the Bond Varnish Company on LaGrande avenue, as they were in the act of stripping the place of everything movable.

When caught by Logan they were filling a wagon with barrels, some full of turpentine and others empty, and when they saw the minion of the law approaching, tried to make a "getaway," but were easily caught. When arraigned before the Recorder they said that they were under the impression that the place was abandoned, but changed their views later and pleaded guilty. They decided to pay $5 apiece rather than serve sixty days in the county jail.

PILLAR OF FIRE ORATION HUSHED

Chief Weiss Stops Meeting to Prevent a General Riot.

CROWD SHOWED ANGER

Eriksen, Once a Monk, Provoked Disorder By Attacks On Religious Faiths—Someone Let Loose Ill-Smelling Liquid.

To avert what threatened to become a riot, Chief of Police Weiss, of the borough of North Plainfield, last night stopped a Pillar of Fire open-air meeting just as the principal address was being given.

Although the meeting was being held on the property belonging to this church, or religious band, it is announced that they will not be permitted to hold future meetings there. Mayor Smalley and Chief Weiss are of the opinion that another meeting would result in injury to someone and a general disorder and they will prevent a repetition of the near-riot of last night.

The Pillar of Fire property is located at Craig place and Duer street. The porch of this house was used as a platform and soon after the meeting started men and women were crowded over the lawn and out into the street. The crowd was conservatively estimated at 500 people, many of whom were idle curiosity seekers who had been attracted as they passed along the street.

Chief Weiss had been given warning of the meeting and he had a number of policemen on hand. His plan was to preserve order, if possible, and let the Pillar of Fire orators orate to their heart's content.

Preliminary features of the program were carried out without arousing hostility on the part of the audience. A few jeered and shouted throughout the entire meeting, but it was not until William Eriksen, the principal speaker, began to attack prominent religious faiths that those in the crowd on the lawn and in the street began to get angry. Eriksen is said to have been a monk, escaped from a monastery somewhere in Europe. He bitterly attacked the Catholics and while in the midst of his address the crowd began to fire questions at him. Within a short time confusion was so great that it looked as though the argument would become personal in many quarters and Chief Weiss stepped in and stopped the meeting. Someone in the crowd threw a small glass ball that contained a liquid of offensive odor when it broke and the fumes began to permeate the air in front of the porch, most of those in the crowd were willing to go home.

No charges were made against the Pillar of Fire leaders.

'TAGGERS' WILL DRAW LOTS FOR TICKETS

Committee Announces Change In Plan of Rewarding Workers.

After giving the matter very careful consideration, the committee in charge of "Rose Tag Day" have decided that the original plan they had determined upon of awarding eight orchestra seats, at any New York theatre chosen, to the three women "taggers" who collected the most money for the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital on June 17, is totally unfair to the majority of women who are going to give up all or part of that day to the work of "tagging."

It would seem that those women who were fortunate enough to draw the best tagging positions would be the only ones who would stand a chance of obtaining the rewards.

Therefore, in fairness to all "taggers," the committee has decided to allow every woman "tagger" who desires to report at the "Rose Tag Day" headquarters in Mrs. Denton's former florist shop on Park avenue, at 7 p. m. on June 17, and there draw lots for the theatre tickets. There will be four lucky numbers, each number entitling the drawer of it to two orchestra seats.

Remember these three things:
The time—7 p. m., June 17.
The place—Rose Tag Day Headquarters on Park avenue, opposite North avenue.
The reward—Four sets of two orchestra seats each, at any New York theatre.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Temple Baptist church will hold its ninth birthday party on Friday night, June 16, at 8 o'clock. The party will be held in the Baraca class rooms of the church. An interesting program of music and refreshments has been prepared.

GRAMMAR PUPILS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Attractive Exercises Mark the Closing of Mt. St. Mary Academy.

INTERESTING ADDRESS

Joseph A. O'Brien, of Elizabeth, Talks to Graduates and Friends—Trial Scene from "The Merchant of Venice" a Feature.

Relatives and friends in large numbers attended the graduation exercises of the grammar grades of Mt. St. Mary's Academy, held in the College building yesterday afternoon. Rev. P. J. Hart, pastor of St. Joseph's church, presented the diplomas to the following members of the class of 1916: Anna Mary Prandelli, New York; Marion Augusta Floersch, Plainfield; Yolanda Mary Medvecsky, Chrome; John Bernard Gannon, Perth Amboy; Daniel Emery Medvecsky, Chrome; Catherine Elizabeth McCloskey, New Brunswick; Florence Angeline Michaud, Rutherford; Sarah Beatrice Handford, Trenton; Marcella May Dumarest, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Leon Francis Reng, New Brunswick. Master John Bernard Gannon delivered the valedictory, "The Blessedness of Peace."

The address to the pupils was delivered by Joseph A. O'Brien, principal of Public School No. 3, Elizabeth. Mr. O'Brien is an interesting speaker and during his discourse his theme was closely followed by the large gathering present. In part he said:

"Today is your commencement. How strange and paradoxical that seems! How inconsistent does the word not appear! We are completing our grammar-school course, we are rounding out the attainment and the completion of our first real success in life. We have reached the terminus of the first of many such goals toward which we shall work and strive and yet we call it a commencement. A beginning. Well, my young friends, strange as it may seem, peculiar as it sounds today is truly and really your commencement day.

"It is the day, so to speak, on which you begin to face a new mode of life. It is the day on which you make your first attempt to leave the portals of childhood and enter the great domain of young manhood and womanhood. It is the day on which life begins to take on broader aspects and open up broader fields of study and observation. It is the time when you must first begin to think about your future.

"It is a period in which you are called upon to break away from the spirit of dependence on others and to enter the field of self-reliance and independence. In your new life, in your high school work you must learn to be self-dependent, you will have to solve your own problems. You will have to prepare by self-government for the battles of life beyond the school, and apart from your teachers and tutors."

The remainder of the program consisted of marches, songs, drills, aesthetic dances and a trial scene from "The Merchant of Venice," in all of which the pupils took part. The complete program as rendered was as follows:

"Gloriana" (Weidt), college orchestra; chorus, "At the Balmy Breath of Spring" (Marzo); "The Crown of Welcome," Misses Mary Higgins, Bernice Weaver, Helen Sellyei, Nievez Perez, Germaine Boehm, aMrgaret Curry, Catherine O'Neill, Charlotte Perez and Angela Hughes; "Humoresque" (Dvorak), orchestra; military march and song, boys; physical culture, "America," High school, (a) Indians, Misses Blanche Stout, Anita Maguire; (b) Puritans, Misses Pauline Watts, Ruth Weaver; (c) Dutch, Misses Alice O'Donnell, Pearl Jones; (d) Quakers, Misses Emma Lott, Marion Floersch; (e) Colonial Dames, Wilma Holle, Marie Tobin; (f) Present Day, Misses Jeanne Hamilton, Margaret Jessup; "Lily of the Valley," violin class; "Butterfly Dance," little ones; "Barcarolle" from the Tales of Hoffman, (Offenbach), orchestra; trial scene, "The Merchant of Venice," Act IV, Scene 1, character of the play, The Duke of Venice, Sally Fitzgerald; Antonio, a marchant of Venice, Mary Connolly; Basanio, his kinsman, suitor likewise to Portia, Regina Birmingham; Salonia, Dorothy Watts; Solarino, Mary McCallion; Gratiano, Sadie Julian; Shylock, a rich Jew, Julia Blake; Tubal, a Jew, his friend, Mary Lee; Portia, a rich heiress, Katherine Cleary; Nerissa, Eleanor Brown; Clerk, Jennie Bradley; Jurists, Misses Helen Riordan, Loretta Daily, Rose Birkle, Elizabeth Mulvaney, Catherine Glancy, Margaret Mary Costello, Mary Beatty.

Dance of the Seasons—Spring, Misses Yolanda Medvecsky, Sadie Handford, Clara Maguire, Regina Retzbach, Florence Michaud, Marion Floersch, Clare Getsinger, Marion Schneider; Summer, Misses Elizabeth Toomey, Catherine McCloskey, Sally Michaels, Alice O'Donnell, Ruth Weaver, Pauline Watts, Orfilla Mero, Jeanne Hamilton; Autumn, Misses Catherine Gannon, Alice Alkazin, Emma Lott, Madeline Moonan, Eleanor Ryno, Sally McKean, Wilma Holle, Marie Tobin; Winter, Misses Blanche Stout, Anita Maguire, Anna Prandelli, Marcella Dumarest, Grace McOmbre, Elsie Deak, Helen Kenny, Margaret Jessup.

AUSTRIANS LOST HALF OF FORCES

Russians Claim to Have Killed or Captured 50,000 In Week.

CUT RAILWAY LINES

Germans Say They Have Sank 130 Ships of Britsh Fleet Since War Began—Deny Guilt In Tubantia Case.

Cut Austrian Railways.

London, June 14.—The Russian troops have cut the Austrian railway communications from Czernowitz to the north, says a despatch from Petrograd. Heavy fighting is proceeding on the eastern, southeastern and northern outskirts of Czernowitz.

Russians Enter Roumania.

Small Russian detachments, during the frontier fighting, accidentally entered Roumania. The Russian military attache at Bucharest has explained the occurrence to the Roumanian Minister of War, and the incident is regarded as ended.

130 British Warships Sunk.

Berlin, June 14 (by wireless to Sayville).—During the war to date Great Britain has lost 130 ships of her navy, totaling more than 600,000 tons, according to statistics gathered by German newspapers, the semi-official News Agency says today. Befort the great sea battle, says the agency, the English had lost eleven battleships, fifteen armored cruisers, eleven other cruisers, thirty torpedo-boats, twenty gunboats and twenty submarines, giving a total of 460,000 tons. This was increased to more than 130 and 600,000 tons by the Skagerak battle.

Austrian Losses, 50,000.

Petrograd, June 14.—The Austrian losses for the last week are estimated at 50,000, including prisoners, equal to half the Austrian forces on the Pripet and Roumanian fronts. Thousands of wagons are removing the vast booty taken by the Russians.

Artillery Busy at Verdun.

Paris, June 14.—The violent bombardment of French positions was continued by the Germans during the night. The French War Office, in an official communique today, stated that Thiaumont, Vaux and Chapitre Woods were the points in the Verdun sector where the Germans concentrated their fire.

Deny Tubantia Sinking.

Amsterdam, June 14.—The German Admiralty, in an official statement issued today, denies that the Dutch steamer Tubantia was sunk by a German submarine. Portions of a torpedo found in the vicinity, it is stated, were parts of one of those missiles fired at a British destroyer some time previously.

German Steamer Escapes.

London, June 14.—A despatch from Copenhagen states that the German steamer Hollandia was attacked off Oregrund by either a British or Russian submarine, but that she escaped into Swedish waters.

Italians Bombard Parenzo.

Rome, June 14.—An Italian squadron bombarded the Austrian port of Parenzo, it was officially announced today.

HUDSON REPUBLICANS ENDORSE CANDIDATE

Rutgers College Also Gives Frelinghuysen Honorary Degree of M. of A.

Somerset, June 14.—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, former State Senator and candidate for the nomination for U. S. Senator at the Republican primaries to be held in September, received word this morning that the Seventh Ward Republican Club of Jersey City, a prominent organization in Hudson county, at a meeting the other night unanimously endorsed his candidacy for the office.

The resolution endorsing Senator Frelinghuysen was adopted by a rising vote and with a display of considerable enthusiasm. It is understood that other clubs in Hudson county will take similar action in the near future and there is plenty of evidence of the fact that a strong sentiment for Frelinghuysen is rapidly developing.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, in bestowing the honorary degree of master of arts upon Senator Frelinghuysen at the Rutgers College commencement at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon referred to his work as president of the State Board of Education in the highest terms of commendation, and said that the degree was but a slight regard for his splendid achievement for the educational system of the state.

"AMERICA SAVED FROM WAR" TO BE ISSUE OF WILSON BEFORE PEOPLE

KEYNOTE OF SPEECH OF GLYNN TO ST. LOUIS CONVENTION DEMANDS THAT COUNTRY INDORSE ADMINISTRATION POLICY OF NEUTRALITY.

DOVE OF PEACE RESTS OVER THE DELEGATES

Even Bryan, Sitting In Press Gallery, Is In Harmony With All—Wilson Stops Opposition to Marshall For Vice President, and Also Puts An End to Reported Personal Attacks On Justice Hughes

St. Louis, June 14.—Setting an example in their own convention, the Democrats are to make peace the principal issue before voters of the United States in the presidential election of November. This was evident from the keynote speech of ex-Governor Glynn, of New York, delivered to the convention shortly after it convened at noon today.

The Dove of Peace might find a comfortable and quiet home in the convention hall here. There is not a war cloud in sight the rumble of approaching conflict cannot be heard even by the "war correspondents" who have their ears to the ground. Even Bryan is living up to his press agent notices as "Prince of Peace," and his smiling face beams down from the press gallery on the Wilson delegates.

The only promised excitement was nipped in the bud when President Wilson sent a letter putting an end to promised opposition to Marshall for vice-president. Some of the delegates had also sought to attack Hughes for quitting the Supreme Court bench, but Mr. Wilson checked this by an order that there will be no personalities in the coming campaign.

Ex-Governor Martin H. Glynn, of New York, in his keynote speech as temporary chairman of the convention, laid principal emphasis on President Wilson's maintenance of neutrality. He said the United States now faces the third great crisis of its history, and the paramount issue in this election will be whether the course the country has pursued in this crucial period is to be continued.

"The members of the convention," he said, "hold the following five truths to be self-evident:

"First, that the United States is constrained by the traditions of its past, by the logic of its present, and by the promise of its future, to hold itself apart from the European warfare, to save its citizens from participation in the conflict that now devastates the nations across the seas.

"Second: That the United States in its relations with the European belligerents, must continue the policy that it has pursued since the beginning of war—the policy of strict neutrality in relation to every warring nation.

"Third: That save where the liberties, the territory or the substantial rights of the United States are invaded and assaulted, it is the duty of this nation to avoid war by every honorable means.

"Fourth: That it is the duty of the United States Government to maintain the dignity and the honor of the American nation and in every situation to demand and secure from every belligerent the recognition of the neutral rights of its citizens.

"Fifth: That because the President of the United States has asserted these principles and pursued these policies, the American people must support him with ardor and enthusiasm in order that these principles and policies may be known to all the world, not as the opinion of an individual, but as the doctrine and faith of a loyal and united nation."

BUT THREE DISTRICTS FAVOR SMALL BOARD

City Gives Present Freeholder Plan Plurality of 152.

Light voting in all of the eighteen local districts featured the special election yesterday, the proposition of installing a small Board of Freeholders being defeated in all but three districts. A total of 631 votes was cast, 229 for and 381 against, giving it a plurality of 152 votes in the city. Nineteen ballots were rejected.

The first ward gave the present board the biggest majority, returning 125 votes for and 45 against, and in the fourth district of the first ward the vote was 37 to 4 against the proposition. A majority of the election districts cast less than fifty per cent. of the registered vote, and in the first district of the fourth ward five out of the 46 cast were rejected.

Returns presented to Acting City Clerk George W. Wean last night indicated that there had apparently been a slight mixup in tallying the vote in the second district of the third ward, a record of 38 cast being returned with nine for and 28 against leaving two ballots unaccounted for. The Board of Election in this district consists of Royal Phillips, J. J. Callahan, John F. Phillips and John J. McCaffrey.

The table showing the returns from the eighteen districts will be found on page three.

D. A. R. ENTERTAINMENT AT WASHINGTON ROCK

Members of Continental Chapter Are Guests of Mrs. C. W. McCutchen.

Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met at Washington Rock yesterday afternoon, about thirty members and their guests enjoying the outing. Upon the arrival of the party all went to the historic rock to take advantage of the magnificent view, after which a meeting was held in the cottage.

As this was a social and not a business meeting the regent, Mrs. Charles R. Banks, made a few announcements and then asked Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen to read a sketch of Plainfield, when it had fifteen inhabitants, followed by an account of the Battle of Trenton, which was published by an eye-witness in 1854.

Mrs. Edward V. French displayed a pencil sketch of the original house on the property on West Front street, known as Washington's Headquarters, and also the "will" of Isaac Drake written in 1756. Miss Mellick told several interesting stories about early Plainfield and a most interesting informal discussion followed. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Rudolph Blancke, chairman of the transportation committee. When the regent announced that the chapter now numbers fifty members hearty applause followed.

Mrs. McCutchen, the hostess of the afternoon, at this time invited the women into the dining-room where they were served with dainty refreshments. All present voted Mrs. McCutchen a charming hostess and thanked her sincerely for her delightful hospitality.

ELKS' FLAG DAY EXERCISES.

According to its annual custom, Plainfield Lodge of Elks will hold Flag Day exercises at the conclusion of the regular business meeting tonight. The principal addresses will be made by Assemblyman William A. Runyon and Norma Gray, both of this city. The exercises will be for members only.

S. A. R. MEETING TONIGHT.

Persons interested in the formation of a local chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution will meet tonight in the real estate office of Harvey R. Linbarger, 197 North avenue. Anyone eligible for membership is cordially invited to be present.

INDIAN LEGEND WILL BE REPEATED SATURDAY

Because of the inclement weather last Saturday and the inability of many persons to get reservations, William de LaR. Anderson announced today that the Indian Legend would again be presented on Saturday night, June 17. He had received many requests from persons unable to attend the first two presentations and, as a result, will stage the third.

Last night's production was as much a success as the previous night, the slight rain preceding the performance not dampening the enthusiasm of the spectators in the least. Every seat was occupied and the automobile parking space was filled with motor parties, many of the latter coming a long distance.

HOME NEEDS FURNITURE.

The officers now preparing the Netherwood Fresh Air home on Leland avenue for its summer occupancy by New York children are in need of furniture and make an appeal to local people for anything that might be useful. Beds and bedding are particularly needed. Someone is stationed at the home all the time at present and any information desired can be had by calling on the telephone.

BUT TWO DISTRICTS IN THE COUNTY VOTE TO OUST PRESENT FREEHOLDER BOARD

Union county defeated the small Board of Freeholder proposition yesterday by a vote of 4,714 to 3,620, thereby putting to rout the well organized move of the Elizabeth Democratic faction to gain control of county affairs. Voting was light in nearly every district, approximately twenty-five per cent. of the registered voters appearing at he polls.

The surprise of the election came from Elizabeth, a section that was expected to go strong for the new feature, the plurality against the present large Board being but 223. Linden Borough gave the small Board a plurality of one, being the only other county district outside of Elizabeth, to vote in favor of the new proposition.

Elizabeth Democrats are today considering the plan to circulate petitions calling for another special election on the issue in November. The overwhelming defeat it was handed yesterday, however, is making the Democratic leaders think twice before venturing further and it is probable that the matter will rest dormant for the time being a least. A complete resume of the county vote follows:

LEASES DUMONT HOUSE.

The former Dumont house, at Washington avenue and Penfield place, has been rented by John Feederman, realty agent, to J. J. O'Leary, of Elizabeth, who will take possession about July 1. He is an employe of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Clayton Apgar has taken a job in the office of the International Motor Company.

Mrs. Stanley Kron has returned from Belle Meade, where she went to benefit her health.

Mrs. A. E. Smith and Mrs. William Russ are planning to spend the week-end in New York city, visiting Mrs. Russ' parents.

H. M. Gnaiz and George Trust are planning an automobile trip to North Carolina the first of the month.

GOING TO PATTENBURG.

Johnson Gary, son of Elwood Gary, leaves June 23rd for Pattenburg, where he will spend the summer with his uncle, Lewis Gary.

Marshal Patrick Tarpey is entertaining his brother, John Tarpey, of New York.

LAWN FESTIVAL.

A lawn fete and entertainment will be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church on Friday afternoon and evening at the parsonage. The entertainment will be given under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, of Plainfield. A good time is promised to all who attend.

Mrs. A. F. Samson and grandson, Gordon Craig, visited in New York yesterday.

Edwin G. Lewis, of Lincoln avenue, suffered a slight stroke of paralysis last evening. His physician has told him that he must remain quietly in bed for three or four days.

Walter Penrose has taken a position with Carl Beiler in the South side grocery.

HOUSE WARMING.

A house warming and a general social time was observed at Valmere cottage, the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nelson, last night. A large number were presentt.

Mrs. Adam Leyh, of Prospect avenue, who has been very sick for the past few days, seems to be improving.

Carl Hoffman has taken a position with a manufacturing concern in Lincoln.

A large number of Juniors from this place plan to participate in the parade in Newark this evening.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

FAVOR LARGE BOARD.

The township and borough voters clearly demonstrated their preference for the large Board of Freeholders yesterday at the special election when they voted the small board proposition down by a big majority. In the township, out of 183 votes cast, 165 were against and 18 for; in the borough, 69 against and 12 for out of 81 cast.

HEARING POSTPONED.

Owing to the condition of his victim, the trial of John Nunziatine before Borough Recorder Charles Sheelen last night was postponed until Thursday, and he is still out on $1000 bail. Michael Omalie, the Italian who was stabbed during an argument Sunday night, was not in condition to be in court.

ENJOY FESTIVAL.

Over fifty people enjoyed the strawberry and ice cream festival held on the lawn of the Baptist church last night under the auspices of the World Wide Guild. The members of the Guild served refreshments, and a considerable sum was realized by the venture.

REMOVES TO PHILADELPHIA.

After being a resident of Fanwood for the past five years, Dr. Frank Thelburg, of Russell road, removed today to a suburb of Philadelphia to make his home.

FLAG DAY PROGRAM AT WATCUNG SCHOOL

W. de La R. Anderson Delivers Patriotic Address and Children Recite and Sing.

Appropriate exercises, recitations and songs composed the Flag Day program in the Watchung school this morning, a patriotic vein running through the entire numbers. During the exercises, Mayor William de LaR. Anderson, on behalf of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., presented the school with a large American flag. During the presentation address he said in part:

"Many people wave a flag and think of it only on Flag Day, Decoration Day and Fourth of July. They are like the people who keep their religion for Sundays and prayer-meeting nights. I say to you, let the flag be your continual and daily inspiration for betterment of yourselves, morally, mentally and physically, that you may be strong to protect and conserve this great country which is our home and has been given us by the effort and shedding of the blood of our forefathers. You children, will some day have to protect and keep that which has been given you. I therefore, earnestly urge that the red, white and blue may lead you on to efforts for the betterment of yourselves so that you may be prepared with self sacrifice and bravery to follow the example which is typified by this emblem.

UNION VILLAGE NEIGHBORS TAKE QUARREL TO COURT

John O. McNeece and Elizabeth Armbruster, of Union Village, appeared before Judge Neier, in the township hall Tuesday evening as a result of a neighbor's quarrel, in dentally some rocks which are quite plentiful in Union Village streets were the chief features. After much parleying, they decided to apologize to each other and return home in a neighborly fashion.

GIRL HAS NARROW ESCAPE UNDER HEAVY AUTOMOBILE

What might have been a serious accident occurred Tuesday afternoon on Mountain Boulevard, when two seven-year-old girls, Alice Moore and Grace Jacet, were catching a ride by hanging on the back of a wagon, when they suddenly let go and started to cross the road directly in front of an automobile coming in the opposite direction. The Moore girl managed to escape but the Jacet girl was knocked down. She fortunately rolled under the car and escaped injury. The car was owned and driven by Mr. Schreager, owner of the Washington Rock Spring Water Company. Eye-witnesses who saw the incident declare that Mr. Schreager was entirely blameless, as he was driving very slowly and carefully.

Ephriam S. Acker will lead the Christian Endeavor meeting this evening in the Wilson chapel.

Mrs. Frank Wonson, of New York City, is building a summer home on Washington Drive.

LOCAL CELEBRITIES FORM "A NUT CLUB"

Organization's Excuse For Being Will Be promotion of "Unconventional Fun."

Adopting the somewhat signifieant title of "The Nut Club," a coterie of well known local men who believe most of the pleasure in life is gotten only when you go after it yourself, have organized for the purpose of sociability, not altogether on conventional lines. A number of affairs under the club's auspices have already been planned the first of which will be a clam bake and athletic carnival to be held on Sunday, July 9. A suitable program is now being arranged, and from the events already decided upon visitors will realize that the "Nut Club" is the one and only name the organizers could fittingly use.

The officers elected to date are as follows: President, "Pop" Shannon; vice-president, "Pop" Feiring; secretary, "Pop" Maplesden; treasurer, "Pop" Rogers; musical director, "Pop" Taverner; transfer man, "Pop" Hand; cook, "Pop" Neighbour; moving picture, "Pop" Muir. The membership at the present time numbers about thirty, but the list is increasing as quickly as new "Nuts" are discovered through observation on the part of what is known as the "pick up" committee.

The organization was permanently effected last night and at a meeting next Tuesday night, unsuitable by-laws and a constitution will be adopted. A chipmunk sitting upright with a nut in his paws has been adopted as the official emblem of the club and the hailing sign will be "Welcome to Our Padded Cell."

SCOUTMASTERS TAKE STEPS TO ORGANIZE

Association of Heads of Boy Scouts Will Be Made Permanent June 26.

Scoutmasters of six Boy Scout troops of Plainfield met last night at the headquarters of Troop 9, the First Methodist church, and decided to organize a Scoutmasters' Association. Frederick A. Martin, of Troop 9, was elected chairman and steps were taken to complete the organization at the next meeting which will be held Monday evening, June 26, at the same place.

The need of such an organization has been felt for some time. Scoutmasters, especially those who are now in the work, have experienced the handicap of not being acquainted with other men who are engaged in the same line of boys' work. They have wished to share in the educational and inspirational enthusiasm that always results when scoutmasters get together.

At various times they have seen the need of concerted action on different questions. For these reasons, and believing that scout work in Plainfield will be benefitted by it, the association has been organized. The scoutmasters present and their troop members were: Joseph Garner, 7; Frederick A. Martin, 9; William H. Olmstead, 10; E. A. Sprowl, 11; A. F. Barker, 13; Ernest K. Powlison, 14, and Benjamin A. Harris, unassigned.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH MEN'S CLUB ELECTS

The Men's Club of the Congregational church held an enthusiastic meeting last night when officers for the coming year were elected and plans for an active season were discussed. Rev. Howard E. Clarke, the new pastor, was present and gave the men an excellent talk, emphasizing the importance of every man in the church being a member of the club and likewise identified with all departments of religious work.

These officers were chosen: President, James C. McClymont; vice-president, Rolland Rice; secretary, D. Foster Updyke; treasurer, Chas. Steiner; executive committee, Martin Dean and John Dahl. A social session followed.

AMERICA SAVED FROM WAR

It was received with enthusiasm, and shortly afterward the convention adjourned so that the various committees could do their work and prepare their reports in time for tomorrow's session, when the platform will probably be formally adopted.

The platform embodies all of President Wilson's policies, and it has been stated that it was written almost entirely by the president himself or at least at his direction. It will promise a more vigorous Mexican policy and will defend the administration's course toward the belligerent countries of Europe, especially in the dealings with Germany over the submarine issues and with England over the seizures of mail. It will also defend all of the internal questions that have faced the nation since the administration took hold of affairs on March 4, 1913.

Another interesting feature that is to be decided is the selection of a chairman of the national committee, to succeed William F. McCombs, resigned. Several names have been prominently mentioned, among them Colonel E. M. House, the president's personal friend and adviser; Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware and Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, now vice chairman.

There are many interesting features connected with this convention, aside from the actual work of the political body itself. Woman suffrage workers are here in full force and are exerting strenuous efforts to have a plank granting the vote to women incorporated. There are also many societies, some organized to further the preparedness measures and some organized to further the pacifists' ideas, represented at the gathering.

William Jennings Bryan is perhaps the most unique figure in St. Louis. Recalling his domineering power at Baltimore four years ago, when he forced the convention to nominate Wilson and thus brought about the defeat of Clark, it is interesting to note that he is not the powerful Bryan of 1912. The great commoner does not even appear as a delegate or an alternate, but as a newspaper reporter. It is likely that he will be granted the privilege of speaking if he desires to do so. There is no doubt that his influence will be felt in the writing of the platform, but his views on preparedness will not be incorporated.

Seeking Progressive Support.

An open invitation to all Progressives to support President Wilson was scheduled when the Democratic national convention opened. Approval of this course was received when Secretary of War Baker, who is to be Wilson's personal representative among the delegates, arrived here from Washington.

Secretary Baker's statement regarding the Progressives, coupled with the telegram Chairman McCombs sent to Bainbridge Colby, a moose leader in New York, inviting him to join the Democratic party, are believed to indicate the chief Democratic strategy during the week. Its main features have not yet been indicated, but they are believed to include substantial revisions of the platform, besides other recognition of the Progressives.

Mr. Baker announced himself as opposed to any plan for direct overtures.

"The Progressives are a group of men," the secretary declared, "who are earnestly and decidedly trying to serve a set of deep rooted political beliefs. They don't want a piece of engraved stationery which they can call an invitation, but evidence that the Democrats and Progressives are trying to serve the same cause.

Record Should Satisfy Moose.

"The record of the Democratic administration contrasted with the Republican platform, ought to satisfy any Progressive that his opportunity lies with the Democratic party.

"There couldn't be any direct invitation to the Progressives in the Democratic platform. We can only hope to get Progressive support by drawing a platform so that it will meet their approval. I think that a great many Progressives will feel deeply disappointed with the meaningless Republican platform and outraged at the betrayal of their own party. They will realize that the Democratic platform and candidates will more nearly represent their own ideals, and they will vote for President Wilson."

These moves followed the sending of a telegram to Bainbridge Colby by Chairman McCombs saying:

"I have read your statement. It appears that Colonel Roosevelt has attempted to send his former enthusiastic followers stumbling to destruction. The progressive Democracy cordially and sincerely offers them safety."

Conferences have been discussing ways and means of winning over the Progressive vote. Many leaders are desirous of heading off any strong moose movement in the south, which might shake Democratic strongholds. Some of them feel, as does Secretary Baker, that to issue a direct appeal would reveal Democratic weakness.

The Democratic platform as framed for the convention and assured of adoption contains planks on the following issues:

Strong defense of the president's foreign policy predicated on the desire to maintain a strict neutrality and for this country to remain at peace.

Approval of the president's plan for a peace league among the nations.

Reaffirmation of tariff for revenue only, with recommendation for a tariff commission and an anti-dumping measure.

Indorsement of suffrage, but leaving it to the states.

Pledging the party to preparedness and as an earnest of this pointing to the military and naval bills just passed.

Indorsement of the administration's ship purchase bill as a step in building up the merchant marine.

Advocating clearer relations and greater co-operation with South American countries and rigid insistence upon the Monroe doctrine.

Approval of the rural credits bill agreed upon in congress and pointing to recent achievements of the department of agriculture.

SCHOOL TEACHER DEMANDS HEARING

Miss Merrill Dropped From Scotch Plains Seeks Retention of Position.

Believing that she has been unjustly treated in being dropped as a kindergarten teacher in the Scotch Plains public schools, Miss Mary Merrill, of Roselle, has demanded a hearing on the part of the State Board of Education. This hearing has been set for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at Scotch Plains, before Assistant State Commissioner of Education Enright.

Miss Merrill, prior to last January, was the kindergarten teacher at Scotch Plains, but at that time was dropped, it is said, because there was a lack of room and the local Board of Education was obliged to give up this department. The teacher claims that she is under the tenure of office act and cannot be dropped except for sufficient cause and will endeavor to secure what she terms are her rights.

FETE SUCCESSFUL DESPITE WEATHER

Methodist Women Enjoy Delightful Affair at Home of Mrs. F. G. Crawford.

Although unfavorable weather conditions interfered somewhat, the lawn fete conducted yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. G. Crawford, on Myrtle avenue by the women of the First Methodist church, proved to be quite successful. A large attendance was in evidence and enjoying the various attractions when the rain began, but adjournment was taken to the commodious garage on the premises and the program continued. Termination came in the evening at 6:30, when the men arrived and enjoyed a basket supper.

A feature of the program was a "parcel post" auction in charge of Mrs. A. B. Meredith, during which articles from nearly every State in the Union were sold. Those from California were of a Japanese variety and brought very good prices. The affair as a whole was arranged and conducted by the Ways and Means committee of the church and included members from the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its monthly business meeting prior to the lawn fete and decided to hold a musical next Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. H. Howell, on Myrtle avenue. A suitable program is now being prepared by a committee, the details of which will be announced later.

TRUMAN T. PIERSON TAKES POSITION WITH MAGAZINE

Pierson, formerly connected with the Courier-News, has taken a position with "Realty in Word and Picture," a magazine published in New York and Newark which is devoted to real estate and allied interests for the purpose of stimulating the buying the selling of realty. Mr Pierson will devote his time to writing special articles concerning Plainfield, Westfield, Cranford, Roselle, Middlesex borough, Bound Brook, Raritan, Dunellen and other nearby places.

MUST PAY $5 TO THE SUPPORT OF HIS FAMILY

Frank Salveto, of New Era, was brought before Judge Kane in South Plainfield Monday evening on a charge of non-support made by John M. Dayton, overseer of the poor in the township. Mr. Dayton told the court that Salveto's wife and small child same to him last week and asked for lodging, saying that her husband had deserted her. Salveto is employed every day and Judge Kane said that he could see no reason why he could not allow his wife five dollars a week. Salveto agreed to allow his wife this sum but he is still held in the local jail until he can furnish a bondsman.

FUNERAL SERVICE ARRANGED.

The funeral of Mrs. M. E. Smith, who died early yesterday morning, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Van Norden, of 329 Lyman place. The service will be in charge of Rev. Mr. Burrill, rector of Holy Cross church, and the interment will be private.

CAUGHT BETWEEN FREIGHT CARS, WORKMAN WILL LIVE

Peter Hess, of Brooklyn, aged forty years, was badly injured yesterday when he was caught between two cars on the Lehigh Valley railroad. Fellow-workmen quickly released him from his perilous position and the man was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. It was found that his back was very badly injured. Hess is employed with the section gang and he has been making his home at South Plainfield for the last few weeks with about one hundred other laborers.

DR. WM. G. HERRMAN RECEIVES HIS A. M. DEGREE

Dr. William Gettier Herrman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Herrman, of West Seventh street, received the degree of Master of Arts from Rutgers College yesterday. He was recently graduated with high honors from the New York Homeopathic Medical College, where he was assistant bacteriologist and lecturer in the same subject to the nurses of Flower Hospital. He will take his interneship at the Cumberland Street Hospital, Brooklyn, Department of Public Charities, New York City, where he received the first appointment by examination. During the summer Dr. Herrman will practice at Asbury Park with one of the leading physicians of that city. Dr. Herrman is a member of the Delta Phi and Phi Alpha Gamma fraternities.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PIKE.

The funeral of Mrs. Virginia Pike, widow of Noah W. Pike, was held yesterday afternoon at the late home at 408 East Front street, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, many of the latter coming from distant points. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, and was extremely simple, in keeping with the wish of the deceased. The numerous beautiful floral tributes from family and friends included a handsome set piece from the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, of which Mrs. Pike was an active member for many years. Burial was made this morning in the Osborne family plot at New Hurley, near Walkill, N. Y.

ONE LIVE TROPHY AT BAZAAR.

Mrs. N. C. Barnhart, of 970 Hillside avenue, was awarded the pedigreed pig in the contest conducted at the Allied Bazaar in New York by the local committee in connection with Plainfield Day. Mrs. Barnhart was spared the embarrassment of having to take her trophy home with her, since it was not in the building and will be delivered her by G. P. Mellick, the donor. Several hundred dollars more was realized from the continuance of sales at the New Jersey booth under the auspices of "Plainfield Day" yesterday and the tota lamount is now about $1,700.

TO HOLD DIME SOCIAL.

Phelathia class of Temple Baptist church held its monthly business meeting last night at the home of Mrs. P. H. Moore, 302 East Third street. Sixteen members and U. B. Crane, the teacher of the class, were present. During the session it was decided upon to hold a dime social at the home of Mrs. P. H. Moore, on June 27. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

PUPILS TAKE PART IN SPEAKING CONTEST

Pupils of the Washington school took part in the prize speaking contest conducted last night in the school building under the auspices of the Parent Teacher Association. Medals for the successful contestants were donated by the association and the judges for the decisions were Mrs. E. Kimball, Harold F. Biddle and Henry Crofut White.

Competition was close in both the primary and grammar departments and the judges found it difficult to decide who was the best. In the primary department Rose Trupin was first, Rose Parnes, second, and Morris Steinman, third. In the grammar department Anna Devine won first prize, Ellis Galloway, second, and Eleanor Manning, third.

256 GRADUATED FROM PRINCETON

General Wood and Senator Lodge Get Degrees.

NEW LABORATORY GIVEN.

Will Be Most Complete For Chemistry In the Country—Other Large Gifts Are Announced at 169th Annual Commencement Exercises Which Close Tonight.

Princeton, June 14.—The one hundred and sixty-ninth annual commencement of Princeton university comes to a close tonight, and 256 men presented themselves for graduation to President John Grier Hibben yesterday. Ninety-two received the bachelor of arts degree, 108 the bachelor of letters, thirty-four the bachelor of science, seventeen the civil engineer, four the electrical engineer and sixty-five were made masters of arts by Dean Andrew Fleming West.

Major General Leonard Wood and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge were among ten who received honorary degrees, both becoming doctors of law.

Conferring the degree upon Major General Wood, President Hibben said: "In our defenseless state he has sounded the reveille to awaken a slumbering nation from its dream of security, bidding us rise and take our place like men to save our freedom and help to save the imperiled freedom of the world."

Senator Lodge received his degree as "a statesman of probity, dignity and power for a generation in the halls of congress."

Others honored by Princeton were Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, doctor of science; Judge Joseph Muffington, presiding judge in the United States circuit court of appeals of the Third district, doctor of laws; Julien Aden Weir, president of the National Academy of Design, and Rolla Wells, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of St. Louis and twice mayor of that city, were made honorary masters of art; John Willis Baer, president of Occidental college, doctor of letters; Bishop Paul Matthews of New Jersey and John McDowell, doctors of divinity; Waldemar Lindgren, professor of geology of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, doctor of science.

The announcement of the gift of a new chemical laboratory was made by President Hibben in his address to the graduates. The donor's name was not made public, but it was stated that property upon which the building, the most complete in the country, will stand, has been purchased adjoining the campus. Among other gifts announced were those of Amory L. Ford of Detroit, who gave $100,000 to endow a professorship in Spanish; Henry C. Frick, $100,000 to endow a chair in music, and a fund by private subscription for a professor to assume charge of the new course in accounting and statistics.

BAPTISTS HAIL "EFFICIENCY."

Camden Association Begins Annual Session at Woodbury.

Woodbury, June 14.—All churches and organizations in the Camden Baptist association were represented at the twenty-ninth annual session of the association, which is in session in the Central Baptist church. The Rev. R. P. Zebley, the moderator, delivered an address on "The Major Theme of the Association."

E. L. Cloud, president of city council, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city, and the Rev. J. W. Weddell, pastor of Central church, extended greetings of his parishioners.

The keynote of the meeting is "Efficiency." J. M. Wilbur of Philadelphia delivered an address on "Our Baptist Training School."

NO DEMAREST DIVORCE.

Action Brought by Hoboken School Superintendent Is Thrown Out.

Newark, June 14.—Vice Chancellor Foster has decided against A. J. Demarest, superintendent of public schools of Hoboken, in his suit for divorce brought against his wife, Fanny Taylor Demarest.

The court also exonerated Edward W. Oliver, principal of a public school in Hoboken, from the charges made against him. The case, the court said, was based upon suspicion, and while some of the suspicions were warranted some others were unwarranted.

Ford Plans Four New Plants.

Atlantic City, June 14.—Appeals for lower freightage made by representatives of the Ford Motor Car company before the classification agents of the Southern Railways disclosed plans for the establishment of new plants at Birmingham, Norfolk, Richmond and New Orleans. The definite decision as to the proposed southern branches depends greatly on the outcome of these conferences.

Wolverton For Next Assembly Speaker.

Trenton, June 14.—Confident that the Republicans again will control the assembly, Oliver J. West of Gloucester is here boosting Charles C. Wolverton of Camden for speaker. He came here with a delegation of Gloucester residents to greet Acting Governor Gaunt.

RECREATION NOTES

The public swimming classes will meet tonight in the Plainfield High School pool on the following schedule: Women, 7:30 to 8:30; Girls' Friendly Society, 8:30 to 9; men, 9 to 10.

A special meeting of the Fourth of July Community Celebration committee will be held in the Y. M. C. A. tonight.

The Washington School will be closed tonight.

BELIEVES SUFFRAGE MEASURE WILL PASS

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, President of State Ass'n, Encouraged By G. O. P. Convention.

The New Jersey Suffrage president, Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Plainfield, who has just returned from Chicago, commenting on the insertion of a woman suffrage plank in the Republican platform, says:

"We believe that this plank will be of tremendous help to us in our state work. We also feel confident that the Democratic platform will contain a similar plank, and with both parties pledged to the principles of woman suffrage 'as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of the country,' to quote the Republican platform, I do not see how we can fail to pass our Presidential Suffrage bill at the next session of our Legislature.

"The New Jersye member of the Democratic platform committee is James R. Nugent, and naturally we do not expect his support, but such prominent Democrats as Attorney General Westcott, U. S. Senator Hughes, Banking Commissioner La Monte and Congressmen Scully and Hamill are honorary members of the New Jersey Suffrage Association, and we hope that their influence may be able to outweigh even that of Mr. Nugent.

"I personally interviewed a number of the New Jersey Republican delegates at Chicago, and found that even those who were not suffragists were willing to support our plank, because they recognized the importance of attaching to their party if possible the four million women voters of the West, two million and a half of whom will cast their first vote for President next November.

"One of the humorous things which served to raise our spirits after our long march in the rain on Wednesday was the speech of Mrs. George, of Massachusetts, before the platform committee in oppositon to the plank. Speaking in a city where over a million women not only can vote but do vote in large numbers whenever they have the opportunity, Mrs. George said that if given the ballot women would not be interested in using it. Then, too, she said she was convinced that only a small handful of women throughout the country desired the ballot, and while she talked line after line of the marching women came pouring into the Coliseum where the committee was sitting until they filled practically every seat on its big floor. They were there from New Hampshire and Florida, from California and Rhode Island, sixty had come from New York, fifty from Pennsylvania, thirty from Massachusetts, ten from New Jersey. As a matter of fact women were there from every state except Louisiana, and even far-away Alaska was represented. It was the biggest nation-wide gathering of women this country has even seen."

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

AMERICAN FLAG IS 139 YEARS OLD TODAY

Entire Country From Atlantic to Pacific Is Celebrating Birth of "Old Glory"

Washington, D. C., June 14.—One hundred and thirty-nine years ago—on June 14, 1777—Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

Today the entire country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, will resound with the acclamations of a free people in celebration of the birthday of the emblem of their nationality. In all the large cities and in the town halls and schoolhouses of small villages and hamlets alike the days when the hand-made symbol of a body of united colonists fighting for self-respect and liberty will be recalled and the story of the struggle for the maintenance of an asserted independence will be told in oration, recitation and music.

Wherever the loyal and patriotic societies have headquarters and wherever the youth of the nation can be gathered to be given inspiration from the chronicle of America's struggle, accomplishment and progress, the bells will today ring out and the call of patriotism will be answered.

In the nation's capital Old Glory has waved triumphantly from public buildings, from all important business houses and even the quietest streets, loyal citizens, with one accord, displayed the emblem of union, freedom and enlightenment. Pennsylvania avenue, always the main artery of the capital, was today especially the current where the stream of national pride showed itself. Hundreds of flags were floating. Large flags and small flags, and upon the coats of the men, little button-hole flags. In the public schools, from kindergarten to graduating students of the high schools, every heart throbbed with jubilation, and teachers, pupils and parents united in exercises.

The big spectacular event of the day was the Flag Day parade in the interest of the preparedness movement. For the first time within the memory of the oldest inhabitant of Washington, a President of the United States was seen marching on foot in a public procession. President Wilson, accompanied by nearly all the members of his cabinet and the heads of the various departments of the government, walked at the head of the parade from the peace monument to the post office department building, where he dropped out of line to review the procession. After the parade the President was escorted to the Washington Monument lot, where he delivered the Flag Day address to one of the largest crowds ever seen in the capital.

WORKINGMEN LOSE NINE DAYS A YEAR

Twenty-five Out of Every 1,000 Employes Constantly Incapacitated By Illness.

Twenty-five out of every 1,000 employees in American industries, according to recent statistics, are constantly incapacitated by sickness, the average worker losing approximately nine days each year on this account. This "non-effective rate" for the great army of industrial workers in the United States barely suggests the total money loss to employers and employes. The lessened efficiency, the effects of reduced earnings in times of sickness, as well as the cost of medical attention and the economic loss from deaths, swell the cost to industry and to the nation to almost incalculable figures.

That much of this loss is nothing less than preventable waste and that this waste can be largely reduced by a properly-conducted system of governmental health insurance for wage workers are conclusions set forth in Public Health Bulletin No. 76, containing the results of a study of "Health Insurance; Its Relation to the Public Health," just issued by the United States Public Health Service.

The preventive value of health insurance is given especial emphasis in this study. "Any system of health insurance for the United States or any State should, at its inception, have prevention of sickness as one of its fundamental purposes," says the bulletin. "This country should profit by the experience of European countries where prevention is being recognized as the central idea necessary to health insurance if health insurance is to attain its greatest success in improving the health and efficiency of the industrial population."

Such a system, it is pointed out in the bulletin, would

1. Provide cash benefits and medical service for all wage-earners in times of sickness at much less cost than is now possible. Adequate medical relief would thus be placed within the reach of even the lowest-paid workers who are most subject to ill-health.

2. Distribute the cost among employers, employes and the public as the groups responsible for disease-causing conditions and afford these groups a definite financial incentive for removing these conditions. This can be done by means of small weekly payments from employes, supplemented by proportionate contributions from employers and government at a rate reducible in proportion to the reduction of sickness.

3. Become an effective health measure by linking the co-operative efforts of the three responsible groups with the work of National, State and local health agencies, and by utilizing these agencies in the administration of the health insurance system.

4. Afford a better basis for the co-operation of the medical profession with public health agencies.

5. Eliminate the elements of paternalism and charity-giving by making employes and the public, as well as employers, joint agents in the control of this fund.

"A governmental system of health insurance," concludes the study, "can be adapted to American conditions, and when adapted will prove to be a health measure of extraordinary value."

"SUFFS" "WALKLESS PARADE."

St. Louis, Mo., June 14.—Amid all the hubbub and confusion accompanying today's opening of the Democratic National Convention, one of the outstanding features that attracted most attention from the delegates and visitors was the "walkless parade" of the woman suffragists. For many weeks the suffrage organizations had been recruiting members to take part in this exceedingly unique demonstration. Nine o'clock this morning found rows upon rows of white-clad women, decked with yellow streamers and sashes and carrying picturesque yellow parasols, forming a complete line around the Jefferson Hotel and the Coliseum, the two central points for the delegates, so that every man, as he came and went all day long, was surrounded and confronted by the visible indication that women all over the United States want the vote; and, moreover, want a suffrage plank in the Democratic platform.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The noontide meeting for business women and girls will be held as usual on Thursday, from 11 till 2 o'clock. The leader will be Miss Winifred E. Mann, physical director of the Y. W. C. A. An attractive program has been planned, including special music.

Miss Mann will be at the tennis court at Central avenue and Randolph road from 3 until 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to play wih or instruct any girls in tennis.

On Friday, at 7 p. m., an important rehearsal of the orchestra will be held at the association. A full attendance is especially desired, as there will be practice for the concert which is soon to be held for the benefit of the camp and conference fund.

WILL GIVE SONG RECITAL.

The Marchesi Club will give a song recital under the direction of Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft, at her studio, 420 Babcock building, this city, this evening at 8:15 o'clock. Russel Snively Gilbert will be the pianist.

How Electric Power Increases Output

TALK ON POWER NO. 8

Using 300-H. P.

Public Service Electric Co., Jersey City, N. J.
Gentlemen:
Regarding the power and light service in our Jersey City plant, we beg to advise that we have been using it for the past thirteen years, starting with 25 horsepower and increasing the amount until at present we are using approximately 300 horsepower, and take pleasure in advising you that same is giving entire satisfaction.
Yours truly,
MAGNUS COMPANY,
(Sgd) W. S. Bostwick,
General Manager.

In nearly all engine-and-belt-driven factories there is more or less loss in output

—Due to machines operating below normal speed

—Because of slipping and breaking of belts and sudden fluctuations in load.

Careful tests made in the factory of a nationally known firm proved that fluctuations in load produced a variation in the speed of the machines and caused an underproduction of 18%.

Then electric motors were installed.

Because of the principles on which it is built a motor draws sufficient power to maintain its normal speed under any load within certain limits.

Therefore the speed of the machines mentioned was maintained at normal.

—And the output was increased through the use of electric power.

We are serving more than 10,000 power users from our great inter-connected system of 22 generating stations and 61 sub-stations. Some of these customers are among the largest power-users in the State; for instance:

Brighton Mills	1,000 H. P.
Armstrong Cork Co.	874 "
Armour & Co.	959 "

If you purchased Public Service power for your factory you could then be free from the worries and expense of manufacturing power.

—And could devote more of your attention to the maximum output and sale of your goods.

You would then have an abundant supply of reliable power any time of the day or night.

You would pay for only the power required to operate the particular machines needed for overtime.

—And you would have an elastic source of power that could be increased economically, as your business grew.

Let us make tests in your factory. It will cost you nothing and may save you much. Telephone or write our Agent.

Sometimes a store will decide to perform a real "stunt" in value-giving on some special line. You may be sure that in all such instances the ad-readers will have earliest knowledge of the details.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

AUTOMOBILE KILLINGS.

When two or three murders are reported in a county within a space of a few weeks, there is public clamor for action on the part of the authorities, as the Trenton Times says; and the numerous shooting and cutting affrays have resulted in the enactment of laws prescribing severe punishment for all who are convicted of carrying guns, knives or other dangerous weapons. Within a month one Newark police judge held five men for manslaughter with automobiles, and the last Mercer County Grand Jury is said to have investigated three such cases.

It cannot be that the public has come to regard such killings as unpreventable and as a necessary result of the introduction of motor vehicles. If so, it is a false assumption for automobilists to declare that a machine is under much better control than a horse, and that with the exercise of the same caution there is even less danger of an accident in driving an automobile than in driving a horse attached to a carriage or business wagon.

Men, women and boys who are unacquainted with the ordinary rules of the road, and who know but little of machinery, are licensed to drive automobiles through the congested streets of cities, and their recklessness and disregard of the law too often goes unpunished and even unnoticed. If one does happen to get into trouble, at once political and social influences are brought to bear for his protection, and too often successfully.

Instead of spending $9,000,000 in building better roads that will encourage defiance of the speed laws, the State might better use a portion of the money in enforcing those laws, and incidentally in teaching automobilists to use that caution which is so necessary for the protection of themselves and other users of the streets and roads; and it would not be amiss if the manufacturers who are making millions of dollars in building motor vehicles, co-operated in the effort to reduce the number of "accidental" killings.

One question that is being asked in all voting precincts of the country just now is "What will Roosevelt do"? An answer must be forthcoming soon. There are just two things that the Colonel can do. He cannot lead the Progressive party in a repetition of the 1912 massacre of the Republicans. He has cried out too long and too strong against the evils of Wilson rule, and can find too little antagonistic to his own declarations in the Republican platform or the personality of the Republican candidate. Mr. Roosevelt will not commit political suicide, and carry the Moose party to an ignominious death, by any such action. He can support Hughes by taking the stump for him and fighting in the open, and this is what his friends prediet and his real admirers hope for. There is another course of action open to Mr. Roosevelt. He can play hands off in the coming campaign, withholding his indorsement of Hughes and his platform, thereby advising, by implication, the Progressives to look to Democracy for light. This is what the Wilson admirers are playing for.

In assessing a fine of $10 against a young man in police court yesterday Judge William De Meza warned all minors not to misrepresent their age to saloon keepers. He will deal severely with all who are found guilty of this, he said, and he thereby gave evidence of his fairness in administering justice. There is a responsibility upon the saloon keeper in the matter of selling to minors, and it is a grave one, but the responsibility of the buyer should not be lost sight of. In the case that was before Judge De Meza a father had accompanied his minor son into a bar and insisted that the boy was over twenty-one. The man behind the counter would hardly have been within his rights in refusing the boy a drink, unless he had positive knowledge that the father was lying. In this case the blame was on the parent, but the boy was also guilty of violating the law in misrepresenting his age, and punishment for both was just.

For the first time since the war began an ally of the German Empire is threatened with the loss of a greater part of its army. Through the spring offensive of Russian troops, Austria was forced to draw from her men on the Italian front, and now she is hard pressed on either side. Train loads of prisoners are being sent back to Russia every day, and each morning report brings stories of important posts lost. The Kaiser is aiding. He gave 150,000 troops and Hindenberg, who is worth a division or two in himself, but the tide is not stemmed. Up to now the Allies have been content to turn back the advance of the Germans and their aides, but it seems as though the turning point has been reached and the superior strength of numbers and resources had begun to tell at last.

If President Wilson appoints Senator O'Gorman, of New York, to succeed Justice Hughes on the Supreme Court bench, the "loyal" Democrats who have been hurling ridicule at the Hon. James E. Martine will have to cease their jabbering. O'Gorman was the bitterest opponent of senatorial confirmation of the Brandeis appointment. He has been a Wilson foe practically all his term in office. Such signal recognition of the New Yorker will naturally mean that his sins against the administration are forgiven, when compared to the anti-Wilson activities of O'Gorman, Martine's sins are as snow to scarlet.

Even money is being bet in New York city that a German submarine will dock there July 5. The British admiralty has been given full warning of the complete schedule of the first undersea liner to undertake a trip across the Atlantic, and English threats are met with laughter. The boat can carry $1,000,000 worth of drugs, which are badly needed in Germany just now. If it successfully breaks the blockade the world will be more forcibly impressed with the fact that to German science and audacity nothing is impossible.

Never Satisfied.

No matter if the weather's hot
Or if the weather's cold,
Some folks think that they have got
A call to cuss and scold.
The kind we all desire, you know,
Has never yet been made,
No matter if it's 10 below
Or 90 in the shade.
The optimist is one who can
Sit down and twirl his thumbs,
And never knock the weather man,
But take it as it comes.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION PEN POKES

- Proctor's Theatre -

The headline dramatic feature at Proctor's to-day is William Fox's "Sins of Men," one of the most enjoyable pictures released of late, which is largely brought about by the remarkably clever infusion of comedy of character, offset by splendid human touches, and an entirely unexpected denouement. The credit for this must go chiefly to Director James Vincent. His work here shows distinct originality, in the handling of the story, in the maintenance of continuity, and in the introduction of touches of relief. The cast, which is headed by Stuart Holmes and Dorothy Bernard, is superior throughout, and works cleverly in keeping with the tone of the production, which is not permitted to get over serious for long. Among the large cast are such talented artists as Hattie Burks, Stephen Grattan, Alice Gale, Tom Burrough, Pauline Barry, Emily Fitzroy, George S. Trimble, and last but not least, little Kittens Reichert. In addition to "Sins of Men" to-day the management presents the 16th episode of "The Iron Claw," and several comedies. On Thursday, the main dramatic feature is a Triangle play entitled "Not My Sister," and starring charming Bessie Barriscale. The plight of a woman who must either confess to her husband a dark chapter in her past, or else confront a still worse situation in the present, is the dramatic element of this production, and will hold the spectators with the grip of intense interest and suspense throughout its entirety. Other features to-morrow include a Keystone comedy entitled "The Moonshiners," and a three-part drama of sterling worth. On Friday and Saturday, in addition to the regular program of all-star attractions, Charlie Chaplin will be presented in his second Mutual comedy entitled "The Fireman," which is acknowledged to be the greatest laugh provoker in which this peer of funmakers has yet appeared. On Saturday morning at 11 o'clock the management will present the first chapter of the "Secret of the Submarine" absolutely free to all school children.

"Resista," a doll girl in a short silk frock and blue waist, has set aside the eternal laws of gravitation, reversed the order of nature, paralyzed the muscular energy of any number of strong men, 5,872 up to date, and demonstrates the force underlying these manifestations at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

It is ridiculous to say this young girl does these feats by main strength, for it would be simply impossible for any person to be so strong or strong enough to resist the force of a number of muscular men who are exerting all their strength to overcome the peculiar power or influence she exercises.

Is it animal power? Is it psychology? Perhaps it is a little of both. If it were only magnetism, it could not always be made so over a piece of wood or lifeless matter.

But it is possible for a combination of the animal magnetism and the psychic force to accomplish the results that are shown, provided these two forces are possessed in a remarkable degree.

Until some satisfactory answer can be given to these manifestations, the popular mind will crave a solution of them—odic? mesmeric? or physic?

In addition to "Resista," Manager Shannon has prepared a spicy program of five other big time acts. The succeeding episode of "The Iron Claw" will be shown to-morrow afternoon and night.

--Astor Theatre--

Daniel Frohman presents Pauline Frederick in a vivid adaptation of Mary Johnson's celebrated noval and play, "Audrey," adapted by Harriet Ford and E. F. Boddington, produced by the Famous Players Company. Pauline Frederick, whose beauty and powerful emotionall histrionism have made her the foremost dramatic actress on the screen today, is the star of this wonderful production. In "Audrey," Miss Frederick abandons the sirenic roles which she has so wonderfully presented in "Zaza" and "Bella Donna," and several other powerful dramatic Famous Players productions. In addition to this wonderful photoplay we will show the second episode of "Who's Guilty?" "When Love is King," an Edison photodrama released through Kleine-Edison features, will be shown at the Astor Theatre tomorrow. "When Love is King" deals with the experiences of a youthful king of one of the present warring nations who balked at the idea of marrying a princess selected for him by his councilors, instead of being permitted to make his own choice. He flees to the United States and finally obtains employment in the house of J. P. Morton, a New York multi-millionaire, who has a beautiful daughter. After many stirring incidents, including an attempted assassination and an interrupted elopement, Papa Morton solved a problem by buying a kingdom in Europe, titles and all, and thus making it smooth sailing for Dan Cupid, the self-exiled king and the new princess. In addition to this big production we will show the first and second parts of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance"—first part to be shown at 2:30 p. m.; second part at 3 p. m.

FATHER TOOK MINOR SON INTO SALOON--GETS LECTURE

When he admitted in police court that he had entered a saloon with his minor son and drank with him, Edward Eskersen, was put on the black list in both Plainfield and North Plainfield. His testimony was given in the case of his son, Edward Eskersen, Jr., who was arraigned on a charge of being disorderly by fighting and resisting an officer. When it developed that the young man was not twenty-one Judge De Meza fined him $10 for having misrepresented his age to the saloon keeper. The other charges were dropped. The father was given a severe lecture by Judge De Meza.

24 DOG OWNERS ARE UP IN POLICE COURT

Twenty-four dog owners were in police court yesterday as a result of the recent order of Chief Kiely to round up the owners who have not yet secured their license. Policemen are watching for those who have failed to comply with the law and more will be ordered to court soon. All of those arraigned this morning were given suspended sentences upon their promise to get a license during the day. Judge De Meza told them a fine would be assessed if the matter was put off longer.

PERSONAL.

Thomas Douglas, of East Third street, has returned to work at the Hall Press Works after being confined to his home for one week by a serious illness.

Ernest Peck, formerly of this city who has been a member of the Coast Artillery Corps and located most of that time at Key West, Fla., has retired from the service and returned to Plainfield.

Charles Greer, a former well known resident of Plainfield and at one time connected with the Plainfield Evening News, returned yesterday to his home in Rockville, Conn., after a few days' visit with local friends.

MR. DAVIS' INJURIES SERIOUS.

Richard Davis, of 435 West Second street, who was knocked down by an automobile at Newark Saturday, was injured more than was at first reported. He is now confined to his home under the care of a physician, suffering from a fractured ankle, a broken toe and other hurts about the body. After being treated at the Newark City Hospital, he was brought to Plainfield by Michael D. O'Keefe and Sergeant Dennis O'Keefe, both of whom are Spanish War veterans and who were attending the veterans' parade in which Mr. Davis was to have carried the banner for Camp Bagley of Plainfield.

SECOND NIGHTS TO MEET.

A meeting of the Second Night Club will be held in Columbus Club auditorium Friday night for the purpose of perfecting plans for the preparedness dance and reception to be given under the auspices of that organization in the near future. All committeemen and members are urgently requested to be on hand as business of an important nature will be transacted.

BUYS PART OF LANE FARM.

Recorder Fred W. Hand, of the borough, has purchased the forward half of the Lane farm, situated on Lane avenue, and occupied for many years by the family of Percy Ohl. The portion purchased by Mr. Hand contains thirty-three and one-half acres and does not include any part of the lake or meadow land located in the rear. The deal was made on a basis of speculation and represented an outlay of about $20,000.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

The annual strawberry festival held under the auspices of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be given on Saturday afternoon and night, June 17. The affair will take place on the grounds surrounding the church.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS TO MEET.

The Camp Fire Girls of Hope chapel will hold a meeting Friday night in the chapel to discuss plans for a "hike" to be held Saturday afternoon and their summer camp.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What a Fiddler Met In a Big Woods.

He Stopped In Front of the Fiddler.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

"CAN you think of a story, daddy?" asked Jack.

"Oh, lots!" cried daddy. "I know one right now about a fiddler that met a wolf, a fox and a hare in a big woods. When they liked his music and wanted to learn to play the fiddle he always managed to catch them. He even tied a string around the hare's neck and told her to run twenty times around an oak tree. Of course when the silly hare did this she wound herself up into a prisoner, and the harder she pulled to get away the faster she tied the string. Instead of teaching her to play the fiddle, 'Wait till I come back,' said the musician.

"But the wolf, which the fiddler had left caught in a tree trunk under a stone, scratched the stone away. He was so angry at being caught that he said, 'I will tear that rascally fiddler to pieces!' When the fox, which was left hanging in a hazel bush, saw him he cried, 'Pray, Mr. Wolf, let me down from this bush where the fiddler tried to hang me!' So the wolf gnawed the bush in two and set free the fox. When they passed the hare they bit her string in two and, all free now, set off together to find their enemy, the fiddler.

"Meanwhile the fiddler had been playing away to find another companion. A poor woodchopper had been pleased with his music and was following it with his ax under his arm. Now, the fiddler was delighted at last to find a man for a playmate. So he played no tricks on the woodchopper, but instead stopped and fiddled merry tunes till the woodchopper's heart overflowed with joy.

"While they stood in the woods enjoying the good music the woodchopper looked up and saw the wolf, the fox and the hare coming. Their faces were very angry, and he knew at once that they were in a great rage about something. He also knew that they had come to do all the mischief they could.

"So he stepped in front of the fiddler and held up his big ax as much as to say, 'No one shall hurt him while I have this good ax.'

"The wolf, the fox and the hare stopped suddenly and looked at the big woodchopper standing in their way. And what do you think they did?"

The children guessed and guessed.

"They were so frightened that they ran off into the deep woods just as fast as they could scamper," said daddy.

"So the woodchopper and his ax saved the fiddler a good beating. Then he played his friend all his merriest tunes for the good help and then went happily through the woods on his journey," said daddy.

"Thank you, daddy!" cried the children.

Marrying a Butterfly

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Vetoes Ralph's Plan for Making Her a Real Housekeeper.

"Do you know what I have been thinking of?" Ralph Gordon looked down at the troubled childish face with its delicate coloring. Ethel was sitting on a stool at his feet with her dimpled chin resting on her clasped hands.

"No, tell me."

"I have been thinking that we will start a private school here, and teach my little girl to be a good housekeeper." The pink rose to the forehead as she asked:

"Who'll be the teacher?"

"I've got that all figured out. I'll ask my mother to come and visit us for a month. We'll send the girl home for a vacation, so she will not be a witness to the lessons and at the end of the month——"

"Indeed you'll not!" Ethel sprang to her feet, her eyes flashing fire. "Your mother never liked me. She tried every way to keep you from marrying me. I'll certainly never let her come here to teach me housekeeping in my own home."

"Ethel, you do not understand mother. She had nothing against you personally. She only realized as we are beginning to do, that a poor man can not get along with a wife who does not know a thing about making a home. She knew what was ahead of us; we did not——"

"You need not say a thing about it to me," interrupted Ethel. "I suppose you are sorry that you did not take her advice. You should have married a woman who could work and do your cooking, and scrubbing, everything, in fact."

"Ethel, I have not deserved this. I am only trying patiently to think out a way to help us out of our difficulties. We can not go on this way. We are running behind all the time. If there was a school of domestic science here or any place where you could take a course——"

"I am not going to go to school like a child. It is absurd," snapped the spoiled little woman.

"I thought you would rather have mother come and give you private lessons. No one would know a thing about them and it would be a good chance to get acquainted with her. She would love you, I know. All she ever had against you was your ignorance of——

"I told you once that I would not have her here." Ethel stamped on the floor with her tiny slipper. "You do not love me or you would not want to humiliate me like that." Ethel burst into tears and started to leave the room. Ralph caught her in his arms and drew her to his knee.

"Why, girlie, what is the matter? I can not understand you. Mother is a capable housekeeper and she would be willing to help us out for the sake of our future happiness. We could begin all——"

"I will not stay here and hear you talk like this. I will not listen." Ethel's voice was choked with sobs. "That would be a nice way to try to have a daughter-in-law and mother-in-law get along together: to have them begin as pupil and teacher. I must say you——" Again the storm of tears washed away her words.

"Well, what are we to do?" Ralph's tone showed that he, too, was nearing the limit of his endurance. "We can not go on this way; that is one thing sure."

"You had better send me home if you are tired of me," wailed the spoiled child.

"Oh, come, talk sense. I am too tired to listen to high tragedy." There was such utter disgust in Ralph's tone that Ethel took the handkerchief from her eyes, rose from his knee and went to her room. Ralph did not try to detain her.

It is to be hoped that every Plainfielder will be wearing a rose pinned on their dress or in the lapel on their coat by some one of the hundreds of women "taggers" who will be scattered all over this city on that day.

These "taggers," dressed as nurses, will cover the city from the Plainfield Country Club on one side to the Park Golf Club on the other—from the Netherwood station at one end to the Clinton Avenue station at the other—and all sections of the city in between these four points of the compass.

That day has been chosen by the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital to ask all men, women and children of Plainfield—whether rich or poor—to contribute as much money as they are able to this most worthy organization which recognizes no creed—except the creed of helping the suffering.

FIGHTING NEAR TARNOPOL

Austrians Massing Great Forces on Northern Front, but Activity at These Points Is Not Great—Czar Takes Important Fortifications on the Ikwa River.

Petrograd, June 14.—The reports of the actual occupation of Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, by the Russians, were premature, but after the recent defeat of the Austrian Colonel General Pflanzer's army and the successful Russian operations in the immediate vicinity of Czernowitz official news of the fall of the city is momentarily expected here. The Zale Szczyky point of support officially announced as captured was one of the most important positions on the Dneister line of fortifications.

The two other most important sectors of the front extending from the Pripet river to Roumania are the regions south of Lutsk and north of Tarnopol. From the reports of the precipitate Austrian retreat from the former region it is inferred here that the Austrians were compelled to relinquish their most important position on the Ikwa front—the Torgovitsa fortification, which is located at the junction of the Ikwa and Styr rivers. The occupied position is of the greatest strategic value. Here the same fate overtook the Austrians as at Mlynoff, on the Ikwa east of Torgovitsa. Finding themselves the target for an intense artillery bombardment from three sides, the garrison fled in disorder.

Great Battle Around Tarnopol.

In the sector around Tarnopol there has been the most furious and sustained fighting of all. Upon the outcome of this engagement the safety of Lemberg depends, and the Austrians are straining their utmost to prevent further Russian advances. Taking the initiative in the region of Gliadki and Verobievka, they are launching a continuous series of attacks and making considerable gains, but only to have the newly carried positions wrested from them by the Russians in counter attacks.

North of Lutsk the Austrians are known to be massing considerable reenforcements, but there seemingly is a temporary lull in the fighting in this region. The only point on the entire front where the Austrians succeeded in pressing back the Russians is north of Buczacz, but the outcome of the struggle here has not yet been decided, and the Austrians' gains have been offset by Russian progress south of Buczacz.

WILSON IN A PARADE.

Marches at Head of Preparedness Procession In Washington.

Washington, June 14.—President Wilson, members of the cabinet and a large number of senators and representatives are marching today in Washington's preparedness parade.

The parade committee estimates that fully 70,000 are in line. Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for the presidency, had expected to march, but conferences in New York prevented him participating.

Public schools and all government departments are closed. Most stores followed suit.

The president marched in the first division, which assembled at the Peace monument at 9 a. m. The line of march is down Pennsylvania avenue. On reaching the White House Wilson left the parade to review it from a stand in front of the executive mansion.

Malleable Glass of the Egyptians.

Strabo and Josephus both affirm that the Egyptian glass workers were so well skilled in their art that they imitated the amethyst and other precious stones to perfection. Malleable glass was one of the secret arts of the ancients, the formula for making it being now reckoned as lost. Strabo mentions a cup of glass which could be hammered into any desired shape, the material of which it was composed being as ductile as lead.

HERE'S THE BACKBONE OF THE CHAUTAUQUA

IT'S in the lecture numbers. Music and entertainment there will be—and a-plenty of it. But the MEAT is in the five lectures. Talks like these are pace setters and thought stimulators. They make a man grow overnight. They lift him up as by his boot straps. They set him thinking in new trains of thought. They broaden his horizon and give him a bigger look at things. Each day of the Chautauqua brings its special message in form of a lecture.

THE LIST:

LEE FRANCIS LYBARGER

of the Philadelphia bar on the first day. Millions of dollars that come from the pockets of taxpaying American citizens are wasted every year by means of pork barrel legislation in congress. It is one of the most serious questions confronting the nation. The methods of government expenditure must be corrected, and it is the duty of every citizen to give the matter his best thought. Another matter of importance is every man's duty to his community. Both of these great questions are discussed by Mr. Lybarger under the head "The Community Conscience."

ARTHUR DELROY

is president of the New York Psychic Club and an exposer of psychic fakes—mind reading, slate writing, etc. He is also an authority on character development by suggestion. His lecture he calls a "Psychic Melange," and it will be entertaining and to a certain extent mystifying as well as decidedly instructive. Second day.

FREDERICK WARDE,

distinguished Shakespearean actor. It is fortunate we have him here in this notable Shakespearean tercentenary year. He will appear in a lecture-recital which he calls "Shakespeare and His Plays."

DR. EUCLID B. ROGERS,

educator and orator. Dr. Rogers has won great popularity throughout the middle west, where he is best known, for his inspirational talks to young men and women. He is said to have influenced thousands to pursue courses of higher learning. He will speak on the fourth afternoon on "A Living or a Life."

ANDRE TRIDON,

Mexican war correspondent. Mr. Tridon was in Mexico as a correspondent for the Outlook and Independent at the time of the landing of the United States troops at Vera Cruz and has seen much of Mexico. He has degrees from four great universities, was trained for a diplomatic position and served three years as an attache at the Peking embassy. He will speak on the last day on "An Inside View of Mexico."

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

OLD SOL HAS A "HALF-NELSON" ON "JUP" PLUVIUS.

Outside of Teddy Roosevelt and Charlie Hughes, the veteran trouble maker, "Jup" Pluvius, had probably been the most talked of individual in the League of Common Gossip up to Monday. Further proof that old "Jup" isn't possessed of the brains of a jelly-fish came to light Monday when he let Old Sol pin his shoulders to the mat after reigning long enough to bust up a couple of City League contests Saturday afternoon. The local clubs were not the only sufferers, however, for there are sixteen big league pilots in the country to-day who would sacrifice the pennant for one square whack at this gent who has made his presence so conspicuous of late. Thousands of dollars have been lost by organized baseball inside of six days and some of the clubs have already started to figure how they are going to make both ends meet and at the same time be on top of the pile when the rags are handed around next fall.

• • • • • • •

SCHOOLBOYS CALLING "ROBERT TREAT" NAMES.

Nor did the rain conductor confine his efforts to creating a disturbance in baseball circles. More than a hundred of the country's best schoolboy athletes were slated to appear in Newark Saturday afternoon and a goodly number of these took a "rattler" to the Celebration City only to find that hostilities had been declared off owing to "wet grounds." Then and there the schoolboys kept up their daily training schedule by exercising their talk-boxes in telling home talent what they thought of the management of athletics in the New Jersey metropolis. The array present Saturday was of first-class calibre, but it is doubtful if the same bunch will be pulled together again on the postponed date.

• • • • • • •

TOO BAD THEY CAN'T ALL BE PENNANT WINNERS.

We haven't yet found a City League manager who will predict victory in the pennant race for any other team than his own. Despite the fact that a number of points separates the leaders from the cellarites every leader is polishing up his little speech of acceptance for the pennant and other prizes and the fun of it is that all are innocently confident. In the National League at least two managers see a championship coming to the Giants and while no one has offered a prediction it's a safe bet that more than one general could be counted upon to agree on a winner besides his own club in the American circuit. Only another instance in which the city loop differs from the major circuit.

• • • • • • •

Monday afternoon the Plainfield High School seniors took their last crack at the faculty athletes. Student athletes travel the four year circuit with this goal to drive at and by the time the end is reached the undergraduate element generally has a sufficient number of scores piled up to make hostilities interesting. After being buffeted around on the ball diamond Monday a majority of the teachers are probably a little sore and the students are hoping against hope that this soreness will hold out for the remainder of the school term.

• • • • • • •

Once more Plainfield's contribution to college circles is flocking back to the old soil. At least two localites returned with sheepskins this last week and the peculiar part of it is that both have completed courses in physical education. "Hub" Stine and "Goat" Nash, two of the best all around athletes ever turned out from these parts, are the notables in question and both have the idea that they are now capable of helping those interested to put sports on a higher plane of excellence. Well, there's plenty of room for improvement right in our own little city, so why not let home talent do the renovating.

• • • • • • •

Because certain City League brilliantines balked at hiking out to a ball lot when the clouds were hanging low last Saturday the circuit moguls have decreed that henceforth President Dobbins shall receive notification of postponements at least ninety minutes before game time. To satisfy fandom the league magnates might make the same rule about announcing extra inning contests the same length of time before they are started; or let us known beforehand whether or not the final scores are going to be more than 320 rods apart.

• • • • • • •

Juggling players is a mid-week pastime with the local loop. Jack Garretson was originally shipped to the Farmer A. C., and has now been bounced back to the Baptist clan. If Jack happened to be a performer of mediocre ability there might be some reason for this, but personally we can't see why in the Sam Hill any supposedly half-alive club could relinquish the services of Garretson without a scrap.

FITZ ALWAYS A QUICK FINISHER.

Bob Fitzsimmons was just as quick a worker in the matrimonial arena as in the ring, according to an interview with one of the Mrs. Fitzsimmons, published in the Milwaukee Journal recently. The Journal quotes Mrs. Fitzsimmons the third as follows:

"I was playing at McVickers Theatre, in Chicago, and Bob came back on the stage to see a Miss Saunders, another member of the company, whom he knew.

"He asked Miss Saunders to give him an introduction to me, and that evening while a party of us were dining at Rector's, Bob leaned over suddenly and asked me:

"'Say, will you marry me?'"

Mrs. Stockton and Mrs. Lawrence Defeat Opponents In Opening Rounds.

Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, former metropolitan golf champion, and present seeker after the same title, played wonderful golf yesterday in the first round of match play for the women's metropolitan championship at Baltusrol, and in defeating Mrs. C. J. S. Fraser, of Baltusrol, she turned in a medal score of 83. This is four strokes under the authenticated record made by Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, of Merion, in the qualifying round of the national championship at the Short Hills links in 1911, but as Miss Hollins did not hole out all her putts in the early part of her match, the former record of 87 must still stand.

Mrs. W. A. Gavin, of Cherry Valley, the imported player who is setting the domestic variety a fast pace in the golf world, came through her match against Mrs. Stephen P. Nash, of Baltusrol, with an 8 and 7 margin of victory. Mrs. Quentin F. Feltner, of South Shore, the defending champion, won from Mrs. L. J. Grumbach, of Hollywood, 4 and 3. Mrs. Grumbach defeated Mrs. Feltner in Florida this winter, and the champion has now evened up the score. Miss Georgianna M. Bishop, of Brooklawn, former national champion, successfully passed the first round with a victory over Mrs. Howard F. Whitney, of Nassau; Mrs. W. J. Faith, of Wykagl, won from Mrs. Gouverneur Morris, of Piping Rock, 6 and 5; Mrs. R. S. Stockton, of Plainfield, won from Miss Gertrude Pickhardt, of Englewood, 6 and 5—and altogether it was a good day for the favorites for the title.

In the first round of the fifth sixteen, Mrs. R. E. Moody, of Glen Ridge, defeated Mrs. C. B. Lawrence, Jr., of Plainfield, 5 and 4.

MISS WILDEY IN ARSDLEY CONTESTS

Local Tennis Star Started With Victory In Opening Play.

It became evident yesterday to those who are watching the progress of the Ardsley Club invitation tennis singles at Ardsley-on-Hudson, that it will be difficult to prevent Miss Marie Wagner from winning the Challenge Cup. The several time indoor champion showed at her best yesterday, and if she can hold the same form during the week bids fair to win her third straight tournament in as many weeks. In two matches, the first against Mrs. Louis G. Morris and the second against Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, the Barnard champion, Miss Wagner went along without losing a game for three whole sets. Mrs. Morris was outplayed, 6—0, 6—0, and Miss Gilleaudeau dropped every game of her opening set. Her double victory advanced Miss Wagner to the third round, and she is now one of sixteen survivors in singles.

Mrs. H. Stuart Green and her sister, Katherine Browning, played perhaps the most impressive doubles of the day in winning their opening match. Another Browning girl, Natalie, also advanced, with Miss Katherine Force as her partner.

In the first round of the doubles, Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Mrs. G. S. Dickinson defeated Miss Gertrude Della Torre and Mrs. Albert Humphries.

JUNIORS HAVE BEST ATHLETES IN P. H. S.

Daniels and Fields Star In Annual Interclass Meet on Parker Field.

The Juniors ran away with first honors at the annual P. H. S. interclass meet that was held between showers of rain on Parker Field yesterday afternoon by making a grand total of 47 points; the Sophomores finished second with 34 points; the Freshmen took third with 6 points and the Seniors showed up a poor fourth with one point.

Daniels for the Juniors, and Field for the Sophomores, were practically the whole show and hung up more than half the points for their respective teams. Daniels won a gold medal as individual point-winner, with 26 points; Field won a silver medal for second place with 19 points, and P. McDonough received a bronze medal for third place with 11 points.

Daniels and Fields fought it out between themselves for the runs and jumps, while the other events were fairly distributed. Fields was not up to his usual form and did not do well in the high jump, his specialty, even though he won it. The only Senior to win a place was Dunham, who secured third place in the mile.

The summary follows: 100yd. dash—Daniels (1917), first; Field, (1918), second; Hand (1919), third. Mile run—P. McDonough (1917), first; O'Donnell (1918), second; Dunham (1916), third. Broad jump—Field (1918), first, 19ft. 4 ins.; Daniels (1917), second, 18ft. 4ins.; Vail (1918), third, 17ft. 7ins. High jump — Field (1918), first, 4ft. 10ins.; Daniels (1917), second. Quarter mile—Daniels (1917), first, 55¼ secs.; Field (1918), second; P. McDonough (1917), third. 8lb. shot put—Daniels (1917), first, 42ft. 7ins.; Mills (1918), second, 41ft. 2ins.; Hooper (1917), third, 38ft. ⅛in. 220yd. dash—Daniels (1917), first, 25 secs.; Field (1918), second; Hard (1919), third. Discus—Mills (1918), first, 113ft. 10ins.; Vail (1918), second, 110ft. 10ins.; King (1919), third, 101ft. 5ins. Half-mile run — P. McDonough (1917), first; Hand (1919), second; O'Donnell (1918), third. Pole vault—Francke (1917), 7ft. 4ins.

COLUMBIAN GIRL PINNERS WILL PLAY AT PARK CLUB

The Columbian girls' bowling team, an aggregation which was formed from those misses who showed ability at the alley game on the Columbus Club alleys during the past winter will bowl a second series of three games with the First Presbyterian church five, of Dunellen, on the Park Club lanes tomorrow night. The teams have agreed on a three-match series, the first set of which was played on the Dunellen drives last week.

Although they were defeated in all three contests at the initial meeting, the Plainfielders are confident of "coming back" on local alleys and expect to even up the series with the Dunellenites and make a third meeting necessary.

ATHLETES ELECT.

At the annual meeting of the Zephyrs held in the High School gymnasium last night, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. J. C. Anderson; vice-president, Miss Emma Cook, and secretary and treasurer, Miss Magnolia Hines.

FINALS REACHED IN FIGHT FOR P. C. C. TENNIS TITLE

The semi-finals in the Plainfield Country Club women's singles were played on the club courts this morning, when Mrs. W. B. Tyler defeated Miss M. Brown, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4, and Mrs. Dudley Burrows defeated Miss Crane, 7—5, 0—6, 7—5. Mrs. Tyler and Mrs. Barrows will meet each other in the finals tomorrow or next day.

SAYS HUGHES IS PROGRESSIVE

for the protection of the people and of free institutions. That we should have a stong, well-equipped and well-proportioned navy appears to be a proposition not at all debatable, especially when the thousands of miles of seacoast are considered, and which face all continents. We should put ourselves in a position where it would be absolutely impossible for any enemy to make a successful landing on our shores, and I stand most heartily in favor of the Republican policy of a strong navy."

Mr. Ackerman was asked if the platform contained any ideas which appealed to him from a business standpoint. He responded by saying "That the plan for a national budget was most excellent; especially when consideration has been given to the increasing cost of the national government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources. The plan of a national budget would mean a systematizing of governmental expenses, and if laid down along proper lines would probably mean the saving of millions each year, and I hope that a Republican Congress and President will be elected in order to give this idea a fair trial after it has been thoroughly planned by experts competent to deal with this most important question."

Mr. Ackerman, when questioned as to what he thought of the tariff policy of the Republican convention, said: "The action of the convention was most conservative, thoughtful and constructive on that question. The plan for reasonable protection, giving labor and capital their complete rights cannot in justice be questioned by any American citizen having at heart the future welfare of the nation, and especially so, when the declaration calling for reasonable protection carries with it the demand for the creation of a tatriff commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of Congress; so that labor and all other costs may be fairly determined, thereby guaranteeing the fullest amount of equity to the American people."

When asked what he thought of the candidates and the results of the convention, Mr. Ackerman said: "The nomination of Charles E. Hughes is most excellent and I am sure he will prove to be a strong and winning candidate. It is a case of the office seeking the man and I feel as the campaign progresses that that fact will appeal with great force to the voters of the country. The Republicans have a clean candidate with a clean record who has and will be willing to make sacrifices for the country. By resigning as Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States he gives up a life office to become a candidate for President at this critical period in the country's history. The ringing statement he made in accepting the nomination clearly proves that he stands for America, first in industry, in preparedness and equality for all men before the law.

As Governor of New York everybody knew where he stood and the people of that State fully appreciate his sterling honesty, and history will repeat itself in that respect if he is elected President of the United States."

Mr. Ackerman continued: "We are very fortunate in the candidate for Vice-President. Mr. Fairbanks is a statesman who has previously held that office and in the event of necessity he would be qualified because of ability, training and experience to competently fill the great office of President. That is a contingency which should never be slighted when choosing a Vice-President."

In reply to the question as to whether he thought the Progressives would support Hughes, Mr. Ackerman said: "Very many favorable indications now point to united action between the Progressives and Republicans in the coming campaign. It filled me full of inspiration when I heard a staunch friend of Roosevelt like Medill McCormick, owner of the Chicago Tribune, say: 'It is our duty to join with every energy at our command in the spirit and purpose of this convention, and to help elect the candidate of this convention. And for that reason, following my conscience and my duty, I shall vote for Charles E. Hughes.'

"I heard Senator Lodge say, after Mr. Hughes was nominated: 'This great convention has chosen as its candidate a strong, able, distinguished, upright man and a thorough American. He should have the cordial support, not only of every Republican from one end of the country to the other, but of every man who honestly believes in America.'

"Pownall, one of the leading Progressives of Maryland, said: 'Certainly I shall enthusiastically support Mr. Hughes. Why not? He was a Progressive long before the Progressive party was organized.'

"Mr. Hughes has also been congratulated by the five Colorado delegates who voted for Roosevelt in the convention, and by Henry L. Stimson, of New York, a close friend and advocate of Col. Roosevelt. Some of the Illinois delegation who voted for Roosevelt and afterwards helped make the Hughes nomination unanimous are publishing notices at their own expense in the Chicago papers calling upon all Republicans and Progressives to unite in electing Hughes and Fairbanks.

"I feel confident," Mr. Ackerman concluded, "that next November the voters of the United States will register their approval of the ticket nominated in Chicago."

FRED PHILLIPS' NEW POSITION.

Fred R. Phillips, who was formerly works manager at the International Motor Company's plant in this city, but more recently connected with a large manufacturing concern at Kennett Square, Pa., has entered upon a new position on the official staff of the Sergeant Arms Company at Utica, N. Y. The plant is one of the largest of the kind in that part of New York State and the appointment of Mr. Phillips is a decided advance for the former well-known Plainfielder. Mr. Phillips and his family, composed of his wife, his eight-year-old son Richard, and his five-months-old daughter Elizabeth, took up their residence in Utica last week.

WISEST LEADER SINCE CIVIL WAR

Wilson Thus Hailed by Martin H. Glynn, Temporary Chairman of Democratic Convention.

STATESMAN MOST PROFOUND

Americanism and Peace, Preparedness and Prosperity Are the Issues on Which the Democratic Party Stands. Its Promises Made Four Years Ago Have Been Faithfully Carried Out to the Nation's Great Advantage—Industrial Tyranny Has Been Throttled and the Golden Resources of America Set Free.

St. Louis, June 14.—With the assertion that no president since the civil war has had as crucial problems to solve, and no president has displayed a grasp more sure, a statesmanship more profound, as President Wilson, Hon. Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, opened the Democratic national convention here today. Declaring that "Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity, are the issues upon which the Democratic party stands, and the heart of Democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party as it hails the man who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity," he predicted the re-election of President Wilson.

HON. MARTIN H. GLYNN, Former Governor of New York.

Taking up our foreign relations that have been called into emphatic prominence by the world wide war, the speaker declared that "We have entered this ball as Democrats; we shall deliberate as Americans." * * * The policy of neutrality, he argued, is as truly American as the American flag. For 240 years neutrality was a theory; America made it a fact. "It took Washington and his successors eighty years of endless negotiation to win recognition of American neutrality. And this eighty years of struggle wove the doctrine of neutrality so closely into the warp and woof of our national life that to tear it out now would unravel the very threads of our existence." By the records of history Mr. Glynn maintained that if Washington and Lincoln were right President Wilson is right. The neutrality that President Wilson stands for today was advocated by Washington, by Hamilton, by Jefferson and by Lincoln.

Followed Examples of Greatest Presidents.

By citing precedents Mr. Glynn justified and defended the course of the president in the Lusitania and similar incidents. "In the face of this record," he asked, "do Republicans realize that when they arraign the policy of the president of the United States today they arraign the policy of Harrison, of Blaine, of Lincoln and of Grant? For the pleasure of criticising a Democratic president, are they willing to read out of the Republican party the greatest men the Republican party ever had? Are they willing to say that the Republican party of today condemns what Hamilton did in revolutionary days, what Lincoln did in civil war days, and what Grant and Blaine and Harrison did but yesterday?

"In his policy of peaceful negotiations today the president of the United States follows the example set him by the greatest presidents which the Democratic party and the greatest presidents the Republican party ever gave this nation."

Mr. Glynn impressed on his hearers that it was the business of this convention, "representing every section of the United States, speaking for every racial strain in America, to send forth a message to all the world that will leave no room for doubt.

"We must enable every real American to stand up and assert his Americanism. We must make the issue so clear that every ballot box in the land may become a monument to the loyalty of American manhood.

"The citizens of this country must stand behind their president because his policies are right. They will stand behind him because his policies are the policies which have brought the nation a century of prosperous and honored peace. They will stand behind him because they want these policies continued that prosperity prolonged, that peace assured."

Party Pledges Redeemed.

He pointed out that the promise made four years ago that a Democratic administration would liberate the nation from the chains of industrial tyranny has been carried out. He eulogized the federal reserve act and declared that the "scholar-statesman, whose rod has struck the golden rock of America's resources to set free the wealth imprisoned for half a century, is a Moses who has led America's industries from the wilderness of doubt and despair to the promised land of prosperity and hope."

The laws restraining big business from stifling competition, the trades commission act, the movement to foster expansion of American trade, the close union of economic, commercial and financial interests between the United States and the nations of South America are shown to be legislation of the widest benefit. The Underwood tariff Mr. Glynn characterized as the fairest and the best of all we have enacted. Under the present administration the United States has enjoyed a wonderful era of good business and good times.

American Ideals Fostered.

The American's ideals and his aspirations served as the basis for the speaker's opening discussion.

"We who stand today on the fertile soil of America, who live under the smiling skies of a free and fruitful land, must prove worthy of the trust that American sacrifice has imposed on every American.

"Disregarding the divisions that make one man a Tory and another a Whig, one man a Republican and another a Democrat, Americans will cast aside the tinsel of party labels and the mummery of party emblems.

"From the great pulsing heart of the nation will come a patriot command to crush partisanship and rebuke whatever is mean or blind.

"The command will be heard by the plowman in his field and by the laborer at his bench. It will reach the merchant in his office and the lawyer at his desk. We would be false to ourselves and recreant to those who send us here if we permitted any thought of partisan profit, any 'consideration of political advantage to obscure our vision of the tremendous issues now before the people of the United States. We must cast aside all that is selfish; we must hold ourselves worthy of a nation's confidence by offering only the best of our intelligence, the flower of our patriotism toward the solution of what all men perceive to be a crisis in the nation's affairs."

The Paramount Issue.

In asking for an indorsement of the president's peace policy Mr. Glynn said:

"For two years the world has been afire. The civilization that we know has been torn by the mightiest struggle in its history. Sparks from Europe's conflagration have blazed in our own skies, echoes of her strife have sounded at our very doors. That fire still burns, that struggle still continues, but thus far the United States has held the flame at bay, thus far it has saved its people from participation in the conflict.

"What the people of the United States must determine through their suffrage is whether the course the country has pursued through this crucial period is to be continued, whether the principles that have been asserted as our national policy shall be indorsed or withdrawn.

"This is the paramount issue. No lesser issue must cloud it, no unrelated problems must confuse it."

In declaring that the policy of neutrality is as American as the American flag Mr. Glynn asserted that:

"The first president of the United States was the first man to pronounce neutrality a rule of international conduct.

"In April, 1793, Washington declared the doctrine, and within a month John Jay, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, in an epoch making decision from the bench whose realization would insure universal and perpetual peace, wrote the principle into the law of this land. The Declaration of Independence had foretold it by declaring 'the rest of mankind enemies in war, in peace friends.' The constitution recognized it, but the first president of the United States by proclamation, the first chief justice by interpretation, gave it vitality and power.

Stands With Washington.

"The president of the United States stands today where stood the men who made America and who saved America. He stands where John Adams stood when he told King George that America was the land he loved and that peace was her grandeur and her welfare. He stands where General Grant stood when he said there never was a war that could not have been settled better some other way, and he has shown his willingness to try the ways of peace before he seeks the paths of war. He stands where George Washington stood when he prayed that this country would never unsheath the sword except in self defense so long as justice and our essential rights could be preserved without it.

"For vainglory or for selfish purpose, others may cry up a policy of blood and iron, but the president of the United States has acted on the belief that the leader of a nation who plunges his people into an unnecessary war, like Pontius Pilate vainly washes his hands of innocent blood while the earth quakes and the heavens are darkened and thousands give up the ghost."

Republican Party False to Its Traditions.

Speaking of the opposition to the president's peace policy, the speaker continued:

"By opposing what we stand for today the Republican party opposes what Hamilton stood for a century ago. The founder of the Republican party and the founder of the Democratic party, placing their country's happiness above every other consideration, forgot partisanship and made American neutrality a national creed. We who follow Jefferson stand where Jefferson stood, but we look in vain for a sign from the present leaders of the Republican party to show that they follow where Hamilton led. Where Hamilton counseled moderation they denounce it. Where Hamilton thought only of country they think only of self. Where Hamilton placed patriotism above partisanship they place partisanship above patriotism. How then do they dare to speak for the great body of American citizens who form the rank and file of the Republican party? Do these leaders believe that their Republicanism is a better Republicanism than Hamilton's, their Americanism a purer Americanism than that of Washington?

"If Washington was right, if Jefferson was right, if Hamilton was right, if Lincoln was right, then the president of the United States is right today. If the Republican leaders are right then Lincoln was wrong and Jefferson was wrong and Hamilton was wrong and Washington was wrong."

The justification of our policy of neutrality is expressed by Mr. Glynn in these words:

"Before this declaration every war was a world war; since this declaration nearly every war has been a local war. Before this declaration war was a whirlpool, ever increasing in area and in its whirl dragging down the nations of the earth; since this declaration war has become a sea of trouble upon which nations embark only from self will, from self interest or the necessity of geographical position, of financial obligation or political alliance.

Neutrality Kept Us at Peace.

"Neutrality is the policy which has kept us at peace while Europe has been driving the nails of war through the hands and feet of a crucified humanity.

"The praises of this policy are not written in the ruins of American homes, not on the wreck of American industries, not in the mourning of American families; they are found in the myriad evidences of prosperity and plenty that make this a contented land. From every whirling spindle in America, from every factory wheel that turns, from every growing thing that breathes its prayer of plenty to the skies, from every quiet school, from every crowded mart, from every peaceful home goes up a song of praise, a paean of thanksgiving to hymn a nation's tribute to the statesmanship that has brought these things to pass."

The issue raised by Democracy's opponents of the vigor with which our neutrality has been enforced is dealt with by the records of history:

"When Grant was president, during the war between Spain and the Spanish West Indies, a Spanish gunboat seized the vessel Virginius flying the American flag and a Spanish commandant in cold blood shot the captain of the Virginius, thirty-six of the crew and sixteen of the passengers.

"But we didn't go to war. Grant settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Harrison was president the people of Chile conceived a violent dislike to the United States for our insistence upon neutrality during the Chilean revolution. When this feeling was at its height one junior officer from the United States warship Baltimore was killed outright in the streets of Valparaiso and sixteen of our sailors wounded, of whom one afterward died.

Negotiation Better Than War.

"But we didn't go to war. Harrison settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Lincoln was president this country's rights were violated on every side. England, Russia, France and Spain were guilty of such flagrant violations that Secretary of State Seward advanced a plan to go to war with all of them at one and the same time.

"But we didn't go to war. Lincoln settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president is trying to do today.

"When Pierce was president the British minister in this country and three of his counsel violated our neutrality during the Crimean war. We gave these representatives of Great Britain their passports and sent them home.

"But we didn't go to war. Pierce settled our troubles by negotiation just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Van Buren was president a detachment of Canadian militia, during the internal troubles in Canada, boarded the United States ship Carolina in the American waters of Niagara river, killed an American member of the crew, fired the ship and sent her adrift over Niagara falls.

"But we didn't go to war. Van Buren settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Jefferson was president England seized hundreds of our ships and Napoleon hundreds more.

"When Adams was president France preyed upon our commerce. She extended her seizure, searches and confiscations to the very waters of the United States themselves until she had piled up in our state department charges of over 2,300 violations of neutrality's law.

"But we didn't go to war. Adams settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today.

"When Washington was president and, 'neutrality' first declared, war convulsed Europe our ships dared not to put to sea, commerce was paralyzed and business depressed. American passengers and American crews were thrown into prison and deprived of legal rights.

"But we didn't go to war. Washington settled our troubles by negotiation, just as the president of the United States is trying to do today."

Advocates of War Confounded.

In concluding this issue Mr. Glynn asks:

"Do the critics of the present administration believe that Lincoln should have risked national disaster by using the sword rather than the pen in pressing the Alabama claims? Are they willing to brand Grant as a coward because he kept us at peace with Spain?"

In answer to those who say that President Wilson's policy does not satisfy any one Mr. Glynn replies: "He means that it does not satisfy those who would map out a new and untried course for this nation to pursue, but they forget it does satisfy those who believe the United States should live up to the principles it has professed for a century and more.

"Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court says this policy has given America the greatest diplomatic victory of the past generation. Maximilian Harden, Germany's noted editor, says 'that never once has this republic violated its neutrality,' and Gilbert K. Chesterton, the famous English journalist, says 'it is the duty of the president of the United States to protect the interests of the people of the United States;' that 'he can't dip his country into hell just to show the world he has a keen sense of being an individual savior.'

"This policy," Mr. Glynn continued, "may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire eater or the swashbuckler. But it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the god of peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag have sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag and die for our flag when reason primes the rifle, when honor draws the sword, when justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.

"Fighting for every degree of injury," he maintained, "would mean perpetual war, and this is the policy of our opponents, deny it how they will. It would give us a war abroad each time the fighting cock of the European weather vane shifted with the breeze. It would make America the cockpit of the world. We would be so busy settling other people's quarrels that we would have no time to attend to our own business."

Preparedness For Defense.

In his treatment of the issue of preparedness Mr. Glynn asserts that the genius of this country is for peace.

"We have built our greatness on the resources of nature and the peaceful toil of our people. The ring of the anvil, not the rattle of the saber; the song of the reaper, not the shriek of the soldier; the clatter of the shuttle, not the crack of the rifle, have won us the place we occupy in the councils of the world.

"Like the old Mohawk chief who loved peace, we would like to throw the tomahawk of war so high in the sky that no man's hand could ever pull it down. But when some other tribe among the races of men sends us a bundle of arrows wrapped in the skin of a rattlesnake we want, like old Governor Bradford of Massachusetts, to be in a position to send that rattlesnake skin back stuffed with powder and with ball.

"We have been carried too close to the rocks of war during the past two years to believe that those rocks do not exist. And looking into the future we can perceive that if our sovereignty is not challenged, if our peace is not assailed, it will only be because the world knows that we are strong enough to defend ourselves from every foe.

"For these reasons this administration has done more for our army and our navy than any administration in our history.

"More than this, it has mobilized the resources of the nation to meet the needs of war. It has placed the wealth of the country back of the strength of the country, the toiler back of the soldier and the sailor.

"And to our opponents we say you can't create an army, can't create a navy, in the course of a day. To them we say if our navy is not strong enough, our army not big enough, the Republican party is 80 per cent to blame, for the Republican party has been in control of this nation 80 per cent of the time during the past fifty years.

"The Democratic party advocates and seeks preparedness, but it is preparedness for defense, not preparedness for aggression.

"It is the preparedness which builds the nation's house upon a rock, so it will not fall when the rains descend and the floods come and the winds blow.

"A regard for national surety as well as a pride of personal honor will therefore bring the American people to the support of their president. Whether their blood is drawn from the banks of the Rhine, or where the river Shannon flows, whether they hail from Alpine valleys or the meadows of the Pyrenees, whether their descent be German or French, Irish or English, Austrian or Italian, Russian or Greek, the men who have sworn an oath of fealty to the ideals of America will be true.

"They may love the lands of their fathers much, but they love the land of their children more. They may cherish the memory of the sod from whence they sprang, but they stand ready to die for the soil that they have hallowed with their homes."

Democracy Has Kept the Faith.

In his review of our domestic policy the temporary chairman pointed that the promise made by democracy four years ago had been faithfully kept.

"Today the prosperity which the nation enjoys bears witness that democracy has kept the faith. Today the gates of opportunity are open; the hosts of special privilege stand disarmed. Today the forces of government are encouraging, not blocking the full expression of the nation's progress. Today the business man, the artisan and farmer find themselves free to enjoy the fruits of their labors, unhampered by the sinister power of special privilege or the selfish oppression of 'invisible government.'"

Of the federal reserve act Mr. Glynn had this to say:

"In the panic of 1907, under the old system, New York could not lend a country bank $50,000 with which to meet factory payrolls; in 1915, under the new system inaugurated by this Democratic administration, New York loaned Europe $500,000,000 even though the financial centers of the world were disrupted by the world war, and there were still left in New York the largest bank deposits in its history.

"If this Democratic administration had performed no other public service than the enactment of the federal reserve act it would deserve the unstinted approval of a grateful nation. Thanks to the Democracy and to Democracy's great leader, the business man who is struggling to establish himself may now work out his destiny without living in terror of panics and hard times. The toiler in the factory may ply his tasks in security, knowing that his employer's business is safe from assault. The farmer who must borrow to move his crops may do so without spending his days in anxiety, his nights in nightmares of foreclosure and disaster.

"The Underwood tariff," declared the speaker, "enacted by this administration, has banished greed from the gates of our ports and written justice into our tariff schedules.

"Of all the tariffs we ever enacted this is the fairest and the best.

"Until the foreign war reduced importations no new tariff was ever more satisfactory. The highest protective tariff ever written would probably have given us no more revenue during this European war, and a higher tariff on raw material would have hampered our manufactures. A higher tariff on the necessaries of life would have placed a woeful burden on the poor man in the conditions which the war abroad has brought about.

"By the Underwood law this administration has taken the tariff out of politics; by the new tariff commission it proposes to take politics out of the tariff."

Plenty Fills the Land.

In the discussion of prosperity Mr. Glynn made particular reference to our industrial condition.

"Today prosperity shines from blazing furnaces and glowing forges. It echoes from busy docks and from thronged emporiums of trade. Its message of plenty fills the land with the chant of the spindle and of loom, lifting the mortgage from the poor man's home and promising his children a future that seemed impossible before.

"During the past four years this country has experienced a steady and continuous improvement in business. Wealth has increased 21 per cent, the value of manufactured products 39 per cent, capital 43 per cent, wages 54 per cent and exports 77 per cent. The floodtide of our prosperity has risen to such an unprecedented height that the only limit to trade is our ability to make and transport the commodities demanded at home and abroad. Our fields and our factories cry aloud for men and unemployment has ceased to be a problem. Wages have advanced, building operations have resumed, real estate has recovered its worth.

"There is not an idle car on our railroads or an idle ship at our docks. For the first time in history America's greatest port has become the world's greatest port.

Great Increase of Wealth.

"The purchasing power of our people is greater than that of any other people on the globe. Never was there as much money in our vaults as today. The aggregate resources of our national banks are $300,000,000 more than the aggregate resources of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Bank of Russia, the Reichsbank of Germany, the Bank of the Netherlands, the Swiss National bank and the Bank of Japan. We have $401,000,000 more than we had a year and a half ago, and our gold supply exceeds by many hundreds of millions the gold supply of any other nation on earth.

"This avalanche of money poured into our pockets by the rest of the world as a tribute to our national resources and our fidelity to peaceful industry is not the measure of our prosperity. It is only the symbol. Compared with our trade at home this foreign trade is a mere pittance. Our domestic commerce today is larger than the foreign commerce of all the nations of the world combined.

"Against this actual condition our opponents raise an argument of 'ifs.' With greater truth we can also enter the realm of conjecture and declare that if another candidate had been elected four years ago the United States would be at war today. A ton of 'ifs' do not weigh as much as a single fact. Our opponents forget that 'if' the flight of the seagulls off the coast of the West Indies had not directed his course Columbus would not have discovered America when he did. But the seagulls were there—'ifs' cannot banish them—and Columbus found our land."

Chairman Glynn concluded with praise for President Wilson, who, he said, has measured up to the best traditions of a great office.

The Man Who Has Made Democracy Proud.

"He has been wise with a wisdom that is steeped in the traditions of his country, with a wisdom that has been disciplined by training and broadened by instruction.

"He has been firm with the firmness that proceeds from deep conviction, with the firmness that is grounded in a duty well defined.

"He has been patient with the patience which believes and trusts that truth crushed to earth will rise again, with the patience that can endure and wait, watch and pray, for the certain vindication of justice, humanity and right.

"He has been patriotic with a patriotism that has never wavered, a patriotism that is as pure and strong as the faith that moved the fathers when they made our country free.

"And when the history of these days comes to be written and the children of tomorrow read their nation's story, when time shall have dispelled all misconception and the years shall have rendered their impartial verdict one name will shine in golden splendor upon the page that is blackened with the tale of Europe's war, one name will represent the triumph of American principles over the hosts of darkness and of death.

"That name will be the name of the great president who has made Democracy proud that he is a Democrat and made Americans proud that he is an American.

"It will be the name of the statesman who has kept his country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the student and the scholar who has championed the cause of American freedom wherever he found it oppressed; the name of the patriot who has implanted his country's flag on the highest peak to which humanity has yet aspired; the name that carried the torch of progress to victory once and will carry it to victory again—the name of Woodrow Wilson, president and president to be."

TWO CANDIDATES DEFINE AMERICANISM

Hughes and Wilson Start Their Campaigns In Earnest.

New York, June 14.—To emphasize his opposition to "hyphenates" and dispose of the report that he is their candidate, Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee for president, said to a group of reporters when questioned concerning "Americanism" at his headquarters in the Hotel Astor:

"My attitude is one of undiluted Americansim. Anybody who supports me is supporting an out and out American, an out and out American policy, and nothing else.

"I had thought that I stated my position on this subject very clearly in my telegram to the Republican convention, but if there is any doubt about it I am ready to say it again."

Wilson's West Point Speech.

West Point, N. Y., June 14.—Speaking to the first West Point graduating class he has addressed, President Wilson sent out into army life 125 graduates of the United States Military academy with his interpretation of Americanism, the responsibility their position imposes and the understanding that the true purpose of American preparedness is to strike only when it is patriotically necessary and then to strike to conquer.

Americanism is wholly America first, he told "you boys" and "you youngsters." They—the 500 or so under class men gathered in front of him, bareheaded in the strong sun—and the 700 other spectators, including aged graduates of the academy, applauded this and every other reference the president made to what America stands for and where it stands when threatened.

Following is President Wilson's definition of Americanism:

"Americanism consists in utterly believing in the principles of America and putting them first as above everything that might by chance come into competition with it. And I, for my part, believe that the American test is a spiritual test. If a man has to make excuses for what he has done as an American I doubt his Americanism."

Hughes Favorite In Betting.

New York, June 14.—Chester Thompson, a curb operator, reports an offer to bet $60,000 to $50,000 on Hughes, with no takers. This, he says, is the largest single offer that has been made. He says there is no Wilson money yet in sight, but he believes this will be the biggest betting campaign on record.

SUCCESS OF MILITARY EXHIBITION ASSURED

History of Watchung Troop Ass'n Has Been Marked by Growth and Efficiency.

There is every indication that the military exhibition and drills to be given at the horse show grounds, Woodland avenue and Randolph road, Saturday afternoon, will be an unqualified success. The majority of the boxes have been sold, but there are a number of good seats in the grandstand still to be had. The Watchung Troop Association, under whose auspices the affair is given for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, has engaged a brass band and the program of events will be well worth seeing, especially as this will be the first time that the public has had an opportunity to witness the troopers in action. The exhibition being held at the same time that "Rose Tag Day" is observed should be the means of stimulating interest in the efforts to raise money for the hospital.

Ever since Troop D was organized on March 30, 1915, it has been a most energetic military body and has made an excellent record. The troop began drilling the first Tuesday following its organization with a membership of seventeen. From that time until the close of the drill season in July drills were held twice each week. With the balance of the troop this platoon attended the cavalry manoeuvres at Mount Gretna, Pa., in the middle of July. In October a practice march was held near Plainfield and the regular weekly drills were resumed about September.

Later in the season, owing to the growth of the Plainfield platoon and the gradual decrease in the membership of the Hoboken platoon, troop headquarters were removed to Plainfield, which has since been the station of the whole troop, the Hoboken platoon finally disbanding entirely.

Troop D now has a membership of fifty-five officers and men and is constantly growing. The members are proud of the fact that out of sixty-four organizations firing the record course at Sea Girt last August, Troop D stood eleventh from the top, although it was their first attempt at this work. It is the ambition to acquire a permanent home for the troop with adequate accommodations for horses and the equipment with a drill ground large enough for the whole troop to drill without being cramped as at present.

In view of the fact that the organization has grown from a platoon to a troop and that the members have worked conscientiously and hard the past year they feel that they are justified in expecting the hearty support of the citizens of Plainfield. It is realized that much of the success is due in a large measure to those persons who have already contributed so generously of their time, their services and their money, and every member of the troop appreciates this fact.

BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP CAST BIG VOTE AGAINST

Fanwood borough and Fanwood township both returned an overwhelming vote against the proposition of substituting a small Board of Freeholders for the present board in yesterday's special election, the borough casting 12 votes for and 69 against, while the township cast 18 for and 165 against.

Sentiment throughout both of these municipalities even before yesterday's test appeared to be decidedly against the ousting of the present incumbents, but the difference in the vote proved a surprise. On the whole the vote was about normal in both places, and considerable enthusiasm was displayed over the result.

MRS. THACHER WILL SPEAK.

The annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held to-morrow at the rooms on Madison avenue, Babcock building, the sessions being at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. At 3 o'clock Mrs. Ella Hoover Thacher, world's and national superintendent of soldiers' and sailors' work, will give an address on her trip around the world. All interested are invited.

PREPARATORY SERVICE.

Services preparatory to communion will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church to-night at 8 o'clock. The Session will meet afterward to confer with those who contemplate uniting with the church at the communion service on Sunday.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS.

Postmaster A. E. Hoagland will receive bids until June 23 for carrying the mails between the postoffice and the North avenue station. Interested bidders can get full information from the postmaster.

Weather Forecast.

Fair and warmer Thursday; light variable winds.

HIS FORMAL REPRIMAND.

It Was Not Exactly the Kind He Was Asked to Administer.

Dr. Simon Parvin, an English clergyman, was at times absurdly absent-minded. Once while he was visiting in the home of a very great lady who employed a large staff of servants, whom she kept under extremely rigid control, it chanced that two young footmen fell out about a pretty housemaid who had coquetted with both and so far forgot themselves as to engage in fisticuffs. The old countess was indignant. Her first intention was to dismiss the culprits, but they were excellent servants, and, moreover, the repentant maid tearfully interceded for them. The countess relented so far as to reduce the sentence to a formal reprimand before the other servants—a reprimand in the nature of a moral lecture to be duly administered by her distinguished guest. At her earliest request—she was herself confined to her room by gout—Dr. Parvin, a man of imposing presence and resonant voice, permitted himself to be escorted to the servants' hall. On his return she sent for him to come to her chamber to relate the result of his mission.

"A fine couple," said Dr. Parvin. "I should say, an excellent match."

"Match?" inquired the countess. "What match? Has the silly girl made up her mind between them, then? I vow, I thought she meant to jilt them both, and serve the boobies right. Pray tell me, how did John and Thomas receive their reprimand?"

"John? Thomas? Reprimand?" echoed Dr. Parvin vaguely; then, with a sudden dismaying flash of memory: "Dear me, I fear I have made a singular mistake! When I entered the room the younger servants were at the far end in a group, and the butler and housekeeper were together, quite near, immediately in front of me, in fact, standing side by side, and—in short, madam, I married them!"

He had, indeed; but, although astonished, they were fortunately not unwilling. They had, it happened, long been contemplating matrimony and were deterred only by fear of the countess' disapproval. Believing that she would not disapprove the act of her eminent guest, they had readily abetted Dr. Parvin in his error. The countess was angry, but her anger fell chiefly upon the absentminded divine. She gave him a piece of her mind that—if he had been any one else—he would not easily have forgotten.—Youth's Companion.

Two Ways of Studying Music.

Picture to yourself a little girl of seven or eight seated before that ponderous and portentous mass of iron, steel, wood, wires and hammers which we call a "pianoforte" (sixty pounds of tender, delicate humanity trying to express itself through a solid ton), her legs dangling uncomfortably in space, her little fingers trying painfully to find the right key and at the same time to keep in a correct position, struggling hard the while to relate together two strange things, a curious black dot, on a page and an ivory key two feet below it, for neither of which she feels much affection. And then picture to yourself the same child at its mother's knee or with other children singing with joy and delight a beautiful song.—Thomas Whitney Surette in Atlantic.

A Matter of Money.

A wealthy stockbroker who gave an imposing dinner, says the London Telegraph, dilated with much pride, but with mangled English, on the delicacies that he had provided. Everything in season and out of season, he declared, was at the disposal of his guests.

"I notice you have no aspirates," observed one of them quietly.

"No more I 'ave," replied the stockbroker, with crestfallen visage, "but if money can get 'em," he added, "I'll 'ave some of the best in the market next time you're 'ere."

Not to Be Pitied.

Pat (to Mike)—I got a letter from a friend.

Mike—Yes?

Pat—He says: "Every rib's gone, I've only one shoulder, and I expect my legs will be gone by the time you get this letter."

Mike—Poor fellow! Is he in a hospital in France?

Pat—No; he's in a butcher's shop.—Exchange.

Mexican Beauties.

The most beautiful women in the world are said by experienced and observant travelers to be the Indian women of the isthmus of Tehuantepec, which lies just north of Yucatan, in Mexico. They add to their picturesque attractiveness by wearing whatever fortune they may possess in the form of gold coins strung about the arms and neck.

The Very Idea!

HE TEMPTS DEATH

Deadly Dangers a Nitroglycerin Maker Must Face.

NEVER IS SURE OF HIS LIFE.

Any Moment the Worker In a Nitrator May Be Blown to Atoms—A Calling That Demands Coolness, Prudence and Daring—One Man's Experience.

Nitroglycerin is made by ordinary sweet glycerin acting with a mixture of strong sulphuric and nitric acid. The glycerin is dropped by a very thin stream slowly into a mixture of three parts nitric and five parts sulphuric acid. During the process the containing vessel is kept cool by a water jacket, and the acid mixture is agitated by a stream of cool air. The temperature is maintained at about 80 degrees. After the operation the whole mixture is drawn off into a tank and is allowed to stand in this vessel, cooled by a water jacket. The glycerin, which is now nitroglycerin, immediately begins to come to the top like cream on milk. This is at once taken care of and is put through various processes to cleanse it of all remaining traces of acid.

In no department of our plant must greater care be exercised than in the nitrator, which is the name given to the building where nitroglycerin is manufactured.

Explosions are frequent, and it takes a man of iron nerve to conduct this department. It is like going into battle every day. Yet in the face of this we have one man who has successfully made nitroglycerin for twenty years, and he lives to tell you about it, only he won't. He is as reticent as the sphinx.

Like any other man of great courage, he does not boast, and John Viewberger will talk about anything except the miracle of his continued existence. I can only say that Divine Providence, a cool head and hands and a stout heart have kept him at his work.

The acid fumes that fill the building at all times when nitration is taking place have long since eaten away the very teeth in his head, but not his pluck. It is a fact that he is provided with a new set of false teeth on an average twice a year. The hair on his head has long ago disappeared, and the fumes have tanned his skin to the color of bronze until he resembles a cave man of old. And yet he has never had a day of sickness in these twenty years. He thinks, as I do, that no disease, no matter how virulent, could successfully combat the nitric fumes that he inhales. So his work has its compensations, if you are pleased to look at it that way.

While nitration of glycerin is going on Viewberger sits on a high stool, his arms stretched over the nitrating machine, one hand on a faucet that controls the flow of glycerin into the acid, the other hand on a valve regulating the cooled compressed air that is forced into the mixture and his eye glued to the thermometer that extends well down into the mixture. I have said that the glycerin undergoes nitration at a temperature of 80 degrees. The temperature is regulated by the quantity of glycerin that flows into the acid. If the temperature begins to rise above 80 degrees he closes his valve slightly, reducing the flow of glycerin, and increases the flow of cool air.

Any little foreign substance that might get into the mixture, even through the acid of glycerin or otherwise, would cause immediate trouble. The slightest leak in the water cooling coils, permitting a little water to get into the mixture, would be the signal for the thermometer to do a marathon, and in a few minutes the whole mixture would reach the degree of heat that would result in an explosion. Viewberger cannot desert his post when the temperature begins to rise rapidly. This condition frequently takes place, and most of the time it can be reduced by cutting off the flow of glycerin entirely and by turning on the air to the full pressure of fifty pounds. Sometimes, however, in spite of all, it will continue to rise, and Viewberger knows or feels that he has lost control. He must leave his mixture to its fate and "dig out."

His building, the nitrator, is located on a hill higher than its surroundings. The hill is a high sand dune. Immediately back of the stool on which he sits is a big door that is always left open when he is manufacturing. Viewberger's method of exit or getaway is to jump out of this door and roll down the hill. While he is on his way the explosion takes place. He has done this some twenty times and yet has never received an injury. He has never been struck with flying debris, although the air is filled with flying pieces of lead and iron. Does history record a greater miracle? Dug out of the sand semiconscious from the impact of an explosion, in the course of half an hour he has been quite himself again, ready to go to work if need be, his only regret being the loss of property sustained by the company.—Willard Fay in Collier's Weekly.

Reason For Joy.

"What a beautiful girl that is standing over there!"

"I'm glad to hear you say so. She is my daughter."

"Hallelujah!" he said to his wife when the mother had departed. "For once in my life I struck it right!"—Detroit Free Press.

SHE WAITED IN VAIN.

Pathetic End of a Romance Lasting Over Thirty Years.

Many years ago while studying in Boston I lived for a time in a private boarding house of the Back Bay. As most of the guests were wealthy widows, I named it the House of Veils. Among those coming in from the outside to take their meals was Miss Adams, a descendant of the historical Adams family and a woman of about sixty years.

She was engaged to be married and had been engaged for more than thirty years. Her lover called, took her to dinners and the theater, sent her flowers and sweets as in the days of their youth. Those who knew her told me this story:

While still young she had been left an income sufficiently large to maintain herself in comfort, but not enough for the upkeep of a home such as she thought befitted her station in life. So she lived in lodgings, while her fiance cared for his widowed mother, who lived to be very old.

At the time to which I refer her lover held a responsible position, and the only obstacle in the way of their marriage was the aged mother.

They were devoted lovers at sixty and had been devoted lovers for thirty years. Being the longest engagement of which I had ever heard or read, I was interested to know the ending of a story so unusual in life.

Some years after, meeting a former guest of the House of Veils, I asked about Miss Abigail Adams. The mother had outlived the son!

A sad and lonely old woman was still living in lodgings, looking back to the pride and selfishness of her youth, which had cost her a home and all that home might mean.—Chicago Tribune.

MEMBERS OF HOUSEKEEPING CENTER RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Six members of the Housekeeping Center attached to the Young Women's Christian Association on East Front street received diplomas this afternoon after satisfactorily completing the two-year prescribed course in domestic science. Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, under whose auspices the center is conducted, presented the following graduates with diplomas: Misses Estelle Homann, Nettie Lusardi, Madeline Spring, Dorthy Coon, Gladys Bye and Irene Daly.

The following girls were awarded certificates for successfully completing the first year's work: Misses Elizabeth Harper, Margaret Harper, Helen Mika, Cornelia Emmons, Eleanor King, Albertina Klemser, Louise Bloore, Rose Austin, Marjorie Martin, Marguerite Roth, Helen Bolen, Cynthia Clark, Evelyn Rose, Marion Rose, Elizabeth Barry, Martha Drake, Ida Marcaesiano, Marie Van Winkle, Ruth Nichols, Jocelyn Horne, Mary McDonough and Florence McDonough.

Perfect attendance prizes of one dollar were awarded the Misses Elizabeth Harper, Cornelia Emmons, Eleanor King, Rose Austin, Marguerite Roth, Evelyn and Marion Rose, Elizabeth Barry, Marie Van Winkle, Estelle Homann, Nettie Lusardi, Madeline Spring, Dorothy Coon and Irene Daly.

The Housekeeping Center has completed nearly five years of successful work in the city, the present instructor in charge, Miss Beatrice Gardner, having been here for the past three years. On July 5, Mrs. Gardner will begin her summer course each afternoon from 2 to 4:30.

ARE YOU THE LUCKY ONE?

Somewhere on this page the name of a Plainfielder appears. If it is yours clip out the column in which you find it and bring it to the Plainfield Daily Press office, where you will receive in return a book containing twelve admission tickets to the Plainfield Airdome, valued at $1.20. A name will appear each night on this page; if you don't happen to be the lucky one tonight continue to watch. The tickets are good at any performance and will entitle you to the same privileges enjoyed at this popular amusement center by those who pay.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

SAY ! Mr. Motorist

Is your auto equipped with a Fire Extinguisher? If not, why not? "PYRENE" is a Fire Extinguisher that will put out auto fires quickely.

The danger in automobile fires is greater than many think. Deaths from fires caused by accidents are numerous and all could be prevented if "Pyrene" were handy.

You can save 15% of your insurance premium if your car is equipped with "Pyrene." Don't wait until the horrible accident has occurred—seek safety NOW.

Last Saturday's Evening Post and our show window tell the story. Come in.

4% SAVINGS BONDS

SERVICE

The first series of our 4% Savings Bonds matured on June 1st. Those who have paid in $25 monthly for the past 38 months, received more than $1,000; those who have paid in less than this, received relatively proportionate amounts.

All the participants agree that the method has proved of great assistance to them, and many feel that they could not have acquired an investment fund without such an aid.

New series are now being opened. Full information may be obtained on request.

HEARING BEFORE STATE OFFICIAL

Commissioner Enright Conducts Inquiry Into School Teacher's Demand.

BOARD IS DEFENDANT

Fanwood Officials Must Show Cause for Dismissal of Miss Merrill—School Clerk Admits He Didn't Know Where Kindergarten Was.

Testimony classed by Assitant State Commissioner of Education John C. Enright as irrelevant, unnecessary and unimportant occupied the attention of interested parties in a hearing at Scotch Plains this morning in the case of Mary Tucker Merrill, a deposed school teacher, against the Fanwood Township Board of Education, demanding salary she alleges is due her under the terms of a contract expiring this month and protection under the Tenure of Office Act. Francis J. Blatz, appearing as counsel for the board, in opening the case declared that Miss Merrill, who lives in Roselle, and who is president of the Union County Kindergarten Teachers' Association, was dismissed when the class was abolished, the number of pupils being taken care of in the limited space demanding the exclusion of one class. If this is proven true when the hearing is continued this afternoon Commissioner Enright will in all likelihood refuse Miss Merrill's demand for back salary and legal protection, inasmuch as the act in question gives school boards the right of dismissal in case of diminution of pupils or when the class is done away with for good reason.

Aside from frequent verbal tilts between Counselor Blatz and R. C. Nicols, of Jersey City, who represents the petitioner, the hearing this morning developed nothing of interest or material value to either side. Thomas C. Nichols, for twenty-five years district school clerk for Fanwood township, admitted on the stand that he knew that a kindergarten had been conducted for five years up to December 1, 1915, but he could not enlighten counsel as to where it was located. He admitted visiting the schools on various occasions, other than nights on which the Board was scheduled to meet, but confessed to be unfamiliar with the exact location of this particular class.

Mr. Nichols was the only witness examined up to the noon recess period, but questions directed at him during cross-examination by Miss Merrill's attorney indicated that much valuable information would probably be developed during the examination of Supervising Principal S. Dana Townsend, who followed him on the stand this afternoon. Counsellor Nicols attempted to show through the clerk that prejudice had been openly shown against Miss Merrill and that other unsuccessful attempts had been made to oust her.

The petitioning parties admitted all of the points cited in the Board's reasons for dismissal and demanded an immediate settlement for salary due under the terms of the contract, but decision was reserved on this by Commissioner Enright who decided to throw the case "wide open" and hear all of the facts pertaining to the situation.

One of the matters which will be cleared up through Mr. Townsend's testimony will be whether or not the supervising principal called a meeting of the teachers on Labor Day, a legal holiday. The purport of the question directed at the clerk by Mr. Nicols was not explained, but the answer laid at rest any belief that the Board had given Mr. Townsend authority for calling the meeting.

Considerable interest was manifested in the hearing this morning, more than fifty school teachers and townspeople being subpoenaed as witnesses. The entire school board and the complaining witness also appeared. It is likely that the case will be concluded this afternoon.

In several different instances counsel for the petitioner indicated that the matter would be taken up in the civil courts if action taken at this hearing is not in favor of his client, the trying of the case today being a mere formality necessary under the law before it is brought into civil court.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The Hillside Cemetery Association, at its annual meeting on Tuesday, elected these officers for the coming year: President, O. T. Waring; vice president, Charles W. McCutcheon; secretary-treasurer, Edward H. Ladd, Jr.

MISS CLARA RUNYON BRIDE OF A. C. BACKER

Rev. J. Y. Broek Performs the Ceremony in Presence of Relatives and Friends

Miss Clara B. Runyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Runyon, of 252 Somerset street, became the bride of Arthur C. Backer, also of this city, at a ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents, yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated, in the presence of a gathering of relatives and intimate friends of the young couple.

As the bridal party entered the parlor, Miss Cora K. Backer, a sister of the groom, played the wedding march. Miss Runyon was given in marriage by her father. The bride was attractively attired in a gown of bridal satin with irridescent trimming and wore a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Maude P. McAfee as maid of honor. Miss McAfee wore a becoming frock of white tulle over flesh color satin and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. William M. Backer, a brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. The rooms were prettily decorated for the event, pink and green being the prevailing color scheme.

Following the wedding a reception was held and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Backer left for a short honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside in North Plainfield. The bride was the recipient of scores of handsome gifts, among which were cut glass, bric-a-brac, furniture, and many others too numerous to mention. Both Mr. and Mrs. Backer are popular among the younger set in the borough and Mrs. Backer was graduated from the North Plainfield High School in the class of 1911. Mr. Backer is engaged in business in New York.

EAST SIDE CHILDREN ENJOY AN OUTING

Forty-two Kindergarteners From New York Guests at Home of A. M. Harris.

Forty-two bright, lively youngsters from the East Side, New York, are guests today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, on Central avenue, this city, the trip here being arranged by Miss Rae Harris, their daughter, who is a teacher in a kindergarten in New York, attended by these children.

The trip to Plainfield was made in a special coach attached to the train reaching Plainfield at 10:46 this morning, and auto busses conveyed them from the North Avenue station to the Harris home. The entertainment for the youthful visitors was strictly informal and they had the time of their lives enjoying the hospitality of their host and hostess. At noon a sumptuous "spread" was provided, and it was a sight never to be forgotten by the children, as well as the others present.

The return trip to New York will be made at 4 o'clock this afternoon. It has been the annual custom to give the children a day's outing in the country, and this year Miss Harris arranged to entertain them at her home.

PROSPECTIVE BRIDE GIVEN A SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Jeanette Neal, of West Front street, was the guest of honor at a surprise shower given last night by Miss Anne Mauger, at the latter's home, 22 Compton avenue. Miss Neal's marriage to John Parry, of Brooklyn, will take place on Saturday, June 24.

The guests had a novel way of presenting the gifts to Miss Neal, who found the presents in various nooks. As she found one an appropriate verse directed her to the next gift and so on until every one was recovered. Linen, silverware, cut glass and chinaware were included in the assortment the young woman received. At a late hour refreshments were served.

On June 1, the pupils of Miss Neal's class in the Lincoln School of Cranford, presented her with a handsome cut glass vase.

JOHN B. M'COY DIES IN HIS 37TH YEAR

John B. McCoy, well known in this city, died at his home in Bound Brook last night, following a lingering illness. Mr. McCoy was in his thirty-seventh year and beside a wife leaves his mother, three sisters and many nephews and nieces. A number of the latter reside in Plainfield. Until his illness prevented his doing so, Mr. McCoy was employed as foreman on the New Jersey Central, occupying this position for twenty-two years. The funeral will be held at his late home on John street, Saturday morning, and later in the Catholic church of Bound Brook with Rev. Father Rudden in charge. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery at that place.

LOSES SAVINGS OF A LIFETIME

Young Polish Girl Puts $648 in a "Money Machine."

TRUSTED HER LOVER

Aged Matchmaker Held at Police Station in Hopes of Getting Information That May Lead to Arrest of Confidence Men.

Annie Gomasces, a young Polish girl, lost $648 Sunday through the dishonesty of one whom she considered her future husband. An old confidence game was worked and because of the embarrassment of the girl, which prevented her from reporting the matter promptly, the men who got her money had four days' start before a search for them was begun.

The $648 represented Annie's savings of a lifetime. She is employed as a servant in a well known local family. The fact that Annie remained unmarried worried Josephia Rakowska, an aged native of Russian Galacia, who now lives on Cottage place. This woman acts as matchmaker for the young Poles of the city and she brought Annie to her home for the purpose of finding her a husband.

Two weeks ago Annie met two young men, both of good appearance and they seemed eligible. One was about twenty-four years of age and the other was even younger. The oldest was an instantaneous lover. He proposed marriage to the girl within an hour after his introduction. She told him she did not want to be married—at least not for a while, and they spent the evening in sociable games. Annie met them again last week and one of them had a small machine that he said would double money. He showed Annie that he could put in United States bills and have them come out doubled in denomination. A $5 bill was put into the machine and after a few turns of the crank a $10 bill dropped out. The aged matchmaker was sent to change it and she returned with smaller bills, showing that that it was good money.

Annie was convinced and her "future husband" persuaded her to draw her savings from the Plainfield Trust Company so that they might be doubled in the money machine. She went to the home on Cottage place Sunday with $648 in good money. The two young men were there and together they worked the machine. One of them dropped in the money, turned the crank a few times, and a great pile of bills dropped out the other end. Quickly they were rolled up, wrapped with paper and given to the waiting girl. She was told to take the package home and not open it until she got there.

When in the privacy of her own room she opened the package. It contained nothing but blotting paper. The young men had left their boarding house at 141 West Front street, and the Polish matchmaker knew nothing of them. For three days Annie nursed her sorrow over the loss of her savings, but yesterday she told her employer and the matter was reported to Chief Kiely, of the local police department. He ordered the arrest of Josephia Rakowska and she is being held at the police station in the hopes of forcing her to tell something of the two young men who owned the money machine. The woman insists that she does not know where they went and that she thought their machine would do what they claimed for it. She will be held until a complete investigation is made.

MISS GARRETSON AND B. L. WELSH WEDDED

Grandmothers Attendants at Ceremony Peformed by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong.

Miss Edna M. Garretson, formerly of East Millstone, but now of this city, and Benjamin L. Welsh, of East Millstone, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage on West Eighth street. The couple was attended by their grandmothers, Mrs. Mary M. Garretson, of East Millstone, and Mrs. Isabella Welsh, of Plainfield.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at Highland Park, New Brunswick. The bride is a trained nurse, being a graduate of the Training School of Muhlenberg Hospital, since which time she has been engaged in private nursing.

Mr. Welsh, who is a brother of Mrs. Arthur Van Cleef, of West Front street, is one of the superintendents of the Howe Rubber Company plant at New Brunswick. Both he and his bride have a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

BANDITS KILL 2 MORE SOLDIERS

Bloody Battle Fought When Mexicans Invade American Territory.

ATTACKED A U. S. POST

Wilson Will Take No Action Until After St. Louis Convention—Ready to Bring All Citizens Away at Once.

San Antonio, June 15.—Two Americans were killed and seven wounded early today when a band of 100 Mexican bandits attacked troops I and M of the Fourteenth Cavalry at St. Ignacio, Texas. The attack occurred at 2 o'clock this morning. In the battle six Mexicans were killed.

Wilson Still Waiting.

Washington, June 15.—Secretary of State Lansing today stated the reply to Carranza would not be sent today. It probably will be delayed until the close of the Democratic Convention in St. Louis. Reports from consular officers in Mexico show no appreciable change in the situation.

Ready to Save Americans.

Washington, June 15.—It became known here today that the Administration has perfected plans for getting all Americans out of Mexico at practically a moment's notice.

The Navy Department, it is said, has under charter steamships of the Ward Line lying in the harbor of Galveston ready to get under way at any minute for Vera Cruz, Tampico and other gulf ports in Mexico.

The department's contract provides that at any time one of the steamships should be called into the service of the Ward Line, the company must immediately provide another ship to take its place in the harbor.

These vessels must at all times be maintained with steam up and their crews ready for an immediate call, prepared to leave Galveston on telegraphic orders from Washington.

LULL REPORTED BY FRENCH AT VERDUN

Germans There Have Stopped Infantry Attacks—Artillery Still Busy.

Paris, Jun 15.—Another lull in the German infantry attacks upon the French positions in the Verdun sector was reported in today's communique issued by the French War Office. The bombardment of the Germans continues, however, the Kaiser's forces directing their artillery against Chattancourt and Souville.

French Fight Bulgars.

Saloniki, June 15.—There have been conflicts between advance guards of the French and Bulgarians on the right bank of the Vardar, it was officially announced today.

FRANK CULLEN GRADUATES FROM HOLY CROSS TUESDAY

Frank Cullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cullen, of Plainfield, will graduate from Holy Cross College next week. Mr. Cullen will receive his diploma at the commencement exercises Tuesday, when Gov. McCall, of Massachusetts, will be the orator. He was president of the class of 1912 at the Plainfield High School.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE OUTING.

The members of Brightside Circle of King's Daughters enjoyed an outing at the Hydewood Golf Club house yesterday in connection with the final business meeting of the season. A picnic lunch was enjoyed at noon, shortly after the party arrived, and the business meeting was held in the clubhouse later. It was decided to have the circle join the State association following a report of the recent convention at Elizabeth, read by the president of the circle, Mrs. F. W. Jones. Meetings will not be resumed until the second Wednesday in October.

WALTER COON.

Walter Coon, aged 65 years, died last night at his home, 315 Netherwood avenue, following a long illness. He had been a resident of this city for many years and was well-known locally. He is survived by his wife and one son, Benjamin Coon; also two brothers and three sisters. These are John and Matthias Coon, Mrs. W. Minard, of the borough; Mrs. Margaret Sheldon and Mrs. Louisa Gunn, of Watchung. The funeral will be held at the late home, Saturday afternoon at 230, and burial will be in the North Plainfield cemetery.

LOCAL MAN GETS CONTRACT.

On June 15, the Joseph S. Burke Company was awarded a contract in the borough of Pennsgrove, for the building of a bituminous concrete road on Broad street and Maple avenue, that place. The contract price was $36,017.55.

INDEPENDENT PLANT FAVORED

Hospital Board Urges Installation of its Own Electric Light and Power House.

MONEY SAVING PLAN

Officers Are Elected and Committees Are Named at Annual Meeting of Governors—President Ladd Presents Report.

All of the retiring members of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital were re-elected at the annual meeting this week with the exception of J. E. Erickson, who wished to have his name withdrawn and to retire from further activities, and Arthur M. Collens, who resigned as a member of the board and as treasurer owing to the fact that he has removed from the city. The new members elected were Noah C. Barnhart, who takes the place of Mr. Collens and was chosen treasurer; Joseph W. Gavett and H. H. Pond. The board considers itself fortunate in securing the services of such men as were elected to fill vacancies.

At the organization of the new board the retiring officers were reelected as follows: President, Edward H. Ladd; first vice-president, Frank J. Hubbard; second vice-president, Charles W. McCutcheon; secretary, C. M. Baker; treasurer N. C. Barnhart. The president named standing committees for the year as follows:

Executive committee—James W. DeGraff, Frank J. Hubbard, S. Durrell Lounsbery, John P. Stevens, John M. Whiton, Noah C. Barnhart, ex-officio; Mrs. Frank D. Warren, Mrs. Charles E. Lipscom. Finance committee—Samuel Townsend, Herman Schwed, George P. Mellick, Sherman B. Joost, Noah C. Barnhart, ex-officio. Publicity committee—George P. Mellick, Louis K Hyde, S. Durrell Lounsbery. Auditing committee—Edward H Booth, David T. Kenney. Insurance committee—John M. Whiton; Nurses' Training School committee—Arthur M. Harris, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, representing the medical board, and Mrs. Edward J. Patterson, representing the Woman's Auxiliary Board. Committee on contracts with cities and county matters—Frank H. Smith, Harry C. Munger. Committee on legal matters—Percy Hamilton Stewart.

The annual report of President Ladd showed that the work of the institution as measured by the number of patients admitted and the number of days' treatment was more than 30 per cent. greater than in the previous year; twice during the past month has the census shown 107 indoor patients being cared for at the same time; the greatest number of such patients at one time the previous year being 85. The statistical report follows:

Total number of days' treatment, 28,109; number of patients admitted, 2,013; number of patients operated upon, 1,170; greatest number of patients at one time, 107; total number of visits to dispensary, 4,644; total number of births in maternity department, 99; total number of patients treated in all departments, 3,203.

Mr. Ladd recommends additional ward capacity and the installation of an electric light and power plant. There is a constant demand for the additional room and in support of his contention for a private power plant he states that the electric light and power plant bills for electricity last year amounted to $2,087.05. He believes an independent plant could be made to pay for itself.

The hospital has enlarged its field of services by the establishment during the year of a genito-urinary department and a department of surgery. A third story has been added to the Nurses' Home at a cost of $7,000. The Woman's Auxiliary Board contributed $575 towards furnishing and decorating the additional rooms. Other improvements completed are the new garage, the restroom with bath in the basement of the private room building for the use of the graduate special nurses.

Among the notable gifts of the year was the automobile ambulance donated by Mrs. Samuel Milliken, and $1,807 for the erection of an extension to the garage, of which sum $1,600 was given by Mrs. Milliken. Other donations included an operating table given by George P. Mellick; an Albee bone operating outfit given by James W. DeGraff; a stereoscopic table and screen given by John F. Harman, and a Cardiograph from an anonymous friend. Trees and shrubbery have also been given, including 55 elms and maples from the Shade Tree Commission, of which Miles Roberts is chairman. The barberry hedge was given by James W. DeGraff. A bequest of $10,000 was also received through the will of Max Munger.

The Woman's Auxiliary Board has been untiring in service, the great value of its work again being demonstrated through its contribution toward the furnishing and decorating of the new rooms in the Nurses' Home. The "Twiggs" connected with the Woman's Auxiliary now number sixteen, with a total membership of 177. During the year they have delivered to the hospital 6,600 garments, and the Needlework Guild

DEMOCRATS TO NAME WILSON AND MARSHALL TONIGHT; PLATFORM CONTAINS PLANK AGAINST HYPHEN

CONVENTION PUTS ON SPEED SO AS TO ALLOW DELEGATES TO LEAVE FOR HOME AFTER WORK OF TODAY.

OLLIE JAMES IS MADE PERMANENT CHAIRMAN

He Ridicules Republican Platform in Speech—Gerard Shows Strength as Candidate for Vice-President, But There is no Chance of Defeating Marshall—One Vote May Be Cast Against Wilson.

WILSON HITS "HYPHENATES."

"I believe that the vast majority of those men whose lineage is directly derived from the nations now at war are just as loyal to the flag of the United States as any native citizen of this beloved land, but there are some men of that extraction who are not, and they, not only in past months but at the present time, are doing their best to undermine the influence of the government of the United States in the interest of matters which are foreign to us and which are not derived from questions of our own politics. There is disloyalty active in the United States, and it must be absolutely crushed. It proceeds from a very small minority, but a very active and subtle minority.

"It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it, and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of blackmail, saying, 'Do what we wish in the interests of foreign sentiment or we will wreak our vengeance at the polls.'

"That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with a might and triumph of sentiment which will teach these gentlemen once for all that loyalty to this flag is the first test of tolerance in the United States." From President Wilson's Flag Day Speech at Washington.

St. Louis, June 15.—Woodrow Wilson will be nominated for President and Thomas W. Marshall for Vice-President, by the Democrats of the country at 8 p. m. tonight, according to a program adopted by convention leaders this morning.

This plan conflicts with previous arrangements and is opposed by the sub-committee of the committee on rules. That body this morning voted against any nominations being made tonight and recommended that nominations be deferred until after the report of the committee on resolutions is received and adopted, but an effort is being made to speed up the resolutions committee so that the platform can be adopted in time for adjournment tonight.

Those who arranged for the convention made a four-day contract with St. Louis hotels, and if final adjournment is taken tonight they will be forced to pay for rooms and accommodations for delegates up to Saturday, but many of the delegates are willing to take this expense so as to get home early.

The National Convention was called to order at 11:50 a. m. Roger C. Sullivan, of Illinois, today withdrew his name as a vice-presidential candidate. The Illinois delegation voted 45 to 13 to endorse Sullivan's candidacy if Vice-President Marshall was not a candidate, but Mr. Sullivan announced he would not run. The New York delegation met in caucus today and decided unanimously to support James W. Gerard, present ambassador to Germany, as candidate for the vice-presidential nomination. The delegation secretary was instructed to pass the State's vote for President Wilson and for Mr. Gerard for vice-president.

In his speech as permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention, Senator Ollie M. James, of Kentucky, made a strong attack on the Republican platform adopted at Chicago a week ago.

It is believed the platform committee, by the direction of President Wilson, will report a plank that will cover what is termed a conspiracy by the German-Americans to accomplish the defeat of President Wilson because of his notes to Germany, as well as his refusal to order an embargo on munitions to the Allies.

The President and Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, had a long conversation by telephone, following President Wilson's speech in Washington. Later, Mr. Baker conferred with the leaders of the party, and all admitted that this feature of the situation was being given careful attention.

As Senator W. E. Stone, of Missouri, is chairman of the platform committee, and lives in the State that is the hot-bed of the hyphen, he was reluctant to lend his aid to drafting a plank which he believed would alienate the support of the German-Americans of his State.

However, it was decided that the word "hyphen" should not be used in the plank. In a measure the plank will demand the fullest Americanism on the part of the foreign-born who have come to this country and are making their home here. As much loyalty to the country of their adoption will be expected from them as from the native-born. The platform will call for radical action against those who try to influence elections because a candidate is supposed to be distasteful to the rulers of a foreign country.

Here are the planks which now seem most likely to have places in the Democratic platform:

Approval of the President's course in all European crises.

No intervention in Mexico, but troops there to protect Americans.

Declarations favoring "social justice" fully as radical as those of the Progressive platform.

A comprehensive compensation law.

The eight-hour day.

A more drastic woman's suffrage plank than the Republicans.

The one plank on which there was any doubt was the suffrage plank, and after hearing three delegations of women, three of them for suffrage and one against, the committee felt that it would be able to adopt a plank that would fulfill the wishes of the suffragists, and it is believed that it will be a liberal plank, probably favoring the enfranchisement of women by both State and Federal legislation.

The President's personal contributions to the platform are in the na-

"ROSE TAG DAY" MEANS HELP FOR SUFFERING

Woman's Auxiliary Board Hopes to Secure $5,000 on Saturday.

Many clever advertisements have recently been published, telling the story of the coming "Rose Tag Day" for Muhlenberg Hospital. Everybody will remember that on Saturday of this week, June 17, they should be prepared to be appealed to by one of the many "taggers" who will cover the whole city and offer a rose in return for which the "taggers" will accept a coin or a bill for the auxiliary board of Muhlenberg Hospital, to provide this organization with funds to carry on its important work and meet its expenditures for various hospital supplies.

This "Rose Tag Day" should result in the Woman's Board receiving at least $5,000; if everybody will give something, the many pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars will add up to the sum expected and no one will feel the strain of giving as the contributions will be so well distributed.

Muhlenberg Hospital is doing today a greater work than ever before. It has of late been filled to its capacity with those needing medical or surgical care and the burden of maintenance, of meeting all expenses, is largely due to the fact that over fifty per cent. of all the service is given to the people of our city who cannot afford to pay and, therefore, receive free treatment. Plainfield should be proud of this beautiful charity and it should be a joy to all who can, to do their part in assisting in the good work.

"Rose Tag Day," which means help to the unfortunate, sick and suffering, can only come but once a year. Therefore, remember Saturday, June 17, receive kindly all who appeal to you and present you with a rose; and on that day let your heart rule your purse.

DR. O. B. WHITFORD HEADS PLAINFIELD DENTAL SOCIETY

Officers of the Plainfield Dental Society were elected as follows at the annual meeting of the organization held in the Park Club last night: President: Dr. O. B. Whitford; vice president, Dr. C. W. Leonard; treasurer, Dr. George Voorhees, and secretary, Dr. George L. Moore. Following the routine session the members enjoyed a banquet. The club will resume sessions in the fall and will in all probability hold a clam bake in September, the exact date and place to be announced later.

RESCUE MISSION MEETING.

The Young Peoples' Society of the Netherwood Reformed church will have charge of the service in the Rescue Mission Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

REAL ESTATE ON RISE IN BOROUGH

Several Deals Closed During the Week by Local Residents.

There were a number of realty transactions reported in the borough during the past week, including two sales and several transfers. A deal was completed by means of which William Coriell has purchased the Newell estate comprising six acres of mostly woodland adjoining his own property. Mr. Coriell now owns practically that entire section south of the railroad tracks, bounded by Martine avenue, LaGrande avenue, King street and Terril road. A sale was completed whereby Dr. Edward Thelburg sold his property on Russell road, including house, garage and lot, to Lina Jeffee, of New York, at a price not made public.

Several transfers were made by H. C. Lockwood & Co., including the following: Anna P. Thorne, one lot on Russell road near Midway avenue; Angelbert Giatts, one lot on the corner of First street and South avenue; Emilie Alberts, lot adjoinink own property on Farley avenue; Eugene Rau, one lot on Midway avenue. Mr. Rau, who is at present residing in New York, has already awarded the contract and work has been begun on the erection of a modern dwelling on the property that will cost in the vicinity of $4,500.

PLANS FOR SCHOOL FAIL TO MATERIALIZE

Probabilities Are That Proposed Structure at Fanwood Will Not Be Built.

After being agitated for the past month, it looks now as if that proposition of the Fanwood people to have a school in that place is to die a natural death. The joint meeting of the Board of Education, a township committee and a borough committee that it was understood was to have been held in School No. 1 last night did not materialize and the probabilities are that there will not be any held at all now.

At the last mass meeting held in the Fanwood fire house two weeks ago the joint meeting was suggested as being the best means to settle the question definitely. At that time no one knew when the next meeting of the Board of Education would be held, although it was thought it was to have been held last night. It was agreed that whenever the meeting was to be held the borough committee would be notified and that the township committee would be on hand as well.

The Board of Education held their meeting a week ago last night, and now there will be none until next September. By that time some definite steps will have to be taken on the school question and it is likely that the special meeting of the voters of the district will have to be called to vote on the question of building an addition on School No. 1, and the borough school will be left out of the question.

The borough people seem slightly wrought up over the way they "had it put over on them" and it is probable that another mass meeting will be called in the near future to go at the question again. It seems more probable, however, that the question will be dropped altogether.

HARRY E. WILSON WEDS MISS MATTIE B. HULL

An attractive wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hull, of Westfield avenue, when their daughter, Miss Mattie B. Hull, became the bride of Harry E. Wilson, of Bound Brook, in the presence of intimate friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Raymond E. Marshall, pastor of the Methodist church.

The bride was dressed in a gown of white crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of cut flowers. She was unattended. The house was decorated with a color scheme of white and pink, and the marriage took place beneath a bower of palms and cut flowers.

The bride is one of the most popular young women in Scotch Plains, and received many presents. Shortly after the ceremony the young couple left for a brief wedding tour and on their return will go to housekeeping in Bound Brook.

LOCAL MAN AT PLATTSBURG.

So far the only one from either Fanwood or Scotch Plains to enroll at the preparedness camp at Plattsburg is Leslie Hatfield, of North avenue, the borough. Mr. Hatfield will attend the Senior camp that starts on July 12, and by that time expects to have several other local men to go along.

Hereafter the Advertisements OF HEARN Fourteenth Street, West of Fifth Avenue, N. Y. Will Be Found On PAGE 7

PLANS FOR COMMUNITY PICNIC PROGRESSING

Annual Affair Will Probably Be Held on Thursday, August 17.

Plans for the holding of the second annual "Community Picnic" are progressing rapidly, and it is now practically certain that the affair will be a more pronounced success than last year. It is now expected that the affair will be held on Thursday, August 17.

There will not be another meeting held of the various committees until something definitely is heard from several who it is hoped will be secured as speakers. In the meanwhile the main committees that have thus far been appointed will be working and at the next meeting the remainder of the committees will be named and the minor details arranged. It is expected that the picnic will be held at the same place, the Hunter estate on Front street, as last year, and certain other features will be the same.

The committees that have already been selected and are now at work are: Committee on program and date, Rev. J. Madison Hare, chairman, Burton P. Hall, Ira G. Walker and John Z. Hatfield; ground committee, Edward L. Hand; publicity committee, William R. Buckley. One of the new committees not yet appointed is the arts and crafts committee. The various committee heads will appoint their assistants.

LOCAL SEWER QUESTION LAID OVER UNTIL FALL

That nothing about the installing of a sewer in Fanwood will be done until fall is assured following the request of the Plainfield committee to have the matter laid aside until then. Plainfield is confronting such a situation in the building of its sewer that the committee, composed of Messrs. Blatz, Hylan and Milne, is not able to make any definite promises to the borough committee headed by Albert I. Nichol. Fanwood will not start the laying of its sewer system until the Plainfield trunk line has reached the Terril road line and until that time there will be no meetings of the two committees.

GATHERED AT RANDOM

Thirty members of Twilight Council, J. O. U. A. M. and their friends went to Newark by a special trolley last night to take part in and witness the parade of lodges from all over the State.

John Schuer and wife have rented the Thelburg cottage on Russell road and moved in today.

Mr. and Mrs. James O'Halloran, of Midway avenue, are the parents of a young son.

James Hunter, has resigned his position with Charles Michaels, the Park avenue butcher, and accepted one with John Albert, the local liveryman.

Samuel McCauley, the local plumber, has purchased a commercial automobile to use in his business.

SLIGHT AUTO SMASHUP.

An automobile accident occurred on South avenue late yesterday afternoon just over the Terril road line when a delivery car belonging to the Hearn department store, of New York, collided with another machine. The delivery car had one hind wheel taken off and the side of the car dented, while the other auto was only slightly scratched and the mud guard twisted. An agreement was reached and the two cars continued after repairs had been made.

BACK AS CHAPLAIN.

After a short interval, the Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, is back again as chaplin of the Fourth Regiment, N. J. N. G., of Jersey City. Mr. Hare was chaplain when he was pastor of a Jersey City church and the regiment found it could not get along without him. He has also been chaplain of the Third regiment, and is a crack shot with the rifle.

WILLOW GROVE ANNIVERSARY.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Willow Grove chapel are making plans for the anniversary observance of the Circle next Wednesday. One of the features of the day will be a strawberry festival and luncheon that will be held in the grove alongside the chapel if the weather permits and if not in the chapel. The annual election of officers will also take place.

ITALIAN'S TRIAL TO-NIGHT.

Borough Recorder Charles Sheelen will hold a session of court to-night to try John Nunziatino, of Terril road, on a charge of assault. It is expected that Michael Omalio, the man whom he stabbed in the back Sunday night, will be sufficiently recovered to appear in court against him.

A STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

The young girls of the borough will conduct a strawberry festival in the Fanwood fire house tomorrow afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Fanwood Field Club. The club, which is composed of young boys of the borough, is trying to make a tennis court and has enlisted the aid of the girls.

KOEHLER FARM FIGURES IN REALTY IMPROVEMENT

Another slice of the Willow Grove section of the township, this time near the Westfield line, has been given up for farming and is to be turned into building sites. Charles S. Koehler, owner of the former John Miller estate, has vacated the premises after a residence of twelve years and cut the whole farm into building lots with the following sales: Henry Down, house and lot, 50x200 feet from corner of Woodland avenue, 380 feet north; 11 acres and building to J. Gaubis; one acre to R. A. Eldridge, Jr.; one acre and a half to R. A. Eldridge, Sr.; three acres up to line of Tipping's property to Mrs. R. Wewer. Mrs. Wewer and Mr. Eldridge have commenced the erection of houses on their properties. Mr. Koehler will build a house on his lot on Woodland avenue for his own occupancy.

STEPS TAKEN TO PREVENT FURTHER DAMAGES AT CAMP

Residents of the Terril road section of the township are considerably wrought up over the action of vandals in breaking into the Boy Scout camp used by the Plainfield and Willow Grove Boy Scouts, and measures are to be taken to prevent any reoccurrence. Not content with doing things of petty meanness, the culprits desecrated the large American flag by daubing it with paints and tramping on it and that act alone is enough to make the men interested in the camp's welfare try to catch the guilty ones.

William Coriell, who owns the property the camp is located on, and Edward and Louis Hesmer, both of Terril road, will try every possible means to put a stop to the practice, and although the camp is too far from Scotch Plains to get police protection a warm reception will await uninvited visitors.

The camp will open in a couple of weeks and from then on there will be over a hundred boys there all summer, but until then precautions are to be taken to have the place protected from vandalism.

Town Topics

The residents of Scotch Plains and Fanwood should not miss the opportunity to make August 17 a day that will linger long in the memories of everyone as the date when the second annual "Community Picnic" was held. Already preliminary plans have been made for making it more of a success than the first picnic was. With the national election approaching there ought to be little trouble in securing prominent speakers for the occasion.

Occasionally there are reports of instances where some fanatic has insulted the American flag, but if local people have never given the question a thought before they should do so now when they find that someone in our midst has actually insulted the national emblem. It matters not whether it was from ignorance of their acts, from pure viciousness, or for spite, the fact still remains that during the course of destroying for sure wantoness everything within reach at the Boy Scouts' camp, the large American flag kept there was trampled on, daubed with paint and otherwise insulted by vandals. Such cases should be made severe examples of and it is hoped that those responsible in the present case can be caught and rightly dealt with.

Although the township of borough can neither one claim to have the large and costly police force that some places boast of, yet it seems that both are fairly freed from disorder. Even though the two places are rather small in comparison, it is nevertheless, no easy job to hold the position of marshal. The ground to be covered and other features of the positions leave considerable time for things to occur. Scotch Plains has been free from anything that has needed police interference in some time and Fanwood has been nearly as fortunate, but it should be borne in mind that these conditions are largely so because that whenever anything has occurred its prompt treatment by the local marshals has discouraged any repetition.

SECRETS OF A GUN

The Famous French 75 and Its Wonderful Mechanism.

IT HAS TWO HIDDEN DEVICES.

These Are the Fuse Setter and the Recoil Absorber, and They Make This Monster Weapon a Most Fearful Engine of Death and Destruction.

What is a 75? By this is conversationally understood a French field gun, the caliber, or interior diameter of the bore, of which is seventy-five millimeters. Incidentally it is the finest man killing machine the world has yet known.

In 1898 France surprised the armies of the world by the introduction of an artillery weapon which till then had only existed in the dreams of experts.

Till this period the slowness of artillery fire was due to the fact that after the gun was laid and fired the shock of discharge so upset the aim that the gun had to be relaid for a second shot. The rapidity of fire thereupon became a matter of how quickly and accurately a gun could be laid by the personal skill of the layer. The French, seeking artillery progress and confronted with the inexorable shortness of their conscripts' period of training, sought to improve in mechanism what they could not improve in personal skill.

Briefly, the new French field gun of 1898 ceased to be attached to its axletree, but was attached instead to a buffer in a cradle, which not only absorbed the shock of recoil, but ran back the gun so exactly into its former position that no second laying was necessary.

The primary trouble of laying having been got over, rapidity of fire appeared to have been attained. Experiments then proved that, though a rapid rate of fire was possible, this rate was only as fast as that at which the gunners could adjust the fuses of the shells.

How now improve the rate of fuse setting? This task was and is a matter of meticulous accuracy, needing careful training to be done correctly. Moreover, it could not be hurried, since a shell badly fused by ever so little was not only innocuous to the enemy, but was a danger to one's own side. Once more the French put aside any idea of brisking up the personnel and invented a machine to set the fuse. The details of this fuse setter are still a secret. Let it suffice that it is simple, accurate and very rapid in its work. Thanks to it and to the steadiness of the gun after each discharge, the French field gun is easily capable of twenty-five aimed rounds a minute.

One more word about the recoil absorber and the secret thereof. The recoil is taken up by a cylinder beneath the gun, which contains a combination of glycerin, compressed air and springs. It is this combination and the exact proportions thereof which make the secret of the gun. It is not even ascertainable from a captured gun, since if you take a cold chisel to it and try to examine the works by opening the buffer the compressed air escapes, and the secret which lies in its density evaporates with it.

Having solved the question of the rate of fire you would have thought that the French would have been content. Not they! Range and accuracy were successively taken in hand. Muzzle velocity, which, after all, means range, was increased not by increasing the charge and with it the thickness of the gun that withstood it, but by lengthening the gun to a hitherto unheard of extent and giving it a slow burning propellant.

The temptation to put in a lighter shell and so get it farther on the same bang was successfully resisted. The designers never lost sight of the fact that the primary object of the gun was to deliver death to its enemies at the greatest speed, range and effectiveness possible. So they concentrated their energies on a man killing shrapnel which in the end weighed sixteen pounds and left the gun on its long journey at the unprecedented pace of 1,739 foot-seconds.

And there you have the present shrapnel.

Tactics here began to get mixed up with mechanics and ballistics. It was pointed out that troops would not always remain in the open to be whiffed out of existence by shrapnel. Rather would they get under cover at what speed they might. So a shell to deal with entrenchments, buildings and fortifications was indicated. Here again careful thought showed the need of accurate gunnery and a still higher velocity in the shell which, being more local in its effects, could not be allowed the same latitude in its action as its shrapnel confrere.

So a high explosive shell weighing only 11.68 pounds was introduced. Thanks to the chemists this time, its contents were of such a startling nature that its weight became a secondary consideration. It raced away on its mission at a velocity at that time unequaled even by the latest small bore rifle, and when it exploded its melinite charge blew great holes in the scenery. — Pousse Cailloux in Blackwood's Magazine.

HONORED THE PASS.

And, as One Good Turn Deserves Another, It Was Used Again.

I was practicing law in Nevada, writes Thomas Fitch, and had successfully defended some men who were accused of stage robbery. A week afterward, with some companions, I was "seeing off" a London mining expert who was about to depart on the stagecoach. After a round of drinks he said to me jocularly: "I may meet some of your clients on the road. I wish you would give me a pass." "Certainly," I replied. I stepped to the hotel desk and on a sheet of my office paper which I happened to have in my pocket wrote: "To All Road Agents—Please pass the bearer and oblige me." I signed my name thereto. With a laugh he pocketed the note, and we bade each other goodby.

That night, sure enough, the stage was stopped and the passengers lined up and relieved of their money and valuables by masked highwaymen. When my friend was reached he handed my note to the robber, exclaiming, "Here, my man, is a note for you." The robber carried it to the stagecoach lamp, read it and handed it to the captain of the gang, who read it and with a grin that could be seen below his mask, exclaimed, "That's good!" and passed the bearer of the note without robbing him.

Months afterward I received from the county jail a message from a man who was accused of being a participant in a shooting scrape that he desired to see me. I went there. He said that he desired to employ me to defend him. "I have no cash to pay a fee," said he, "but maybe this will serve for one." He handed me the pass I had issued. "It's good," said I. Could I have said less?—Case and Comment.

CRITICISING A CRITIC.

A Little Sermon on the Use of "Slow" as an Adverb.

A Brooklyn man writes to a Manhattan morning paper in great distress because signs by the roadside commonly say, "Automobiles Go Slow." The writer thinks the amount of paint and labor required "to change the adjective to an adverb would be very insignificant as compared with the purifying of a nation's speech."

But if purifying the speech means dropping the use of "slow" as an adverb let us be thankful the purifiers did not get busy before the great English authors began to write. The modern purifiers, or innovators, would deprive us of Milton "swinging slow with sullen roar" and compel Shakespeare to rewrite the first three lines of "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"Slow" as an adverb has been in literature since the year 1500. It is found in Byron, Thackeray and the Edinburgh Review. Johnson's Dictionary of 1773 quotes numerous examples of its use by Donne, Milton and Pope. It seems as if it ought to be especially suitable in an automobile warning sign. For cannot old fashioned people (not "purifiers") remember the couplet in Marmion?"

And come he slow or come he fast
It is but death who comes at last.

The English language will continue to be a noble and forceful means of expressing thought if it remains proof against new and unheard of rules altering ancient usage. In other words, let us investigate and "go slow" before condemning a word just because it is encountered for the first time.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Marat's Deadly Prescription.

Whether Marat of "the terror" was a veterinary surgeon or a fashionable physician is a point which historians have earnestly debated. Some light is thrown upon it by the memoirs of the papal envoy of the period, who was one of his patients, and reports as follows:

"He prescribed for me some medicine which would have killed me if the celebrated chemist of the Rue Jacob had been willing to give it to me. 'I see well enough,' he said, 'that this is no medicine for you; it is medicine for a horse. I recognize the doctor's signature; he is mad.' Apparently Marat had mistaken me for one of his patients at the stable at which he was a physician."

SCOUTS TO PRESENT COMEDY.

The Scotch Plains Boy Scouts will present a comedy sketch entitled "Tangles and Surprises" in the Memorial Parish House tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. It is the third annual attempt of the youngsters and the proceeds will be used to defray the expenses of a camping trip this summer.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

AUTOMOBILE STALLED.

The heavy steel truck of the Smith Auto Express was stuck along the side of the road opposite George H. Richter's home for about an hour yesterday afternoon. It was extricated with the assistance of a team of horses.

Mrs. George H. Firstbrook, of Newark, is visiting her parents, Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole.

Miss Jessie Hayes, of New Market road, has been entertaining Miss Helen Davenport, of Lebanon.

The stork left a son yesterday at the home of Mr and Mrs. John Mann, of Grove street.

Lloyd Smith, who is a student at New York University, is home for his summer vacation.

TENNIS CLUB MEETS.

The Crescent Tennis Club held its regular monthly business meeting at the home of Fred A. Fedderman last evening. Following the transaction of business, which was routine, a social hour was enjoyed.

Henry Bambach has resold his drug business to Edward Pennock. He plans to secure a position in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rekemierer, of Lincoln avenue, visited Mr. Rekemierer's parents in Elizabeth last evening.

MISS WAHL RECOVERS.

Miss Nellie Wahl, who has been ill with scarlet fever, has practically recovered, and the quarantine card will be removed from her home as soon as the place has been fumigated.

Thomas Frescolm has secured a position at Levgar's.

ARTHUR VAIL IMPROVING.

Arthur Vail is doing nicely in the Elizabeth General Hospital, where he was taken following a compound fracture of a limb, sustained by a fall. Yesterday he was wheeled into the sun parlor of the hospital for the first time.

SOCIETIES MEET.

The combined meetings of the local M. E. societies to be conducted tomorrow afternoon will be held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Peters on Dunellen avenue, and not in the church, as stated in last evening's paper. The meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held at 2 o'clock. The Home and Foreign Missionary meeting will start at 3 o'clock.

SUFFERS A STROKE.

Edwin G. Lewis, who suffered a slight paralytic stroke Tuesday night, seemed to be better this morning. There is no basis to a report in circulation that he has lost his voice.

Mrs. Frank H. Fuller, of Third street, is visiting her daughter, Miss Margaret Fuller, who is sojourning in Litchfield county, Conn., for the summer.

Mrs. John Kinney continues to improve slowly in the Muhlenberg Hospital. She has been there for five weeks now.

LAWN FESTIVAL.

According to present indications the lawn fete to be conducted on the green between the Presbyterian church and manse tomorrow afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, will be well attended if the weather is fair. The entertainment to be given under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, of Plainfield, will commence at 8:30.

"SUFFRAGE DAY" OBSERVANCE.

This Saturday will not be observed as "Suffrage Day," as had been planned by the local baseball club, but the following Saturday will. Mrs. D. W. O. Ramsey, the president of the Dunellen and New Market Equal Suffrage League, preferring that the date be set one Saturday ahead so that the organization will be able to make a better demonstration. It cannot be stated definitely, but it is reasonably certain that the suffragists will march to the field in a body, headed by a band. The portion of the grandstand which will be reserved for them will be appropriately decorated with American flags.

DUNELLEN vs. FARMERS.

The City League game on Maurer Oval at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon will be between the locals and the Farmer A. C. It will be recalled that the Farmer A. C. is the aggregation which took the locals into camp Decoration Day afternoon by the score of 7-5. The locals were minus the services of the veteran McLaughlin, the ex-National Leaguer, then, "Warry" will be on the slab this Saturday and the home boys expect to win. A tie exists between the two teams for last place, and the game will be of especial interest for this reason.

South Plainfield.

Lloyd Harris, who has been in Post Graduate Institute in New York for the last two months, has returned home. His condition is reported as much improved.

Mrs. Charles Brantingham has returned home, after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles Klinger, of Newark.

Melvin Shrope is detained from his work as conductor on one of the Lehigh Valley trains owing to an attack of rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bradburry and children are spending a few days with relatives in Brooklyn.

Hienz Shurig, formerly of this place, but now of Green Point, Long Island, has returned to his home, after being the guest of friends here.

Watchung.

A large number of Watchung people attended the commencement exercises at the school in Greenbrook last evening. Rev. Mebane Ramsay, pastor of the Wilson Memorial church, gave an interesting address on "Commencing in Life." Addresses were also made by the members of the Board of Education, who were present. Messrs. George A. Schmidt, George Mobus, Harry MacDonald, Lewis Snoden, Walter Shotwell and George Wadge.

Plans are being made for the ice-cream festival which is to be held on the lawns of the Mary E. Wilson chapel on Saturday evening. This festival is under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor Society, in conjunction with the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union.

Miss Helen Y. Hughes, a student of Mt. Holyoke College, has returned to her home for the summer months.

"Cheerfulness" was the topic of the Christian Endeavor meeting in Wilson chapel last evening. Ephraim S. Ackor was the leader. Miss Elsie F. Schmidt rendered a solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Miss Helen L. Schmidt, a student at Trenton State Normal, has returned to her home for the summer.

Mrs. Jack O'Conner and daughter Marguerite, of New York city, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Texier.

ture of a plan for the enforcement of peace; a declaration affirming the neutrality policy of his administration and one lucidating his views on patriotism.

The platform will set forth the achievements of the Administration, both at home and abroad. No direct reference will be made to any of the belligerent nations nor their partisans in this country.

The platform, every one here realizes, is the one big job of the convention. Mr. Wilson, it was learned today, insists on a Progressive declaration. He knows as well as do any of his leaders the necessity of corralling Progressive votes if he is to win. And Mr. Baker, in transmitting the Wilson platform ideas, has also transmitted the Wilson belief in the necessity of a ringing appeal to the men left without a leader at Chicago.

One Man Against Wilson.

St. Louis, June 15.—If Robert Emmett Burke would die or go home or do something else besides fulfill his duty as a delegate to the 1916 National Convention of the Democratic party, Woodrow Wilson would have the unanimous vote of that body. However, Mr. Emmett isn't going to go home; he is very healthy this morning, and he is determined to vote against Wilson. He hasn't decided himself who he will vote for, but it will not be Wilson.

Emmett is a delegate-at-large from Illinois. "I made the campaign as a delegate-at-large in the primaries as an opponent of Wilson," explains Mr. Burke. "Fifty-one thousand Germans voted for me because they knew I was against Wilson."

It is hoped that pressure can be brought to bear upon Mr. Burke and that he can be persuaded to sit quietly when the vote is called for. This would give Mr Wilson the vote of every delegate in the convention, but Delegate Burke seems determined to spoil a white sheet.

made its usual generous donation.

The Young Men's Auxiliary was organized during the year with a membership of twenty and from time to time have rendered valuable service, including the arrangement for the military exhibition to be given at the Horse Show grounds Saturday by the Watchung Troop Association.

Miss Jessie M. Can resigned as directress of nurses in April and has been succeeded by Miss Louise Thompson, of Worcester, Mass., who began her duties May 16. An additional supervisor has been engaged also an additional interne, and increased the membership of pupil nurses in the training school from thirty to thirty-eight.

The laboratory is now filling a long-felt want, a daily service having been installed. Dr. James W. Denton, of St. Louis, has been in charge of the work since January last. The cash donations during the year amounted to $9,092.66, and the treasurer reports that the receipts from all sources have fully covered hospital expenses.

BRIDAL COUPLE TO TRAVERSE CONTINENT

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Miller, Married Monday, Begin 10,000 Mile Trip Today.

One of the longest wedding trips yet undertaken by a local bridal couple was commenced this morning by Mr. and Mrs. William E. Miller, of East Second street, who will travel across the continent a total distance of 10,000 miles before returning to Plainfield. Although they have kept their plans secret, they became known to intimate acquaintances last night and a big delegation was on hand when they departed for Elizabeth by automobile before 6 o'clock this morning. They were showered with rice and confetti and were also wished a pleasant and successful journey.

Mrs. Miller was formerly Mrs. Margaret M. Hansen, of East Second street, and her marriage took place Monday night in the rectory of St. Mary's church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Joseph S. MacDonald, only the members of the two families being present. The fact was kept a secret from their closest acquaintances and it was only by accident that it became known. Mr. Miller is a locomotive engineer on the New Jersey Central and until his removal to Plainfield a year ago resided at Somerville. He is a member of the Somerville Lodge of Elks and has a wide acquaintance all along the New Jersey Central main line. Mrs. Miller has been a resident of Plainfield for many years and has a host of local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller proceeded from New York this morning by the Empire State Express and will make their first stop at Syracuse, where they are to be given a reception tonight at the Hotel Onondaga by the bride's niece. From there they will proceed to Niagara Falls, Inverhuron, Ont., Mrs. Miller's former home; Detroit, Chicago and thence to the Pacific coast. From San Francisco they will proceed north to Oregon and British Columbia, leaving Victoria via the Canadian Pacific route eastward as far as Montreal. From the latter city they will return to Plainfield. The trip will take about two months in all.

PUPILS OF MISS LONG GIVE PLEASING RECITAL

Pupils of Miss Laura Griffin Long, gave a delightful musicale at her studio on Grove street, yesterday afternoon. The complete program was as follows Duet, "Albumleaf" (Lebert), Misses Jane Louise Worth and Harriet Milne; "Air Allemande" (folk song), Miss Penelope Overton; "The Grasshopper" (Swift), Master Thomas Worth; "Invitation to the Dance" (Weber-Streabbog), Miss Harriet Milne; selection, "Oberon" (Weber), Horace Fisher; "Spinning Song" (Ellmenreich), Miss Jane Louise Worth; "War Song" (Reinhold), Norman McGee; "The Trumpeter" (Van Gael), Nelson Kenworthy and Norman McGee; "Fur Elize" (Beethoven), Miss Ruth Hoffman; "Minuet" (Mozart Schulhoff), Nelson Kenworthy; "Waltz" (Chopin), Miss Emily Brentnall; "Prelude—C Sharp Minor" (Rachmaninoff), "La Regata Veneziana" (Liszt), Miss Barbara Van Vliet.

JOHN C. GOBLE WEDS MISS ETHEL NIELSEN

Miss Ethel Jennie Nielson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Nielson, of 1463 East Second street, became the bride of John Combs Goble, of Lincoln, at a quiet home wedding celebrated last night at the home of the bride. Rev. E. S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, officiated at the ceremony, which was witnessed by the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple. The bride wore a white crepe silk gown and a veil trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Miss Nielson was attended by Miss Gladys Mead as bridesmaid. The latter wore a pink gown trimmed with all-over lace, and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. Martin Whelan of this city acted as best man.

Following the marriage, a reception was held and later in the evening the couple left for a trip to Baltimore. On their return they will reside in this city. Mr. Goble is an electrician employed in the Public Service sub-station at Lincoln.

PRIZE SPEAKIN GCONTEST.

The annual meeting and prize speaking contest of the Plainfield High School Alumni Association will be held in the High School auditorium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The prize speaking contest will occupy attention of the body preceding the meeting. Awards of ten dollar gold pieces will be made to the boy and girl who win first place in the decision of the judges. At the annual session which will follow immediately election of officers will take place and reports will be submitted by the secretary and treasurer. The public is invited to attend the prize speaking contest.

BARBERS' MEETING TONIGHT.

Local No. 315, Journeymen Barbers' Union, wil lhold an important business meeting in Trades Council Hall tonight during which the wage question as submitted to the bosses on May 28 will be discussed. It is probable that a committee from the bosses will be present and announce their decision. A full attendance is requested.

UNDERSEA BOATS IN DEFENSE PLAN

Torpedo With Range of Twenty Miles Is Possible.

EXPERTS LIKE THE SCHEME

Chicago Man Says That It Is Practicable—Would Have Caissons Four Miles Apart on Both Coasts—Atmosphere Now Affects Wireless Phone and Torpedoes.

High speed torpedoes with an effective range of more than twenty miles, with submarine structures in constant electrical connection with stations on the shore and warships a short distance out—this, in skeleton, is a program said to be under consideration by our military and naval authorities. There are so many of these devices which to the ordinary man seem impossible that this plan was taken to a prominent Chicago authority on electrical matters with the question:

"Is there anything absurd on the face of this?" He gave a negative answer, seemingly holding it as something theoretically possible and likely capable of practical demonstration.

The plan calls for a line of defense up and down the Atlantic and Pacific coasts in the form of submarine caissons constructed of re-enforced concrete, located a few hundred feet from the shore and connected with land by tunnels, these caissons to be about five miles apart and connected by telephone and wireless with a central point at Washington through subcentral stations located inland. These subcentral stations would be in constant communication with the patrol fleet of battleships and also with the aeroplanes which the Aero Club of America is proposing for our coast and borders.

Torpedo of Greatest Power.

The new weapon said to be used in this system and to have been devised by a superintendent of one of the plants of the Crucible Steel company is a torpedo of greater range and power than anything of the sort now in use. This weapon would be supplied to the caissons, which would have periscopes and all necessary electrical equipment. The structures would need only three men for operation. It has been estimated that 5,000 miles of our coast would call for this kind of protection. This would make the construction of 1,000 of these caissons necessary, and each would be equipped with ten torpedoes, the cost of which would be $10,000 each.

Conceivably this would be a perfect protection for our coast if the system were extended. It is only a question of practicability, and that is to be demonstrated. When one remembers the many marvelous things that have been done in electrical science and the arts collateral thereto he cannot afford to dismiss such a thing as this as an extravagant creation of the fancy. The world laughed at Darius Green and his flying machine. The world now bestows unstinted admiration on the aeroplane.

It is generally found that new devices which rouse great expectations in their earlier stages disappoint to a certain extent when they come into use. The comments of certain authorities on these modern contrivances are highly instructive. One of them says that the wireless telegraph is extremely subject to changes in wind and weather and that for the present its usefulness is limited. Operators who want to talk over a distance of many hundred miles try and try again without success and then have to wait until the atmosphere gives them a good chance.

Atmosphere Affects Wireless Phone.

The wireless telephone is much more sensitive to atmospheric conditions than the wireless telegraph. Nevertheless the authority says the wireless telephone will be useful in the case of vessels fifty or a hundred miles from shore. It is quite conceivable that the equipment can be so changed as to neutralize unfavorable conditions in a degree. The telephone has long been used on board vessels as a means of hearing what is going on under the surface of the water—for example, the wash against dangerous rocks.

One of the experts was asked as to the recent report that German operators of submarines could direct their torpedoes by hearing instead of sight and that presently the periscope will become unnecessary. This, he said, was theoretically correct, but making a good hit would be a chance—in other words, that method has not been perfected to the point of efficiency. The British, he said, had long been able to locate submarines by sound. The question appears to be whether they will ever be able to locate them so accurately as to hit them with a torpedo.

The American may congratulate himself that his countrymen are as capable in the line of invention as any class of people in the world and that therefore we are in a position to protect ourselves against the most expert. It is only a question of such support by the government as to bring this ingenuity into use. Most of our military and naval devices have been taken up by other nations and perfected.

Habitual.

"Who is it this time?" the marriage license clerk at College Point asked Anton Hoffinger. It's Hoffinger's fifth. He's seventy-two.

RECEIVE THIRTY MEMBERS.

Thirty new members were received at the mid-week meeting of the First Baptist church last night, and arrangements were made for baptism next Sunday night. Thus far, about one hundred new members have been received as a result of the evangelistic campaign.

SCHOLARLY ADDRESS AT ELKS' EXERCISES

Tribute to Flag and Citizenship by Assemblyman Runyon Feature of Program.

A scho[illegible]dress by Assemblyman William [illegible] Runyon on the national emblem and the real meaning of American citizenship was the principle feature of the Flag Day exercises conducted by Plainfield Lodge of Elks in the Watchung avenue clubhouse last night. The program was for members only but was enjoyed by a gathering numbering fully one hundred, many of the Elks present being Plainfield's most prominent citizens.

Exalted Ruler Walter S. Marder was in charge and had the assistance of Plainfield lodge's officers in conducting the exercises. These included: John H. Cose, Dr. C. E. Crist, Francis J. Blatz and William C. Mulvey. A salute to the flag was delivered by J. Henry Crane and the assemblage united in singing patriotic songs.

The address by Assemblyman Runyon began with a history of the American flag from the time of the Pilgrim fathers until the present day, and was traced in the beautiful language of which the speaker is the complete master. At the conclusion of the history he called upon the same spirit toward the national colors that imbued the men of colonial times, in the Mexican War period and when the Civil War was being fought. By so doing it could be shown to the world that Aemrica or its citizens cannot be insulted and that, though a peace-loving country, America is just as ready today to defend its honor and integrity as it was when throwing off the yoke of the mother country.

PLEASING RECEPTION FOR FATHER HENNESSEY

Rev. Father Walter E. Hennessey who recently succeeded Rev. Father Vincent Sciolla, as assistant rector at St. Mary's church, wa, the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner given in Columbus Auditorium last night, by Watchung Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus. Clergymen from Plainfield and vicinity and State officials of the Knights of Columbus were among those present, in addition to a large representation from Watchung Council, No. 552. Because of the date of the affair falling on Flag Day, the general program had a patriotic aspect and the main addresses were on subjects pertaining to patriotism and American citizenship.

Following the excellent course dinner, Sir Knight Joseph F. O'Keefe assumed the role of toastmaster and introduced the following speakers: Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church; John F. O'Neill, of Jersey City, State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus and W. J. Boyd, of New York city, Worthy Master of the First District of the Fourth Degree. Father Hennessey also spoke, taking the opportunity of thanking all those who had assembled in his honor. The address of Father Bogan was especially appreciated and gave to the auditors new thoughts regarding the influence "Old Glory," one of them being that the flag should not be loved or respected for what it brings a man but because it represents American citizenship and christianity, that if the principles it stands for are not held in the heart, there can be no love of country. The salute to the flag was led by Edward Harding, Jr., who also took the solo part in the singing of "America."

Among the guests present beside those already mentioned were: Rev. Joseph S. MacDonald, assistant rector of St. Mary's church, this city, Rev. Peter J. Hart, rector of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield; Rev. H. J. Watterson, rector of Holy Trinity church, Westfield; Rev. W. A. Regany, of Holy Trinity church, Westfield; Rev. Joseph McGrath, rector of St. Mary's church, Stony Hill; Rev. J. F. Baldwin, chaplain of Mt. St Mary's College, and Rev. E. J. Dumphy, rector of St. John's church, Dunellen.

COUPLE ARE MARRIED AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

Miss Aletta Johns, daughter of Mrs. Marie Q. Johns, of West Front street, and Chester Allen, of Richmond street, were married in the parsonage of Grace M. E. church last night. The ceremony was performed by Rev C. S. Gillespie at seven o'clock and was witnessed by a gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including several members of Miss Mary Steiner's Sunday School class in Grace church, of which the bride has been an active member. The couple was attended by the bride's sister, Miss Gertrude Johns and the bridegroom's brother, Edward Allen.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for Boston on a brief wedding trip. At their return they will make their home in one of the Voehl building apartments on East Front street. Both young people are well known locally and are extremely popular. Both have been devoted workers at Grace church.

DELIGHTFUL SONG RECITAL.

Lovers of music enjoyed a treat last night, when the Marchesi Club gave a musicale in the studio of Mrs. McNeil Hopcraft, in the Babcock building.

Chautauqua Speaker to Tell Of Pork Barrel Legislation

Lee Francis Lybarger of Philadelphia Bar to Make Keynote Address of Five Day Program—Millions Wasted In Government Expenditure.

"If you are a congressman and want to be well thought of back home, just make a big, rich haul on the government's treasury of a few million for some supposed to be needed public improvement. The congressman whose job is most secure is the one who succeeds in robbing another district to provide his own with plenty and more than enough to spare." The man who makes these statements is Lee Francis Lybarger, a member of the Philadelphia bar and one of the best informed men in the country on the tariff and other questions of national scope.

Mr. Lybarger is coming here to make the keynote speech at the Chautauqua, and the management announces that he has an assigned subject. Mr. Loring J. Whiteside, general manager of the Community Chautauquas in New York city, writes of Lybarger as follows:

"I wanted a man to go over the Chautauqua circuit," Mr. Whiteside says, "who could present the question of pork barrel legislation to the thousands of Chautauqua patrons that can be reached in a single season. Millions of dollars, the rightful property of American citizens, is wasted each year by our methods of government expenditure. It is as important an issue as we have today. It is a matter that affects vitally the interests of every man, woman and child, and I have wanted to have it presented to the people in a way that they could understand and by a man able to present the facts as they actually are. Mr. Lybarger is the best man in the country for this work. He has shown a marvelous grasp of great governmental issues and has demonstrated an extraordinary ability at presenting subjects of this kind to the people clearly and in a way that makes difficult problems easily understood. He will speak on the opening day of the Chautauqua, and his speech will be the keynote address of the entire ten sessions.

Lee Francis Lybarger.

"I have asked him also to devote a part of his lecture to a discussion of community problems, and as the two are so closely related to one another, pork barrel legislation in governmental affairs and community problems at home, we have decided to call his address 'The Community Conscience.' We are endeavoring to do a real constructive work in these Chautauquas, aside from presenting five days of delightful entertainment, and this is one of our purpose numbers."

"The tendency is for one section to rob another," Mr. Lybarger says. "In certain forms of government expenditure a small minority is laying violent hands upon the federal treasury. For example, in the matter of pensions, we have instances of cemetery records being ransacked so women to whom dead soldiers had never been married or whom they never had seen might draw pensions as their widows.

"Money abstracted for certain public buildings, river and harbor appropriations and postmasterships is political patronage and is placed where it will do the most good.

"Men who would not steal a penny from private individuals do not hesitate to steal millions from the government. This stealing is no longer direct by taking so much out of the treasury, but is indirect through legislation. It is dignified by law.

"I am not going to blame any party. It is nonpartisan. It is a sort of gentlemen's agreement among public officials, each to get all that he can, but not to howl about what the other fellow got.

"In the matter of citizenship and how we as citizens are going to work out our community problems I believe each should take a share of the burdens and demand his full share of the benefits. No man is a good citizen who is not as eager to serve as to share.

BLOW TO PSYCHIC FAKES DEALT BY ARTHUR DELROY

Chautauqua Lecturer-Entertainer Says There Is No Such Thing as Mind Reading.

"HYPNOTISM MENTAL MURDER"

Suggestion, However, Plays a Big Part In Salesmanship and Medicine. Palmistry All Right as Far as It Goes.

Psychic fakes, mind reading tricks, slate writing and hypnotism are all given a terrific blow by Arthur Delroy, president of the New York Psychic club in a most interesting lecture-entertainment on the second night of the Chautauqua.

Mr. Delroy is a Londoner by birth and was educated in Oxford. For years he wrote newspaper articles on the exposure of psychic fakes. Having gathered much material in this way, he came into great popularity as a lecturer-entertainer. He has appeared at Dartmouth, Yale, University of Virginia, Vassar, West Point Military academy, at the Union League club of New York city, the Lambs club, at many university and city clubs and in scores of other places of special interest.

Arthur Delroy.

He calls his entertainment "A Psychic Melange" on account of the variety of subjects covered. These include spooky demonstrations of slate writing, mind reading and other forms of fakes. Character reading from faces, hands and handwriting are handled as only a master can handle them.

Mr. Delroy says that about 90 per cent of the professional psychologists are fakers. He says there is no such thing as mind reading. "But every enlightened person," he explains, "is aware of the potency and actuality of mental suggestion and the big part it plays in salesmanship and medicine.

"Practically all the mind readers," Mr. Delroy says, "have a question code. The manner in which they tell names, the number of a watch, etc., is quite simple. For instance, the question 'What is this?' is used for a watch. 'Tell what this is' for a handkerchief 'And this' for a pencil."

Mr. Delroy believes hypnotism is a "mental murder." Palmistry is all right as far as it goes. It is good for one thing, he believes, and that is the reading of character and individuality, but the future cannot be told by the lines in the hand.

"DIPLOMATS CAN'T GET REAL FACTS OF MEXICO"

Andre Tridon, Chautauqua Lecturer and War Correspondent, Obtained Inside View of Country After Midnight.

MINGLED WITH THE RABBLE.

"Nothing Closer to a Lie Than the Official Truth," He Says—Met With Courtesy, Patience and Kindness In Land of Revolutions.

"The diplomat in Mexico has a slim chance of getting at the facts about Mexico," says Andre Tridon, correspondent in Mexico for the Outlook and Independent magazines and Chautauqua lecturer, who will speak here on the closing day of the Chautauqua.

"I made it a point while in Mexico," Mr. Tridon says, "to meet everybody, from the president down; to visit not only the ministries, but the shady little cafes where the rabble meets at night. And, I might add, that among the Mexicans, of whatever class, I always found genuine courtesy, patience and kindness.

Andre Tridon.

"The diplomats cannot tell us what is happening; they cannot find out themselves. It is not in the anterooms of the palace or in the ministry that one finds what is happening. There you will get the official truth, and nothing is closer to a lie than official truth.

"American correspondents are not in a position to find out either. They go down there filled with class prejudice, and they avoid the 'greaser' as a source of information. They ask for the privileges of the American and British clubs, and that is about as far as they go.

"One-half of my blood is Spanish. Therefore when I went to Mexico I did not take any of the race prejudice with me.

"The inside truth about Mexico is current talk on the streets of any Mexican city after midnight."

Mr Tridon was born in France and studied in Paris, Clermont, Heidelberg and New York universities. He was trained for a diplomatic position and served as an attache at the Peking embassy. He has traveled extensively through Europe, Africa and Mexico and has been a contributor to many publications.

He will speak on the subject, "An Inside View of Mexico."

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous.

CZAR'S FLEET MEETS AND DEFEATS GERMANS

Two Big Warships Among Those Sunk In Baltic Sea.

Berlin, June 15.—The following official statement has been given out in connection with the attack by Russian warships in the Baltic:

"During the night of June 13 the German auxiliary cruiser Herzmann was attacked by four Russian destroyers in the fight southeast of Stockholm. After a courageous resistance the vessel was set afire by shells and was blown up by her crew. The commander and most of the crew were saved."

It is believed the Herzmann is the cruiser listed as the King of Saxony in the reports from Copenhagen, which follow:

The German cruiser Koenig von Sachsen (King of Saxony), a destroyer and twelve merchantmen have been sunk in a sea fight in the Baltic, according to a report received in Copenhagen by the Exchange Telegraph company.

The Dagens-Nyheter publishes the following:

"Fourteen German ships, convoyed by eight armed trawlers, the cruiser Koenig von Sachsen and two destroyers, in the Baltic were suddenly attacked by six Russian destroyers and submarines. The Germans fled.

"It is believed twelve of the merchantmen were sunk. A trawler has arrived at Nykoping with 150 survivors of a German destroyer. The Koenig von Sachsen was sunk, with all hands."

The Dagens-Nyheter names the following ten German steamers as having been lost: Norma, Umeely Arda, Mecklenburg, Issele, Italia, Deterro, Weser, Konsul Schultze and Algebra.

The Dagens-Nyheter says the Russian squadron won an important victory.

An earlier cable from Nykoping stated merely that the Russian destroyers attacked the German ships "near the Swedish coast." The German convoy, it was stated, fled toward the coast after sustaining severe losses.

It was said the fight occurred between midnight and 1 o'clock at a point near Heuringe. Two hundred shots were heard by the excited population of Nykoping. The fight lasted forty-five minutes. A German trawler entered Nykoping with five wounded men, but refused all information.

Dispatches from Amsterdam stated that seven German warships preceded by a Zeppelin passed the Frisian islands, going west, Tuesday night.

Air Raiders Kill Woman.

Rome, June 15.—One woman was killed and four civilians were wounded in the Austrian air raid on Venice, according to an official statement issued. Little property damage was done. The official Austrian statement announced the bombardment of an arsenal in Venice by Austrian aeroplanes, as well as attacks on railroads near the city.

RUSSIAN VICTORY STILL GROWING

Austrian Army In Grave Danger of Capture.

GERMANS ALSO MENACED.

Evacuation of Lemberg Under Way, According to Unconfirmed Reports From Russian Sources—Six Thousand More Prisoners Taken, Making Total 122,000.

Petrograd, June 15.—In Bukowina the Russians are progressing, with lightning rapidity, which is particularly astonishing when one recalls the slow and stubborn fighting on the approaches to Czernowitz during the December offensive last year. The Russians already hold the right bank of the Pruth, from their own frontier up to Nepokokouts, sixteen miles beyond Czernowitz, on the main railway from the Bukowina capital to Kolomea.

As to Czernowitz itself the Austrians are defending it desperately, probably not with any hope of preventing the Russian entry, but in order to gain time to secure the retirement of their terribly battered army. Whether this army can be saved seems highly problematical, since the Russians are not only advancing along the Pruth, but along the lower Stripa, have forced the Dniester at several points, have taken the important bridgehead at Zal Szczyky, and advanced along the Zale Szczyky-Kolomea railway as far as Horodenka, twenty-three miles from Kolomea. Even now General Pflanzer's Bukowina army apparently is cut off from the main Austrian army in Galicia and the only way of retreat open is down through Bukowina and over the high Carpathians.

Slow in Volhynia.

In Volhynia the Russians are not rushing on with such amazing speed as in Bukowina, but are making steady and rapid progress. Forcing back the Germans, they have advanced from Rojistche to the River Stokhod at a point twenty miles from Kovel, which is the junction of the railways leading to Brest and Cholm and serves as the main link between the Austrian and German fronts in Russia. In view of the great importance of Kovel, the Germans are defending it with energy.

On the road to Vladimir Volynski the Russians have advanced as far as Torchin, and from Dubno they have swept on to Kozin and even, according to private report, to Radziviliov, a station on the frontier of Galicia on the main railway to Lemberg.

All the prisoners declare they never experienced such a terrible fire as that dealt out by the Russian artillery. Eye-witnesses say the smoke of the bursting shells darkened the sun and made the work of the Austrian aeroplanes impossible. No interval could be discerned between the detonations, and the bombardment was one indescribable and deafening roar.

Russia's most successful operation of the war is being pressed vigorously along the whole front in Volhynia and in Bukowina, says an earlier dispatch. Having cut the railway communications of Czernowitz from the north and advanced as far northwestward as Sniatyn, the Russians have carried the fighting for possession of the capital into its very outskirts. Its fall is momentarily expected.

The piercing of the Austrian line in Volhynia places the right flank of Prince Leopold's army in a precarious position.

It is rumored that the Austrians are evacuating Lemberg.

TO REMAKE ALL ENGLAND.

Asquith Hints of Great Changes After Present War.

London, June 15.—"When the war is ended there will be a stock taking of internal relations and the fabric of the empire will be refashioned."

This was the significant forecast made by Premier Asquith in an address at Ladybank, Scotland, at the conclusion of a discussion of recent Irish events.

Touching on Ireland's immediate future, the premier said, "A provisional settlement of the Irish question is to be desired now.

"The relations between Britain, Ireland and the dominions, also of necessity, will be brought into closely connected review."

Of the military outlook he said:

"Much inspiration is to be gained from a survey of the present situation. The Russian advance is one of the most brilliant feats of the war."

Proposals for Four-Cylinder Triple Combination Motor Pumping Fire Engine and Hose Carrier.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield at a regular meeting thereof held June 5, 1916, NOTICE is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, the 19th day of June, 1916, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149-151 North avenue, at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing the following, that is to say:

ONE, not less than Four-Cylinder Triple Combination Motor Pumping Fire Engine and Hose Carrier, with a pumping capacity of not less than 750 gallons per minute against 120 pounds net water pressure and at least fifty per cent. of the rated capacity at 200 pounds net water pressure; engine not less than 100 horse-power brake test; to have a longitudinally divided hose body with a capacity of at least one thousand feet of hose when carrying equal amounts of 2½ inch and 3 inch hose; also to be equipped with one 40 gallon chemical tank and at least 200 feet of ¾ inch chemical hose with a ⅝ inch brass nozzle; to be capable of obtaining a speed of at least thirty miles an hour and of covering twenty miles an hour over paved or macadam streets having such grades as the apparatus is likely to encounter in service, and to be equipped with one extension ladder, to extend 24 feet complete, with automatic locks and rope hoist; one 16 foot roof ladder with folding roof hooks; one hand-operated 7 inch rotary siren horn, complete with plate; one N. P. Little Giant door opener; two 10 foot lengths 2½ inch soft suction hose with female couplings on each end; two Larkin shutoff nozzles; one Eastman 3-way deluge set, complete with nozzles, reducers and holders; two 2½ inch by 20 inch rubber play-pipes with handles, and one hose clamp.

No bids will be accepted except upon condition that the apparatus will be placed free of charge in such control of the City of Plainfield, as will permit such demonstration and reasonable tests thereof to be made during a period of thirty days as the Common Council shall deem necessary to determine whether or not the apparatus is satisfactory, and if the same is thereafter rejected, that it will be removed from the city by the bidder without expense to the city, nor unless guarantees against defects, etc., are satisfactory.

All tests to be made under the supervision of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and to the satisfaction of the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

In determining upon the acceptance or rejection of bids the general reputation, financial standing, experience in the business of manufacturing fire apparatus, facilities for duplication of parts, types and stability of pumps, motors, and other features of the apparatus and adaptability for use under conditions existing in Plainfield and vicinity will be given consideration.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved by the Common Council.

Proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Triple Combination Motor Pumping Fire Engine and Hose Carrier."

By order of the Common Council.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.

DEMOCRATS TRY TO LURE BULL MOOSE

Platform to Invite Progressive Aid.

WILSON IS DICTATOR.

Nomination Probably Will Be Made Friday Afternoon.

SEE CLOSE CONTEST AHEAD

See Certain Victory if Enough Progressives Desert Republicans—High Lights In the Platform as Now Framed.

St. Louis, June 15.—The second day of the Democratic convention dawned with no more prospects of an exciting fight than were noted on the first. The delegates and leaders are simply following instructions from their chief, President Wilson, and every one here has the utmost confidence in him.

Today will probably see the consideration of the platform as reported by the committee, which spent all night and morning in formulating the various planks, which have already been outlined. It is not probable that any ballots will be taken before tomorrow, when President Wilson will be renominated by acclamation unless all plans fail.

Two keynotes have been sounded.

The first is "Wilson has kept us out of war," which was the theme of former Governor Martin H. Glynn's strong and loudly applauded speech.

The second was sounded by William J. Bryan when after sitting through the convention as an outsider he said, "Now let us all go out and catch Progressives."

Nine men members of a subcommittee on resolutions are crystallizing the sentiments into a party declaration. Tentative planks have been submitted by the president, through Secretary Baker. The final draft of the platform will not be completed till this afternoon, perhaps even later.

Platform's High Lights.

Here are the declarations which this morning seemed most likely to be included in the platform:

In defense of the administration.

An unqualified approval of the president's course in all European crises, as having kept the country from any part in the great war.

A declaration to the effect that, while the party will not commit itself to intervention in Mexico, it believes that enough troops should be kept on Mexican soil to protect American interests and to prevent any raids of Mexicans across the American border.

As a sop to the Progressives a declaration favoring measures for "social justice" fully as radical as those included in the Progressive platform adopted in Chicago last week.

Measures under discussion in the subcommittee are:

A comprehensive workmen's compensation law.

The eight hour day.

A more drastic woman's suffrage plank than the one adopted by the Republicans. Many radical Democrats are trying to force the committee to report a declaration for a federal suffrage law.

Overtures to Progressives.

It was made plain to the committee members that President Wilson believes that without the Progressives' support the fight against Hughes will be too close for comfort. The president will not be satisfied with any platform that is not so framed as to prove enticing to the men who were deserted by Roosevelt at Chicago.

Around the platform subcommittee centers all the interest of the party leaders.

SUCCESSOR FOR KITCHENER.

Lloyd George Said to Have Been Offered Place by Prime Minister.

London, June 15.—The Daily Chronicle's parliamentary correspondent says:

"I understand that Lloyd George has been offered by the prime minister the position of secretary for war. The minister of munitions asked for a few days to consider the offer. Now that the war secretaryship is relieved of many functions that attached to it in the first year of the war it ought to be possible to combine it with the direction of the ministry of munitions. As the heavy spade work at the munitions department has been done and the machine now goes largely by its own momentum, the two offices could be combined greatly to the advantage of the public.

"In the event of Lloyd George's going to the war office, it is probable its present spokesman in the house of commons, H. J. Tennant, would go to the house of lords, retaining his office as undersecretary of war."

SOME OF AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS MEN ASK AID FOR DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France--

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

What lends additional interest to this appeal is the fact that it is signed by six of the most prominent men in America. Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company, and Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, Boston.

It is anticipated that the contributions received from this wide-spread appeal will be devoted also to relief work among a large number of wounded resulting from the greatly increased activities of the contending armies.

The appeal is reproduced herewith.

AFRAID OF ELIZABETH.

Union county voters overwhelmingly defeated the small Board of Freeholders plan, not on its merits, but because of the fear that the change of government would permit Elizabeth to control entirely the affairs of the county, says the Newark Evening News.

The gratifying results of small board rule in other counties were brushed aside as not applicable to Union. It was pointed out that Elizabeth, according to the latest census, has a population of 82,036 as against 85,286 for the balance of the county, and that therefore the county metropolis would work solidly for its own interests under small board rule as against the interests of the rest of the county. An Elizabeth dictatorship established by political and brewery-controlled rings was the scarecrow raised, and it worked like a charm.

Yet the election returns themselves prove how much of a bugaboo this was. The voters of Elizabeth came within some 200 votes of splitting even on the proposition. There was a majority for the small board, but it was insignificant under the circumstances. The people of Elizabeth did not enact at the polls the role that was assigned to them by the opponents of the small board. They did not take the cue offered to overwhelm the rest of the county and make the people outside of the county seat the vassals of the city.

Elizabethans, too, were influenced; as were outsiders, by political partizanship, and by the raising of issues that experience elsewhere has proved to be false. So the large board, with all its imperfections, will continue to do business in Union county so long as the voters of the county generally see in Elizabeth a menace to the general welfare.

The result of the voting yesterday was sectional and factional.

WHERE HUGHES IS APPRECIATED.

Tentative drafts of the Democratic National platform to be adopted by the St. Louis convention show that strong bids are to be made for the Suffrage and the Progressive votes. Chairman McCombs is bitterly attacking the present position of Roosevelt in an effort to draw over some of the Moose who are not entirely satisfied with Hughes, and Secretary Daniels is flirting with the women who represent the league to secure equal suffrage. The attempt to pull Progressives into the Democratic party will likely prove fruitless, for there is so little of real difference between the utterances of Hughes and Roosevelt, except in their attitude toward the German-American vote, that even the Colonel himself must finally come to the support of the Republican nominee. If Daniels has his way the St. Louis convention will adopt a platform plank calling for a Federal amendment on the suffrage question, and as Daniels is a Wilson emissary to the convention, his way is probably Wilson's way. This would be much more satisfactory than the half-hearted reference of the Chicago convention to women's right to vote, and would probably result in winning the women to Wilson. Both attempts, however, show the Democratic fear of Hughes. There are many Republicans who are not yet convinced that the former Justice is a strong candidate, but none of the Democrats share this doubt, and they are using every trick known to politics to stave off defeat.

There is little new in the Pillar of Fire case in the borough. It differs from their trouble with Plainfield officials only in the detail that orators stood on a privately owned porch, but the audience was one publicly-drawn and it clogged a public street. So long as these people continue in their fiery attacks on institutions that are doing good they need expect no concessions at the hands of the police. Even though their meetings are held inside the newly-purchased house they can be stopped, if the audience is not restricted, for such utterances as came from the mouth of the "Escaped Monk" Ericksen will provoke disorder in almost any crowd of people. These people are troublemakers and must be carefully watched.

Plainfield is being given a great deal of unpleasant notoriety as a result of the deplorable condition of West Front street. Many autoists passed through here last Saturday en route to the ball game at Princeton and they went their way bruised and sore as a result of continual jars and jolts received when passing over Front street. What they will say to their friends will not add to Plainfield's glory and may prevent a great number of people from motoring this way. Some action should be taken at once to repair this street and put it in decent condition.

Just how much the "nibbling" policy of Germany has crippled the English fleet is shown in figures sent out from Berlin yesterday. Since the war began 130 ships of the British navy have been sunk, and the total tonnage is more than 600,000. These are German figures, of course, but they can be accepted as nearly true and they prove that even "The Mistress of the Seas" can be hard hit by an enemy.

TO HOLD FINAL MEETING.

The final meeting of the general committee organized several months ago to be responsible for the Biederwolf Evangelistic Campaign, will be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. Reports of all the subcommittees will be submitted and there will be some business to transact. It is quite essential that all members attend.

WILL TOUR THE WEST.

Max Maximus, of 1380 Park avenue, who strained himself seriously in his gymnasium recently has, on the advice of Dr. George W. Endicott, gone away for a rest. He will spend some time motoring through the west in his new automobile.

RECEPTION TO MEMBERS.

The Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church will give a reception this evening to new members and those who expect to unite with the church. Rev. F. J. Hubach, a former pastor, will deliver an address and the Ladies' Aid Society, assisted by the Epworth League, will provide a musical program and refreshments.

Letter From a Magazine Editor.

"Dear Sir: The editor of this magazine has personally read with keen delight the remarkably clever story submitted by you eight months ago and the English language, which is weak at its best, utterly fails to express his satisfaction. It is a masterpiece of pungent literature, and there is no reason why you should not gain a national reputation in short order if you keep up that sort of work. He wishes to thank you for your consideration in allowing him to have the first glimpse of the story. It has improved his moral, mental, physical and religious tone. Robert W. Chambers, at his best, never turned out a story like that. Please accept our profoundest thanks for submitting same.

"Very sincerely yours,
"The Editor.

"P. S.—We regret to say that we cannot accept your story for publication and return the same herewith. It does not precisely fit our needs, but it is a great story nevertheless. Rejection does not necessarily indicate lack of merit."

Just a Few of Them.

"Deceased had never been fatally sick."

"A mother died in infancy."

"Died suddenly; nothing serious."

"Pulmonary hemorrhage—sudden death. (Duration four years.)"

"Kick by horse shod on left kidney."

"Don't know. Died without the aid of a physician."

"Deceased died from blood poison, caused by a broken ankle, which is remarkable, as his automobile struck him between the lamp and the radiator."

- Proctor's Theatre -

Bessie Barriscale, who is co-starred with William Desmond in the new Triangle-Ince feature, "Not My Sister," at Proctor's today, unlike many successful players, does not rehearse her big scenes before a mirror. She declares that she relies entirely upon instinct to properly give expression to her emotion in a natural manner before the camera. Instead of posing before a mirror, she devotes her spare time to planning her wardrobe. In "Not My Sister" she is cast for the part of an ambitious girl in a poor family. She studied the role and decided that the girl whom she was to portray would be well dressed, but not in expensive clothes, and must have good taste. Therefore, she visited one of the Los Angeles department stores and, after a search, purchased a dress for $2.40. She wears it in the principal scenes of "Not My Sister." Strangely enough it was designed for a girl of 16 years, yet it fits the star as though it had been made for her. In addition today, Al St. John appears in what may be termed a Keystone comedy-drama, which combines comedy and pathos in a way that will evoke loud praise from all film fans. On Friday and Saturday, the headline attraction at Proctor's is the appearance of Charlie Chaplin at his best in his latest comedy, "The Fireman." In "The Fireman," the comedian, whose distinctive acting has won him such amazing popularity, brings to bear all the funny mannerisms and tricks for which he is noted. In addition to this popular attraction on Friday and Saturday, the regular big show will be presented, and on Saturday morning a special performance will be given absolutely free to all the school children at 11 o'clock, at which time the first episode of "The Secret of the Submarine" will be presented.

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

In offering "Resista," the young woman who defies the laws of force at will, Manager Shannon believes he has a rare novelty at the head of the new bill of vaudeville, opening this afternoon. "Resista" will make an award of $500 to any person who can move her against her will, and performs other remarkable and amazing feats. She comes to Plainfield direct from a tour which included every large city from Maine to California.

Other numbers on the bill beginning this afternoon are: Poole, the humorist trickster; Manley and Woods, in a sketch, "It Happened This Way"; Howard and Hill, European novelty dancers; and Joe Kain and Lew Kraus, in the dramatic playlet, "The Little Immigrant."

The picture feature for this afternoon and tonight will be the succeeding episode of the serial film, "The Iron Claw." Pathe comedies and dramas are scheduled for tomorrow and Saturday, and the Pathe Animated Weekly, in addition, on Saturday. Picture patrons are promised a rare treat the first half of next week when the reigning success,

FROM THE DEMOCRATIC FESTIVITIES

"Where Are My Children?" a five-reel dramatic photoplay, will be displayed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Don't fail to see it.

--Astor Theatre--

The big attraction at the Astor Theatre today will be Richard Tucker in "When Love is King," produced by the Kleine-Edison Company. Carrol McComas was engaged especially for a feature role in this photodrama and, with Richard Tucker, is co-starred. It is not often that a more interesting film tale is produced than "When Love is King." It awakens interest right from the beginning and there is no abatement of it until the final scene is thrown upon the screen. In addition to this wonderful production, we will show the first and second chapters of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance," which is a feature at this theatre every Thursday. Tomorrow, the ever-popular favorite, Blanche Sweet, in a picturization of "The Sowers," by Henry Seton Merriman, and by special arrangement with Harper Brothers. This production is without doubt one of the greatest photodramas ever screened by the Lasky company, and it may be said that Blanche Sweet is at her best in every scene, and it has been some time since Miss Sweet has had an opportunity such as this to act a large part. The production is in five thrilling parts, with not an uninteresting moment. With the ever-popular Paramount-Bray cartoons, it will make a very interesting bill. On Saturday, "The Hidden Law," with Margaret Gibson; and "The Girl and the Game" will comprise the big features for the day. Always a good and interesting bill at the Astor Theatre, the coolest house in town and the most comfortable; no dampness of any kind, but good fresh air. Bring the "kiddies" and spend a pleasant afternoon in "your" theatre under "our" management.

C. O. S. PLANNING FOR CAMPAIGN

Will Endeavor to Meet Problems of Ill-Health and Seasonal Enervation.

APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

"The Biederwolf Campaign and After," Subject of Attractive Folder Published for General Distribution Among Friends of the Work.

Welfare experts of the Charity Organization Society have planned a summer campaign to meet the problems of ill-health, malnutrition and seasonal enervation that recur with the pendency of the extreme heat and humidity in this latitude. In a folder, headed "The Biederwolf Campaign and After," the C. O. S. sets forth the hope that the people of Plainfield who are banded in churches, in such organization as the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the Y. M. H. A., the League for the Prevention of Tuberculosis and kindred bodies will supply the "gardeners and reapers," whose personal service will cultivate the field "plowed, harrowed, fertilized and seeded" in the recent Biederwolf campaign.

The folder contains an especial appeal by the C. O. S. for support in its summer work. By distribution of milk and ice, by automobile and trolley rides, by vacations in the country or at the seashore, the prosperous can do their part to make the summer more livable for the less fortunate through the C. O. S.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees this week, the executive secretary, Miss Mabelle Phillips, made a special report on child welfare, public relief, housing, court work and drunkenness. A committee of five was appointed to consider these subjects, and to report to the Board at the October meeting. The very able work of the alms committee of the Common Council, under its efficient chairman, Christie Hamilton, was recognized by a resolution which was introduced and carried, expressing the appreciation of the C. O. S.

There is still no lack of opportunity for the man to support his family who is physically able and willing to work. In the list of families for whom some definite plan of relief had to be made in May, there was none whose male head was out of work, and but one came up for emergency relief. The C. O. S., however, strongly emphasizes that, in spite of local industrial activity, there are many families who need its help. The points developed in the last monthly report of the society are that the C. O. S. investigates cases so carefully that help is not extended when not absolutely necessary; that, given regular employment, victims of misfortune get back their nerve and self-reliance and do not turn to the C. O. S.; and that the causes which made it necessary for 59 families to receive relief in May had nothing to do with the economic conditions of the moment. The report shows that in 10 families the male head was dead; in 14, incapacitated; in 21, non-supporting; in 1 (emergency), out of work. In 10 families the trouble was insufficient income, and 3 families had to have medicine and clothing bought for them.

As usual, it was the non-supporting husband who offered the biggest problem. In this connection the C. O. S. feels that there is great opportunity for men volunteer workers. The organizations in the churches, and elsewhere, which have been strengthened by Dr. Biederwolf's splendid campaign, could find practical work in visiting and becoming the friendly advisers of these recalcitrant, sometimes drunken and vicious husbands, who cause so much misery to their families and make them burdens upon the community.

During the month of May there were in all 157 cases under care. Twenty-seven of these were opened during the month; the rest were carried over from April. There were 40 cases investigated which proved not to require care; of these, 7 were for other agencies.

The number of "friendly visitors" has already decreased. So many people go away in the summer that this seems inevitable, but it is to be regretted, as there is as great need for this invaluable personal intercourse now as at any other time of the year.

The winter calls for help in certain ways; the summer brings opportunities for alleviating the suffering of malnurtured, sickly little ones and of tired mothers. The friendly visitor can find the same kind of work to his hand all twelve months of the year.

CRANFORD CARNIVAL TO BE HELD JULY 4

This Year's Affair Promises to Far Exceed Those of the Past.

Cranford will repeat this year, July 4th, the great scenic carnivals that have made that town famous through all this section of the country. Many thousands have enjoyed the carnivals at Cranford in past years, and the memory of the beautiful Venetian spectacle is a pleasant one to all. The myriad lights along the river and throughout the wooded sections adjacent thereto and the elaborate decorations and lighting effects on the bridges and lawns alone would be worth a long journey to see, but there also is the river parade of decorated canoes and floats, each one more beautiful than its neighbor, and wonderfully fascinating to watch as they float by. No water carnival in New Jersey or neighboring States approaches the Cranford carnival in artistic arrangement as well as mere beauty as a spectacle.

Cranford welcomes visitors carnival night. No catch-penny device or effort to make money from visitors is countenanced. Cranford simply extends to all a cordial invitation to enjoy with her own citizens the beautiful Venetian carnival, which this year promises to surpass even the wonderfully effective spectacles of other years.

NEED BABY BUGGIES FOR POOR KIDDIES

Few Second-Hand Ones May Save Lives of Sick Infants.

The baby clinic and milk station in the east end of town, 308 Richmond street, is being well attended and great results are expected. The mothers are much interested in watching the progress their children are making and are really trying to follow the directions given by doctors and nurses for their good. Last summer one thing that greatly helped this work was the large number of second-hand baby carriages given to the Visiting Nurses' Association for those mothers who cannot buy. The association will be very glad to receive more this summer. If any one who has an old carriage in the attic or barn that is not being used will telephone 103, they will see that it is called for and given to some mother who will proudly use it all summer. The association has two sets of twins who have no carriage, if anyone has a particularly large carriage to dispose of. It also has another very anaemic baby who needs to be outdoors all summer, and the carriage can be used for this as well as for bringing the baby down to the clinic.

The Woods Resounded With His Music.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Fiddler Rambled Through The Woods.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

"TIME for a story, daddy!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

So daddy told them about a wonderful musician. "There was once a musician who played delightfully on his fiddle. Through the woods he went rambling in a merry mood. Then he said to himself: 'Time hangs heavily upon me. I must fiddle me a companion.'

"So he took his fiddle out of its case, drew his bow and fiddled away till the whole woods resounded with his merry music.

"Soon up came a wolf. 'Dear me, here comes a wolf to see me!' thought the fiddler. 'How prettily you play. Teach me?' asked the wolf. 'If you will do as I say,' replied the fiddler.

"So they went on till they came to an old oak tree that was hollow within and had a big crack in its trunk. 'If you wish to learn to fiddle put your fore feet into that crack,' said the musician.

"The wolf did as he was bid, and the fiddler picked up a huge stone and wedged both the wolf's feet into the crack, so that he was a prisoner. 'Wait till I come back to teach you,' said the musician, jogging on through the woods.

"Soon he said to himself again: 'Time hangs heavily upon my mind. I must fiddle me another companion.' So he fiddled merrily till up came a fox from the heart of the woods. 'Will you teach me to play as beautifully as you do?' asked the fox. 'If you will do as I bid,' replied the musician.

"They traveled on till they came to a footpath with high bushes on each side. Then the fiddler bent a stout hazel bush down to the ground, set his foot on top and held it fast. Then he bent another bush from the other side. 'Now, my pretty fox, if you want to fiddle give me your left paw.'

"So the fox gave him his paw, and the fiddler tied it fast to the top of one bush. 'Now give me your right paw.' The fox gave him his right paw, and the musician tied it fast to the other hazel top. Then he took his foot off the branches, up they flew, and the fox hung sprawling and swinging in the air. 'Please wait till I come to teach you how to fiddle,' said the musician, jogging on through the woods.

"After awhile the thought: 'Time hangs heavily. I must fiddle me a companion.' And while he played a hare bounded across his path. 'Teach me?' asked the hare. 'If you do as I bid,' said the musician. So he tied a string around the hare's neck and bade her run twenty times around an oak tree," daddy ended.

Marrying a Butterfly

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Ethel Revives Ralp's Dying Hopes With a Promise.

Ralph Gordon sat with his head buried in his hands, and his elbows on his knees. He had not moved for half an hour. The house was very quiet. The maid had gone out and since Ethel had rushed off in a flood of tears, because he had proposed that his mother make them a visit and give Ethel some practical lessons in housewifery, he had heard nothing of her.

"She is so unreasonable," Ralph was saying to himself. "It has come to this, that her moods constitute the chief object of my study. I have really to take my mind off my business to ponder how to manage a situation so as to keep affairs running smoothly. This sort of life is anything but happy." The clock ticked with awful distinctness in the silent house.

"Besides," continued the gloomy voice inside him, "no amount of effort on my part will keep our relations smooth, for the reason that our principles are opposed. Can she not see? Evidently not, and it is hopeless to try to make her."

"And what am I to do?" he asked himself. "I can not change her in any way. Each day we drift farther apart. Each day her light carefree ways grow more exasperating, and I am beginning to feel her actually a burden." The thought was at first a distinct shock. "Yes, a burden," he reiterated. "I can not put the concentration on my business that I should to succeed, living in this state of ferment."

He heard a soft step on the carpet behind him, but he did not look up.

"I wonder what her next move will be," he thought. Although he did not stir all his senses were alert. She slid onto the wide arm of the chair and stole an arm around his neck, pulling at his fingers to remove them from his eyes.

"Ralph, kiss me," she murmured tearfully. As he kissed her he absorbed all emotions that had passed and were passing through her mind. He felt a timid pleading to be loved and a desire to please that he was sure was something new in her experience.

"Ralph," she began, after she had lain quiet in his arms for some minutes, "I have been thinking that I might learn housekeeping from books. I might take a course by correspondence. What do you think of the plan?"

"It surely is worth trying," he replied in a tone that tried to atone for the inclemency of his thoughts about her. "Of course you will find it harder than having some one show you, for you have not been doing much studying lately and books do not appeal to you very much. It will cost very little to try and it will give you something to think about."

"You do not think I can do it," said the subdued little voice.

"You can, if you are interested enough," was his evasive answer. "I'll send for a course of study at once."

"If I can not learn it alone, I might go home for a little while and take a course there," suggested Ethel after a silence.

"That is out of the question," burst out Ralph. "With all your girl friends to distract you and your mother to make you feel that you should do nothing, you would get nowhere in Milwaukee."

"You are hard on mamma," pouted the girl. "You do not want me near her."

"Surely not when you are planning to make a radical change in your habits. A change that will be hard enough without the hindrance she would surely be."

"Ralph is brutally frank," thought his wife.

"IF."

These fine lines are from the poem "If," which may be found in Kipling's "Seven Seas and Other Poems":

If you can dream and not make dreams your master;
If you can think and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and disaster
And treat those two imposters just the same. * * *
If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings—nor lose the common touch.
If neither foes nor loving friends can haunt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds worth of distance run—
Yours is the earth and everything that's in it,
And—what is more—you'll be a man, my son.

THE MOTHER CULT.

This is the mother's season. Mothers are being assiduously courted in literature of prose and verse. No longer the patient, unappreciated drudges of a former generation mothers are having the whole anthologies compiled in their honor. One of them, most attractive in form, is "Mother," compiled by Susan Tracy Rice and edited by Robert Haven Schauffler (Moffat, Yard & Co.) Quotations range from the ancients through Felicia Hemans to the most modernistic theory of pensioning mothers.

Another book with the same object of adulation is Mary Aliette Ayer's compilation, "Our Mothers" (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard). Even Woodrow Wilson is quoted in this little volume of homely sentiment. It should be a spur to young gentlemen who forget to bring home the weekly box of candy, and to young ladies too tired from dancing to aid in the housework.

WANTED, BETTER BABIES.

"Baby Week" will be full of texts for equal suffrage and the women will not fail to draw the moral. They will remind the public that the world's lowest infant death rate is found in New Zealand, where women have voted for nearly a quarter of a century; that in almost all of the countries and provinces which make the best showing in this respect, women have the ballot; that, after the passage of the suffrage bill in Illinois, the sanitary disposal of garbage and the saving of babies' lives became an issue in the Chicago election, for the first time. They will recall the fact that in the Better Babies contest at the Interstate Fair in Spokane, the press reported that the babies broke all records. More than fourteen hundred babies were entered from Washington and the surrounding suffrage states, and many of these children of voting mothers were found to be almost perfect that, after preliminary tests had been made, a supplementary competition had to be held to decide between the many babies who measured up to 98 per cent. or over. Julia C. Lathrop says: "Instead of interfering with child welfare, woman suffrage leads toward it." A. S. B.

THE GREAT NEED OF LOVE.

We don't all seem to understand that love is just as essential to the proper development of the spiritual body as milk is to the development of the physical body. But it is, and a lack of this soul food is the chief cause of the imperfect development of the spiritual body and the consequent smallness, if not absence of soul. Have you ever known a good and great man who grew up without the heart love of a mother, or some one who had given freely of heart love to feed and nourish his young spirit?—Erasmus Wilson, in Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

LEARNING ABOUT NATURE.

The man or woman who knows nothing of trees or plants, who has never had the pleasure of looking for the flowers as they come in their seasons, who does not know their names and habits, has lost much. There are so many books that tell about the trees and plants that no other teacher is needed. Summer is the time to study them. One summer a mother told her children to see how many different plants and trees they could find on a four-acre meadow near their summer home. When the list was made, over fifty different varieties were included. The children's eyes were accustomed to seeing things that they had carelessly passed by before, and had discovered many a plant that had blushed unseen before. The pleasure of seeing and knowing the many different flowers and trees gives the same enjoyment that one feels in meeting an old friend, as season after season one finds the flowers in their time of blossoming. Every road side, every wood and field and meadow is rich with treasure to the one who has eyes to see. Open the eyes of the childrn to these beauties.

WHY PUPILS LEAVE SCHOOL.

A number of surveys have recently been made in different cities throughout the country of why boys and girls drop out of school between the ages of twelve and sixteen. It has been found that while the cause is most often laid to economic pressure, the real cause is that the boys and girls do not like school; that they couldn't see that school was leading into anything they could use to advantage in their own life; that they wanted to do something—to work, and that any further education was for the person who did not have to make his own living. The alarming falling away from school at this age has been the main factor which has aroused educators to the seriousness of the problem and to the necessity of finding the child's interests and making a vital connection between his activities in and out of school.

The work of parent teacher associations is to make public sentiment on these questions. This is a holy purpose which is worth the best effort of each of us. It is worth while because it means finding the individual capacities of the child. School work has been largely mechanical, a factory turning out a uniform product with the power of initiative almost if not entirely destroyed. The tendency in our best schools to-day is to put the stamp of approval upon the inventive, ingenious, original work of children. Activities based upon the child's interest make for freedom. It is an easy thing to work under guidance where someone else does your thinking for you. Large numbers can be trained by routine work to do a given work efficiently. Slaves are trained in this way. Autocratic and monarchical governments have their efficiency of such training. But in a democratic country such as ours, too much attention cannot be given to unfolding the individual, his originality, his resourcefulness, his capacity for independent activity. Let us give our loving service to this end.

Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr., who was Mrs. Grover Cleveland before she married Professor Preston of Princeton, is in a New York hospital for an operation. Mrs. Preston's trouble is reported as serious but not critical. Mrs. Preston, accompanied by her husband, came to New York from Princeton and was taken directly to the hospital. Professor Preston is at her bedside at all times. Latest reports say the operation was successful, and there is no immediate danger.

SEWING CIRCLE GIVES A STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

As a result of the strawberry festival and dance given in Abrams' Hall last night under the auspices of Mrs. William Newcorn's Sewing Circle, a neat sum was realized for the benefit of the United Hebrew Charity Association of the city. Beside the many articles on sale made by the circle the refreshment table was well patronized and the large gathering enjoyed dancing until a late hour. Music for this feature was furnished by Suhr's orchestra. During the evening, Miss May Mathews sang a solo and executed an aesthetic dance, assisted by Miss Cecila Mann. Miss Rae Prager presided at the piano during this number.

The sewing circle is composed of the following women: Mrs. William Newcorn, Mrs. Ida Salls, Mrs. H. Mendel, Miss Rae Prager, Miss Bessie Adelberg, Mrs. Marcus Silbert and Mrs. Samuel Schwartz.

GRACE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB ELECT OFFICERS

The following officers were elected for the coming year by the Men's Club of the Grace Episcopal church at the annual meeting of the club held in the Park Club last night: President, W. J. Tallamy; first vice president, Howard Fleming; second vice president, George L. Babcock; secretary, Mr. Mellick; treasurer, A. E. Faber, Jr.; executive committee with term of one year, Charles A. Dall, A. E. Sproul, George W. Holstein and F. G. Krekill; two years, J. B. Richards and Dr. W. L. Krans. George M. Holstein, the retiring president, presided during the meeting.

Following the routine business session, teams were formed and a spirited bowling contest was enjoyed for the balance of the evening. At 9:30 a light supper was served, and a social time followed.

LAWN FESTIVAL.

The Volunteer Bible-class of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school will hold a lawn festival at the home of Mrs. H. C. Runyon, 338 Franklin place, Saturday afternoon and evening, June 17. Fancy articles and trimmed garden hats, home-made cake and candy; also cut flowers and ice-cream, will be on sale. An invitation is extended to the public to patronize the sale.

S. A. R. SOCIETY IS ORGANIZED

Washington Chapter Holds An Enthusiastic Meeting in This City.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Charles La C. Hoff is Chosen President of Chapter—Steps Taken to Increase the Membership of the Society.

An enthusiastic meeting of the members of the State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in Plainfield and vicinity was held last evening, for the purpose of forming a local chapter of the society, and the organization was started on a firm basis. The local chapter will be known as Washington Rock Chapter of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, this name being given on account of the local historical interest in the spot named, and also because it is the intention of the chapter to draw its members from not only Plainfield, but from the surrounding vicinity.

The local members of the State Society and those who have signified their intention of becoming affiliated with the chapter, are as follows:

George P. Mellick, Leslie R. Fort, Charles La C. Hoff, Sidney S. Schuyler, Harvey R. Linbarger, Harry F. Johnston, W. Truman Sharp and Judd Stewart, all of Plainfield; Dr. Alfred L. Ellis, of Metuchen; P. N. Codington, of Somerville; William H. Sampson and Walter Sampson, of Westfield; John Z. Hatfield, of Scotch Plains, and Leslie Hatfield, fo Fanwood.

The new members of the society and chapter elected last evening were as follows: Charles R. Banks, of Plainfield; Royden Whitcomb, of Westfield, and William S. Eddy, of Plainfield.

The following officers of the local chapter were also elected: President, Mr. Hoff; vice president, Mr. Fort; secretary, Mr. Linbarger; treasurer, Mr. Sharp; registrar, Mr. Johnston; historian, John Z. Hatfield.

The reasons for membership in the society are as follows:

The society encourages the maintenance of public interest in the men, incidents and objects of the American Revolution, now too often neglected in the pressure of modern life.

It encourages the spirit of disinterested service for the whole country, by preserving from oblivion the public services of a member's own ancestors.

By celebrating the important events of the Revolution, it recalls to memory the objects of that struggle and the principles for which our forefathers fought, as embodied in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and Washington's farewell address.

To the youth of the families of members it teaches lessons drawn from the heroism and self sacrifice of their own ancestors, which cannot fail to make them better citizens.

It preserves family traditions and records, priceless in value, to general history.

In the original thirteen States, it leads to the marking of battlefields, routes of march and historic sites, by monuments and tablets, and to the preservation of historic buildings from destruction.

In each of the newer States it not only promotes the celebration of the anniversaries of the Revolution, but also secures a yearly celebration of the anniversary of the admission of the State into the Union.

It encourages the diffusion among our fellow-citizens of foreign birth of a better understanding of the principles of free government and greater love for their adopted country.

It brings together in friendly relationship the men of the North, the South, and the East and the West.

The society is non-political and non-sectarian. "The discussion of sectarian subjects and matter of partisan politics" at the meetings of the society is forbidden.

Anyone in this vicinity who is eligible for membership can obtain the necessary information from Mr. Linbarger.

ARTHUR B. THORN WEDS MISS ETTA G. BREMMER

The marriage of Miss Etta G. Bremmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bremmer, of 58 Harrison avenue, the borough, and Arthur B. Thorn, of this city, took place last night at 8 o'clock at the rectory of the Church of the Holy Cross, the rector, Rev. H. St. G. Burrill officiating. The couple were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Bertha Bremmer, and Robert Anson, who acted in the capacity of bridesmaid and best man, respectively.

Following the wedding a reception was tendered the couple and the attendants and a few intimate friends. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Thorn left on a short honeymoon trip and upon their return they will go to housekeeping on South avenue.

RISE AND FALL RESTED WITH ONE CLEVER YOUTH.

One year ago Plainfield High boasted of the best schoolboy vaulter in scholastic circles. Tuesday afternoon the best mark established by a Plainfield High School student in a meet on Parker Field was 7 feet 4 inches. Think of it, a little more than half the heighth credited to a youth from the same institution a few months ago. What were the coaches doing while Ralph Runyon was in school? Did they think he was going to remain there the rest of his life? It is hard to conceive of a situation of this kind wherein the supervisors of competitive athletics in a school like Plainfield High have failed utterly to take advantage of the coaching of a star of Runyon's calibre could give the coming generation of performers. Those interested in athletics were contented to sit idly by and watch him build up a reputation for the institution and then to see it drop to cellar depth as soon as he fell out. There is absolutely no reason why a suitable successor could not have been developed but that no attempt was made to perpetuate the reputation was proven in that performance of Tuesday.

TWO WOMEN UPHOLDING CITY REPUTATION IN SPORTS.

Plainfield is well represented these days in the meets being promoted to decide titles, especially golf and tennis. At least one localite has shown to good advantage in every feminine tennis or golf championship competition this spring and the same individuals are once more upholding the record of the Queen City. Mrs. R. S. Stockton, in golf, and Miss Edna Wildey, in tennis, both Plainfield women, have performed in clever style in their respective specialties, and while neither has landed a title to date both have attracted attention in the metropolitan district and are looked upon as a couple of the most consistent and capable women athletes in the State.

ONE YEAR WASTED IN HIGH SCHOOL TRACK SPORTS.

Because no one assumed the initiative the annual Union County High School athletic meet will not be held this year. After two successes that heaped a load of credit on the heads of county high school athletic supervisors the schools have let a year slip by and apparently no one institution is mourning over it. Some of the best talent in recent years has rested dormant in our county high schools this year and it is to be regretted that no individual had backbone enough to engineer the annual festival.

No matter from what angle you may regard it, baseball is the most uncertain of all sports. It is, no doubt, because of that uncertainty that the game has attained such tremendous popularity. These may be mere platitudes, but in the light of the latest batting averages they bear repetition. A $30,000 beauty, we are reminded by the figures, may turn into a lemon quicker than it takes the real citrus fruit to turn ripe. This uncertainty in baseball has by some been interpreted unwisely. Some critics who evidently do not know the war is over are pointing to Lee Magee's rather anaemic batting average of .218 as an index to the real calibre of the Federal League. Benny Kauff's ability to bat better than .275 is regarded as another piece of incontrovertible evidence that the late lamented circuit ranked with the Three-I League.

PLAINFIELD A. C. OPEN FOR GAME ON SATURDAY

The Plainfield A. C. has Saturday, June 17, open, and would like to meet some fast team for that date. Telephone 217 Plainfield between 6:30 p. m. and 8 p. m.

The team will line up as follows: B. Ross, c.; H. Stites, p.; L. Stites, 1b.; Moffett, 2b.; Snyder, ss.; L. Paritz, 3b.; V. Mullen, lf.; Coffey, cf.; McGue, rf. Teams wishing games may communicate with V. Mullen, 183 North avenue or A. Coffey, 716 West Front street, Plainfield.

"ART" ROAMER WILL TWIRL AT ELIZABETH

Determined to avenge their defeat of two weeks ago, the baseball players representing the New York police department will return to T. A. C. Park, Elizabethport, Sunday afternoon, to be the guests of the Elizabeth Tabs.

The first tussle resulted in a 2-1 victory for the Abstainers, the cops making their tally in the ninth inning after two were down. A pitchers' battle is anticipated between Arthur Romer for the police and Marty Sheridan for the Tabs. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock and the park is at the Elizabethport Station, Central Railroad.

NATIONAL HORSE SHOW DATES.

Announcement was made yesterday by Alfred B. Maclay, chairman of the executive committee of the National Horse Show Association, that the annual exhibition in Madison Square Garden would be held on Nov. 11-17. This is one week later than last year, the dates having been chosen to avoid Election Day, which will fall on Nov. 7. Following the custom of recent years, the Horse Show will open on Saturday and will close on Friday of the following week.

Y. M. H. A. TEAMS WILL PLAY IN PRELIMINARY

Shrager's Colts and the Somerville Y. M. H. A. will line-up in the preliminary battle on Avon Oval, Sunday, before the T. A. B. S. game. Manager Shrager has secured the services of Sammy Davidson, the High School pitcher, while Art Kyle, High School's next year captain, will be on the receiving end. Both "Ben" and "Hy" Rosenson will be among those in the lineup, while Aaron Hirsch, of Plainfield and North Plainfield fame, will cavort around the initial sack.

There have been many side bets placed on this game and interest is running high as to the outcome of the game. The team will be composed of Y. M. H. A. players, with the exception of Kyle, who will be initiated for that game only. The game will start at 1:30.

PRINCETON BEATS YALE IN THIRD GAME 1 TO 0

A well-executed squeeze play by "Buzz" Law in the ninth inning enabled Princeton to beat Yale in the third and deciding game of their annual series, played at Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark, yesterday afternoon, by the score of 1 to 0. Eddie Shea slid over the rubber with the only run scored during the entire game.

Vergil Link, the winning Princeton pitcher, hurled an excellent game, allowing the New Haven players just one lone single. When the game was over the Princeton crowd flocked down over the diamond. Link was hoisted to the shoulders of as many as could get hold of him and a snake dance was then in order, with the Princeton alumni and undergraduates joining in singing, "Yale, Yale, You Can't Play Ball."

Link struck out ten of the Yale players, walked two batsmen and hit two. Only two of the Blue players reached second base, and not a single New Havenite got as far as third.

MRS. GAVIN COMES FROM REAR TO WIN

Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of Plainfield, Loses Her Match to Mrs. O. F. Feitner.

Mrs. W. A. Gavin, the little English woman with the big fighting spirit, played a plucky uphill match against Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, yesterday in the second round of the women's metropolitan golf championship fray at Baltusrol, and when she holed out a twelve-inch putt for a half on the home green she had overtaken and defeated Miss Hollins, a former metropolitan champion, 1 up.

Mrs. Quentin F. Feitner, of South Shore, the defending champion, won her match from Mrs. H. R. Stockton of Plainfield, 3 and 1, and she will encounter Mrs. F. D. Ryan of Cranford in the semi-final round this morning. Mrs. Gavin has an early appointment today with Miss Georgianna M. Bishop of Brooklawn for purposes of battle, and the winner of this engagement will probably fight it out tomorrow with Mrs. Feitner for the championship.

Mrs. Feitner was an almost sure winner from the start, as Mrs. Stockton was the medalist of the tournament and, as such, was doomed to defeat. The champion was three up at the turn, and in spite of her proficiency in taking three putts, she held her margin to the end.

In the first round of the beaten eight, Mrs. J. Noyes of Montclair defeated Mrs. C. B. Lawrence of Plainfield, 2 and 1.

MISS EDNA WILDEY TAKES THIRD ROUND

Plainfield Tennis Star Defeats Miss Natalie Browning 6-2, 6-2—Miss Wagner Loses.

One reversal stood out prominently in the women's invitation tennis tournament at Ardsley yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Robert Le Roy brought about the downfall of Miss Marie Wagner in the third round of the singles' event after a three-set match, the score of which was 1—6, 6—4, 6—2. Such a happening was entirely unexpected. Miss Wagner won the first set handily, but a streak of unsteadiness developed in the next encounter which ruined her chances of victory. Her shots went wild many times and often she netted. With Mrs. Le Roy playing carefully, if not brilliantly, the ball was kept popping back across the barrier by her, and eventually Miss Wagner was drawn into tactical errors.

The only other surprise developed when Mrs. David C. Mills vanquished Miss Florence Sheldon at 10—8, 6—4. The former, however, has been gradually improving her game, and the strength which she developed yesterday made the victory an earned one.

The doubles events were carried well along yesterday. Mrs. H. Stuart Green and Miss Katherine Browning were near defeat in the match against Miss Marion Vanderhoef and Mrs. B. F. Briggs. The score was 7—5, 2—6, 8—6. In the last set the count was 5—2 in favor of the losers when their opponents started a rally that carried them through to success. At one time Miss Vanderhoef and Mrs. Briggs were within one point of victory.

In the third round of the singles, Miss Edna Wildey, of Plainfield, defeated Miss Natalie Browning, 6—2, 6—2. Miss Wildey and Mrs. G. S. Dickenson defeated Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Robert Le Roy, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3, in the second round of the doubles. In the third round, Miss Wildey and Mrs. Dickenson were defeated by Miss Ina Kissel and Miss Helen Alexander, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

DELICATE MONSTERS.

How Warships Are Lined to Protect Them From Fire and Water.

Although it may look very strong, a battleship is really a very delicate monster. Its vital parts have to be protected by several coverings of a material chiefly obtained from cocoanuts. This is to prevent certain portions becoming either too cold or too hot. For instance, it will be seen that the results would be exciting if the powder magazines became overheated.

A dreadnaught is entirely clothed in a suit of underwear to protect it from fire and water. The actual construction of the material is a secret, but it is known to be for the most part cellulose, which is obtained from the fibrous rind of the cocoanut.

Cellulose swells when it touches salt water. Therefore if a hole should be made in the ship's side, say, by a shot this cellulose expands and covers the opening, so preventing an inrush of water. The cellulose is also treated to make it fireproof.

Mineral wool is a material used upon the latest type of battleship. It looks like wool, but is really composed of snowy threads of a sort of glass. The men who pack mineral wool have to wear masks to prevent the needlelike particles from being inhaled. It is a remarkable nonconductor of heat and is used to cover the refrigerators and cold storage chambers and also the explosive stores.

The boilers and steam pipes of a dreadnaught have "jackets" in order to prevent waste of fuel. Sometimes these jackets are of mineral wool, sometimes wool a 1 sometimes ordinary blanketing.—Pearson's.

VALE OF KASHMIR.

A Beautiful Spot With a Record of Natural Calamities.

Beautiful and unfortunate is the wonderful vale of Kashmir, lying high among the Himalayas, ringed with gigantic peaks, "clothed in evergreen fir and deodar, the light green bed of Jehlam strung across its dun breast like a jade necklace, blushing with the ghostly pink of peach and plum blossoms."

Kashmir has a persistent record of natural calamity. Jehlam overflows its banks at intervals and sends destroying floods that wipe out whole districts. The giant peaks around the valley stir now and again in their sleep of ages and shake the flats with mighty earthquakes. Famine and cholera kill more than the river and the trembling mountains.

Fire frequently sweeps the fields and cities. As one looks up at the hills on either side from the bed of Jehlam it is seen that one slope is covered with cool, dark forest, while the other grows nothing but long grass. A spark in this grass starts the blaze. Among the Himalayas the air is biting cold and the Kashmiri carries a little charcoal brazier under his robe to warm his body. These peripatetic furnaces start many a flame.

With a history dotted with such calamitous landmarks the people of Kashmir have acquired a pessimistic expression and disposition. They are superstitious, too, ascribing all manner of miraculous attributes and fairy inhabitants to the mountain springs.—Argonaut.

UNNECESSARY MOTIONS SHOULD BE ELIMINATED BY ALL TENNIS PLAYERS

By the time a player has played enough to become keen on the game and is getting his amusement and pleasure out of it he has probably settled on his own style of play, and there is very little use in trying to alter that at such a late date. Nevertheless there may often be radical changes which can be made which will produce improved results. Without proposing to discuss the various styles one might suggest certain broad principles which might be incorporated into the methods of each player, certain broad ideas which are worth consideration. In every process where we are getting certain manual movements the aim is to produce the best and most constant results with the least efforts and the least margin of error.

In lawn tennis this is one broad statement, each movement of the arms, racquet and body that is unnecessary is merely an added complexity which increases the chance of error. The longer the preliminary swing the greater distance the racquet has to pass through before meeting the ball and, though a certain amount is necessary to give velocity to the racquet, any more than is necessary for this purpose is energy wasted, while the greater distance through which the racquet travels only accentuates a small error in direction at the beginning of the stroke. For this reason one does not recommend the use of the so-called Lawford as being a stroke too difficult to produce uniform good results in the hands of the novice.

Standardization is the cry of all the manufacturers where high efficiency is discussed, and "standardization of stroke" is a good thought for tennis. By standardization is meant that each stroke should always be played in the same way, and that way should be the easiest, or rather the most simple way it can be played. By this is not meant that easy (to the other player) strokes should be played, but that each stroke, backhand or forehand, should be played from the same height of bound, with the same body and arm motions as far as possible every time, and that these motions should be those that are the simplest and that will produce their result.

It may be argued that every stroke is not the same every time. True, but in very many cases it may be made into the same stroke by the accurate placing of the player himself in just the right position for it as soon as its fight is appreciated. Almost every ball that can be hit at all can be made easy if it is only sized up in time and the proper position for it is taken. But the proper position must be tried for all the time unfailingly, or else one falls into the error of trying to take the ball from an incorrect stand, and inaccuracy and failure of stroke will probably result.

The instant the ball is hit by the opponent, the player should judge of its flight, direction and bound and go instantly to the spot where it will come at the right distance and height for him to hit in the way that he has decided he can get most consistent results with the least field for error. He must think and so visualize the stroke from the right position and keep on doing this all the time with every ball till it becomes instinctive. Then in a very short while it will be found that he will take up the right position with the ball just as he wants it and hit every ball in the way he plays it best. Of all strokes, no matter how made, surely the easiest stroke must be the meeting the ball with a perfectly straight swing without cut or top on either hand, with as little preliminary flourish as possible, and as little arm movement as can be made.

The ball should be played from well away to the right side of the player and with the ball at such comfortable distance from the body to allow of a free swing of the racquet and at a height above the ground not below that of the top of the net. As the stroke is made the weight of the body should be first inclined to be on the right foot as the racquet swings back and then as it swings forward the weight is transferred at the moment of striking to the left foot and forward to follow out the stroke. Many players think that the pace on the ball is made with the hit of the racquet and the arm movement alone. This is a great mistake. Only by putting in the weight of the body can the stroke be made properly and this is done by the forward movement of the body from the back foot to the front foot while the arm is comparatively stiff at the movement of striking and afterwards follows through by flexing of elbow and wrist. This standardization of stroke if it is taken seriously will result in a very much lessened error score and the analysis of most matches shows that errors win more points for either man than good plays.

It is not to be understood that progress should cease with the acquirement of, say, a standard stroke. It should only be looked upon as a firm foundation on which to build other strokes more diversified, more intricate, but perhaps just as sure. To take a novice and begin right from the jump to teach him the top spin stroke might work in a few cases, but in the majority it would only produce a player who could get in a few wonderful shots and make a multiplicity of errors which would more than balance them.

The straightforward standard stroke as outlined is the basis of all strokes and must be learned first, and when it is thoroughly ground—then is the time to learn top spin, undercut and all the manifold varieties to which it is capable of being changed.

German Newspapers Say 600,000 Tonnage Is Accounted For.

Berlin, June 15.—The losses of the British navy during the war are placed by German newspapers at more than 600,000 tons.

"Up to the time of the recent great battle in the North sea," says the Overseas News agency, "the British lost eleven battleships, fifteen armored cruisers and eleven other cruisers.

"To this must be added thirty torpedo boats, twenty gunboats, twenty submarines and other vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 460,000. These losses were increased as a result of the skagerak battle to more than 130 units, with a total tonnage exceeding 600,000."

WICKERSHAM TO ADVISE HUGHES

May Also Be Chairman of Republican Committee.

DESERTED FORCES OF ROOT

Republican Roosevelt Committee Notifies Candidate He Will Have Their Full Support—Senator Crane Arranges For a Meeting to Select National Chairman.

New York, June 15.—Charles Evans Hughes has chosen as his political guide, philosopher and friend in his fight for the presidency George W. Wickersham. He made the selection after he and Mr. Wickersham had ended a lengthy conference.

Whether Mr. Wickersham will be Mr. Hughes' choice for chairman of the Republican national committee is problematical. Former United States Senator W. Murray Crane, who twice visited Mr. Hughes yesterday, would say nothing about the selection.

Mr. Wickersham was attorney general in the cabinet of William H. Taft. He gained the title of "trust buster" by virtue of his onslaughts upon the towing trust, the cash register monopoly and the bathtub combination.

Deserted Root For Hughes.

He was the floor leader in the constitutional convention of 1915. He made a tremendous fight for the adoption by the people of the state of the Root constitution. Later he came out for Root for president, declaring that the nomination of Hughes would give to Mr. Brandeis too much power on the supreme court bench when appointed.

A few weeks before the convention, however, he deserted Mr. Root and declared himself in favor of the nomination of Mr. Hughes.

Repeatedly he has since the sinking of the Lusitania advocated the dissolution of diplomatic relations with Germany. He has been no less decided in his declarations that the United States should intervene in Mexican affairs. His vigorous attacks upon "hyphenated Americans" have been no less strong than have been those of Colonel Roosevelt.

Although he has denied it, it is declared that he and Mr. Root have worked unceasingly to bring together Mr. Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt, a meeting not at all improbable, if present indications are to be considered.

Mr. Hughes maintains his silence. That he has begun to get down to hard work and that the period of handshaking and well wishing is about over is evident in the Hughes headquarters in the Hotel Astor. Incidentally, Mr. Hughes' urbane smile is less in evidence.

He received from the Roosevelt Republican committee a formal notice that they were satisfied that he stood for what they were fighting for and were therefore advocates of his candidacy.

ENTIRE ARMY MAY GO INTO MEXICO

Prepare to Repulse Any Possible Attack on Americans.

Washington, June 15.—The administration expects the Mexican situation to come to a head at any moment and has prepared for every possibility. A high official said that "the lid may be blown off at any moment."

These additional developments have become known:

General Carranza has been made to understand that the United States has no intention of withdrawing its troops from Mexico within four months at least and that every additional soldier sent to the border is meant for service in Mexico.

General Pershing and General Trevino are watching each other day and night. If a clash between them takes place the whole American army will be rushed into Mexico and will stay there until order is restored.

Pressure from foreign countries, whose nationals have large interests in Mexico, may force the hand of this government soon. Foreign nationals in Mexico are compelled by decree to pay their employees in gold, but in all other transactions must use Carranza's depreciated currency.

The economic burden lies heavily upon the English, French, Spanish and Dutch corporations in Mexico's oil districts. The oil wells are of vital concern to the navies of the allies.

No formal note has been written to the United States on the subject, but there have been intimations that the limit of endurance has been reached and that it is time for America to act.

Official reports say disastrous riots may break out at any time in most Mexican cities.

Officials assert conditions in some parts of Mexico are worse than in the war stricken countries of Europe.

ROOSEVELT ILLNESS GREATLY EXAGGERATED

Colonel Jests as Friends Fear He Is Out of Campaign.

New York, June 15.—"Colonel Roosevelt is doing nicely. There does not appear to be any possible chance of serious discomfort to the patient."

This statement was made by his physician after he had made an X-ray of the colonel. Fears that the former president had suffered a heart attack and would be incapacitated indefinitely were largely allayed during an interview with newspaper men.

Colonel Roosevelt was first taken ill Wednesday morning in his car on the way to meet his son, Kermit Roosevelt, and the latter's wife, who returned from Panama.

"My present physical condition seems to be up to the requirements of a recent picture in Punch," said Mr. Roosevelt. "This picture shows a nervous rider about to mount a shying horse and asking the groom if the beast is quiet.

"The reply is: 'Perfectly quiet, sir, if you don't cough or sneeze or touch your hat.'

"That is the way with me. It pains me if I cough or sneeze or touch my hat."

Colonel Roosevelt laughed heartily, and frequently pounded the arm of his chair with his fist. To all appearances he was in his usual ruddy health, though his voice was somewhat modulated.

The result of the X-ray will be made public this afternoon. It is believed that it will show strained muscles or ligaments around two broken ribs on the left side. This injury was sustained in a fall from a skittish horse at Sagamore Hill on May 24, 1915.

The colonel explained to reporters that he had been subject to coughing spells since his return from Trinidad and that the constant cachinations caused sharp twings near his heart.

"It is painful, but nothing serious," he said. "The fuss being made about it is really ridiculous. Like King Agag, I now arch my neck and walk lightly."

LARRY EVANS.

THEN I'LL COME BACK TO YOU

By LARRY EVANS

AUTHOR OF "ONCE TO EVERY MAN"

Copyright, 1915, by THE H. K. FLY COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.—Stephen O'Mara, a homeless and friendless boy, starting from the wilderness to see the city, is welcomed to the home of Caleb Hunter and his sister Sarah. Stephen meets Barbara Allison, young and rich, and Caleb gives him a home. Barbara ridicules Stephen, who runs away, declaring that he'll come back when worthy of her. Caleb learns that Stephen was well born. Ten years later Stephen returns, still loving Barbara, and learns she is to wed Archibald Wickersham. She tells Stephen his love is hopeless.

Her father and Wickersham plan to block the railroad's completion and discredit O'Mara.

CHAPTER XII.

A Girl Like Her.

It was dark, the night of that second day, when Stephen O'Mara came quietly up to the open door of his own lighted shack and stopped for a moment to gaze in at the two men, whose faces were touched by the glow of the lamp on the table. There had been more than one moment in those forty-eight hours which had elapsed since he had lifted that black robed, inert figure from the floor in which Steve had wondered whether Garry Devereau would even await his return to Thirty Mile.

Save for a short and cashal "See you in the morning," Stephen O'Mara had departed without a word that night to leave the improvised sleeping quarters in the storehouse shack.

He looked at Garry nodding drowsily on a bunk and then at Fat Joe seated near him. Their eyes held for a moment before Steve turned again toward the door. And perhaps his manner was a little too unconcerned that evening, a little too carefully careless, for almost before he had lifted the latch Fat Joe stepped forward one quick protesting step, and then stopped on second thought.

"You ain't goin'"—he began, and suffered that unspoken protest also to remain unexplained.

"It's not late," Steve's voice was thoughtful. "It's not late, but it's surely very dark." He stood gazing out into the gloom. "Maybe I'd best run down and see what adventure of the other night. Scratch the more I've thought about it the more I've come to think that he is experimental. Joe, for a fore-arrangement like such a wearing proposition as this one is likely to be. And you haven't slept much since I've been home. Oh, that was easy, just from your eyes. So you'd better turn in. I'll just stroll down and let them know that I'm back home."

It is odd how much of duality there can be in the apologies of statements. Eyes not even Joe closed in the middle of the door and watched him depart without further objection, but the moment the latch was swallowed him up he tacked to the bunk, fumbled for a gun which Steve had tossed upon the blankets and followed out into the dark.

Stephen O'Mara stood a long time outside the door of the workmen's bunk house that night before he made any move to enter.

There was no movement to mark his entrance when he finally pressed the latch and swung the door open, not so much as a single glance to indicate that his presence was noted. Under the yellow light of flickering oil lamps the eyes of all those scores of gaudy clotted figures lounging against the walls were fixed eagerly upon the face of him who held the middle of their stage—him who talked from where he half lay, propped on one elbow, in his bunk at the end of the room. Harrigan, red shirted, red headed, was lounging at ease, waiting for the last gurgle of appreciation to subside before he gave them the close of the story, the last titbit, the savor of which already had set him noisily to licking his lips. And in the doorway Steve, right of a sudden, sensed what that climax was to be.

"Her fi-an-say inside"—the droningly indistinguishable words were very plain now—"her fi-an-say inside, consoomed with pride and anticipation, tellin' all who had come to dance that she had pr-r-omised to be his for-r-ever more. And her at that same minute outside with him, and both av thim"—

Harrigan did not hurry it in the telling. And if his portrayal of Archibald Wickersham was unmistakably deliberate, neither did he fail for want of sufficient detail to make the other picture clear. Vilely he gave them the complete imagery of his vile brain.

A shout went up, a louder, hoarser outcry of applause which rocked the room. And then that rigid figure in the doorway had started forward. Between those lanes of suddenly silent men Steve passed in silence, to stand before him who had achieved his climax a breath before. And at his coming Harrigan slid from the bunk, started to reach within the blanket pack at the head of what had been his bed and then thought better of such impulse. Bravado intermingled with blank surprise, he came haltingly to his feet. The voices of few men have been as unhurriedly deadly as was that of him who faced Harrigan that night.

"That was wise, Harrigan," Steve told him slowly—far too gently. "That was wise to let your knife lie safe within your pack, for if you'd touched it I'd have killed you, as I ought to kill you now. But you're drunk, Harrigan. You were drunk a minute ago when you lied your lie. You're sober now. You're sober enough to start again and tell me you're a liar."

Harrigan would have spoken, sparring for time, when Steve's hand leaped in and made of the joking effort only a rattle in his throat. Beneath the stiff red stubble the flesh was livid where those fingers had been when he was able to draw breath again.

"'Twas only a bit av a joke," he gasped and gulped and swallowed hard. "'Twas only a bit av a joke I was telin' the bhoys about seein' you an'"— Steve's voice bit in and cut him short.

"Your turkey's ready, Harrigan!" He pointed at the pack toward which the other had groped and then thought better of the impulse. "You were going of your own accord, I see. Well, I'm telling you to go now! The door's open. I left it so for you when I came in. And I'm telling you, too, before you leave that you'll do well not to come back. There's not room for one of us on this river any more, Harrigan!"

The riverman's eyes shifted. Furtively they flitted from face to face in those rows of faces at the walls. But whatever he thought or hoped to find—fleeting flash of support or encouragement was hidden behind a common mask of astonishment as blank as had been his own. They were waiting for his answer. He knew they were waiting for that as he crossed to the door. And when he paused there, to turn in sudden savagery, he realized that his tardiness had robbed him of his chance. It was too late to talk back then.

"You're tellin' me," he rasped out, "and I was goin' sure! But things arr-re not yet finished between you and me, for I'm pr-r-omisin' you that I'll be back. I'm pr-r-omisin' you I'll be wid ye again. I'll be wid ye again, come shtorm!"

He disappeared. And hard upon his going Steve wheeled and fronted those scores of silent men. His eyes leaped from point to point, as Harrigan's had craftily flitted. Briefly, crisply, he accompanied the sweeping survey with a voice that was loud enough for all of them to hear.

"Big Louie! Fallon! Shayne! This is your chance to say so if you're going to be lonesome, now that your song bird has flown. Speak up! I came down tonight just to hear you talk."

Nothing but an indistinguishable murmur answered him, a low growl that was neither argument nor evasion. Rebellion was still a long way ahead for most of them. They had not yet had time to talk themselves to the pitch of open revolt. They had merely begun to listen to Harrigan, whose disciples in dissatisfaction they were.

"They tell me," Steve continued, "that there's talk among you of no more work on the river when we've put this railroad through. I've heard it said that some of you think you are cutting the ground out from under your feet with every shovelful of earth you lift. You ought to know better than that. You ought to know for yourselves that there'll be need for more men in these woods than there has ever been before. But if you don't, if you can't see it that way, why not come around and let me have a fair chance to talk things over with you myself before you decide to turn on this job? I want you to remember that a man who is a liar in one thing is mighty likely to talk loose tongued, no matter what he preaches."

And there, without lifting his eyes from the floor, Big Louie cleared his throat and made answer.

"Maybe," he retorted—"maybe, and maybe not so sure either! I have listened to big words before now, me, that have put no food under my belt, no coat to my back."

"If it's only food and shelter and clothes for your back, Big Louie, you'll not have to worry. But I'm not promising either, mind, that there'll be easy money to blow on white whisky. Were you expecting any?"

That brain which could cope with but one idea at a time was fertile ground for seed which such a one as Harrigan might sow. Big Louie failed to reply. He sat quiet, deep in thought, when Stephen O'Mara closed the door noiselessly behind him.

* * * * * * *

It was minutes after Steve had gone back up the hill before Garry Devereau reached out a hand in the darkness and touched, experimentally, what had seemed to be only a shapeless black blotch at the edge of light, a rod or two from the door. And instantly at his touch the shadow was galvanized into life. It reared and plunged and enveloped the slighter man in a crushing embrace and bore him over backward. With the muzzle of a revolver chafing his ear Garry managed to worry his head high enough to free his mouth and nostrils from dirt.

"Get off me! Get off me, you fat romancer, you!" he whispered fiercely.

An explosive grunt of dismay answered him before Fat Joe let him rise. In a thin and profane tenor he was bidden to explain his presence there.

"I couldn't sleep," Garry replied, his voice still peevish, "so I came out for a breath of air. I saw him start this way—saw you following him with that gun in your hand. I just slipped over, too, in case there might be doings. What's the row, Joe?"

Joe took him ungently by the elbow, turned him about and started him up the rise.

"An old grudge," he deigned an ungracious explanation. "It's years and years old. Steve licked him once. Once when they were boys the folks that live down next to Allison's dressed Steve up like a picture book, the nearest I can make out, and sent him to town a-shoppin'. Harrigan, he"—

"I know! I remember!" Garry's eager whisper interrupted. "That is, I didn't know that Harrigan was one of the mob Steve whipped that day. But that wasn't what I meant. Who was the—the girl Harrigan was talking about when Steve—when Steve"—

Joe's fingers tightened a little as the other evinced a tendency to lag.

"Hurry a bit, will you?" he urged complainingly. "Show a little speed! I'm supposed to be up there asleep." And then, gruffly, "It was the Allison girl, of course."

In spite of the hand upon his elbow Garrett Devereau stopped short in his tracks.

"Barbara!" he stammered. "Barbara Allison? Joe, was that the girl he meant tonight when he said he was going to 'marry one of those women himself?'"

Joe peered at him, trying to make out the expression upon his face.

"Why not?" he wanted to know. "Why not? Ain't he good enough for her?"

There came a pause; then Garry's stunned rejoinder.

"Good enough!" he repeated senselessly. "Good enough?" He laughed half wildly, as though he had suddenly hit upon a very funny thought indeed. "That man in love with a girl like her—good Lord!"

And Fat Joe, who had failed to understand, swore again beneath his breath because there was no time left in which to argue the matter. His face was still very red from his struggle for self restraint and his whole mental balance so disturbed that he forget entirely to conceal the blued revolver dangling in one hand when he re-entered the cabin a moment later. The latter object ruined the effect of his insouciant rendition of "Home, Sweet Home."

"Thought you were going to retire, Joe?"

Steve was already undressed and crawling into bed. His question was slow worded and a little stifled.

"I was," Joe assured him hastily. "I was. I just stepped out to see that everything was tight and tidy for the night; that's all."

Quizzical eyes contemplated the revolver now.

"Taken to carrying a weapon, after all, eh? Well, perhaps that's wisest. And blow out the light, will you, Joe? I'm tired. You'll have to undress in the dark."

Then Steve buried his face in his pillow. But sundry sounds, escaping, were unmistakably hysterical. Joe's mouth opened and closed, dishlike. He stood and stared down at his side in beautifully eloquent profanity. If a stare can be both eloquent and profane.

"You need a nurse," he stated sullenly at last. He hurled the light with a vicious blast. "You need a chaperon!"

But once again, just before he slept, Steve heard him mutter to himself resentfully as he heaved over in his bunk.

"This has been a very busy evening," he opined.

CHAPTER XIII.

Law and Lumber.

RAIN fell the following fortnight in a steady downpour that did not cease, even for an hour. Ragged, smokelike clouds hung over the valley at Thirty Mile, dragged so low by their own weight that they not only hid the upper peaks, but shrouded the lower ridges as well. They drove by in interminable files of gray, making sluiceways of every cut and drenching continually the men of the construction gang, who, in spite of the chill of that downfall, still sweated at their labor. But both Steve and Fat Joe, for all that they caught each day a deeper note in the hoarse complaints of those same men—a note no less ominous than was that newer, hoarser one of the swollen river—nevertheless were duly thankful that the leaden sky had at least a tinsel lining. It might have snowed.

"THINGS AR-RE NOT YET FIN'ISHED BETWEEN YOU AND IIE!"

A month earlier it had been Steve's plan to span that mile or so of swamp and bridge the river before the cold weather set in. Nor was his altered order of campaign due in any way to the storm which had raised the river and made of the alder dotted stretch of flat bog meadow an oozing, quaking morass. It no longer represented merely a positive not too alluring problem in engineering—that strip of swamp and open water. It had taken on a newer, strategic importance. And the change in Steve's plans, so far as the work at Thirty Mile was concerned, was as much due to the news which Fat Joe brought home with him one night toward the end of the next week as it was the result of the interview which he had held with Hardwick Elliott himself.

Joe had been a whole day absent on the north end of the line. Alone he had been over every foot of that all but completed stretch which ended at the border of swampland, there at headquarters, troubling himself not at all over the uneveness of the roadbed, satisfied entirely with the surety he gained with every inspected mile that a trainload of logs or a dozen trainloads would stay on the rails when the rails were laid and the day came to set wheels rolling. But the further report he brought back with him was far less reassuring.

"I wonder," Joe mused aloud that night—"I wonder, now, why any man who knows anything about handlin' timber should go to work botherin' himself when sadways leadin' down to the river when he knows, as well as Harrigan should know, that it ain't comin' out that way? It don't seem good sense nor logic to me, unless"—

He stopped there and left his own opinion unfinished.

"I don't see why it wouldn't be just as easy, or easier," Steve replied, "to cross here on pilings practically the whole distance as it would be to fill and grade too. And, if we were to look at it in that light, then why wouldn't it be still easier to drive those piles, say, next February or March, while the swamp is still crusted over and hard? It would afford us some sort of footing to work on then other than black ooze and lilypads. Wouldn't it seem so to you?"

"We'd still have that track north of here to lay," Fat Joe advised, "when we work in from the south with steel."

"Surely," Steve admitted. "Of course. But wouldn't that be a better bet than to stop to see our embankment and bridge"—

He broke off there, just as Joe had hesitated a moment before. The undercurrent of meaning for which the latter's ears were waiting came to the surface, however, when Steve began again.

"Suppose, Joe," he pursued lazily—"suppose you had contracted with a railroad—an infant road too young even to be named—to move for you more timber than either of us will ever own, contracted in apparent good faith, when all along in your heart you were certain that the railroad itself would never be able to fulfill its half of the bargain. Granting such a state of affairs, Joe, what do you suppose you would do?"

"Maybe I'd hire me a red headed river dog," came Joe's answer, pat. "Maybe I'd hire me a bully boy boss of white water to build me some skidways to the nearest flood water, so's I could teach the infant railroad you mention that business was business, contract or no contract."

"Of course you would!" Steve agreed instantly, and he might have been complimenting a first primer favorite so pleased was his tone. "Of course you would. I'm afraid that was too easy for you, wasn't it, Joe? But now suppose you were bent on proving to everybody, and particularly to those who had fathered it, what an unfortunate weakling this immature, unnamed child of constructive silence really was. In that event how do you figure you'd conduct yourself?"

Joe smiled oddly, a little balefully. It was magic quick, that change in his expression, as swift as was the thought behind it.

"I'd have my logs all cut and ready to haul as an excuse, wouldn't I?" he inquired, with simulated anxiety. "Could I tell folks, through the newspapers, for instance, that I wasn't strong for letting my timber lie for the grubs to lunch on if I had to square myself?"

"'Quite naturally.' Until then Steve's face had kept its preternatural gravity. He grinned ever so faintly now. "Very naturally you'd want to save your winter cut."

"Then I'd like to have 'em build a bridge somewheres along the river I aimed to drive—a bridge and a nice out embankment, all dressed up with rails and ties and things on top. I'm allowed to suppose I've got an awful long standin' score, ain't I, along with all this timber? Well, that's what I'd like to have 'em do, then. And when I opened her up a few miles up river and she began to roar, when that first head of water hit the bridge and the sticks begun to grind, I suppose I'd take up my position on the bank where I could watch real well. I'd light me a long, black cigar and murmur sort of languid and sympathetic, 'There goes your railroad, gents!'"

"Such a move in itself would be outside the letter of the contract," Steve expostulated. "Why, they wouldn't dare do anything. They wouldn't dare to begin driving the river before your time was up, much less do damage to your completed work. What excuse—what legal excuse—could they give, even though they were morally certain that you were bound to fail?"

Very slowly, almost pityingly, Joe turned toward him.

"Legal!" he droned. "Moral?" And then he laughed his clear tenor outburst which barely escaped being a giggle. "Dear child, judiciously speaking, law and lumber and morals and mill feet don't mix. They don't mix at all in this section of the country. If they wanted to bother their heads with an alibi they could say it was top of flood and they weren't eager to be hung up just because a brass buttoned conductor promised 'em a through express in the morning. They could say— But what good would explanations do us, huh, if they sent a half million legs skip hootin' into our bridge? It wouldn't save our construction, would it?"

He wheeled back to Steve, his manner brisk.

"Do we lease that stretch open?" he asked. "Is that the way you have it figured?"

"I'm afraid we'd better," Steve said.

That was as close as they came to anything resembling a discussion of the change which was growing more and more noticeable in the bearing of the men at Thirty Mile. As far as all outward evidence was concerned, Steve seemed to ignore it utterly, to retreat oftener and oftener behind his habit of silence which even Fat Joe, after several unsuccessful gaucheries at temples, gave over trying to penetrate.

It was not the hunger of his own heart; it was neither intolerance of restraint nor mental rebellion against the duties which were holding him so close upriver that had caused the chief engineer of the East Coast work to withdraw so completely within himself, although many times each day his eyes did wander toward the south and Morrison. During that bleak period Steve's thoughts were often of Barbara, but they were not somber thoughts. The very hardness of his life schooling had taught him too well how little of wisdom there is in fretting against the day of action when that day cannot be hurried nor controlled. Steadfastly he refused to let himself brood. If he could not go to her he would not, nevertheless, allow himself to dwell upon that impossibility. Instead his spirit ranged ahead to a hopeful, more or less indefinite and not too distant date when his absence might not seem to threaten too great a cost to those whose matters lay in his trust.

Steve had had little chance for conversation in those days with Garry, now an employee of the company as an assistant to Fat Joe, except for a word or two over a hastily snatched breakfast or perhaps at supper at night, and at night he was usually too tired to talk. But the other's growing restlessness had not escaped his notice. For awhile Garry had seemed to accept his continuance there at camp as a matter of course, and for that very reason neither Fat Joe nor Steve had dignified the thought of his possible departure by so much as a single spoken word. Garry's own actions first began to indicate how incessantly he was debating that question within his own brain. And one night toward the end of the week he finally reached the point of voicing a decision which was old in anticipation to Steve and Joe. They were on the point of going to bed. Garry had risen and then paused. He hesitated and crooked his arms and yawned a trifle too carelessly that evening.

"Well, this finishes another day," he remarked, nor did he realize how soulful were the words. "And I cleaned up the last of the stockroom today, Joe. A swift but accurate workman, eh? I'll leave behind a record unblemished by oversight or sloth. And now—now it's about time, I suppose, I was going back to town."

It was out, nor could the yawn conceal his eagerness. His back was turned, but Steve knew what light was in his eyes. Steve's carelessness was a far neater thing than Garry's had been.

"What's your hurry?" he inquired easily. "Why rush away? And if you think your industry has betrayed you into idleness you're reasoning poorly tonight. Want another job?"

"What else is there I could do?"

No man save one who was very, very tired could have spoken in such a tone; no man except one who has tried himself in the highest of courts—his own opinion of himself—could have put such a degree of contempt into so simple a query.

"Why—why"—Steve faltered, and then he took command of his own wits again. "There's work enough, don't doubt that," he exclaimed, and laughed a little. "Joe here will be another week or ten days finishing with the fill up yonder. He'll do well if he manages it by then and that, too, with every available hand we have. I don't want to rob him of a single man if I can help it, but I've got to go ahead with the line to the south. To put it concretely, I'm in need of a roduan. Do you think you'd care to oblige?"

Again the hint of banter persisted, but Garry's jaw was tight when he faced suddenly around.

"I will!" he flashed back hoarsely. "I will if it's a man's job. But I'm done with filling a dinky pad with rows of figures all day long. I'm finished with this d—d tallying of cans of beans and soap and yards of rope. Do you understand? What work would I have to do?"

Out of the corners of his eyes Steve saw consternation overspread Fat Joe's face. His own was only amused.

"You'll have to swing an ax," he enumerated slowly, "and you'll have to lug a rod and tripod. You'll wade through bog and fight your way through underbrush. And then, for variety, swing an ax some more. If you've never learned yet what it is to be really tired, Garry; if you've never known what it is to go to bed wishing morning would never come, you'll find out what that's like too."

"I'll try it," Garry said very simply. "I'll have a try at it tomorrow."

And he pivoted on his heel and passed out.

Some minutes after he had gone Fat Joe, still a little dazed, rose softly and unostentatiously, crossed to a shelf shoulder high on the wall and reached to remove a quart bottle of brandy which Steve, returning home soaked through and through, had brought out and left standing there. But Steve checked him in the very middle of that act.

"Let it stand, Joe," he directed. "Leave it where it is."

As slowly as he had reached for it Joe started to put the bottle back. The very tardiness of that order should have been warning enough, but Joe found it impossible to keep to himself his disapproval.

"All right," he acquiesced, "only I can't help remindin' you just the same that when a horse is runnin' his heart out it's kind of superfluous to lay on the whip."

And then the whole accumulation of those days of silent perplexity, of indecision and fruitless mental forays spilled over upon Fat Joe's entirely innocent head. Steve shot around and leveled a peremptory finger.

"Whip—h—!" he barked. "Put that bottle back!"

Joe's fingers came away as though the glass had blistered them.

"Land's sakes!" he exclaimed, and in a voice that was chastened and meek when he had caught his breath, "Please, and it's back!"

Chronic ill temper could hardly have persisted in the face of that reply, and Steve's bad been but a mood. His first chuckle was in itself a plea for pardon. He supplemented it aloud.

"I'm sorry, Joe. I'm worried. I've got a job on my hands that bothers me. It appears to be simple enough until I get to planning how to tackle it, and then I can't make any headway at all. But there isn't anything to be gained in biting that stuff, that's one of the things I need to know. It's better where it is."

Joe waved a hand in bland dismissal of the apology.

"My mistake," he averred, "though your harsh words have hurt me sore. I don't quite savvy it yet, but it's your affair, not mine. You're dealin' and bankin' the chips. And before now I've seen lots of well meanin' bystanders get all mussed up from tryin' to horn into another man's pastime. I'd ought to have knowed better."

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

A SANTA CLAUS COMES TO TOWN

Westfield Real Estate Man Gives $100 Bills Away on Streets.

POLICE LOCK HIM UP

Has $8,472.05 in Bills and Gold When Searched at the Police Station—Had Been Drinking "Charity Liquor."

A modern Santa Klaus came to Plainfield this morning.

Clark S. Perrine, a real estate dealer of Westfield, was very good in his impersonation of Kris Kringle, and but for the activity of Lieut. Morris Higgins, of the local police force, he would have brought untold joy to the hearts of many Plainfielders, both old and young.

Mr. Perrine came to Plainfield with a large amount of money. Just how much no one has learned, but it was near $10,000. He had money in every pocket, and it was in bills of all denominations, also in gold and silver coins. The money bothered him. After imbibing freely at local saloons, his wealth worried him, and he began to get rid of it. A colored porter who was present when Lieut. Higgins arrested Perrine, as the Westfield man was begging everyone in sight to take some of his $100 bills, remarked:

"That man's been drinkin' charity liquor."

Just how much money Perrine gave away is not known, and as some of those who took his offerings will hardly come forward and return the gifts, the amount will probably never be known. One man is author of the statement that he saw Perrine give a boy a $100 bill near the depot. Others saw him trying to give money away, but as the crowds around him realized his condition they would not accept his offered coin.

The police first heard of "Santa Klaus" shortly before 10 o'clock, when one of the Central Railroad employes at the North Avenue station ran to headquarters to report that a drunken man was giving away money at the station. Lieut. Higgins had no trouble finding his man. He was surrounded by a crowd. Also by money. From every pocket bills protruded. Perrine greeted the officer by offering him a handful of $100 bills. "Take two or three of them," he urged, but instead Lieut. Higgins took them all—with the man wrapped in them.

It required some little effort to get Perrine to the police station, and more effort to separate him from his money. In every pocket that would hold even a dime, there was paper or coin of some kind. After the man had been locked up and Chief Kiely had piled the money up on his desk to be counted in the presence of several witnesses here is what he found: Two $1,000 bills; forty-seven $100 bills; eleven $50 bills; twenty-four $20 bills; fifty-one $10 bills; five $20 gold pieces; six $10 gold pieces; thirteen $5 gold pieces; one $2.50 gold piece; one $2 bill; two $1 bills and fifty-five cents in silver. The total was $8,472.05.

Perrine is locked up in the police station until he becomes sufficiently sober to realize the value of money. The $8,472.05 has been deposited in a local bank until it shall be turned over to him.

At the depot it was said that the man had expressed a desire to go to Baltimore. He made no attempt to buy a ticket, however. Perrine is one of the leading real estate men of Westfield and owns considerably property there. He is of middle age.

ALUMNI OF N. P. H. S. TUNING UP FOR GAME

North Plainfield High School baseball players will stack up against the Alumni in the final game of the season tomorrow afternoon on Hyde Oval. Many stars of former years have been training for the issue and a close and interesting battle is anticipated.

PATRIOTIC CELEBRATION.

The New York Letter Carriers' Association will hold their thirtieth annual patriotic celebration at Scheutzen Park, Union Hill, and, in keeping with the spirit of the times, preparedness will be the dominant note of the day's proceedings. Prominent State and city officials and members of the Naval Consulting Board, also many of the New York and New Jersey Congressional delegations, expect to be present. It is probable that the Plainfield carriers will send a delegation to the affair, which will be held on July 4.

RUSSIANS NOW IN CZERNOWITZ

Ancient Capital of Bukowina Has Fallen, Says Petrograd.

JAPS FURNISH GUNS

Effectiveness of Offensive Due to Powerful Arms—Germans Are Driven Back in Assaults on Verdun Forts.

Petrograd, June 16.—Russian troops have entered Czernowitz, the ancient capital of Bukowina, which has been completely evacuated by the Austrians, according to a telegram from Bucharest received here by the Government's semi-official Petrograd News Agency.

In their flight, the Austrians are said to have taken with them a large number of arrested civilians. It is added that their railroad stock has been sent to Ilskani and that they have torn up the tracks as far as Volksgarten, a few miles to the southwest, after despatching many trains loaded with wounded to Dernavatra.

Austrian losses in the new Russian offensive are now put at more than 300,000, of whom more than 150,000 are prisoners in the hands of the Slavs.

Jap Guns Help Russians.

Rome, July 16.—The effectiveness of the Russian offensive against the Austrians is due largely to the use of the heavy guns made in Japan, which are more powerful than any at the front, including the Austrian Skoda. The Russian success is also partly attributed to the effectiveness of explosive shells of their own manufacture and invention.

Fighting is Unparalleled.

Zurich, June 16.—Unparalleled fighting on the eastern front in the sector between the Niemen and Schara rivers, is reported by the Post correspondent at Austrian headquarters in the field. In this territory, Baranovichi is the Russian objective, the railways connecting the German base at Vilna with the fortress of Brest Litovak and Biclostck to the German lines with Minsk held by the Russians to the northeast, and with the Russian lines on the Pripet to the south all centering here.

German Assaults Fail.

Paris, June 16.—The repulse of numerous German attacks delivered on the Verdun front last night was reported by the French War Office today. Assaults were delivered against the French position at Thiaumont farm, Hill No. 321, Hill No. 320 and in Caillette Wood. All the attacks broke down under the heavy artillery and machine gun fire of the French.

Justifies Sinking of Ship.

Copenhagen, June 16.—Dispatches from Berlin say that the German Government justifies the torpedoing of the Norwegian-American steamship Thondhjemsi Fjord last July with a los of $1,000,000. The vessel was considered British because of the fact that it was purchased from Britain after the beginning of the war.

More Neutral Mail Seized.

Berlin, June 16 (wireless).—A despatch from Rotterdam states that the steamer Ophir was held up by British warships while en route to the East Indies and all her mails were seized.

Greek Army Leaves Home.

Athens, June 16.—The Greek army is being transferred to Volo as the result of the establishment of martial law at Saloniki. British warships have bombarded Klema Skrofa, in Asia Minor. The Turks, fearing that an attempt would be made to land, rushed to Smyrna.

Germany Still Strong.

Berlin, June 16 (wireless).—Dr. von Bethman Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, addressed the Reichstag this afternaan on the question of peace, declaring that Germany's position has never been so strong since the war began. "During the critical days in July, 1914, every statesman had the duty before God, before his country and before his own conscience to preserve an honorable peace. In the same fashion we, after a successful defense, will neglect nothing which might shorten the terrible suffering in the European conflagration."

Up the Hudson to West Point, etc.

Special excursion, June 25, via New Jersey Central, connecting at Jersey City with swift Sandy Hook steamer "Sandy Hook," to West Point and off Newburgh. Round trip $1.00; children 50 cents. Leave Plainfield 8:52 a. m. See circulars for other stations.—Adv.

NOTE TO CARRANZA MAY BEGIN FIGHTING

Washington Admits That Intervention Seems Only Little Way Ahead.

Washington, June 16.—Carranza troops may be expected to attack United States soldiers in Mexico at any moment. It is with this frank statement that Washington sends its answer to the recent Carranza note demanding the immediate withdrawal of the punitive expedition. The answer is a firm refusal to recall Gen. Pershing now or at any other time while American lives in Mexico are in danger.

Intervention is the only answer now, Washington believes. Diplomats of foreign countries have read the signs and already three ministers have protested against intervention. One is Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, of England. Great Britain fears that American intervention in Mexico would result in a shortage in her oil supply in Mexico and thus cripple her oil-burning battle fleet.

Here are the latest developments in the border situation:

Yesterday morning's Mexican raid into Texas, near San Ignacio, forty miles southeast of Laredo, in which three American cavalrymen were killed and six wounded, was led by commissioned officers of Carranza's army. One of their eight dead Mexicans was identified by papers on his body as Cruz Ruiz, a major in Carranza's forces.

Gen. Alfredo Ricaut, Carranza Commandant at Matamaras, Mexico, has notified American Consul Johnson there that 1,000 Carranza soldiers are just south of San Ignacio, and that should a third American punitive expedition cross the Rio Grande in pursuit of the bandits a clash between the Americans and Carranzistas may follow immediately.

A despatch from El Paso says Gen Gabriel Gavira, late Carranza Commandant at Juarez, Mexico, was shot to death by a firing squad yesterday morning in the Mexican penitentiary in Mexico City on a charge of treason, because he conferred with Brig Gen. John J. Pershing at Casas Grandes regarding co-operation between Americans and Carranzistas. Immediately following the conference Gen. Gavira was ordered to Mexico City to give an explanation, and Gen. Jacinto Trevino, his immediate superior, repudiated the agreement.

J. D. Jones and Charles Bartor, El Paso Health Inspectors, while going through Mexican houses on the El Paso side of the Rio Grande, were fired upon by uniformed Carranza troops fro mthe Juarez side of the river, though not injured.

Mrs. George Wescott, of Depot Park, who was recently discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, after undergoing a serious operation, is now recuperating at Atlantic City.

UNITED EFFORT MEANS SUCCESS

Everything in Readiness for "Rose Tag Day" Observance for the Hospital.

LIST OF THE "TAGGERS"

Between the Hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. Energetic Workers Will Canvass Every House in the City—Thermometer Will Record Result

Everything is in readiness for Rose Tag Day to-morrow. The women "taggers" all met Mrs. F. D. Warren, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, and the moving spirit of this day, at the Crescent Avenue church at 5 o'clock this afternoon for their final instructions and assigning of their districts. The 26 captains of the various teams tonight distribute the collection boxes and insigna to their helpers. Each "tagger" will be dressed as a nurse and carry a basket of roses on her arm. A rose will be given to every person who contributes any amount from one penny upwards. The "taggers" will start work at 7 a. m. and from that time until 7 p. m. they will have made a canvas of every house in Plainfield and hope to have obtained a contribution, no matter how small, from everyone they meet. The success of this tag day is dependent upon the energy of the "taggers" and the generosity of the people they tag.

Many people have asked the question as to why the Women's Auxiliary needs $5,000 for their work. It might be will to tell once more just what the Women's Auxiliary is and what they do. It is the helping hand to the Board of Governors of the hospital. It is entirely composed of women who give their time, their energy and their money to assist in furnishing flowers, fruits, jellies and delicacies to the ward patients at the hospital. It buys appointments for the children's wards and the private rooms. It gives presents to the patients and workers on holidays. It purchases the materials and makes such articles as bandages, sleeping garments, towels, sheets, etc., for the whole hospital. During 1915 it made over 6,000 such articles.

Now all the above things cost a lot of money. The cost of the materials alone for bandages, sheets, etc., was $1,900 in 1915. And then the materials had to be made up, other appointments bought and delicacies and presents furnished.

In addition to doing all these things, the Women's Auxiliary is contemplating this year renovating a number of the rooms in the nurses' home. When a person realizes what this organization does, they can readily understand why $5,000 is being asked from Plainfielders to-

SPEECHES AND MUSIC FEATURES MEETING

Probasco Bible Class in Monthly Session Enjoy Fine Program—Report of Play.

The Probasco Bible Class, of the First Baptist church, held its first monthly meeting since the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign, in the Sunday-school rooms of the church last night with an attendance of fifty members. The early part of the evening was devoted to the transaction of old and new business, at which time Frederick E. Sewell, chairman of the play committee, read the report on the fifth annual play entitled "A Count of No Account," given by the class at the P. H. S. Auditorium, on February 12 last. His statement showed a profit of $161.40 realized for charity.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor, advised the class that its Christian fellowship was of great value and encouragement to him. He spoke highly of Dr. Norman H. Probasco as a church official and as a co-worker.

Dr. Probasco then spoke to the members of the class, followed by C. W. Bingeman, formerly of this city, whom they were all glad to see and hear from again, and J. Henry Crane, who introduced the speaker of the evening, H. W. Herrmann. The latter's talk was concise and to the point and seemed to give to the class more stimulation to go ahead and live the life that God intended they should live.

Ice cream and cake were served during a social hour, while violin and piano music was furnished by Kenneth Stuart and Albert Naylor.

RICHARD C. FIELDS RECEIVES I. C. S. DIPLOMA

Richard Christopher Fields, of Craig place, North Plainfield, received an I. C. S. diploma at the monthly meeting of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, I. C. S. Fraternity, last night. H. W. Swivel presided. Mr. Fields was congratulated for graduating in the complete course of electrical engineering. George Lewis presented him with a diploma on behalf of the school. The fraternity gave the graduate a rousing reception and joined in the I. C. S. yell. Under the direction of President Swivel, the local fraternity is making steady progress.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM.

Sunday will be "Children's Day" at the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church. This will be a union service of the church and Sunday-school at 11 o'clock. The evening service will be held at 7:45.

Julius Williams, of West Front street, is detained at his home by illness.

DEMOCRATS WRITE STRONG PLANK ON HYPHENS INTO PLATFORM ON PERSONAL ORDERS FROM WILSON

CONVENTION RECONVENED AT 11:30 THIS MORNING TO HEAR REPORT OF RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE —WILL BE THROUGH SOMETIME TODAY.

DECLARE FOR A NEW BRAND OF AMERICANISM

Still Pin Faith to Old Tariff Program, But Admit Need of Non-partisan Commission to Regulate Tariffs to Suit Changing Economic Conditions—Nominations Made Last Night.

WILSON AND MARSHALL.

Democracy's Hopes In Hands of Standard Bearers of 1912.

Photos by American Press Association.

St. Louis, June 16.—After having nominated Woodrow Wilson for President and Thomas R. Marshall for Vice-President by acclamation last night, the Democratic national convention reconvened at 11:30 this morning to adopt a platform.

President Wilson won out in his personal demands for a strong plank on the hyphenated citizen. His clause on Americanism and against the hyphen was written into the platform as dictated in the White House and brought to the convention last by Secretary Baker. In all other things the platform is peculiarly expressive of Wilson ideas.

The platform submitted to the Democratic national convention by the committee on resolutions calls attention to the achievements, diplomatic and otherwise, of the administration, in correcting the various abuses of the Republican party, in reforming the banking and currency system, in creating a federal trade commission, making labor conditions better, and placing the postoffice system on a self-supporting basis, but especially does it accentuate and dwell upon the planks on tariff measures and Americanism as opposed to the hyphen.

After stating that it is recognized that tariff rates are subject to change to meet changing conditions in the world's production and trade, and calling attention to the momentous changes in the last two years, the platform states that in order to ascertain just what the economic changes may be the Democratic Congress is providing for a non-partisan tariff commission to study economic facts, which may throw light upon the future fiscal policy of the country. In regard to the imposition of taxes on imports or with regard to the changing conditions whereunder the country's trade is carried on, the platform declares itself in sympathy with the principle and purpose of shaping legislation within that field in accordance with facts rather than with selfish interests.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN CHURCH WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The fifteenth anniversary of the Swedish Lutheran church will be held tomorrow night at the church on East Seventh street. Among the speakers who will be present are Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. John Eastland, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The latter is a former pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. Addresses will be made in both Swedish and English. A quartet from the Swedish Lutheran church of New Brunswick will render several vocal numbers during the service. Mr. Thompson will be in charge of the music.

TO REPEAT PLAYLETS.

The last of the entertainments to be given by the West End Community Center will be held in the Washington School on Monday night, June 19. At that time the two playlets given in the new Evergreen Avenue school last week will be repeated. They are "Other People's Money" and "The Silent System." Another feature of the affair will be a spelling match to be conducted by the members.

BIBLE CLASS FESTIVAL.

A strawberry and ice cream festival will be held on the lawn adjoining the First Baptist church this evening under the auspices of the Matlack Bible school. If the weather is cool or inclement the affair will be held in the Bible school rooms. Home made cakes and candies will be on sale. An orchestra will furnish music throughout the evening.

LAWN FESTIVAL PLANNED.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh Day Baptist church are making elaborate preparations for a lawn festival to be given next Wednesday night on the lawns surrounding the church. Many unique features are being arranged by the committee in charge.

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION FOR MRS. DUDLEY BARROWS

Two hundred guests from this city, New York and Morristown attended the reception given last night in the Plainfield Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows, of West Eighth street, in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Barrows, of Ravine road. The affair was given primarily to introduce Mrs. Barrows to local society. The receiving party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Barrows and Mrs. William C. Ashwell, all of this city. Dancing was the main feature of the evening and refreshments were served.

Music was provided by Van Epps Brothers. The clubhouse was attractively decorated for the event, peonies, palms, ferns and other cut flowers being used in wide profusion.

MISSIONARY AND AID SOCIETY'S ANNUAL PICNIC

The annual picnic of the Missionary and Aid Society of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. J. W. Gavett in Watchung Valley. The society left the church at 9:30 in automobiles. A committee comprising Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Mrs. W. O. Taylor, Mrs. E. Gibson Smith, Mrs. David Harrower and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey went up early and prepared a luncheon with Mrs. Gavett and served it to the society at noon. Mr. Gavett and Rev. J. O. McKelvey came up for the luncheon.

A business meeting was held in the afternoon and arrangements were made for the last of the "evenings at home" of the pastor and his wife which will be held next Thursday evening. At that time all members who joined at the last communion service will be introduced to the congregation. A program has been arranged and refreshments will be served. The women returned home at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Leslie M. Crane and son, of Elizabeth, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gano, of Grove street.

John Coffey, of West Front street, who has been associated in the meat department of W. W. Wilson's store on West Third street for seventeen years, has resigned his position to take one at the International Motor Company's local plant.

J. Fred MacDonald, of East Front street, who has been ill for the past two weeks with "shingles" and complications, has been improving steadily the past few days and will shortly be able to be out.

William Goeller, of Bradford place, who has been seriously ill for the past three months, continues to show no sign of improvement.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SAMPSON.

The funeral of Mrs. Albert R. Sampson, of Metuchen, whose death occurred in this city, Tuesday night, was held this afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles P. Hazen, of 310 Franklin place. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev James G. Mason, pastor of the Metuchen Presbyterian church. Numerous beautiful floral tributes were extended by friends of the family. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

DALY & CO. TO REMOVE.

K. A. Daly & Co., whose millinery establishment has been located at 172 East Front street for the past nine years, have leased the store, 216 Park avenue, in the Sterling building, and will remove to it on August 1. The growth of Daly & Company's business has been [illegible] at few years and the need of larger and more convenient quarters has been felt for some time.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. MARY SMITH HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Smith, widow of Stephen Smith, who died Tuesday morning, at the age of 88 years, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Van Norden, of Lyman place. The service was conducted by Rev. H. St. G. Burrill, rector of Holy Cross church, and was attended by many relatives, neighbors and friends. The simple Episcopal ritual was used. A great abundance of flowers testified to the esteem in which Mrs. Smith was held by all, many of the floral pieces coming from distant points. Burial was in the family plot in the Scotch Plains cemetery, the pall bearers being S. Clinton Crane, of New York; Lester Van Norden, U. B. Crane and William Hazzard, of Plainfield.

LOCAL PLAYERS AFFECTED.

As a result of the breaking up of the Penn-Jersey Baseball League, Tommy Mullin, of this city, and "Red" Grimes, of Somerville, are out of jobs just at present. Mullin played short and Grimes pastimed at third for the Easton-Phillipsburg combine, considered to be the strongest on the circuit. Both established reputations for themselves during the short life of the league.

Tomorrow, Saturday, A Great Exposition of Muslin Underwear

With Rich Savings for Every Customer

A stock of muslinwear of good quality and moderate price as that of ours is very rare nowadays. The present conditions made it practically impossible to get the better grade of cotton at the usual prices. Naturally enough, the poorer grade has found its way into white garments. But of these we have none. Through careful selection and early purchases, we are now able to offer none but the finer grade of goods at prices not higher than usual.

Did You Try Tepper's

We are always glad to have you call for something you hardly expect to get here, for there is no way to convince you so strongly of completeness, variety and up-to-dateness of our stocks. This store buys nothing hap-hazardly. Infinite care and caution is exercised in our selections which are guided by long experience at our chosen task.

We strive to have nothing here that should be missing and nothing missing that should be ready at hand to meet the demand. Our full stocks will fulfill keen expectations. Will you test us, please?

SPENCER CEMETERY WILL BE IMPROVED

Through Efforts of Dr. Moldenke and Veterans Place is to Have Proper Care.

Through the efforts of Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, at the suggestion of Adjutant H. Craig Smith, of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., steps have been taken to improve the condition of Spencer cemetery, situated on the Stirling road, near Watchung lake. The neglected condition of the cemetery was brought to the attention of those interested on Memorial Day, when a detail of veterans went there to decorate the graves.

There are about sixty graves in the cemetery, but it is said that the descendants of those who occupy them are either scattered or dead and no one now cares for the burial ground. Adjutant Smith has received letters from Dr. Moldenke on the subject, and a check to cover cost of clearing the cemetery; and, in addition, he has petitioned the North Plainfield Township Committee for assistance, and Adjutant Smith has taken the matter up with Winfield Scott Post, the latter naming a committee comprising Post Department Commander W. C. Smith, William N. Pennington and H. Craig Smith, to co-operate with Dr. Moldenke.

Dr. Moldenke, in his communications to Mr. Smith, deplores the fact that the present generation cares so little for the graves of its ancestors, that in all the talk about preparedness, most of which he says will remain "talk," the G. A. R. have the proud distinction of having backed up their loyalty to the country with their blood and lives. "How many of those who talk so big today will be found in the trenches if our beloved country should be forced to draw the sword?" Mr. Moldenke adds. He then states that he has taken the matter up with the Township Committee and offers to annually donate a sum for the proper care and keep of the cemetery.

In his letter to the Township Committee, Dr. Moldenke says, among other things

"There is no 'preparedness' like that of teaching our youth to honor the flag, and those who fought for what it represents. There is nothing so effective in encouraging loyalty and devotion than seeing that the last resting-places of those who fought, bled and died for their country are kept under the loving care of the communities interested, and the men themselves remembered with lasting gratitude."

HUGHES BUSY CANDIDATE.

G. O. P. Nominee Leaves New York For Washington This Afternoon.

New York, June 16. — Charles E Hughes, nominee of the Republican national convention, received a never ending stream of visitors yesterday at his headquarters in the Hotel Astor Republicans of all shades of beliefs came to offer their congratulations and pledge their support, and the candidate expressed his gratification at the apparent unanimity of party spirit behind him.

W. Murray Crane, old guard boss of Massachusetts and chairman, self appointed, of the steering committee of the national committee, was conspicuous by his absence and left Mr. Hughes in full command of the situation while the line of visitors was filing in and out of headquarters during the day. It was learned that he had made no definite appointment with Mr. Hughes for the day, and he played no part in developments which marked the rally to the standard bearer of the party.

Mr. Hughes goes to Washington this afternoon, following a conference with Governor Whitman, who was expected at the headquarters in the forenoon.

42 MISSING IN SHIPWRECK.

Passengers Unaccounted For in Crash Off California Coast.

Eureka, Cal., June 16.—Forty-two of the passengers and crew of the steamship Bear are unaccounted for twenty-four hours after the vessel had run on the rocks in a dense fog.

There were 134 survivors here and twenty-nine at Capetown. These, with the five bodies recovered, accounted for 168 of the 210 aboard the Bear.

Fourteen lifeboats left the Bear, eleven made the Blunt's Reef light ship, four miles away. Two made land at the mouth of Bear river, near the wreck, and one capsized and was lost.

Democracy Awaits Confident.

The Democracy of the United States awoke this morning confident of victory at the polls in November. The spontaneity and enthusiasm with which the standard bearers had been named at last night's session was considered a good omen. It was a pity, said many of the leaders, that the nomination of President Wilson could not have been made unanimous, but one lone delegate spoiled the well laid plans of the leaders. The talk of opposition to Vice President Marshall had died long before the time for the nomination. It had been said that he would be opposed by either Secretary of War Baker, Roger C. Sullivan of Illinois or Governor Major of St. Louis, but after word had come from the White House that the president desired the renomination of his 1912 running mate this opposition melted and the delegates made Marshall's choice unanimous.

The work of the night session was hastened by the masterly manner in which Chairman James presided and the iron hand he held over the gathering. Nominating speeches had been limited to thirty minutes, and the men who seconded the nominations were given but five minutes to display their oratory. Judge Thomas Wescott of New Jersey in a masterly manner presented the name of President Wilson, and Senator Kern placed Vice President Marshall in nomination. Wescott had nominated Wilson four years ago at the Baltimore convention.

Delegates Were Hot.

The fact that the delegates wanted to leave this hot city is largely responsible for the change in the original program, which had set the nominations for tonight or tomorrow morning. But it was seen that the convention would be little more than a ratification meeting, and the men wanted to go home. Thus the delegates sent out an ultimatum demanding that the convention hurry up. This was accompanied with a threat to go home. So the leaders decided that action was necessary, and thus the results of last night were achieved with ease.

The weather was hot. The convention hall was stuffy. The heat had been oppressive, and the ardor and enthusiasm of the delegates and spectators had been somewhat dampened by the perspiration which streamed from the brows of all. The delegates had removed their coats. With every mention of Wilson's name arms, some covered with yellow shirt sleeves, some with pink, some with blue, were waved frantically. Likewise the mere mention of the name of Bryan was greeted in the same manner.

Wilson Hears News.

President Wilson received news of his renomination in company with several relatives and friends at the White House. Special wire facilities early kept the president in close touch with every development at the convention.

The president left the White House last evening with Mrs. Wilson, and in spite of a driving rain walked for nearly five miles through the parks of Washington. Both wore rubber coats and rubber hats. They did not return until nearly 10:30 o'clock, after the convention had begun its night session in St. Louis.

Prior to the night's session of the convention the president was in communication with administration leaders at St. Louis on details of the platform and on organization plans for the Democratic national committee. His decision to have Vance C. McCormick of Pennsylvania manage the campaign as chairman of the committee and to have Representative Carter Glass of Virginia serve as secretary was reached only after prolonged consideration and after consultation with Democratic leaders here and in St. Louis.

During the demonstration for the president which followed Judge Wescott's speech a telephone wire connecting the convention hall with the White House switchboard was opened and the president, Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty and others of the White House party listened in. The applause and cheering could be plainly heard.

Mr. Wescott's Speech.

Mr. Wescott, who nominated Wilson, is a short, heavy set gentleman, with a heavy, round head. His voice is strong and pitched at an agreeable key, but there is missing from it the timbre which rings in the voice of an orator able to stir men to excesses of enthusiasm.

He launched at once into a speech of superlative praise of Woodrow Wilson. Following the path already taken by Glynn and James and Bryan, he hailed the president "for delivering the country from industrial and financial thraldom" and boldly attacked the Mexican problem.

To have acted other than he did would have been to follow the course of imperialism, Judge Wescott said, and asserted that the policy of watchful waiting had justified itself. By keeping the country out of Europe's war he had prevented it from being set back 100 years, he declared. Reason and moral pressure, not arms, were Wilson's means of dealing with a belligerent world, said Judge Wescott.

To his mind Wilson presented the "sublimest picture of history." And all through the speech ran the refrain: "He has kept us out of war. He has kept us out of war."

Kern Nominates Marshall.

Senator Kern in nominating Mr. Marshall said:

The great army of militant progressive Democracy, millions strong, is ready and eager for the coming conflict and as one now demands that it shall be led to victory by Wilson and Marshall.

It was under the banner of progressive Democracy and the superb leadership of Wilson and Marshall that a victory complete and overwhelming was won in 1912, and Wilson and Marshall, standing side by side, working together, have exerted a mighty influence in bringing about a glorious redemption of party promises by the representatives of the people and hence this well nigh universal demand coming from every part of the republic that Wilson and Marshall shall in 1916 lead on to an even greater victory than that which cheered the hearts of progressive men and women of all parties of 1912.

The nomination of these men as our standard bearers has already been made by the people by their firesides in their homes, and it only becomes the duty of the convention to officially register the popular will already made so manifest, and this should be done and will be done cheerfully and joyously and with that promptitude with which patriotic representatives of the people always respond to the demands of the sovereign power in a free and independent republic.

This word from Indiana, "Give us Tom Marshall with Woodrow Wilson as our leaders and in November the reactionary forces of stand pat Republicanism will be overtaken by a Democratic landslide that will bury them so deep that the hand of resurrection will scarcely reach them."

Mr. Chairman, in the name and on behalf of the Indiana Democracy I nominate for vice president Thomas R. Marshall.

POSTPONE FESTIVAL.

The strawberry and ice cream festival, which was scheduled to be given tomorrow night on the lawn adjoining the Wilson Memorial chapel at Watchung has been postponed for one week on account of the inclement weather conditions. The festival will be held on Saturday, June 24.

TO HOLD LAWN FETE.

The Volunteer Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school will hold a lawn festival at the home of Mrs. H. C. Runyon, 338 Franklin place, tomorrow afternoon and evening. Fancy articles and garden hats, home made cake and candy, also cut flowers and ice cream will be on sale.

Summer Frocks You Don't See Every Day

All Original Models—No Two Alike

So many delighted patrons ask us where we get such charming frocks and which we sell at such wonderfully reasonable prices.

They are original Model Gowns imported for exhibition purposes only—not worn or shop worn, mind you, but frocks which are used by the importers and leading American dressmakers to illustrate the latest Parisian modes.

You can select here an exquisite summer frock for just one-half the amount you'd pay elsewhere, with both individuality and those chic French finishing touches which mean so much to well dressed women.

So many ask for catalogs. We have none. The gowns sell too rapidly, and no two are alike.

Prices Range $20 and up
Two Gowns for the Usual Price of One

Call and see these gowns or blouses for yourself—even try them on. You are never urged to buy. A visit will pleasantly surprise you.

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always full of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

ORCHESTRA WILL FEATURE SUNDAY EVENING SERVICE

A full orchestra, led by Martin A. Korff, will be a feature of the Sunday evening song service at the First Presbyterian church on East Front street. The service will begin at 7.45. The music will be augmented by a full chorus choir besides the regular choir of the church.

For the last few weeks, since Dr. Biederwolf's campaign closed, the Sunday evening services in this church have been featured by the singing of the Biederwolf songs and an inspiring talk by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring. Mr. Korff invites all musicians desiring to participate in the orchestral part of the services to report at the church Sunday evening at 7:30.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JUNE 16, 1916.

STILL UP TO THE COLONEL.

The battle line of Democracy is flung and the hosts of Wilson present a solid front. In the St. Louis convention there was not a note of discord. But one man attended who opposed the nomination, and he represented an element of people that has been branded as un-American by all parties. Even Bryan, the man who quit Wilson in a moment of peril, and who had been expected by friend and foe alike to lead a rebellion from now to November, is once more a Democrat in accord with the majority. He forever settled any doubt as to his position last night when he aroused the delegates by his praise of Wilson.

Attorney-General Westcott, of New Jersey, not only sounded the keynote of the campaign, but put forth the whole of Democratic arguments in his nominating speech last night. "The Nation is at Peace. The Nation is at work." To every argument that the Republicans can make, to every criticism that is offered, one of these statements will be the answer, and they are backed up by nine-tenths of the Democratic votrs in the country.

If Hughes is to win he, too, must have harmony in the ranks of his followers. Without the support of the Progressives he cannot hope to overcome the powerful organization that will seek to bring about the re-election of the man now in control of all Federal patronage. The issues are drawn, the contest is on. There can be no further excuse for "straddling." The country knows what Mr. Wilson stands for and what Mr. Hughes is pledged to perform if he is elected. Col. Roosevelt knows. He is still the biggest man in the campaign. He can lead the Progressives back into the Republican party and give Hughes a fighting chance, or he can sit on the fence and watch Wilson win.

The Visiting Nurses Association should find a ready response to its appeal for baby carriages. One or two discarded buggies given to families that are not able to buy them just now will enable mothers to take their children to milk stations where they can be examined and properly treated. In one case, now on the Association records, the baby needs fresh air. Without a carriage this will be impossible and the family that gives a discarded buggy for it to ride in this spring will prolong its life. Anyway we know of no article in the world that a family considers so useless in the future as a baby buggy just outgrown.

The silly extravagance of holding special elections except when they are made necessary by the imperative need of a reform in government was demonstrated Tuesday. Only six thousand Union county voters evidenced enough interest in the proposed change in the Board of Freeholders to say whether they were for or against it. The election could well have been postponed until a time when voters will go to the polls on a matter in which they will be far more interested, thus saving the $15,000 and securing an expression from a greater number of people.

Allen S. Benson, Socialist candidate for President, says that if there was a national law similar to the New York statute which prohibits the use of the flag for advertising purposes both the Chicago and St. Louis conventions would have been jailed for life. It's about time somebody undertook to advertise the flag in this country. A lot of American citizens, including some Socialists, think it is the private property of the army and navy.

"The Moose is dead. The Elephant is Dead. Long live the American Eagle," said Chairman McCombs in opening the Democratic convention at St. Louis. If the great Eagle hovers over this country with his head to the north, as is popularly supposed, he will have lost most of his tail-featers before Mr. McComb's candidate learns that Watchful Waiting will not solve the Mexican problem.

If the criticisms of Roosevelt that have come out of the Democratic convention hall in St. Louis do not provoke the Colonel to answer, then sorrowful friends may brush up the old black suit and get ready to walk slowly out of a house on Sagamore Hill.

* * * * * *

From the manner in which German-American societies are indorsing Hughes somebody must have winked when they read that anti-hyphen plank into the Chicago platform, the same as when the suffrage clause was read.

WANT A THIRD TICKET.

New York Moose Favor Opposition to Charles E. Hughes.

New York, June 16.—After a stormy four hour meeting, in which Colonel Roosevelt was called everything from "idol" to "Brutus," the executive committee of the New York county Progressive committee adopted a resolution demanding that the Progressive national committee should not fill the vacancy at the head of the bull moose ticket by naming Hughes. The resolution asked for a Progressive ticket. The resolution follows:

Resolved, It is the sense of this meeting that if Colonel Roosevelt should not accept the Progressive nomination the National Progressive party should nominate candidates of its own party faith for the offices of president and vice president of the United States; the national committee of the party should not indorse the candidates of any other political faith for such offices, or either of them; and, further, that the national committee should advise Progressives throughout the country to use their own judgment at the polls on election day and should advise the various state and local Progressive organizations to use their own discretion regarding state or local tickets.

—Until you have canvassed the eaders of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton.

The Bargain Day Girl.

She goes into the dry goods store and wanders 'round two hours or more,
And looks at all the signs;
She handles all the latest styles of silk and satins stacked in piles
In long and varied lines.
She prices everything in sight and drives the clerks to frenzy quite
When they can't make a sale.
She misses not a counter there, but visits each to stand and stare,
And bite her finger nails.

They think that she is going to buy the whole store out and wonder why
She doesn't make a start.
You see, she really looks as though she has a whole cartload of dough
With which she wants to part.
And when they ask her, "How much, please?" in tones which show
they're ill at ease,
She merely shakes her head;
And when she leaves it's safe to bet she's bought just what she came to get
A spool of cotton thread.

Uncle Abner

There may be awkwarder things in this world than a woman on a stepladder, but if there is I ain't never seen 'em.

No matter how much a feller likes flowers he gen'ally has to die to get 'em.

The only time I know of when it pays to be baldheaded is when a feller gets caught in an Indian massacre.

There are some fellers who are going to have a dull time in heaven without gas companies and no street railway lines to kick about.

A happy married life is when a feller and his wife can get along with one easy chair on the porch. P. S.—There ain't none such.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Perkins are getting right into high society. They have had a bathtub put in their house.

It beats all why people will insist upon going to musical recitals to be miserable when they can be miserable at home without half as much worry or expense.

Mrs. Anson Frisby never gets the solid silver out excepting when they have company, but Anse thinks that is the most dangerous time.

There may be some kids that ain't the smartest kids in this world, but their own parents are the last ones to be convinced of the fact.

Ame Hilliker never found out the true innerdness of his son Lafe until Lafe got married and brought his wife home to live.

Deacon Stubbs is keepin' a hen-coop. The coop is about all he has been able to keep.

Comin' events cast their shadders before 'em. Deacon Stubbs says he kin tell every time the minister is comin' to dinner, for he can't find his pipe and his bottle of gin.

Hank Tumms says he takes a drink in the summer because it's hot and he takes one in winter because it's cold. He takes one when he is in trouble and he takes one when he is happy. It seems certain that Hank ain't never goin' to miss one for lack of an excuse.

And He Did.

"Well," sighed the suitor solemnly, as he gazed into his sweetheart's eyes, "we are here today and gone tomorrow."

"That is generally true," broke in a deep bass paternal voice from the staircase above, "but you are going tonight."

Perhaps.

No young, aspiring actress
Should frown on any man,
But should always enlarge her
Acquaintance when she can.
Though he be old and homely
And bent like spiral stairs,
She may be entertaining
An "angel" unawares.

THE SPIRIT OF THE CONVENTION

- Proctor's Theatre -

Charlie Chaplin appears in the headline attraction at Proctor's today and tomorrow entitled "The Fireman," his latest and funniest creation. This, the second Mutual-Chaplin release, is diverting all the time and in several instances its fun is decided enough to justify it being termed an uproarious two-reel comedy. In "The Fireman" the comedian whose distinctive acting has won him such amazing popularity brings to bear all the funny capers and tricks for which he is noted. The picture stars well. It is not unusual for a comedy to travel well toward the end of the first reel before the spectator responds naturally to its mirth. But the first few scenes of "The Fireman" mark the beginning of the fun which continues through to the end. The sliding pole, a fire engine which comes in handy around lunch time, it being only necessary to turn a spigot to have coffee, rich in color and steaming hot, and other aids numerous and varied assist Chaplin in provoking laughter. He is the driver of the engine. Morning practice finds him still asleep and when he does appear the captain takes measures to discipline the delinquent. The captain's sweetheart and her father call at the engine house. Charlie is quite romantic and his admiring glances are not discouraged by the smartly dressed young lady. The father plans to collect his insurance, promising to give his daughter in marriage to the captain if he refuses to answer the alarm that night. All is in readiness when a real fire starts. The company, after many delays, arrives at the scene of the conflagration. The father's plan fails. He starts the fire and walks from the house, quite ignorant that his pretty daughter is trapped in an upper room. Charlie proves himself a hero, saving the beauty in distress. He pretends prostration, but when the others hurry for water, he comes to and walks off with the girl. Today's program includes "The Scapegrace," a three-part drama, and several other films, while tomorrow another drama, "Ashes," is shown in conjunction with several other photoplays. Tomorrow morning at 11 a. m. the school children will be admitted absolutely free to see the first chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine."

.· Plainfield Theatre. ·.

The new bill opening at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday for the last half of the week, gave immense satisfaction to the audiences, especially the performance of "Resista," the young woman who defies all laws of force. Strong men struggle in vain to move her against her will, and she executed numerous feats that almost made her seem superhuman. She offers a reward of $500 for any one who can offset her will, and this will remain good during her engagement for the rest of the week. Another big hit was made by Poole, the humorist trickster who handed out a laughable line of "patter," while executing sleight-of-hand. He was given prolonged applause at the close of his act and was compelled to take five bows. Humor and pathos were intermingled in the sketch, "The Little Immigrant," as presented by Joe Kain and Lew Kraus. The work of Mr. Kraus, who plays the comedy, is especially good. The program is rounded out by Howard and Hill, European novelty dancers, and Manley and Woods, in a skit, "It Happened This Way." This will be the last vaudeville program bill at the Plainfield for the present season, feature pictures making up the programs for an indefinite period commencing next month. Under the new policy the first big feature photoplay will be the Universal Company's latest five-reel release, "Where Are My Children?" which will be shown next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

--Astor Theatre--

The big feature attraction at the Astor Theatre today will be the ever popular star, Blanche Sweet, in "The Sowers," a Paramount production of five thrilling parts and one hundred wonderful scenes. This is the production that met with such great success at the Globe Theatre, New York, and will be shown to Plainfielders for the first time today. There is no doubt that a great many will remember Blanche Sweet for her wonderful portrayal in "Black List," which was shown here recently, and it is said that Miss Sweet is a great bit better in "The Sowers." Tomorrow will witness one of the greatest of photoplays, a Mutual master picture, De Luxe edition, "The Hidden Law," featuring Margaret Gibson and William Clifford in a five-part drama, also featuring the famous Bostock animals. The following will give an idea of this elaborate dramatization: Margaret Gibson and William Clifford, the popular dramatic stars, could have no stronger vehicle for their splendid talents than this powerful story from the pen of Theodosia Harris. The plot is intensely interesting with one thrilling incident following another until the climax, tremendous in its dramatic power, brings the story to a spectacular close. As John Carlton, a genius and a writer, William Clifford is imprisoned. When he emerges from his confinement his genius has died within him, and in its place is a hatred for mankind. Margaret Gibson, as his adopted daughter, a beautiful girl placed under his protection by tragic circumstances, gradually softens his heart. Her love for a young aristocrat, wounded while hunting big game, finally leads to his complete reformation so that in his darkest hour he learns his lesson of truth and allows himself to be persuaded to return to the world he has deserted. The famous Bostock animals furnish excitement for some of the most thrilling scenes of this unusual production which is excellently presented by a strong cast of well known players. As a drama of unusual merit this will please both young and old and in conjunction with the eighth episode of "The Girl and the Game" will make a very interesting program including comedy which is very pleasing to the little ones. The aim of the Astor management is to select a program that will please everyone and with the comfort that you enjoy in "your" theatre there is no doubt that his undertaking is well appreciated. For the summer months matinees will start at 3 p. m., excepting Saturdays and holidays when the matinee will start at 2 p. m.

Scissors Stuff

"Never Had a Chance."

"I never had a chance to get an education. I had to work when I was a kid." The man who said this is about twenty-five. We would like to refer him to the case of a New York man, who, according to the newspapers, has just graduated from college at the age of seventy. We would like to remind him also of the night schools of every known variety, where one may learn anything from the A, B, C's of the alphabet to the X, Y, Z's of science. Don't let any man tell you that "he never had a chance."—Paterson Call.

Votes for Women.

The woman suffragists have gained a little—the Republican National Convention "as a measure of justice to one-half of the adult people of this country, favors the extension of suffrage to women, but recognizes the right of each State to settle the question for itself." The delegates were in a frame of mind similar to that of the near-statesman who was "in favor of the law, but agin' its application." However, the admission that granting the right to women to vote would be "a measure of justice," ought to be worth something to the advocates of equal suffrage. The election returns next November from the dozen States that have already given the ballot to the women, will be worth more to them, if the result should happen to be close.—Trenton Times.

One of the Causes.

The increase in the production of lawyers in this State is away out of proportion to the increase in population, and the effort of the Supreme Court to keep it within bounds by raising the standard has been without avail. The great anxiety for parents and children to get into the professional ranks, rather than engage in any productive capacity, is responsible for the overcrowding of the ranks of lawyers, physicians and other professions. It is the natural result to the clamor for a higher education and the compulsory school laws regulating the age at which pupils may engage in work to help their parents keep the pot boiling. Boys are kept at school until they reach an age at which they decline to learn a trade or to engage in employment that they imagine is menial, and thus their mind turns to a professional career. The learned professions will continue to be overcrowded unless the standards of examinations are made so high as to be difficult to attain.—Camden Courier.

PASS EXAMINATIONS.

Louise Seader, Ethel Hall and Magdalene Layton, senior pupils of the commercial department of the North Plainfield High School, visited New York recently to take the examinations given by a typewriter company. They passed with very high marks. Seven more pupils from the junior and senior grades will visit the city shortly to take the same examinations.

JOHN H. VANWINKLE RESIGNS AS TRUSTEE

The Plainfield Trust Co. Will Look After Estate of Catherine R. Webster.

A meeting of the Ladies' Home of Plainfield was held at the law offices of John H. VanWinkle & Son last night, it being called at the request of Mr. VanWinkle, he being the executor and trustee under the will of Catherine R. Webster. The meeting was called to order by William M. Stillman, after which Mr. VanWinkle made the following statement, namely, that owing to ill-health and acting upon the advice of his physician, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, who was present at the meeting, he had called the members of the corporation together in order to make known to them his intention of applying to the court to be released from further duties in the matter and suggesting to the court that the Plainfield Trust Company be appointed trustee in his stead.

Although coming as a surprise to most of those present, the evident reasonableness of the request was such that Percy H. Stewart offered a resolution to the effect that the Ladies' Home of Plainfield consent to the appointment of a substitute administrator with the will annexed and trustee in the place of Mr. VanWinkle, such administrator and trustee to be the Plainfield Trust Company, of this city.

"I sit in the sack of wisdom."

Daddy's Bedtime Story— The Wise Man In a Bag Hung High.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

THIS is how daddy told the bedtime story: "Once a soldier became jealous of his brother because their king gave this brother riches. So the soldier hired some robbers to kill his brother. 'Dear brother,' said he. 'I found some hidden treasures in the woods. Let us dig them up and share them.' But in the heart of the woods robbers seized the brother and were going to hang him to a high tree when they heard horses' feet coming. This frightened them so that they stuffed the man in a sack and left him dangling in the tree. They intended to come back that night and finish their bad job, you see.

"Meanwhile the man in the sack wiggled and worked till he poked out his head. When the horseman came up he proved to be a merry student singing as he rode. 'Good morning, my friend!' shouted the man in the bag.

"The student looked all about, but saw no one. 'Who calls?' he cried.

"'Look up to where I sit in this sack of wisdom!' shouted the man in the bag. 'Compared to what I've learned in this high seat all the wisdom of the schools is empty air. Here I learn the signs of the heavens and the stars, the laws of the winds, the number of sands on the seashore, the habits of birds and the value of precious stones. If you were up here you would feel the power of knowledge too.'

"The student listened. 'I am glad I found you, wise man,' said he. 'May I come up into your sack for awhile?'

"'You must wait an hour below till I have learned a thing or two. Then I will let you sit here if you will treat me kindly.'

"So the student sat down and waited. But time hung heavily upon him, and soon he begged to know why he might not climb the tree and sit in the bag with the wise man. His thirst for knowledge was very great.

"Then the man in the bag said: 'You must let the bag of wisdom drop slowly to the ground by untying the cord. Then you can enter.'

"The student let the bag down, opened it and set the man free. 'Now, let me go up quickly!' he cried. So the man put him in the sack, tied up the mouth of it and swung the student up in the air, dangling from the tree. 'Rest in peace there till you are wiser than you were!' he cried.

"He jumped on the student's nag and rode off as fast as he could for fear the robbers would come back to finish their job. And the student hung there till he decided whether it is wisdom to stand on your feet or hang in the air."

"Oh, daddy, what a funny story!" cried the children.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Learning How to Cook Means Hard Work; Ethel Is Losing Interest.

"When are we to have a meal cooked by the student of home economics?" asked Ralph one day shortly after Ethel had been enrolled in the correspondence course.

"I do not know. I sent one paper in and it came back all marked up and I was told to do it all over. I do not know any better way to do it than I did in the first place." Ralph looked at the discontented face opposite him.

"Oh, come, never say die," chaffed Ralph. "You must buckle down to work."

"It is a lot of stupid stuff, anyway; nothing I want to know." Ethel toyed with her fork, her brows puckered in a frown.

"Let me see the questions; perhaps I can help you out," volunteered Ralph good-naturedly.

"Much you know about it." Ethel's tone was cross. She did not want to do anything with the lesson.

"I suppose common sense can be applied to housekeeping like everything else."

"By which you mean that I have no common sense," cut in Ethel tartly.

"It is said to be the rarest of all sense; besides, it takes close application to get any lesson, and that is one thing you absolutely have not learned: to apply yourself to anything you do not like."

"Why should I?" pouted Ethel. "There are so many things that I do enjoy."

"That's just it. Your whole theory of life is wrong. Everybody has to do disagreeable things. It is a means of development to do difficult and distasteful things, to make ourselves do them whether we like them or not. A person would be a veritable moral oyster who always chose the easy, pleasant path, the path of least resistance."

"Ralph, you should have been a public speaker. You have gifts along that line." Ethel nestled her dimpled chin in her pink palm and looked wickedly at her husband over the tea urn.

Ralph helped himself to some more steak and pretended not to have heard.

After a silence Ethel said: "I have some bad news." Ralph raised his eyes inquiringly.

"Julia is going to marry her beet sugar operator." An impressive silence followed this disclosure.

"Why do you not take some lessons in cooking of her before she goes?" asked her husband with a sudden inspiration.

"Lessons of my maid!" Ethel was properly shocked.

"Why not? She is going away. It is not as if you were going to keep her right along."

"If that is not just like a man," Ethel remarked in an audible aside.

"Yes, it is. A man gets what he goes after. He does not let any lines that convention has drawn keep him away from his goal. A woman is so hedged in by rules and bound by so much red tape that——"

"What is the use of more talk? I shall not think of any such thing, of course." The subject was dropped.

"Would you mind telling me what course you have considered?" There was a decided edge to Ralph's voice.

"I shall write to mamma to look me up another maid," calmly proclaimed his wife.

FILIPINOS STILL NEED OUR CARE

So Declares Mrs. Ella H. Thacher in Address Before W. C. T. U.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

National Superintendent of Soldier and Sailor Work Describes Trip Around World at Annual Meeting of Local Union.

That the natives of the Philippine Islands are not competent as yet to govern themselves is the belief of Mrs. Ella Hoover Thacher, of Washington, who addressed the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. yesterday. Mrs. Thacher is the national superintendent of soldier and sailor work, and in her interesting talk she described briefly a trip she made around the world. She admitted that the people in the Philippines are making wonderful progress in education and in other respects, but she is of the opinion that it would be a big mistake to allow them to take the reins of government now.

In speaking of the progress in temperance abroad, the speaker said that Japan seems to be taking the lead. They conduct classes showing the effects of alcohol and tobacco on the human system and in many other ways are promoting the cause of temperance. She said that at the time she was in Japan she was informed that the Japanese women had made 30,000 comfort bags for their sailors and there was every evidence that the people did not spare themselves in doing all that they could for their country.

Mrs. Thacher gave encouraging reports from other countries she visited all tending to show that the cause of temperance has been making remarkable progress in the past few years and that it is only a question of time when all of the States in this country will be "dry."

The annual session was an all-day affair, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. At this time reports for the year were given by all the heads of departments and officers, and these officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson; honorary vice-president, Mrs. E. A. Parse; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Peter H. Bennett; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine; treasurer, Mrs. A. G. Negley; auditors, Mrs. E. A. Parse and Mrs. T. C. Bodine; vice-presidents, Mrs. Ramsey Blair, First Presbyterian church; Miss Anna Boice, First Baptist church; Mrs. L. A. Udell, Park Avenue Baptist church; Mrs. Gilbert H. VanNest, Temple Baptist church; Mrs. A. T. Maxson, Seventh Day Baptist church; Miss Susie E. Jackson, First M. E. church; Mrs. C. L. Force, Grace M. E. church; Mrs. E. A. Parse, Trinity Reformed church; Mrs. A. C. LeBoyteaux and Mrs. William VanAlstyne, Congregational church; Miss Anna Claypoole, Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church; Mrs. Amos Ardrews, Netherwood Reformed church. The following superintendents were also named for the year:

Evangelistic, Mrs. Gilbert H. Van Nest; social, Mrs. Edmund Teal; soldiers and sailors, Mrs. C. M. Dobbins; press and literature, Mrs. Rufus K. Case; systematic giving, Mrs. Ramsey Blair; legislation and petition, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson; railroad men and firemen, Mrs. Charles Mehlenbeck; Sabbath observance and Sunday school, Mrs. Mary Winter; flower mission, Mrs. John Manley; foreign work, Mrs. Elizabeth DeForest; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. T. C. Bodine; franchise, Mrs. Peter H. Bennett; anti-narcotics, Mrs. M. J. Staats.

The reports from the various departments showed that much had been accomplished during the year. This included the annual donation of money, books, comfort bags, etc., which were sent to Captain George Benn's mission yacht work in Brooklyn. The report of Mrs. P. H. Bennett covered most of the work of the union for the year.

The afternoon session was opened with a Bible reading by Mrs. Rodney Lewis, after which Mrs. Thacher was introduced and gave her admirable address.

R. M. JOHNSON NAMED SUPERVISOR OF STATISTICS

For the purpose of studying conditions at its various freight and passenger stations with a view to increasing their efficiency in every way possible, the Lehigh Valley railroad has created the new position of supervisor of stations. R. M. Johnson, who has been a yardmaster at Jersey City, has been named for the position by J. F. Maguire, general manager. Mr. Johnson will have his offices at South Bethlehem, Pa., and will report direct to the general manager.

He will examine at first hand conditions at busy freight stations, both at terminals and along the line, with a view to preventing a congestion and at the same time insuring an economical and prompt and efficient handling of freight. He will also keep a close eye on passenger stations with a view to insuring comfort and convenience to the traveling public.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

"Hello! New York," at the Columbia Theatre, Broadway and Forty-seventh street, is generally regarded as the greatest success ever achieved at that theatre, which is justly celebrated for its many successes during the past seven years. And the curious fact is that, although the production is upon a scale of rare magnitude and splendor, and that the presenting company measures up with the best that has ever been assembled for a musical show, the prevailing prices at the Columbia are just one-half those charged at other theatres along Broadway. For years Ziegfeld's annual "Follies" productions have occupied first place in the esteem of New York theatregoers, and no other special summer productions have ever succeeded in drawing great crowds, regardless of weather conditions. But now, by common assent, the Columbia, by the attractiveness of its summer shows, has advanced to a position at least second only to that occupied by the Follies, if, indeed, it does not share equal honors with its older and more firmly-established competitor. The Columbia is crowded to the walls every night, and at the daily matinees there are rarely any unsold seats. Ladies and children constitute the large majority of the matinee attendance which is altogether remarkable in view of the fact that the Columbia still announces its attraction as burlesque shows. But there is little left of the old type of burlesque in this production of "Hello! New York." It more closely resembles a superb presentation of lively musical comedy. There is absolutely not one suggestive or improper word or action indulged in from the beginning to the finish of the performance. Still, as the New York Evening Sun says, "There is more snap and ginger than in two or three ordinary musical comedies."

SPORT TOPICS

GRADUATION WILL ROB P. H. S. OF SOME OF ITS BEST ATHLETIC TALENT THIS YEAR

Another year has closed on sports at the Plainfield High School and in another week graduation will take away the best athletes. The class of 1916 had one of the largest representations on the various teams of the school. In football or track graduation will not be greatly felt, but basketball and baseball will be hard hit, with four regulars gone from the former and seven from the baseball squad. The girls will hardly feel the loss of two from the basketball team and one from the swimming team.

A list of those that took part in P. H. S. sport activities makes interesting reading, and is as follows: LeRoy Apgar, baseball, '14, '15, '16, captain '16; football, '15. Sheldon Coudray, baseball, '15, '16; basketball, '15, '16. Samuel Davison, baseball, '16; football, '15. Albert Dealman, baseball, '16. Carlton Dunham, basketball, '15, '16; basketball manager, '16. Clarence Eder, baseball, '16. Eustace Eggie, tennis, '16; tennis manager, '16. Gerald Linke, baseball, '15, '16; football, '16; basketball, '16. Joseph Mutnick, football, '14, 15. Herbert Peacock, football, '14; baseball, '15; basketball, '16. Harold Seal, track manager, '16. Samuel Semer, baseball, '16. Leonard Lewis, baseball, '16. Minor Trowbridge, track, '15, '16. William Victorson, baseball, '13, '14, '15. William Whelan, football, '13, '14, '15; basketball, '14, '15, '16; captain, basketball, '16.

The only ones the girls lose are: Irma Good, basketball, '14, '15, '16; captain basketball, '15, '16. Jennie Bremble, basketball, '14, '15, '16. Ruth Thomas, swimming, '16.

DUNELLEN BOWLERS SCORE CLEAN SWEEP

Three Games on the Victory Side Again Last Night Over Columbian Quintet.

Dunellen feminine bowlers again asserted their supremacy over the Columbian girls' quintet on the Park Club alleys last night, duplicating their three-game victory of last week. This was the second of a three match series arranged between the respective combines and the Dunellenites won out by making a clean sweep of every game played, six in all.

Mrs. H. B. Arnold, who captained the Plainfield team, pinned scores of 131, 102, 102 for an average of 112.

The final contest produced the high team score, Dunellen carding 610, as the result of good marks by Mrs. Dice, who counted for the high individual score of the evening with a 147; a 138 by Mrs. Vail and a 135 by Miss Dealaman. Miss Alice McAfee was credited with the best individual average, setting up 124. The scores:

Dunellen Five.
Mrs. Apgar	141	124	91
Mrs. Vail	90	87	133
Mrs. Dice	126	114	147
Miss Ruth Voorhees	131	129	99
Miss J. Delaman	88	118	135

Miss Mary Donnelly	110	87	53
Totals	553	461	472

SYRACUSE FAVORITE FOR COLLEGE TITLE

Crews Tuning up for Big Regatta at Poughkeepsie Tomorrow.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—One day more and the intercollegiate regatta of 1916 will be a memory. But today it is the all important fact in the lives of some ninety-six young, broad-shouldered, deep-chested oarsmen who have toiled through six long months or more preparing themselves for the crowning event of the college rowing year which comes tomorrow.

Columbia, Cornell, Penn and Syracuse are the only crews that will fight though the four long miles from Krum Elbow to Yellow Point in the dusk tomorrow evening, but although there will be only four crews in the race, as against half a dozen or more in former years, the competition promises to be as keen if not keener than it ever has been in the past.

Each of the four crews is in the best of condition. There are a couple of cases of boile to be sure, but they are minor afflictions and are to be expected.

Brower, No. 7, in the Cornell varsity, who did not row in the morning because of boils, was back in his place in the evening when the Ithaca eights moved down the river to the shelter of the Cove below the course. Courtney was not with them yesterday. Syracuse was out late up stream with Schutt, bow of the freshman, out of the boat because of a boil. He will be all right today.

Columbia had but one light workout yesterday. Rice did not take his men out in the morning because of the cold snap, and in the afternoon served them tea and then waited until after 7 to get good conditions.

Betting began here last night with Syracuse the marked favorite in the varsity race, Cornell in the junior and every one on an even basis in the freshman. The reason was the appearance of all the crew managers and camp followers at one of the hotels for dinner previous to their attendance at the theatre in a body. Syracuse had to give odds of 3 to 2 against the field in the varsity race and 3 to 1 against both Cornell and Columbia.

N. P. H. S. BALL TEAM WILL SUFFER LOSS

Six Good Athletes Will Perform for the Last Time Tomorrow.

North Plainfield High School will end its athletic activities tomorrow afternoon when it lines up against the fast Alumni combination. In this contest six of the borough's most prominent athletes will don uniforms representing their alma mater for the last time.

Dilts has been a valuable asset for the past three years, both for fielding and slugging, also as captain the past season. Townley, playing at third base, was also a valuable man in that position for the past five years. Dawe, McDonough and Kirch, who joined the squad last year as "subs" landed regular berths this season, Dawe playing at shortstop, while the others were outfielders. Seidel, another member of the graduating class, was added to the team this year.

Although N. P. H. S. has lost the core of her team, Captain-elect Andrew McDonough should have no trouble in securing a good nine from the remaining material. The following are some of the aspirants for the squad: Mair and Yates, who are infielders of high calibre and were members of this year's team; Van Mater, Laporte and Stewart, members of this year's team; Dunning, Carson, Force, Causebrook and St. Vrain, who also look like comers and possible candidates for next year's squad.

The election of a manager has not yet taken place, but "Newt" Lowrie, who has worked faithfully as assistant manager this year, is the logical candidate for the position.

MRS. TYLER WINS P. C. C. TENNIS CUP

Speedy Finals With Mrs. Barrows the Feature of Women's Tournament.

Playing in the final round of the women's handicap single tennis tourney at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday afternoon, Mrs. W. B. Tyler defeated Mrs. Dudley H. Barrows, 5—7, 6—2, 7—5. By virtue of her victory, Mrs. Tyler will be awarded the 1916 championship trophy.

Mrs. Barrows started yesterday's match in excellent style and kept her opponent on the defensive throughout the set, managing to nose out in the lead at 5—7. Mrs. Tyler evened matters up in easy style in the second encounter, and the rubber engagement proved the feature event of the final play. Although she forced Mrs. Tyler to the limit, Mrs. Barrows fell back in the last few games and was compelled to accept the smaller end of the count, and thereby relinquished her claim to the title.

WHEELER TURNED IN CARD AT THE APAWAMIS CLUB

Gardiner W. White, of Flushing, had a margin of four strokes in leading the field in the thirty-six holes of qualifying play yesterday at the opening of the annual invitation golf tournament of the Apawamis Club. Henry J. Topping, of Greenwich, was first in the morning with a round of 76, but in the afternoon Mr. White came through with the low score of 75, which, added to his first round of 78, gave him a total of 153 strokes for the day.

R. M. Lewis finished second, with rounds of 78 and 79, while Mr. Topping tied with Harold L. Downey, of Apawamis, for third position at 159.

T. S. Wheeler, of Plainfield, in the fifth sixteen turned in a card of 102, 97-199.

GAMES TOMORROW.

T. A. B. S. at Baptist.
Farmers at Dunellen.
Hopes at Netherwood.

Three games are slated for City League combines tomorrow afternoon and, weather permitting, they will probably turn out to be of the same high calibre of previous engagements. The Tabs take on the Baptists, the latter team being engaged in a struggle to hold second place. The last place tie between Clinton avenue and the Farmers will be settled at Dunellen, when these two contingents meet.

Hope Chapel is tuned up for its issue with the leaders and confidence of overwhelming the Netherwood crew reigns supreme in the Chapelites' camp. Taken as a whole, the list of games slated for tomorrow is a particularly interesting one and all three games should develop into speedy attractions.

POULTRYMEN PLAN FOR STATE EXHIBIT

Annual Show Will Be Held at Elizabeth Nov. 28 to Dec. 2 —Committees to Meet.

Plans for the sow to be held in Elizabeth on November 28, 29, 30 and December 1 and 2, under the auspices of the New Jersey State Poultry Association, were discussed in an informal way at a meeting of the members of the Union County Paultry Association at the barn of Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, last night. There were about forty members present.

During the evening, Professor Victor Aubrey ,of the State College, New Brunswick, was present, and gave an interesting talk on the progress being made at the college and throughout the State in promoting interest among poultrymen and chicken fanciers in general. It was announced that the show committees representing the State and Union county associations will hold a meeting at the Queen City Hotel next Wednesday night, when further details for the State show will be discussed. It is the belief that there will be at least 5,000 birds exhibited at the Elizabeth show, making it one of the biggest in this part of the country. After last night's meeting, Mr. Fisk passed the cigars and there was a social session.

STATE CHIEFS VISIT IONA COUNCIL D. OF P.

Fraternal Order Welcomes High Officials With a Social Program.

Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., enjoyed a visitation from members of the Board of Great Chiefs of the State Council, Daughters of Pocohontas, last night. The affair was held in the council rooms on Park avenue and beside a large attendance of local members included delegations from Pocohontas Council, of New Brunswick, and Opeechee Council, of Elizabeth. The program included a business session, during which one paleface was initiated and one proposition received, followed by a social hour and dance.

The visiting great chiefs were Great Pocohontas Mrs. Catherine V. Lason, of Lakewood, and Great Keeper of Records Mrs. Lila Thompson, of New Egypt. Both complimented the Iona degree team for the performance of its initiatory work and made an address pertaining to the benefits of the order. Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Thompson afterward received a gift from Iona as an appreciation of their interests in the local council . Mrs. Mason received a beautiful berry set and Mrs. Thompson a cake plate. Refreshments were served and the council members and their friends enjoyed dancing until a late hour. The chiefs have been making official visits throughout the State and left Plainfield today for Summit, where they will inspect the council at that place tonight.

The arrangements for last night's visitation and reception were made by the good and welfare committee composed of Mrs. Agnes K. Clark, chairman; Miss Ella Sebring, Miss Viola Mundy, Mrs. Julia Hallard and Hrs. Millie Dunn. Mrs. Dunn is Pocohontas of Iona Council and acted as master of ceremonies.

SUBJECTS ANNOUNCED FOR SPEAKING CONTEST

The list of contestants and their subjects for the prize speaking contest to be conducted tonight in the Plainfield High School Auditorium, under the auspices of the Alumni Association will be as follows: Richard Borden, "Enmity Toward Great Britain;" Richard Ritterbush, "The Last of the Hapsburgs;" Caryl Dunavan, "King Robert of Sicily;" Charles D. Williams, selection from "Troilus and Cressida;" Warren H. Mumford, "The Two Spies;" Ruth Voorhees, selection from "Marmion;" Olive Lawrence, "The Soul of the Violin;" Carol Grannatt, "The Two Pictures;" Irene Moy, "The Death of Paul Dombey;" Elizabeth Marchant, "Guinevere's Soliloquy."

The judges for the contest will be Dr. P. B. Strong, W. D. Murray and Charles H. Frost. Two prizes of ten dollars each will be awarded the boy and girl who qualify for first places. While the judges are conferring there will be a short meeting of the Alumni Association and an election of officers for the coming year.

STUDENT CONFERENCE.

Blue Ridge, N. C., June 16.—The Southern Student Conference, representing a constituency of missionary students and workers from many States, assembled here today for its silver jubilee, or twenty-fifth annual session. The conference meets under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., and Dr. John R. Mott, international secretary of that organization, presides. The gathering is to be divided into department conferences for college professors and college pastors and principals of high schools and preparatory schools. Prominent among the speakers who will be heard are Dr. H. F. Williams, of the Presbyterian Mission Board; Dr. H. H. Horne, of the University of New York; Dr. E. M. Poteat, of Furman University; Dr. E. O. Brown, of Vanderbilt University; Jackson Davis, of the General Education Board, and B. G. Alexander, Southern executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Cabinet Discusses Situation.

The Mexican question was discussed in all its phases at the Cabinet meeting today, and it is believed that the note to Carranza was formally approved by the President and his advisors. Reports are current that the note already has been sent to Carranza, but they cannot be confirmed. The Cabinet meeting, however, was in reality a political conference, the proceedings at St. Louis being analyzed in detail. It is believed that the President's insistence upon a strong anti-hyphen plan in the St. Louis platform was endorsed unanimously by his colleagues.

ONE ISAAC WALTON FAILED TO SHOW UP; PASSAIC RIVER BASS ARE CELEBRATING

Passaic river bass are today complimenting themselves on a piece of early season luck that is as unusual as the 1916 spring weather. Yesterday marked the opening of the "at home" season for this specie of fish and sportsmen who annually seek out the waters in which they abound were out bright and early. At least, they all were but Linke Martin and "Pop" Thorn, two Plainfield anglers who have introduced themselves to many a school of fish in years gone by.

Martin and Thorn decided to make their visitation to the fishing grounds yesterday. All arrangements were accordingly made, including the investment of $1.55 in new tackle by Martin. The latter had been training an appetizing assortment of "live bait" for several days past and had the lure worked up to a point which would tickle the palate of the most particular bass. Passaic river was the objective point of the two Plainfield Isaac Waltons and it had been agreed to meet somewhere on North avenue between Watchung and Park avenues early yesterday morning.

Martin reported bright and early, prepared for a day of his favorite recreation. Minutes passed, then hours, but no "Pop" Thorn appeared. Finally Linke got into communication with his fellow fisherman and was informed that the date would have to be postponed as Thorn found it impossible to get away.

Martin had promised each of his friends a Friday fish dinner and the "fixin's" had been laid in for the feast. Today he is ducking around the edges offering explanations for his failure to "make good," but declares that the bitterest dose came in the expenditure of the $1.55 for the equipment.

That an ill wind always blows some one good, however, was again proven true, for there are approximately one hundred, more or less, bass in the Passaic river today enjoying a frolic that might have been wallowing in the grease of a frying pan had "Pop" lived up to his agreement with Linke.

MORAL LEADER OF DEMOCRACY

Judge Wescott In His Nominating Speech So Designates Wilson.

STATESMAN AND FINANCIER.

Administration of the President the Most Successful of Recent Times. Kept Peace With the World and Lifted the Nation From Business Stagnation to the Highest Prosperity It Has Known—His Name Will Go Down In History Beside That of Lincoln.

Following is the speech of Hon. John W. Wescott, attorney general of New Jersey, renominating President Woodrow Wilson:

Prophecy is fulfilled. The eternal verities of righteousness have prevailed. Undismayed by the calamities of war, unmoved by vituperation and vain declamation, holding to the pure altar of truth, the schoolmaster is statesman, the statesman financier, the financier emancipator, the emancipator pacificator, the pacificator the moral leader of democracy.

The nation is at work. The nation is at peace. The nation is accomplishing the destiny of Democracy. Four years ago the nation was not at work. With resources boundless, with a hundred million people eager to achieve and do, commerce languished, industries halted, men were idle. The country struggled in the toils of an inadequate financial system. Credit was at the mercy of piracy. The small business man was bound hand and foot. Panic hung like a storm cloud over the business world.

Our Prosperity Unparalleled.

Now bursting granaries, teeming factories, crowded railways and overladen ships distribute wealth and comfort to uncounted millions the world over. Production outruns the means of distribution. The parallel of American prosperity is not found in industrial history; nor is it causeless. It did not descend, like a merciful accident, from heaven. It is not due to the devastations of a revised tariff. It is not the result of destructive legislation. It cannot be attributed to the manufacture of war materials, constituting a bare 5 per centum of the volume of national business. War is destruction, not production. War curtails international trade. War depresses industrial energy. When the European cataclysm struck the world moratoria fell like a blight upon many of the neutral nations, but not upon the United States.

America's Resources Released.

There stands the astounding phenomenon of American prosperity. What is its expanation? The Euclid of financial theory worked to a demonstration measures for the country's relief. He promptly put into effect the legislative expression of a great program. He did not talk. He did things. He dynamited the monetary dams and let credit flow to the remotest corners of the land, its spray dashing even upon foreign shores. He released the nation's resources and set the energies of all men free to exploit them. He destroyed commercial slavery. He struck off its shackles. The prosperity of the nation is the product of statesmanship and financial genius. American credit is now limited only by its own honesty and capacity. The cause being undisturbed, the effects must remain. The schoolmaster is statesman, the statesman is financier, the financier is emancipator. With Lincoln, the emancipator of the chattel slave, he will live forever as the emancipator of the commercial slave.

Kept Nation at Peace.

The nation is at peace in a world at war. America is confronted with appalling realities. It is not the part of wisdom to play with phantoms, deal in riddles or seek to entertain the national imagination with the legerdemain of language. To build words mountain high as the throne of vanity and ambition should not be an American pastime. An attempt to catch the presidency by phrases is the work of folly. The function of a sounding brass and tinkling cymbal is not germane to the tragic conditions of the world. When the fate of millions is at stake it is not the part of any man to stack the cards. With civilization in peril the sphinx becomes an anachronism. With the whole world tense and anxious patriotic advice and suggestion are of more value than abuse and defamation. Speculation wilts in the blaze of truth. Abusive phraseology shrivels before the relentless fact. Honesty is the commanding quality of a free and patriotic American.

"Watchful Waiting" Averted War With Mexico.

What are the realities that face us? In Mexico exist the potentialities of civilization. In her wealth, her history, her schools, her religion, her needs, her very suffering and patriotism, lie the indestructible seeds of progress. To have conquered Mexico would have destroyed our prosperity and added hundreds of millions of taxation to the burdens of the nation. It would have planted distrust and hatred of the United States in every South American republic. It would have forfeited the respect of the world. It would have substituted the tenets of imperialism for the principles of Americanism. It would have prostituted the bravery and patriotism of American arms to the greed and avarice of concessionaries. It would have robbed the United States of the grandeur of her mission among the nations of the earth. It would have made might right and repudiated the doctrines of Christianty. It would have ignored the fundamental conceptions of moral progress and denied the right of 15,000,000 of people to govern themselves. Ambition and greed were prepared to sacrifice America and all that America stands for in order to acquire the wealth of Mexico. The diplomacy of "watchful waiting" averted these calamities and preserved in their original purity the principles of American freedom and justice. "Watchful waiting" repudiated the brutal dictum of science that the weak must go down before the strong. Help Mexico lest over her bloody grave are sown the dragon's teeth of our own destruction.

A Virile American.

War with any European nation would have set the world aflame and stopped the march of progress for a century. Would any one have had it so in order to affirm a "virile Americanism?" Is a "virile Americanism" bloodshed, destruction, the horrors of war and its uncertainties? The substance of civilization is the arts, the sciences, literature, philosophy, industry, the domestic virtues, freedom, religion and peace. But this is the substance of American nationalism. This is the virility of Americanism. It knows no national boundaries. It yet lives in the trenches and broken homes of Europe and pervades its very thrones. Therefore America lives in the trenches and broken homes of Europe and its thrones. The stupendous conflagration is consuming the errors of statesmen and dynasties; it is not consuming the substance of civilization.

Schoolmaster Became Statesman.

Civilization is a unity. War with Europe would have cut asunder the moral forces that bind the nations and left an age of darkness, anarchy and despair. Standing on the immutable foundations of such Americanism, the schoolmaster and statesman with consummate skill, a skill that commands the admiration of the world, direct the forces of civilization, not with arms, but with reason and moral pressure against the excesses of a belligerent world. With preternatural poise and clearness of vision he is piloting America through the rushing storm. Who can deny the existence of a moral design in the universe? Who now can question its fulfillment? Who now can close his eyes to the destiny of democracy to make the principles of civilization dominant, to bring the warring nations of the earth together in lasting peace? The passions of men die. The truth lives. America has called to Europe; Europe is responding in terms of a revitalized civilization. The sublimest picture in civil history is that of a plain American citizen maneuvering with the weapons of reason and humanity against the navies and armies of the contending nations and bringing them in accord with the principles of international law. The American standard of peace and justice now floats on the sea. It is unfurling over the trenches of the struggling nations.

Wilson's Vast Achievement.

From the vantage ground of imperishable Americanism the matchless craft of a real pacifist has not only avoided all war, but is leading the world into the ways of peace. What is peace but the assertion of moral progress? What is the assertion of moral progress but the indestructible civilization of Europe and America? From the smoldering ruins of a thousand cities, over the graves of millions of brave men, out of the blackness of the battle smoke, arising from the obscurities of national passions, already the peoples of the earth recognize the dim outlines, growing ever more distinct, of the composite soul of America in the patient and humane wisdom of the world's real pacificator. Of what avail all the wealth of our beloved land if it had been consumed in the destructiveness of war? What avail the travail of human progress for ten thousand years had not the schoolmaster and statesman been pacificator? His achievement is so vast that ambitious men are blind to its reality. But the plain millions, of all creeds and nationalities, recognize in it the imperishable glories of a Christian civilization. It glorifies the peasant and king alike. The schoolmaster is statesman, the statesman is financier, the financier is emancipator, the emancipator is the pacificator of the world.

Thus is the nation accomplishing the destiny of democracy. The commanding fact of the modern age is the spread of intelligence. The schoolhouse has conquered ignorance. The printing press has transformed the purposes and capacities of man. Education has qualified him for a better existence. The Bible has made him a moralist. Men know that the world is big enough to support the human family in peace and comfort. Men know that the great problem of peace and comfort is not yet solved. They know that it cannot be solved by the savagery of war. They know that its solution is obtainable only in conditions of peace, reason and a practical morality. This state of knowledge is the crowning achievement of progress.

Self Government Has Stood the Test.

The American experiment of self government has stood the test. The achievements of the American system are known of all men and felt throughout the world. The United States is the world's asylum. Here all races, all conditions, all creeds, are assimilated, helped, elevated, and men are made into self governing men. In America justice has made its greatest progress because it is progress in which all men have a part. That form of government which affords the fullest opportunity for happiness and comfort is destined to be the universal form. Such is the resistless syllogism of progress. War cannot stop its inevitable march. The opinion of all men is more potential than the opinion of one man. The best opinion of the best men by the force of example and mutuality of interest becomes the opinion of all men. American opinion is embodied in a man of peace. American opinion is marching through the world.

Kept Justice Untarnished.

When the imperialism of Europe cast the iron dice of destiny America threw the moral dice of destiny. America staked the principles of her justice. There they stand in untarnished integrity in the gaze of a stricken world. The intelligence of men grasp the meaning of America. Her example will readjust the relations of men everywhere. The aspirations of men are for freedom. Men and women can and should rule themselves. The day when they rule themselves war will disappear. The hand of divinity has so written it in the needs and necessities of humanity made in its image.

America, prosperous, peaceful, blessed, is so because the inscrutable purposes of God intended it. The contrast between Europe in flames and suffering and the United States peaceful and prosperous is the divine contrast. By saving the American system civilization is saved. The principles of democracy furnish the means of avoiding and preventing war. The universal intelligence of men decrees that the war now devastating Europe shall be the last war.

Sons of America, keep unsullied the sacred shrine of peace through whose portals will yet pass arm in arm the crowned head and the humble peasant in silent worship of God.

Emancipator and Pacificator.

Out of the ruins and sufferings of the present conflict will arise a temple of justice whose dome will be the blue vault of heaven, its illuminants the eternal stars, its pillars the everlasting hills, its ornaments the woods and bountiful fields, its music the rippling rills, the song of birds, the laughter of happy childhood; its diapason the roar of mills and the hum of industry, its votaries the peoples of the earth, its creed, on which hang all the law and the prophets, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Above its altars in ineffaceable color will live eternally the vision of its artificer.

Therefore, my fellow countrymen, not I, but his deeds and achievements; not I, but the spirit and purposes of America; not I, but the prayers of just men; not I, but civilization itself, nominates to succeed himself to the presidency of the United States, to the presidency of a hundred million free people, bound in impregnable union, the scholar, the statesman, the financier, the emancipator, the pacificator, the moral leader of democracy, Woodrow Wilson.

It is to be hoped that every Plainfielder will be wearing a rose pinned on their dress or in the lapel on their coat by some one of the hundreds of women "taggers" who will be scattered all over this city on that day.

These "taggers," dressed as nurses, will cover the city from the Plainfield Country Club on one side to the Park Golf Club on the other—from the Netherwood station at one end to the Clinton Avenue station at the other—and all sections of the city in between these four points of the compass.

That day has been chosen by the Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital to ask all men, women and children of Plainfield—whether rich or poor—to contribute as much money as they are able to this most worthy organization which recognizes no creed—except the creed of helping the suffering.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

Little Mrs. Uppen Cumming,
My, but she's a sly one,
Dusts with a dust cloth wet with gloss,
Instead of with a dry one.

MATCHLESS LIQUID GLOSS FIRST WON FAME AS AN AUTO POLISH

Talk to the man who owns an automobile. Ask him how many furniture polishes he dares trust on the finely enameled body of his car. He will answer that there are mighty few.

Matchless Liquid Gloss is ideal for this purpose because it contains only the purest ingredients—nothing to harm the most delicate finish. It glosses over scars and cracks in the enamel, removes grease stains and discolorations, and leaves a polish that stays.

For the housewife, a little Matchless Liquid Gloss on the dust cloth works wonders with dingy and discolored furniture and woodwork. Matchless Liquid Gloss simplifies housework because it does two things at once—cleans and polishes. It feeds the wood fibre, fills up cracks, pores and crevices, prevents splintering and leaves a fine lasting lustre.

AUSTRIAN LOSS IS NOW 300,000

Russians Now In Czernowitz, Says Petrograd.

153,475 PRISONERS TAKEN

Czar's Observers Confident That Teutons Will Be Unable to Stem the Tide of Onrushing Hosts—Germans Giving All Possible Aid to Their Ally.

London, June 16.—Confidence prevails among Russian observers of the offensive along the southern section of the battle line that the catalogue of the successes won by Generals Brussiloff and Letchitsky is by no means complete, telegraphs Reuter's Petrograd correspondent. It is estimated that the Teuton losses along the front from the Pripet to the Roumanian border now total 300,000, or nearly half the original effectives. It is announced officially that more than 150,000 have been captured.

Great satisfaction is felt with the reestablishment of contact with the Teutons along the whole southwestern front, but attention is chiefly centered upon the operations for Kovel, Vladimir-Volynski, Czernowitz and Kolomea. Colonel Shumsky, summarizing the results of the fighting, makes the deduction from the latest Russian official statement that the entire line of the Stripa is now held by the Russians.

Northwest of Buczacz a number of good roads run westward to the Podgaitse railway, which is regarded as accounting for the vigor of the resistance in this sector to the Russian advance. The village of Kozin, fifteen miles southwest of Dubno, captured by the Russians, is on the road to Brody, which leads thence to Lemberg.

The precipitancy of the retreat of the Austrians in many sectors is shown by the fact that the Russians found several telegraphic and telephonic installations intact and are now using them. The cartridges captured in the Stripa trenches would have sufficed for the use of the Austrians in the most intensive sort of firing for several weeks.

Petrograd, June 16.—The Austrians have evacuated Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, according to dispatches to the semiofficial Petrograd news agency from Bukowina, by way of Bucharest.

Following is the statement of latest operations given out by the war office:

Supplementary reports give the exact number of prisoners taken as one general, three commanders, 2,467 officers, six doctors and 150,000 men. We also have captured 163 cannon, 266 machine guns, 139 bomb throwers and thirty-two mine throwers.

The offensive of General Brussiloff did not stop. In the various regions on the front fresh prisoners were made and more military booty was taken. The enemy continues to deliver counter attacks at several points and elsewhere is busy intrenching himself in new positions.

On the Dvina front and southwest of Narooz lake the enemy artillery at some points opened a violent fire, followed by attempts of the Germans to debouch from their trenches. These were all repulsed.

M'CORMICK IS NEW CHAIRMAN

McCombs' Successor Was Born a Hard Fighter.

St. Louis, June 16.—Word from Washington that the election of the following officers of the new Democratic national committee would be agreeable to President Wilson was received with cheers:

Vance C. McCormick of Pennsylvania, chairman; Homer S. Cummings, national committeeman of Connecticut, vice chairman; Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, secretary; W. W. Marshall, national committeeman of Iowa, treasurer, and Fred B. Lynch, national committeeman of Minnesota, chairman of executive committee.

The new committee meets for purposes of organization today.

Democracy's pilot for the second Wilson-Marshall campaign is one of the most active and aggressive young Democrats in the entire country—a man who has been a storm center in political reforms in his own state for half a generation, but who has been a national figure for a shorter period than the president himself.

Vance C. McCormick is a good looking, clean cut, square jawed, forty-three-year-old American of Scotch extraction who likes a fight and who has pronounced executive ability. He began fighting when he was a student at the Harrisburg academy, almost two score years ago. He's been at it ever since—in school, college, athletic, civic, church and political circles.

THREE SOLDIERS ARE KILLED BY MEXICANS

Troops Following Hot Trail Across Border.

Laredo, Tex., June 16.—Three American cavalrymen and eight Mexican bandits are dead, six American soldiers and an unknown number of Mexicans are wounded as the result of a night raid by a hundred brigands who crossed the Rio Grande forty miles southeast of here and attacked a patrol of the Fourteenth cavalry near San Ignacio. Several of the raiders and forty-two of their horses were captured. The Mexicans carried their wounded away.

Major Gray is still using every man in his command in a sweeping search for a "hot trail." He reported to General Funston without comment that he had been in communication with a detachment of Carranza troops on the Mexican side of the river and that its officer commanding informed him that his men had run down and shot four of the bandits.

The raid was not wholly surprising to the American guard, which saw in the bright moonlight the approach of the bandits to the rear of where Troop M of the Fourteenth cavalry was encamped. Troop I was but a short distance away, both being under command of Major Alonzo Gray.

The Mexicans expected to find only a small detachment of American troops at that point, according to the prisoners. They attacked Troop M, firing first at the sentry. Troop I, a few hundred yards up the river, rushed to the scene, and after the firing had lasted half an hour the Mexicans retreated to the south along the American side of the Rio Grande, with the Americans in pursuit.

In the clothing of one of the bandits killed were found papers indicating that he was Major Cruz Ruiz, an officer in the Carranza army.

A Little Chat On the Art of Listening

DO YOU know why the telephone operator repeats the numbers you give her? Her questioning repetition comes tripping back into your ear more quickly than an echo. Some people seem never to notice the repetition because they seldom, if ever, acknowledge it.

When the telephone operator takes time to repeat to you the number you have asked for, she does it with a distinct purpose—to give you an opportunity to correct her if she misunderstands.

Unless you listen to her and acknowledge the repetition or correct her, she can only proceed with establishing the connection she thinks you want.

Experience has shown that the operator's repetition, properly acknowledged, greatly minimizes the number of wrong connections due to faulty enunciation.

One word will serve to acknowledge the correct repetition, and if the operator has misunderstood, you will save time and trouble both for yourself and for others, by correcting her at the outset.

Next week we are going to tell you something you may not know about telephone etiquette.

How'd You Like an Inside View of Mexico?

Andre Tridon, Mexican War Correspondent.

PERHAPS no man has brought back a more comprehensive view of actual conditions in Mexico than Andre Tridon, correspondent in Mexico for the Outlook and Independent magazines and a contributor to more than a dozen of the leading newspapers of this country.

And there is a reason for that. It is because of Tridon's peculiar temperament and his quick grasp of conditions and his understanding of the Mexican.

He was born in France of a French father from an old army family and a Spanish-Basque mother. The diplomat in Mexico has no means of getting at the bottom of the facts. It is beneath the dignity of his position for him to mix with the common rabble, and yet it is among the common "greasers" that the real truth about Mexico is current gossip on the streets of any Mexican city AFTER MIDNIGHT. Tridon went into Mexico with no race prejudice. He mingled with the common people and got the facts. He has degrees from Heidelberg, Clermont and New York universities and is the author of books in both French and English. Hear him on

BARBERS AGREE ON THE WAGE QUESTION

Minimum Scale of Fourteen Dollars Conditional on Continuance of Good Business.

Following a conference in Trades Council Hall, lasting four hours, last night, a committee representing the local boss barbers reached a satisfactory agreement with the journyemen of the Plainfield district relative to the request for an increase in pay. By the terms of the adjustment, the minimum scale of fourteen dollars per week instead of twelve dollars as heretofore will go into effect next Monday, but in the event of patronage falling away from the shops because of a necessary advance in prices the minimum will be reduced to thirteen dollars October 1 next. On the other hand if business continues good the journeymen will continue to receive the fourteen-dollar rate.

The satisfactory settlement of the argument is a source of great pleasure to bosses and journeymen alike. For several years the men have realized the need of more money in order to properly care for their families and the original petition to the employers was made on May 28 last. There was no inclination at first on the part of the bosses to grant the two-dollar raise, but when it was positively stated by the journeymen's union that failure to reach some sort of an agreement would result in a walk-out, the proposition was argued in several conferences. Charles Pagliucia, who has been secretary of Local No. 315 for the past nine years, was associated with Robert Turnstall as a committee to represent the journeymen and Alfred Seidel and William Feiring acted in a similar capacity for the bosses. Every one of the thirty-three members of the Plainfield local was present at the meeting last night, when Messrs. Seidel and Feiring were ushered in to present the propositions agreed upon by their associates. There were three in all but the first two were rejected after they had been talked over pro and con by both sides. The third making the terms as stated above was the last one brought up and the one accepted by the journeymen as the best solution of the difficulty. Many of the barbers in the Plainfield district receive as high as sixteen and seventeen dollars per week and there will be no change in the pay of these. The new rule applies only to those who have been receiving less than fourteen dollars.

In consequence of the advance in wages, the bosses have arranged a new scale of prices which was presented to the journeymen for consideration last night. The union price of a shave will stand at fifteen cents as heretofore, but hair cuts will be twenty-five cents, plain shampoos twenty-five cents, face massage twenty-five cents, hair tonic ten cents and razor honings thirty cents. The advance in each instance is five cents.

Eugene Beigner, who is president of Local No. 315, presided over last night's session and the successful result of the controversy is due in a great measure to his executive ability in handling the proceedings. A number of the journeymen were inclined to be in an argumentative mood and agree upon no compromise but President Beigner's dictates made them realize their mistake. Secretary Pagluicia was also given credit for the amicable adjustment as practically all of the details were placed in his charge since May 28. Mr. Pagluicia has increased the membership of the local one hundred per cent. since he became an officer and he has had much to do with bettering the barber trade locally. In his preliminary discussion with the bosses he presented facts and figures regarding the increased cost of living that it could not be denied that the men were entitled to the raise which was finally granted last night.

BABY WEEK IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Ill, June 16.—One hundred organizations interested in infant welfare and social betterment have co-operated in the arangements for a summer baby-saving campaign which was inaugurated in this city today and will be continued for one week. Among the organizations actively interested are the public health department, women's clubs, religious societies, medical associations, infant welfare clubs and business men's organizations. During the week the "message of salvation" which is to insure the welfare of Chicago's new generation will be preached from pulpit and school platform and will be delivered in a dozen languages by a corps of 500 speakers who will cover the city in automobiles from corner to corner.

NEW ENGLAND BANKERS MEET.

Swampscott, Mass., June 16.—Officials and members of the bankers' associations of the New England States, several hundred in number, gathered here today for a two days' informal conference on problems of business and finance. The principal sessions of the conference will be held tomorrow. F. A. Pezet, former Peruvian ambassador to the United States, will speak on "Trade Relations With South America," and Edward F. Trefez, field secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will discuss "The American Bankers' Responsibility Toward National Content."

FORMER LOCAL MAN WEDS IN CALIFORNIA

Announcement was made yesterday of the wedding at Pasadena, California, last night, of Miss Ch[illegible]er, of that city, to Walter [illegible]on, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fr[illegible]rington, of Central avenue, [illegible] city. The ceremony was a [illegible]ple one owing to the se[illegible]ness of the bride's mothe[illegible] performed by Dr. Freeman [illegible]tudy of the Pasadena [illegible]n church, of which he [illegible]or. Only a few relatives [illegible]tendance.

Mr. [illegible] was graduated from [illegible] in 1913, receiving the Yale [illegible] proficiency in studies and athl[illegible] He spent two and one-half years [illegible] study at the Boston Institute of Technology and went to California last February to engage in business. His bride is considered one of the most attractive young women of Pasadena and is talented in many ways. The young couple will continue to make their home in Pasadena.

LITERARY

A Church Leavens a Community

In its appeal for a church building for St. George's Richmond, in Philadelphia, the committee makes this very interesting statement:

"Thanks to the efforts of Mr. Arkin, the immediate neighborhood has been transformed since St. George's arrival. A Carnegie Library and a public square have been built and attractively laid out on the opposite side of Neff street. A school garden adjoins the St. George's property. City councils have recently passed an ordinance to secure the neighborhood vacant lots for a public model playground.

"That St. George's is peculiarly fitted to render the community Christian service is evidenced by its continuous growth. In fact, it has outgrown its present quarters. A church, therefore, is greatly needed, not only for the additional room it will afford the work, but also because it will furnish a suitable place of worship. It will serve, too, as an inspiration to the neighborhood, and a lesson to every passer-by as to the meaning and mission of our Church."

It might have added that most of these improvements were due to the efforts of the priest in charge, who has been an active civic force in his community.—The Living Church.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Boston, Mass.—The engagement of Miss Rose Pitonof, the famous young swimmer, has been announced, her choice being Dr. Fred I. Weene, a young dentist of this city. Miss Pitonof, who won nation-wide renown for her swimming feats several years ago when a mere school girl, is now 21 years old.

Columbus, O.—Teaching a deaf person to sing, a feat which has hitherto been considered impossible, has been accomplished by Mrs. Christian Born, of this city, after weeks of experimenting with Magdalene Sattler, an 18-year-old student at the State School for the Deaf here. The new teaching method consists of facial expressions accompanied by piano tones, which the student cannot hear but of which she can feel the vibrations. To date Miss Sattler has mastered more than an octave of notes, enough, scientists say, to prove that the method is a success. Miss Helen Keller, the eminent deaf and dumb student, has come to Columbus to test Mrs. Born's new process.

OBSERVE GAS CENTENARY.

Baltimore, Md., June 16.—An elaborate celebration of the American gas centenary was opened in Baltimore today under the joint auspices of Johns Hopkins University and the local gas companies. The event marks the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the first gas company in America the Gas Light Company of Baltimore. The celebration will continue over tomorrow and will include a big industrial and educational parade in which many floats demonstrating the development of the gas industry will be seen.

SWEDISH KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Stockholm, June 16.—The fifty-eighth birthday anniversary of King Gustav was celebrated today throughout Sweden as a general holiday. The King has about recovered from his recent illness and during the day drove through the streets of the capital and inspected the decorations that had been hung in his honor. During the day messages of greeting were received at the palace from the rulers of many of the countries of Europe and from numerous societies throughout the kingdom.

FLORIDA STATE BAR MEETING.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 15.—Many noted lawyers and jurists of Florida, with several eminent visitors from outside the State, are attending the annual meeting of the Florida State Bar Association, which convened at Atlantic Beach today for a two-day session. The officers in charge of the meeting are: President, Thomas F. West, of Tallahassee; treasurer, Charles E. Pelot, of Jacksonville, and secretary, J. C. Cooper, of Jacksonville.

BOY RECEIVES MEDAL.

The annual exhibition and competitive drills of the cadet battalion of the Bordentown Military Institute were held Wednesday morning on the institute's parade grounds. Among the members of the picked cracked company selected monthly throughout the year, was Cadet Corporal E. N. VanBuren, Jr., of this city.

Above is shown the emblem of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield. About seventy merchants of this city are members of the organization, and most of them display this emblem in a conspicuous position on their windows. It stands, however, for more than mere membership in a commercial body. It stands for business honesty, and it is displayed by the merchants in this city who believe that honesty and fair dealing is worth more to them than any temporary advantage which may be gained by taking short cuts which others think brand them as "shrewd." The emblem will never be found on the window of a "fly-by-night" store that comes here for a few weeks or months to take advantage of holiday trade. The store in front of which this emblem is displayed is not here for a few days. It has probably been under the same management for years, and will continue under that management. It is a guarantee that if you have purchased anything in the store which displays it, and you are dissatisfied, you can go back at any time and have any reasonable complaint properly and courteously attended to.

There are many reasons which can be presented in favor of trading in Plainfield. The emblem shown above is the best one of all. The stores which display it are the ones where purchasers are assured of honest values, for every member knows that he will be taken to task by the others if he tries any shady merchandising methods. Perhaps you will say "that sounds all well enough in an advertisement, but they do not practice what they preach." If any reader of this has any doubt that the members of this organization are not jealous of the emblem, it can quickly be dispelled by attending any regular meeting. The frankness with which the business men discuss each other's faults will no doubt be surprising, but it is just that frankness which is making the business men of Plainfield, allied with this organization, strive to be fair to the public in every way. The meetings are held the 1st Monday of every month in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, and visitors are always welcome. Our members are given a chance to get acquainted with many of the people of the city, and the kicker is made more welcome than the fellow who is easily satisfied, and comes out of mere curiosity. We know that we can all benefit from what the kicker says, for nine times out of ten his kick is a just one.

"But who are the members of the Business Men's Association?" perhaps you will ask. That is a fair question, for it is only for the members of this organization that these advertisements speak. In the next talk the names of every firm will appear.

White Buckskin High Shoes, $5

Every woman knows what shoe prices are this year. They have soared high and are going to soar higher. Yet here are white buckskin shoes to sell at $5.

We bought all the buckskin the maker had, and ordered the models.

—a high white button shoe (as pictured).

—a high white lace shoe (as pictured). When they arrived they were not quite up to Wanamaker standard in some trifling points. So we marked them $5, which is far less than they were made to sell at.

Early comers will find all sizes, though we can hardly hope to keep our size-range unbroken all day.

Buckskin Pumps, $3.35

Not all sizes here, but a fairly good range of the most in demand sizes. The model is a small tongue pump with an ivory button and a white ivory leather sole.

Hearing on Teacher's Petition for Salary Adjourned After Eventful Day.

TOWNSEND ON HAND

Supervising Principal Gulled on Stand Yesterday Afternoon—Inquiry Long Drawn Out and Postponement is Necessary.

That three changes made in the class schedule of the Fanwood Township schools recently had met with disapproval on the part of Union County Superintendent H. B. Johnson and the teaching corps, was brought out at the hearing before Assistant State Commissioner of Education John C. Enright in School No. 1 yesterday afternoon in conjunction with the hearing on Miss Mary Tucker Merrill's petition for six months' salary and protection under the Tenure of Office Act. When the inquiry was continued yesterday afternoon Supervising Principal S. Dana Townsend was put on the stand by Attorney Francis J. Blatz, representing the Fanwood Township Board of Education, and during cross-examination by R. C. Nicols, Miss Merrill's counsel, the school head produced figures of attendance in an attempt to justify the Board's action in doing away with the kindergarten of which Miss Merrill was the teacher.

The discontinuance of the class last December automatically brought about the instructor's dismissal, despite the fact that she had a contract with the Board holding good until this month. Mr. Nicols again made attempts to show that strong influence had been brought to bear on the alleged scheme to oust her and that she was the victim of prejudice.

Although the reason given for abolishing the class was the attendance increase, figures produced yesterday by Mr. Townsend indicated that the enrollment had been the same for a year back and it was also shown that frequent attempts were made to solve the class schedule problem, the final result being a recomendation by the county superintendent to discontinue the kindergarten.

Testimony brought out the fact that letters had been written by Miss Stiles, Mrs. Anderson and Miss Squire, complaining of the failure of the three different schedules to accomplish their object.

Mr. Townsend identified orders that were written by him to Miss Merrill at various intervals before she was notified that her services were no longer needed, but the contents were not made known at the hearing. Under the questioning of Counsellor Blatz, Mr. Townsend related briefly the efforts that had been made to get a room outside the school in which to hold kindergarten sessions, all of which, he said, were unsuccessful.

County Superintendent Johnson took the stand and told of his recommendation to the Board of Education to do something that would really benefit the situation. When asked by the Board if the kindergarten could be discontinued he said that he had answered that it could. John Z. Hatfield, chairman of the committee on grounds and buildings of the Board, next appeared on the stand and explained the efforts that had been made to secure quarters elsewhere, but in all cases the plan, he said, either did not prove feasible or the owners of property refused to grant the use of the building. Mrs. Mary Slocum, who taught the second class until her marriage several months ago, was called by Lawyer Blatz and told why she objected to the arrangements tried previous to the time the kindergarten was dismissed.

At 4 o'clock Commissioner Enright announced that the hearing would be resumed Monday, June 26, at 10:30. There are still a number of witnesses that have not been called, including Miss Merrill.

BUSINESS POSITIONS ARE REPORTED TO BE PLENTIFUL

Not within the past twelve years has the demand for office assistants been so far beyond the available supply, as at the present time, and all through the current year, 1916. The outlook is most promising, and every ambitious young person is being advised to begin at once to get a good business training, and as soon as possible, so that he can accept one of the many opportunities offered now to those fitted to take business positions.

These Herr's School students have been placed in positions, within several weeks, in New York, Plainfield and vicinity: Misses Mary Coughlin, Elsie Davidson, Elvira Patton, Alice Mallery, Mary H. Clayton, Mary E. Kriney, Anna McCarty and Mrs. M. Mulford; Messrs. George Trautman, Frederick Greene, Holt A. Farley, Herman Herres, Eldon J. Mereness, John W. McGuire, Jr., and John Maranak, Jr.

WILL TRY ONCE MORE.

The Farmer A. C., of Plainfield, will line up against the South Plainfield team on the latter's grounds Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Farmer nine recently trimmed the South Plainfield lads and as the latter's manager is an ardent believer in preparedness, he has taken steps to prevent another defeat by adding a couple of new stars. "Kale" Velard, the main slab artist, will be on the mound while Colfax will do the receiving.

SOME OF AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS MEN ASK AID FOR DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

Prominent Bankers, Diplomatist and Educator Appeal for Funds in the Name of the Suffering Soldiers of France--

The National Allied Relief Committee, co-operating with the War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies, is sending out what perhaps will be the most broadcast appeal yet issued on behalf of the war sufferers of Europe.

This appeal is for funds for the relief of the soldiers of France wounded in the fighting around Verdun.

What lends additional interest to this appeal is the fact that it is signed by six of the most prominent men in America. Those who signed it are: August Belmont of the banking firm bearing his name; Hon. Jos. H. Choate, Ex-Ambassador to England; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company, and Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, Boston.

It is anticipated that the contributions received from this wide-spread appeal will be devoted also to relief work among a large number of wounded resulting from the greatly increased activities of the contending armies.

The appeal is reproduced herewith.

BRYAN PROMISES HELP TO WILSON

Oratory Stirs Delegates at Democratic Convention.

CALLS MEETING LOVE FEAST

Peerless Leader Made One of Those Speeches That Brought Forth Bursts of Applause From Delegates and Spectators—Speech Demanded by Admirers.

St. Louis, June 16.—One of the most interesting speeches made during the Democratic convention was that of William Jennings Bryan, who promised his hearty support to President Wilson and Vice President Marshall during the approaching campaign.

Mr. Bryan is still a popular member of the Democratic party. This was demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt. At the morning session yesterday there were cries for the peerless leader, but he slipped away through the press room and addressed an organization in St. Louis. When he, with Mrs. Bryan, reached the convention hall in the evening there was a shout for the Nebraskan. Chairman James asked the convention if it wished to hear the former secretary of state. The convention decided it did. Then Mr. Bryan launched into one of his masterly speeches, the kind that have marked every Democratic convention since 1896.

Mr. Bryan made a "hit" by his first sentence. It was a statement that every Democrat had been waiting for him to make for months. It settled all questions as to his attitude during the coming campaign. He will be "all right."

"Every Democratic convention to me," he said, "is a Democratic love feast."

That woke the house up, and there was a storm of cheering.

Reviewing the sixteen year struggles of the party and its ultimate success, Mr. Bryan proclaimed his regularity by thundering:

"Whatever differences of opinion may exist or may have existed as to particular measures or particular acts, we are here to begin the fight of 1916, a united party in every state in the Union, ready for battle.

"Today those who stand for the Democratic party are able to go before this nation and not only give a reason for the faith that is in them, but give a defense of the administration's claims to the confidence of the people.

"You may take all the administrations from the beginning of our history as a republic to the beginning of the present one and you will not find as many laws written upon the statute books of great importance to the people as you will find written in the last three years by Woodrow Wilson, a Democratic president."

Briefly Mr. Bryan then referred to the tariff revision, the federal reserve law and the strengthening of the anti-trust laws.

He declared the Underwood-Simmons tariff law to be the best of its kind passed by congress in fifty years. Referring to the currency law, he said that, "thanks to the courage of a president who is not afraid, we now know what it means to have the White House on the side of the people. The secretary of the treasury now goes to the White House instead of to the kings of Wall street."

CLOSING EXERCISES OF TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS

S. S. Swackhamer Makes Address at Affair in Mt. Bethel Baptist Church.

Interesting commencement exercises of the public schools of Warren township were held in the Baptist chruch, Mt. Bethel, last evening, the affair being largely attended by the parents and friends of the children. A feature of the exercises was the address by former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, who spoke on the subject of "Peace, Total Abstinence and Religion." His remarks were much enjoyed by both old and young. The program was as follows:

Salutation, Mildred Miller; song, "Summertime," class '16; selection, Anna Zwiner; essay, George Sage; selection, Anna Kohut; quotations, class of boys; recitation, Margaret Reinman; essay, John Irving; recitation, Herman Nischwitz; class prophecy, Elsie Dodenhof; graduation song, the class; address, S. S. Swackhamer.

Solo, Myrtle Crabb; essay, Alice Zergiebel; recitation, Joe Mason; dialogue, Harry Mundy and William Bornman; declamation, Mildred Miller; class will, Israel Mundy; song, "Good Night, but Not Farewell," the class; valedictory address, Myrtle Crabb; presentation of diplomas, John F. Mundy.

The members of the 1916 class were as follows:

Mildred Miller, Anna Zwiner, George Sage, Anna Kohut, Margaret Reinman, John Irving, Herman Nischwitz, Elsie Dodenhof, Myrtle Crabb, Alice Zergiebel, Joseph Mason, Harry Mundy, William Mundy, William Bornman, Israel Mundy and Edward R. Cooper.

PYTHIANS TO HONOR DEPARTED BROTHERS

Crescent Company, U. R. K. of P., Completes Arrangements for Observance Sunday.

Final arrangements for Pythian Memorial Day were made by Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias at its regular meeting last night. Next Sunday is the date, and the annual custom of decorating the graves of departed members in local cemeteries will be observed. Crescent Company will have full charge of the program, although Pythians throughout this vicinity will participate. Visiting delegations will be present from Port Chester, N. Y., and Unity Company, No. 3, of Elizabeth. The former contingent will be accompanied by a brass band, while the Plainfielders will be headed by a drum corps during the customary parade.

The Plainfield Pythians will assemble at the North Avenue station, Sunday afternoon, to receive the visitors coming in on the 1:15 train from New York. The procession will be formed on North avenue and proceed to the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield, where the first graves will be decorated. From here the march will be resumed to Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue, where, after the ritualistic services, special trolley cars will convey the Knights to Hillside cemetery, and from the latter place to the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains. At the completion of the memorial program in Scotch Plains, the return will be made to Unity Hall, in this city, where a collation will be served for members of the local company and visitors.

Captain J. E. Flannery, who has been the chief officer of Crescent Company for many years, will have general charge of the memorial services and exercise the part of commander during the procession. He will be assisted by a committee composed of S. J. Robinson, Harry Werner, Charles Nichols, Charles Hoff and W. E. Bacon.

TOGS for the Business Girl

A Pretty Evening Frock of Ciel Blue Taffeta and Net

This Topcoat a Model of Smartness

A Semi-Formal Model of Blue and White Silk

Attractive Shirtwaist and Skirt

A Smart Sport Hat

Of Pale Gray Mohair this Summer Business Suit

Sport Clothes for Office Wear Must Not Be Too Sporty - Gray or Blue Mohair Smart and Admirably Cool for the All-Summer Suit - A Shirtwaist Season This, Luckily for the Business Girl - Play Clothes.

THE problem of the business woman in summer time is to select clothes that will be cool and comfortable in a sultry temperature yet not so airy and summery in character that they will look out of place on the street, or in the event of clouds and drizzling rain. In the vicinity of New York especially the weather is apt to change with disconcerting rapidity between dawn and dark. One may set forth at eight a. m. in a daintily cool white linen frock, white pumps and hat. At four there comes a thunder shower and at five-thirty one makes the journey home under a distressing downpour and over sloppy streets, clad in a pitiful, limp and bedraggled costume that looks the very worst of bad taste.

There are women who know instinctively just how to dress for all occasions and for any occupation and some of these women belong to the business world. They always look trim, neat, attractive and they never seem to make mistakes or wear the wrong thing at the wrong time. But on the other hand, if one comes to think of it, they never look airy, fluffy and coquettish in costume. They leave feminine fripperies of dress to women of leisure and the workaday costume, smart and perfectly tailored as it may be, is suitable for whatever sort of weather it may encounter during the business day and during the trip to and from the office.

Sport Clothes in the Business World.

This year sport raiment occupies a large place in woman's dress ideals. On every hand are displayed fascinating sport wearables, short, jaunty skirts, boyish coats, picturesque, becoming hats—all in delightful color harmonies or in striking, dashing color contrasts. But these fetching wearables will not be worn by the business women who have a reputation for good dressing—and in whose clever little heads are the level brains that will be earning the bigger salaries of next year and the year after. Tennis togs are adorable, truly, and so are yachting togs—so for the matter of that are bathing suits and dancing frocks. But none of these delectable garments are for the office.

Sport togs cover a wide field, however. They range from the severely utilitarian to the ultra frivolous and fanciful, and in this sport toggery field girl who has discrimination. It is best to leave bright colors alone; what is altogether charming against the sea or a woodsy background will be rather alarmingly bizarre against the dusty glass partitions of an office. But the well-cut sport skirt of linen crash or serge companioned by a tailored sport blouse will be perfectly correct for office wear.

A Shirtwaist Summer.

Skirts and separate waists are very much the vogue this season—which is vastly pleasing to the business girl who knows the value of a freshly laundered shirtwaist with separate skirt as a solid standby for office wear. An admirable combination in this line is pictured. The skirt, of striped blue and white serge is simplicity itself, and the diagonal arrangement of stripes is individual and smart. There are four circular gores and side pockets slashed into the material and then buttoned flat. The wide belt matching the skirt is very neat and trim. The blouse in this instance is of tan-colored cotton batiste with collar and cuffs of handkerchief linen, the cuffs fastening with loops and buttons so that they may be slipped up on the arm when the office regime calls for a messy job like pasting or momeographing. This well-equipped little business maid wears a shady but not unduly picturesque sport hat of brown milan with a band and bow of ribbon; her low-heeled sport shoes are of white washable kid which may be sponged off in a twinkling at any time with a damp cloth.

Another sport hat, suitable for office wear, and attractive enough for the Saturday afternoon outing, is pictured. This hat is a wide-brimmed sailor shape of green hemp with white grosgrain ribbon turned over the edge of the brim and tacked in ripples, and two folded bands of the ribbon around the high crown. The ornament at the front is of pleated green ribbon.

A sport skirt of tan linen crash, smartly cut and trimmed with pearl buttons, and accompanied by a cool blouse of tan batiste like the one just described, should make an ideal costume for a warm mid-summer day. In the event of an afternoon downpour, the tan crash skirt will not take on the hopeless, bedraggled look of a white skirt—indeed a white costume is seldom a wise choice for the of business and a day's weather changes do not so much matter. The woman who feels and looks best in fresh white in summer time may manage her favorite type of costume if she possesses a long, not too heavy topcoat for wear on train or other conveyance and if she accompanies the white frock with dark footwear and hat. Somehow the lily-white, bride-like effect of white frock, white hat, white parasol and white boots is not quite pleasing to the aesthetic sense in an office connection.

A Topcoat the Standby.

This brings us to the matter of the office girl's topcoat. If she is a canny business woman she will have this topcoat, whatever else she does without. It will solve the eternal controversy between summer frocks and possible showers. If it rains, the coat will cover one up. If the sun shines warmly, the coat may be carried over the arm. Such a coat may be of light worsted, wool jersey, mohair and worsted combination or pongee. It should not be of taffeta or of satin and the business woman of taste will not trim it with marabout or shirred ruffles. Pongee coats are particularly light and cool to wear in mid-summer, but they do not give much warmth as the season advances into cooler evenings and the girl who can own but one coat usually selects one of wool weave. The pictured topcoat is smart and it is business-like. The material is green and brown checked worsted and the cut is dashing and pleasing. This business girl wears her topcoat over a white linen frock. Her boots are tan and her hat in shades of tan, brown and white.

Mohair is such an altogether desirable material for summer business wear that it is remarkable all business women do not adopt it. If this were so, however, the individual mohair costumes one sees would not be so smart. The suit pictured is of light gray mohair with white pearl buttons on the youthful, belted jacket and a turnover collar of washable white kid. The coat has a boyish suggestion that is charming and the skirt, pleated at the sides, has sufficient flare without any effect of extremeness. White gloves match the snowy collar and the buttoned boots of gray glazed kid match the suit. The sailor hat is trimmed with white and mauve ribbon.

For Saturday.

There is an unwritten law in every business office that gala attire shall be permitted every feminine employee on Saturday morning. After lunch there will be no time to go home and dress, and of course Saturday afternoon is a fete occasion. So the business girl wears her best on Saturday and no one says her nay. Indeed her demurely unconscious gala appearance often reminds her employer that this is Saturday; that most firms close at noon on this day; that the employer who refuses to be amenable in this respect would be beneath contempt. None of this is said, of course, but a pretty frock of a Saturday morning has had its psychological effect in more cases than one, you may be sure. A very pretty Saturday morning frock is the model of blue Georgette and dotted foulard. The revers are of plain blue silk and the sleeves lace up with blue velvet ribbon. The pumps of white and blue glazed kid are worn with biscuit-colored silk stockings.

The dance frock is suggested as a model easy to copy at home. The skirt is made of silver bordered net, the pleated, slashed overskirt and little pleated bodice of ciel blue taffeta. This bodice-pleating is caught up on a guimpe of gathered white tulle and the gathered tulle is draped over a sleeveless, fitted lining of white net.

CRETONNE BEDROOMS SOUND SIMPLE BUT MAY BE COSTLY.

THE "simply furnished cretonne guest-room in our modest bungalow" which the summer hostess offers temptingly to her prospective week-end visitor, makes one think of the "simple little white frock" whose innocent and guileless daintiness belies the fact that it cost seven hundred francs in Paris. An eight-piece bedroom set of white enamel and flowered cretonne may be added to the bungalow guest room for the trifling sum of $250—which sum it must be confessed the possessor of a bungalow may find rather staggering after all! The set includes twin beds, bureau, dresser, chiffonier, table and three chairs. Two pairs of window curtains to match the cretonne of the furniture, and also a cretonne, valanced bedspread are thrown in for good measure and there can be no doubt of the delightful charm of a bedroom furnished with this two hundred and fifty dollars' worth.

The Summer Glove Problem

HOW fortunate it is, since one must wear gloves in summer time, that there are so many sorts of cool, comfortable summer gloves! No wonder, in the long-ago days when fabric gloves were unknown that femininity refused to wear leather gauntlets in warm weather and took to mitts. There is a good deal to be said in behalf of mitts—they must have been delightfully cool and comfortable, to say nothing of the manner in which they displayed charming rings—but mitts are gone beyond feminine consideration and there is no telling when they may be revived again.

In the meantime, however, one is blessed with cool, comfortable silk gloves which, with their trim fit and lustrous sheen are really prettier than kid gloves.

The well-dressed woman admits the necessity of gloves, even on warmest mid-summer days, for nothing gives such a forlorn and carelessly groomed suggestion as missing gloves, when the costume is of a sort to demand them. Gloves carried in the hand have an even more limply depressing air and if one simply cannot endure any covering on the hands in sultry weather it is better to leave the gloves at home and face the world blithely without them, than to carry them about, crushed and wilted looking in a warm hand. But sometimes gloves actually make one feel cooler on a very hot day and there is a psychological reason for this. The woman who feels that she looks cool, has a serene poise that actually makes her feel ten degrees cooler than the flustered woman who knows that her hair is hanging in stringy wisps because she thought it too hot to wear a veil, and whose moist, bare hands are uncovered by gloves. Wear gloves by all means—the thinnest, silkiest sort you have, if you wish to look smart.

Very smartly dressed women are not seen even in the unbearable dog-day weather of August, without gloves—when the type of costume worn calls for gloves. And somehow or other they manage to look cool, comforta- [illegible] in their trig veils, fresh gloves and even feather neckpieces, the despair of envious other women who wonder how they do it. This summer gloves with the sports costume are a fad—not merely with the handsome white serge tailleur accompanied by high-heeled buttoned boots, expensive hat and parasol, dubbed by convention "sports costume," but also with the rough and ready sport skirt and coat in which the athletic woman runs about in the country. Such gloves are mannish, one-button affairs of buff chamois or heavy kid and are worn unfastened, with the top turned carelessly back at the wrist. A new fabric glove for golf and motoring is called the fielder glove. It is easy to draw on and off and fastens with a strap and button at the wrist. The palm is reinforced with a section of colored glazed kid and the stitching on the back of the glove matches this color. These gloves are of substantial weave with stoutly reinforced fingers; some women use them for horseback riding and for sailboat or motorboat use when there is handling of tiller, sheet or wheel in prospect.

Of daintier type are the novelty gloves of silk with heavy silk stitching on the back and sections in contrasting color set between the fingers. Light tan and biscuit tinted gloves mark the last word in style just now and give a more distinguished effect than white gloves with any costume but a pure white one. There are silk gloves, also, with narrow pleated frills, black, navy or self-colored, edging the wrist and running down the opening on the inner side. These gloves are very dainty and the frills are not wide enough to give an effect of clumsiness.

Now that elbow sleeves are fashionable again, women are beginning to take fresh interest in long-wristed silk gloves, for these are the only possible kind for mid-summer wear with thin afternoon and restaurant frocks. Gloves are not worn with the dancing frock even when it possesses no sleeves at all; the formal afternoon frock, however, or the restaurant frock accompanied by a hat demands the formality of gloves. These long-wristed embroidered silk gloves come in white, pearl, ivory, fawn, flesh and other delicate shades as well as in the practical black and navy.

Black kid gloves with white stitching are considered smarter than tan gloves with wool tailleurs of dark color, and some women noted for their smart attire, wear black gloves and black hat with topcoats of pale tan. Boots need not necessarily match gloves, however; indeed the black boot is rarely seen nowadays, the fashionable model, usually in buttoned type, having a vamp of glazed kid in a color matching the costume, and a tall top in fawn, gray or ivory white. With the white tailleur of course white gloves and white boots—these usually of washable kid—are de rigeur.

Silk gloves must be washed carefully in lukewarm water and a flat-iron must never touch them. After several rinsings in clear water they should be squeezed (not wrung) dry and then hung up in a current of air. Never hang anything made of silk in strong sunlight. Wooden drying frames which cost but a trifle will keep the gloves daintily in shape while they dry.

Gauntlet gloves for motoring, easy in fit and easy to don.

New sport gloves in black and white combination and in heavy silk weave.

With the incoming elbow sleeve, beautifully fitting embroidered silk gloves return to favor.

MAKING SUMMER CURTAINS

NOTHING is more painful to the eye that loves symmetry than window curtains hastily adjusted and "cut by guess." Because summer draperies are usually made of simple, inexpensive materials, there is all the more reason that such draperies should be beautifully fashioned and cut with exquisite precision. Too often, haste, carelessness and impatience to get the finished effect, result in curtains that are a detriment rather than an ornament to a room. Even ten-cent scrim, cut along a thread and hemstitched by hand, makes curtains fit to grace a charmingly furnished room; but even madras at a dollar the yard cannot atone for uneven draperies, hanging askew and sagging out of place. It takes but a moment to draw a thread and all washable curtain materials should be cut this way. The eye should never be trusted, especially when the material is cheap and loosely woven, for such fabrics are very apt to be uneven in weave, though they look perfectly straight to the eye. The first laundering reveals haste and bad judgment in cutting and a little time and care at the start will never be regretted. It is not necessary to pull a single thread entirely out of the fabric. As soon as the thread is started, even if it breaks shortly, there will be an easily followed line for the scissors. Use a measuring card to lay the hems and be sure that the top and bottom hems in all curtains are exactly alike; and if the curtain fabric has a decided pattern, see that the patterns mate evenly on every pair of curtains. Far better buy an extra yard or two, to allow for this, than to have badly mated curtains.

BLUEBIRDS FOR THE NURSERY.

NOW the charming and symbolical bluebird flutters in still another place—so many alighting spots has the bluebird found within the past twelvemonth! He skims joyously over the brushes and mirrors of the children's toilet table these days and very charming are the white ivory-finish belongings with decoration of bluebirds in various sizes.

4% SAVINGS BONDS

The first series of our 4% Savings Bonds matured on June 1st. Those who have paid in $25 monthly for the past 88 months, received more than $1,000; those who have paid in less than this, received relatively proportionate amounts.

All the participants agree that the method has proved of great assistance to them, and many feel that they could not have acquired an investment fund without such an aid.

New series are now being opened. Full information may be obtained on request.

PLAINFIELD TRUST WILL ERECT HOME

Court Names It as Trustee and Executor of Catherine M. Webster Estate.

ESTATE WORTH $90,000

Local Banking Institution Succeeds John H. VanWinkle, Who Retires at His Own Request—Home to Be for Aged Women.

In the Union County Orphans' Court yesterday at Elizabeth, John H. Van Winkle, executor and trustee of the estate of the late Catherine M. Webster, made application to be relieved and discharged as trustee and executor because of ill-health. The proceedings taken before the court disclosed the fact that the residuary legatee under the will is the Ladies' Home, and that Mr. Van Winkle had in his possession assets of the estate amounting to between $80,000 and $90,000 to be turned over to The Plainfield Trust Co., the trustee named in the place and stead of Mr. Van Winkle. Under the terms of the will it will be necessary for the new trustee to erect a suitable home in the city of Plainfield for aged women, and when this is completed and the Home turned over to the Ladies' Home Corporation, the trust under said estate will have been carried out.

Following Mr. Van Winkle's request to the court, William A. Coddington, attorney for The Plainfield Trust Co., in accepting the trusteeship on behalf of the Trust Co., said to the Court: "Your Honor, in accepting the appointment of The Plainfield Trust Co., as trustee of the Webster Estate to succeed Mr. J. H. Van Winkle, I beg to say that I have carefully gone over Mr. Van Winkle's papers in reference to the duties performed by him as executor and trustee of the Webster estate, and never in all my xperience of over twenty-five years as practicing attorney in this county have I found an estate that showed such care and thoroughness in the maangement and handling on the part of an executor or trustee than the one now under consideration. I have found that Mr. Van Winkle has been most painstaking, thorough and careful in his management of the affairs of the Webster estate, and I believe never has there been a cleaner report produced on the part of any representative of an estate than Mr. Van Winkle now presents to your honor for your consideration. On behalf of The Plainfield Trust Co. I am authorized to accept its appointment of trustee to succeed Mr. Van Winkle, who now retires from further management of said estate."

Immediately following Mr. Coddington's address to the court as above, Judge Connolly made this comment: "I have known Mr. Van Winkle for a long time, and know him to be a very careful lawyer, and his handling of this estate as executor and trustee and his report now presented to me for consideration is no more than I would expect from Mr. Van Winkle, knowing him as a lawyer as I have for so many years. I will grant Mr. Van Winkle's request and discharge him from further duties under the will of the deceased, and will appoint The Plainfield Trust Co., trustee."

There were many lawyers present in court yesterday when this matter was presented, and Mr. Van Winkle was congratulated by several members of the profession upon the worthy comment made by both the Court and Mr. Coddington.

MISS DICKERSON BRIDE OF WALTER S. BROWN

Miss Gladys Dickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dickerson, of Dunellen, and Walter S. Brown, of this city, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Brightside, Dunellen. The ceremony was performed under an arch of flowers by the Rev. Irwin Steans, of Westfield, assisted by the Rev. E. R. Brown, of Dunellen.

The bride wore a traveling suit of white serge and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. D. F. Dickerson, as matron of honor and her niece, Marie Dickerson, who was flower girl. Louis Brown, a brother of the groom, was the best man. Immediately after the ceremony the couple departed on their honeymoon trip to the Berkshires. Upon their return they will make their home in Poughkeepsie.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT WATCHUNG SCHOOL

Attractive Program Presented by Pupils—H. C. Krebs Makes the Address.

A large number of parents and friends attended the annual commencement exercises in the Watchung School last evening. The auditorium was prettily decorated, the color scheme being pink and white, the class colors. Large class numerals and masses of pink and white flowers served as a beautiful background for the eight graduates, who were the Misses Marie Maurel, valedictorian; Joseph Carrer, salutatoran; Ines Poggio, Florence Luerssen, Edith Vincent and Linda Bartels and John Mogey and Paul Gollis.

The program was as follows:

Invocation by Rev. Mebane Ramsay; address of welcome, Principal Daniel H. Hawkins; valedictory, Marie Maurel; essay on Benjamin Franklin, "An Economic American," Ines Poggio; recitation, "L'Allegro," John Mogey; essay on Alfred Lord Tennyson, Florence Luerssen; recitation, "Labor," Linda Bartels; essay, "The Man Who Never Told a Lie—Washington. The Man Who Would Not Lie—Lincoln. A Comparison," Josephine Carrar; essay, English writers, Edith Vincent; exercises, the Seasons, Ines Poggio, spring; Marie Maurel, summer; Florence Luerssen, autumn; Edith Vincent, winter; recitation, Sir Galahad, Paul Gollis; essay, Napoleon, John Mogey; essay, Shakespeare, Marie Maurel; class mirror, Linda Bartels; address by County Superintendent Henry C. Krebs.

The prizes were awarded to Joseph Carrar, Margaret Walker, first prizes, given by Mrs. Richard Moldenke; Helen MacDonald, second prize; Margaret Demler, third prize; honorable mention, Hattie Winans and Effie Fell.

WEST END COMMUNITY CENTER TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The last entertainment of the season given by the West End Community Center will be held on Monday evening at the Washington School. Interesting numbers have been secured for a program. Charles L. Lewis and Miss Lamson are to repeat the comedy sketch, "The Silent System," which made such a hit at the Evergreen Avenue School entertainment. "Other People's Money," another dramatic comedy, will also be a special feature.

One of the most unusual parts of the evening entertainment will be a spelling contest to be conducted by Mr. Cook. All good spellers will be invited to take part on one side or the other and much fun is expected, as the newness of the situation will no doubt rattle some of the best spellers into making foolish mistakes. The public is invited to attend.

LECTURE ON PANAMA.

Harry S. Myers, of New York city, will give a stereopticon description of the Panama Conference on Religion at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow night. This conference was held for the purpose of making South America a great missionary objective. These pictures will be descriptive of the country and opportunity. Baptism will be administered at the close of the service. In the morning, Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson will speak on "Religious Liberty." The Sunday-school will meet at 9:45 o'clock in the morning.

DEATH OF INFANT DAUGHTER.

Beatrice J. Palmer, the infant daughter of Abner M. and Sadie Palmer, of 818 Webster place, died this morning following a brief illness. The child was one year and six months old. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the parents' home, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

DR. MOORE DENTAL SURGEON.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital has appointed Dr. George T. Moore a member of the staff of the hospital as dental surgeon. This is the first appointment of this kind to be made by the governors.

HACKMAN IS FINED.

Joseph Tate, a hackman, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of violating the hack ordinance and was fined $3 by Judge De Meza.

A LETTER FROM DR. BIEDERWOLF

Sends Message of Love to All Christian People in Plainfield.

MAKING A LONG TOUR

Gives Five Reasons Why Local Campaign Was Successful—Invitation to Come Here to Live May Be Accepted.

A message of love for the people of Plainfield was received by the Daily Press this morning from the Rev. William E. Biederwolf. Dr. Biederwolf is now on a tour in the interests of the Family Altar League. Although kept extremely busy by the details of the work planned for him he thinks of Plainfield often, he says, and he has found time to analyze the recent campaign here and give five reasons why it was great.

Dr. Biederwolf's reference to "your dangerous action of Sunday night" is to the invitation for he and his wife to come to Plainfield to live. It seems to have impressed him favorably. His letter follows:

"Enroute to Watertown, N. Y.,
"June 12, 1916.

"To the People in Plainfield:

"Dear Friends: The one who signs himself below, 'Most faithfully yours, is tonight a tired but happy man; tired in body, but happy in Him whose Name he was privileged to proclaim for six great and glorious weeks in dear old Plainfield.

"I only wish the Plainfield people could understand how really they live in my heart. The hallowed scenes in the big pine temple have been so deeply imaged in my soul that I am living them continually over, except when the pressing demands of other things call me from them.

"God has always been in Plainfield but how assuredly did He manifest Himself in ways seldom given to people these days to witness. Did it not seem at times that our religious life was lifted so high that its loftiest peak might have pierced the Heavens, and as if in a vision I have seen the hallowed angels of God come gliding down to help you do battle for a cleaner life, a happier home and a holier city.

"Reports have come to me of the wonderful prayer meetings on the first Wednesday night and I rejoiced with you, and do now, and truly thank our God who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask of Him.

"A man said, 'How was the Plainfield meeting?' I said, 'Great.' He said, 'Great how?' I said,

"'1. Great in attendance.'

"'2. Great in the deepening of spiritual life.

"'3. Great in its decisions for Christ.'

"'4. Great in the way the Christian people gave themselves to the work.

"'5. Great in the fine spirit of harmony and Christian fellowship.

"'6. Great in the general impress upon the community.

"'7. Great in the way the finance of the meeting was handled.'

"Now let us all be true. Let no one ever be able to say, 'It was only for a day.' Converts, pray, read your Bible, join the church and go to work. Christian people watch over them who started in the way; don't get too absorbed in anything to notice the fellow who needs a nod of your head, a shake of your hand, a smile or an encouraging word.

"The telegram for Sunday night, thought of repeatedly, was forgotten in the heavy pressure of three services in Allentown. I felt badly but knew Plainfield would understand. A letter which will always be prized very highly has been received from Arthur M. Harris, giving me information of your gracious but dangerous action of Sunday night. It has kept me in a brown study ever since. My tour thus far, in the interest of the Family Altar League, has been very successful. I know you will be glad to know this. May God abundantly bless and keep His people in Plainfield.

"Yours faithfully and in the bonds of a glorious gospel,

"W. E. BIEDERWOLF."

ENDEAVORERS ENJOY OLD-FASHIONED SCHOOL

Under the auspices fo the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church, an old-fashioned school was held in the chapel of the church last night, the affair being largely attended. The room was arranged just like a country schoolroom and the Endeavorers who came dressed as children, brought their books and lunches, just like those of old.

The teachers were Miss Mary Bicknell, Miss Ella Lounsbury, Miss Marthat Kline, James Fenner and Benjamin Kriney. They "quizzed" the children in arithmetic, geography and spelling, and this provoked lots of fun.

"After school" and during a recess the children enjoyed their lunch and played all sorts of games. The affair was arranged by the social committee of the Endeavor Society, of which Miss Catherine Lounbsury is chairman.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature recorded at the State Trust Company today was as follows: 9 a. m., 75 degrees; 11 a. m., 78 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 82 degrees.

PERRINE NOW SAYS HE GAVE AWAY $5

Westfield Man Faces Many Charges in Police Court.

Clark S. Perrine, who yesterday gave away money on the public streets, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of drunkenness, being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest. Judge William N. Runyon appeared as his attorney. Perrine wanted to plead guilty to all of the charges, but Judge Runyon entered a legal plea of non vult, and Judge De Meza accepted this, despite the admissions of the defendant. Perrine had little to say about his escapade of yesterday. He told one of the officers that the $8,472.05 found on him when he was locked up was only $5 less than what he started out with. It is believed that he lost and spent a little less than $300 yesterday morning. Judge De Meza allowed the case to go over until next Monday.

FRANCIS K. ANDERSON CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Heads P. H. S. Alumni Ass'n Prizes Awarded in Interesting Speaking Contest.

The annual prize speaking contest was held in the Plainfield High School Auditorium last evening, a large number of former and present high school pupils being present. For the boys, Richmond Ritterbusch carried off first honors, his offering being an interesting rendition of the "Last of the Hapsburgers." Second honors went to Caryl Dunavan, who gave "King Robert of Sicily" in a vivid manner. Others entered in the boys' contest were Richard Borden, Dickerman Williams, Warren Mumford. In the contest for girls, Miss Ruth Voorhees won first prize with "Selections from Marmion." In this contest, Miss Irene Moy was awarded second prize for her rendition of the "Death of Paul Dombey." Others entered in this contest were the Misses Elizabeth Marchant, Olive Lawrence and Carol Grannatt. The judges of the contest were the Rev. Philip B. Strong, William D. Murray and Charles Frost.

It was announced that the annual Alumni dance would be held on June 22, and that tickets could be procured at Miller's drug store. During the time taken by the judges for the rendering of their decisions, the annual elections of the Alumni Association were held.

After the speaking contest the annual meeting and election of the Alumni Association was held and resulted in the choice of the following officers for the coming year: President, F. K. Anderson; vice president, T. O. Gavett; secretary and treasurer, Miss Miriam Carman; executive board, William D. Murray, Martin B. Stutsman, Sidney Titsworth and Charles B. Morse. At a short meeting of the board held afterward Mr. Murray was named as chairman.

TRIBUTE TO AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT OF LEHIGH

A glowing tribute is paid to the Agricultural Department of the Lehigh Valley Railroad in a recent issue of the National Stockman and Farmer, published at Pittsburgh, Pa. An article entitled, "A Little Alfalfa Trip," describes an investigation of the work of this department along the line of the railroad. A trip for the purpose was made in company with F. R. Stevens, the railroad company's agriculturist, and special attention was given to the interest which has been developed in alfalfa growing. The writer characterizes the work of the Agricultural Department as significant and says that only a beginning has been made toward far better things to be accomplished. A similar article appears also in The American Agriculturist, published in New York City.

FUNERAL OF WALTER COON.

The funeral of Walter Coon, who died after a long illness, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his late home 315 Netherwood avenue. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, will be the officiating clergyman. Interment wil bel made in the North Plainfield cemetery, relatives of the family acting as pall bearers.

NO MEETING MONDAY.

There will be no Belgian Relief meeting on Monday, June 19. The notice of meeting will appear in the Plainfield Daily Press later.

Chicago.—Mrs. H. Ets Hokin, of this city, claims the proud title of "suffrage mother" and thinks it will not be contested. Mrs. Ets Hokin and her seven daughters, three of whom are married, are all members of the Civic League, and at the suffrage parade held recently in connection with the Republican national convention, marched abreast, forming a whole rank of marcher by themselves.

ITALIANS GAIN IN NEW DRIVE

Austrians Claim Russian Offensive Has Been Turned Back.

SURPRISE IS OVERCOME

Germans Lose Unimportant Trenches When French Artillerymen Attack as Infantry—British Destroyer Sunk in Collision.

Pessimism in Austria.

London, June 17.—Swiss, Italian and Rumanian reports dwell upon the great effect of the Russion offensive on public opinion in Austria-Hungary, where general pessimism prevails. The principal newspapers of Vienna make no comment upon the situation.

It is stated that the offensive on the Trentino front has suddenly ceased.

Austrian Offensive Checked.

Rome, June 17.—It is officially announced that the Austrian offensive in the Trentino is now checked on the entire front with the single excetion of a sector less than a mile long. The Austrians are attacking Monte Lemerle, which is dominated by two higher mountains, the Magna Boschi and the Langabisa. The activity is a mere pretext, according to the view of Italian military critics, intended to show that the offensive has not yet been abandoned, while reinforcements are rushed from the Trentino front to the Russian theatre.

Italian Steamer Sunk.

London, June 17.—The Italian steamship Motia, of 500 tons gross, has been sunk, a Lloyds announcement states.

British Make Advance.

London, June 17.—The British force on the Tigris has succeeded in extending its trenches to within 200 yards of the Turkish positions at Sannayyat, according to an official British statement. On the other bank of the river the town of Iman Monsura has been occupied.

Amsterdam, June 17.—Austrian correspondents admit the strength of the Italian attacks at Doberdo, which they are unable to repulse at points. Violent fighting continues. Austrian despatches also claim that the surprise of the Russian offensive has now been overcome and that the defense is succeeding better.

Big Guns Roar at Verdun.

Paris, June 17.—The French War Office announced today that violent artillery assaults are continuing on both sides of the Meuse River. The artillery conflict in the Avocourt sector is particularly heavy. Dead Man's Hill was shelled violently last night. A German hand grenade attack at Accourt was easily thrown back. In the Vosges, east of Than, a detachment of French artillery penetrated two German lines, killing many of the defenders and taking some prisioners. The attackers returned without suffering loss.

Vardar Lines Bombarded.

Saloniki, June 17.—There was an intensely heavy bombardment by the German artillery on the east bank of the Vardar yesterday. Two hundred large shells fell at one point.

German Cruiser Damaged.

The Hague, June 17.—From a reliable source it is elarned that the German battle cruiser Von der Tann has been severely damaged and has been towed into Wilhelmshaven and docked for repairs.

Antwerp Faces Famine.

Amsterdam, June 17.—An increasingly distressing situation at Antwerp is reported by the Echo Belge. The shortage of food is declared to be heartrending, as shown by the physicians' reports.

British Destroyer Sunk.

London, June 17.—Official announcement was made today by the Admiralty that the destroyer Eden was sunk last night in the Channel in a collision with another vessel. Thirty-one members of the crew were saved, it was announced. Three officers are reported missing. The vessel displaced 555 tons. The normal crew of the vessel was 70.

CONCERN CHANGES ITS NAME.

The Graphite Lubricating Company, of Bound Brook, of which State Senator W. W. Smalley is the president and treasurer, will in the future do business under the name of the "Bound Brook Oil-less Bearing Company," without any change whatever in its organization. Leigh S. Bache is the first vice-president and general manager of the concern.

Chatanqua

in the big tent in rear of tennis courts on Quaker Church property. Tickets and programs can be secured at following places: State Trust Co., Marshall's Laundry, Hall's drug store, Miller's drug store, Hodge's drug store, Randolph's drug store, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. Remember the dates, Friday, June 23, to Tuesday, 27th, except Sunday. Sunday program will be given Monday morning, June 26.—Adv. ***

CARROLL T. RUNYON WEDS MRS. WOODWARD

Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson Officiates at Quiet Home Ceremony This Afternoon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Steven Woodard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Joseph, of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, and Carroll Trow Runyon, son of the late Judge and Mrs. Nelson Runyon and brother of Assemblyman William N. Runyon, were quietly married at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which both the bride and bridegroom are members, performed the ceremony in the presence of the members of the immediate families. There were no attendants.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception during which a wedding luncheon was served. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Runyon will leave on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside on Willow avenue, the borough. The home was attractively decorated for the nuptials, the prevailing colors in the parlor being pink and crimson and in the dining room it was white and green.

Mr. Runyon attended the Plainfield High School, being a member of the Class of 1899, but he left in 1897 to continue his studies at Leal's School, where he was graduated in 1898. From there he went to Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University, being graduated as a mechanical engineer in 1902.

Since leaving college he has held several responsible positions and at present is in the drafting department at the plant of the International Motor Company in this city. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and the Society of Stationary Engineers.

Mrs. Runyon is also well-known both in the city and borough, where she has a large circle of acquaintances and friends. She is a member of Lydia Chapter, Order Eastern Star Lodge.

TRINITY CLASS NO. 2 HOLD SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL

The strawberry and ice cream festival held Thursday night under the auspices of the Band of Workers Class No. 2, of Trinity Reformed church, proved to be one of the most successful affairs given by the class. The decorations in the lecture room consisted of American flags, bunting and cut flowers. The Dutch Arms orchestra provided music during the evening. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of the following members:

Mrs. Frank Sowden, chairman; Mrs. Edward Weaver, Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. A. Hedrich, Mrs. Harry Messler, Mrs. M. Wagner, Mrs. A. B. Davis. The tables were in charge of the following women: Cake, Mrs. Neal and Mrs. Thompson; candy, Mrs. Schaffer and Mrs. Charles Mehlenback; lemonade, Mrs. Neumann and Mrs. Ten Eyck; strawberries and strawberry short cake, Mrs. Van Ness and Mrs. Reed; puff rice candy, Mrs. N. Sears. Others assisting were Mrs. E. Pangborn, Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. A. K. Willett, Mrs. E. B. Mehlenback, Mrs. George Ord, Mrs. J. Shjarback, Mrs. Scomp, Mrs. Vail, Mrs. Higgins, Mrs. Bittenbender, Mrs. Storr, Mrs. Flemley.

WANT DONATIONS.

Any person wishing to donate flowers, fruit, vegetables or delicacies to the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild may send same to the room of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building, Monday afternoon from 4 to 6, or Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30. Any person who has no way of sending may notify J. M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, 'phone 758-W, on Saturday, and a messenger will be sent for same.

SUMMER COMMUNION SERVICE.

The summer communion service will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. This is usually held in July, but was advanced for the convenience of the members of the congregation who will be away later and to receive those who come as the result of the evangelistic campaign. The organ recital will be held at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon, followed at 5 o'clock by the preaching service.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the First M. E. church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The pastor will baptize a number of children at this service. In the evening the pastor will preach on the following subject, "Discipleship of Christ, its authority, cost and reward."

MANY WILL BE BAPTIZED.

A large class of adults will be baptized at the Monroe Avenue Methodist church tomorrow. The subject for the morning service will be "The Saints in Caesar's Household." In the evening, Rev. Dr. Randolph will preach on the subject of "Our Lawyer in the Case."

CARRANZA MEN THREATEN FIGHT

Will Attack Any American Soldiers That Go After Bandits.

BELL CALLS FOR HELP

Needs More Men to Protect Border—Funston Officially Reports the Situation More Serious Than at Any Time in Months.

Washington, June 17.—The reports that Gen. Trevino has threatened to attack any of Pershing's troops that move south, east or west into Mexico or any other troops that cross the border, were officially confirmed today by Gen. Funston in a despatch to the War Department.

Washington, June 17.—The War Department is anxiously awaiting official confirmation of the reports that General Trevino has threatened to attack General Pershing if his forces make further movements in any direction except toward the American border. The reports are believed to be correct. However, no step has yet been taken to increase the border patrol or call out additional militia. The situation is more precarious now than at any time since the Columbus raid. Gen. Bell, at San Antonio, forwarded a report to Gen. Scott today that Carranza officials had threatened to attack any American troops that crossed into Mexico in pursuit of the San Ignacio bandits. Major Gray's cavalry has made two dashes across the Rio Grande trying to catch the bandits, but so far they have not been attacked by Carranzists.

General Bell Calls for Aid.

El Paso, June 17.—Having doubled the military guard along the El Paso river front, and issued 250 rounds of ammunition to all soldiers in his command, General George Bell, commanding the U. S. forces here, early today wired a hurry call to Columbus for Battery A of the New Mexico National Guard to report here for duty. The battery was recently mustered into the United States service.

The citizenry of Juarez today received rifles and ammunition from the commander of the Carranza garrison, General Francvisco Gonzales. More than a thousand persons were summoned to general barracks and equipped to fight the American soldiers.

DR. RUSSELL TO PREACH.

The Rev. Dr. Charles C. Russell, of Kansas, a commissioner to the recent General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, will preach at the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night at 7:45. Bring campaign song books for the song service. At the Children's Day exercises in the morning, at 11 o'clock, there will be infant baptism. Mrs. James Gilbert and Miss Edith Bechtel will sing solos at the morning and evening services respectively.

MUSIC FEATURES FESTIVAL.

The strawberry festival given last night by the Matlack Bible Class of the First Baptist church proved to be a thorough success from every point of view. Because of the inclement weather the festival was held in the Sunday-school rooms. Music was provided by an orchestra under the direction of Kenneth Stewart. The attendance was unusually large and all enjoyed the delicious berries served, as well as the other delicacies.

TRAVELERS IN SESSION.

The two-day convention of New Jersey and Delaware Grand Council, United Commercial Travelers of America, began yesterday at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, with a business session, followed by preparations for the election of officers, which will be held later. John F. Lewin, of Plainfield, is at present grand page in the lodge.

"THE SIN OF IGNORANCE."

There will be the usual service at Bethel chapel tomorrow. The sermon subjects will be as follows: Morning, "The Sin of Ignorance"; evening, "Finding Grace in God's Sight." The Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 6:45. The Biederwolf song books will be used.

COMMUNION SERVICE.

A communion service will be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow. In the evening the pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring, will preach on "What do you think of Jesus Christ?" Mr. Korff and a small orchestra will be present at the evening service. All are urged to bring their Biederwolf song books.

DEATH OF INFANT SON.

Kenneth Edwin Gray, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Gray, of Emerson avenue, died last night. The child was but six days old. Burial will take place in Hillside cemetery this afternoon.

TO TAKE CLASS PICTURE.

A class picture will be taken of the Matlack Bible Class tomorrow afternoon. Every member is urged to be at the First Baptist church by 2 o'clock.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

ENTERTAINMENT AND LAWN FETE WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The inclement weather necessitated that the lawn fete and entertainment conducted under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church last evening be held in the chapel. The affair was well attended. The entertainment, which was conducted under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, of Plainfield, commenced promptly at 8:30 and lasted for half an hour. It consisted of instrumental music, recitations and singing. Among those who took part were: Miss Beatrice Cameron, the local soprano; C. G. Gooch and John P. Faber.

Following the entertainment the numerous booths opened for business. There was the fish pond booth in charge of Miss Ella Boice and Mrs. E. R. Brown; the lemonade booth in charge of the Misses Edith Wyckoff and Luara Todd; the candy booth in charge of Mrs. Bertram Brandon; the cake booth in charge of Mrs. J. Newton Apgar, and the ice cream booth in charge of Mrs. A. F. Samson, Mrs. Edward Pennock, Mrs. Theodore Day and Mrs. Robert Bogardus. All the booths were prettily decorated with crepe paper. Sixty-four dollars was taken in and the women expressed themselves as being highly gratified.

Russell Burdick is now employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad in Bound Brook.

Watchung.

Rev. Mebane Ramsay will have charge of the services in the Wilson Memorial church tomorrow. The morning service will begin at 11 o'clock and the evening service at 8 o'clock, preceded by a song service at 7:45.

The ice cream festival which was to have been held on the chapel lawn has been postponed until next Saturday night because of the inclement weather.

South Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pomponio and family have move from New York to the house recently vacated by R. Riely.

Mrs. Thomas Brenan has returned to Elizabeth after being the guest of her sister, Mrs. P. F. Kaine, for a few days.

Mass will be observed in Sacred Heart church tomorrow morning at nine o'clock as usual. Sunday school will be held in the afternoon at two o'clock.

The baseball games will start at three o'clock in the future. This arrangements has been made so the visiting teams will have enough time to catch the five-thirty bus.

Westfield.

Residents in the vicinity of ——son place who have been complaining about the old cannon that has been lying there unmounted for more than a year have been assured by the Park Commission that the gun is to be mounted and the park improved.

Farmers in this vicinity report that the strawberry crop will be a failure, unless some clear warm weather comes within the next week. The berries are growing very slowly and are sour.

The local organization of Clinks will hold a smoker and business meeting Tuesday night.

THE FORUM

Editor the Plainfield Daily Press:

—I was glad to note your editorial comment in Thursday evening's paper relative to the deplorable condition of West Front street. There is no question but what not only many autoists who have passed along this street are absolutely disgusted, but many others, who while riding in other conveyances cannot help but see the holes in the street. The writer had occasion to visit friends in Essex Fells on Sunday last, who brought him back in a car, and he was so ashamed to let them see the condition of Front street, he suggested that they drop him at the Plainfield station. This the kind of mine would not do, consequently when he got to Front street he said: "Now I understand why you are ashamed to have me bring you up."

The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

Press' printing is the result of ceaseless efforts to render the best service.

For The Home Builder

LOCAL BUILDING REMAINS ACTIVE

Only Four Permits Granted Past Week But Estimated Cost is Placed at $20,739.

ONE FINE RESIDENCE

Dwelling to be Erected on Prospect Avenue at an Expenditure of $19,500—Month's Permits Now Total $64,176.

Although only four permits were granted by Building Inspector Doane during the past week, the total valuation represented reaches $20,737, a figure that bears out the predictions that building conditions locally are enoying a healthy boom. The results for the week are due mostly to one permit, that granted Nannette P. Cochran, for the erection of a handsome residence on Prospect avenue near Hillside, making a further addition to the numerous stately dwellings in that section of the city. The structure was designed by Architect A. L. C. Marsh, and will cost approximately $19,500. In dimensions it will be 73 by 70 by 52 feet. It will be of the frame type two and a half stories in height.

Another permit of importance just passed by the inspector is one issued to Miss Anna E. Boice for the erection at 312 Park avenue, of a terra cotta block building to be used as carpenter shop. The dimensions quoted in the plans are 55 by 55 by 27 feet, and the cost will be about $1,000. George D. Wilson will be the contractor and will occupy the structure when completed. The exact location of the site is in the rear part of what is generally known as the old Boice tract, not far from the Crystal Ice Company's plant.

The other two permits mentioned call for only small jobs. One of them is for the erection of a frame garage at 994 Arlington avenue for F. C. J. Moore, at a cost of $65, while the remaining one is for the erection of a barn and shed at 625 West Third street for Fird Carter. The cost of the latter is placed at $172.

The addition of $20,737 to the previous permits of the month give a grand total to date of $64,176, one of the best showings that has been made in some time. The estimated value of all permits granted since January 1 is $423,020.

BIG REALTY DEAL LIKELY AT FINDERNE

Bound Brook Man Has Option on Shaw Property Involving Price of $90,000.

One of the biggest real estate deals of the year is likely to be consummated in the transfer of over 200 acres of land and several buildings at Finderne, according to the records of the Somerset County Clerk's office.

The records show that an option has been given by the Finderne Realty Company to Thomas D. Van Syckel, of Bound Brook, on the premises formerly owned by the late John C. Shaw, which includes two tracts farms and buildings, consisting of the property known as "The Homestead," comprising 91 acres, and of the property known as "Winsor Place," comprising more than 125 acres. The price mentioned in the option is $90,000, of which nearly half is to be paid in cash at the time the title passes, if the deal is transacted.

Mr. Van Syckle paid $200 for the option April 27, when it was granted. The option held good until May 27, but Mr. Van Syckle had the privilege to renew it until June 17 by the payment of an additnal $300, which was done. Should he desire an extension until July 17, Mr. Van Syckle will be required to pay the Finderne Realty Company $500 more, according to the papers filed.

The Shaw property is well known to Plainfield people and has frequently been looked over by local investors with the idea of development.

REALTY TRANSFERS

The following local realty transfers have been recorded at the office of the County Clerk in Elizabeth during the past week:

Den. J. Galbraith et ux. to George F. Caskey, northerly side Clinton avenue, corner Galbraith place, Plainfield $1

Emily L. Tapscott to Belle LaRue, northerly corner West Seventh street and Spooner avenue, Plainfield ... $1

Irving E. Smith et ux. to Frances C. Smith, southwesterly side Central avenue, corner Sixth street, Plainfield $1

Prudential Insurance Co. to Arthur Lovell, northerly side Martine avenue, 100 feet easterly of Kensington avenue, Plainfield $1

FORMER LANE TRACT MAY BE DEVELOPED

Purchase of 33½ Acres by Recorder Hand is for Speculation Purposes.

One of the most important realty deals announced during the week is that made by Recorder Fred Hand, of the borough, in his purchase of the forward half of the Lane farm on Lane avenue. This property is within the city limits and presents a most promising proposition for development. The place has been occupied for many years by the Ohl family, which still resides on the lower half not included in the deal. Mrs. Ohl is a member of the Lane family, which held title to the farm through various generations for nearly two hundred years.

The property purchased by Mr. Hand has been owned for the past nine years by the estate of William Sandford and has an area of thirty and a half acres. While the consideration has not been named, it is generally understood that the ground is worth about $800 an acre. An acre of land located about a half a mile nearer than the Lane tract has been valued by its owner at $4,500, although this figure has not been met by an intending purchaser.

When spoken to about the deal yesterday, Mr. Hand stated that he had taken over the property merely for speculation purposes. He is optimistic in his views of realty development in the south side of the city and will lend his assistance to locating new homes in and about Lane avenue. The property is quite convenient to the Arlington avenue trolley and has many advantages to recommend itself to Plainfielders who like to live outside of the business section.

MIDDLESEX TRANSFERS

The following realty transfers were recorded in the office of the Middlesex County Clerk in New Brunswick during the past week:

Clarence M. Haight et als., to George R. Winter and wife, lots 49 to 52, block 1; lot 22, block 7; also lots 40 to 44, all inclusive, block 8, map of Haight and Tod, Piscataway township, $1.00.

National Land and Building Co. to Jan Kokarski and wife, lot 124, map Equator Park, Dunellen, $1.00.

Charles A. Osborn to Bernard Siriski, lots 29 and 30, block 12, southwest side Lincoln avenue, map Dunellen, $1.00.

Merchants and Traders Realty Co to Cecelia Cunningham, 2 lots, Plainfield Terrace, Piscataway township.

William L. Smalley and wife et als. to Union-Middlesex Corporation, lands in Union and Middlesex counties, Piscataway township, $1.00.

Winfield Hetfield to John Fenner, two lots at Dunellen.

Ernest Kapler to National Land and Building Co., plot at Dunellen.

Samuel Schwartz to Mary Wyckoff, lot at Dunellen.

Equator Building and Development Co. to Matthew Majcher, lot on First street, Dunellen.

Bertha Fenner to Winfield Hetfield, two lots on Washington avenue Dunellen.

IN THE SUBURBS

The parsonage of the First Baptist church, located on Main street, New Marfket, has been sold through the agency of Postmaster Willard N. Apgar, of Dunellen. The purchaser is J. Milton Michael, of Somerfield, who buys for a home and will take possession in the course of the next ten days. Mr. Michael is connected with the American Tobacco Company in their New York office.

The house on Penfield place, Dunellen, formerly owned and occupied by Gerome S. Dumont and family, recently acquired by W. Lockenvitz, has been rented through the hustling real estate agency of John Fedderman to J. J. O'Leary, of Plainfield, who will move in between now and the first of July.

Contractor Victor D. Schomp, of Dunellen, is busy at present in painting and decorating at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Smalley on New Market road, Dunellen.

The Gabrielle & Schall plant at New Market is closed down for the present, while repairs are being made to the machinery. A slight accident caused the temporary interruption to the routine of the plant.

Contractor Jacob Wagner, of Dunellen, has secured the contract for repainting the residence of Samuel Dayton on New Market road, Dunellen, and the work on the improvement is now proceeding.

BULL PROPERTY IMPROVEMENTS

Charles L. Force, of Mountain avenue, has been awarded the contract for extensive improvements to the Bull property at 226 East Ninth street. The plans call for the construction of a fine new porch on modern lines to cost about $500 and various changes to the interior of the residence at an additional expense of about $200.

A COMBINATION BRICK AND CEMENT HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

A GOOD dark "Oriental" brick for the base up to the main window sills and above finished in cement stucco is a fine combination, makes a warm house and a durable structure and at an expense that is not greatly increased over entire wood construction.

Such is the design submitted today. The house is 28 ft. in width and 38 ft. in depth of the main part, with the addition of a glazed sun room on the left of the main living room that is 11 ft. in width and 16 ft. in depth. The estimated cost of this house is $4,200 to $5,200, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The finish is thoroughly first class, with good hard wood floors, oak finish in first story and enameled finish in the second story. The arrangement is suited to an east or south frontage.

The entrance porch and vestibule is on the right corner, with brick steps and platform and tile floor in vestibule. The entire arrangement of the interior has been carefully studied and is exceptionally good. The main living room across the front with staircase on the right, glazed sun room on the left and wide fireplace on the long side, a wide projected grouped window with seat makes a very attractive room. The dining room and kitchen are complete with all modern equipments and in rear of dining room a fine glazed piazza to be used for breakfast room.

The second floor has one large bedroom in front and one over dining room and in addition a large sleeping porch in the rear. Provision can be made for a third bedroom if desired by a slight change in the room arrangement. The roof of house is covered with red tile, also roof over porch and window hoods. The treatment of the entrance porch is very pretty and artistic and the whole exterior has a very attractive appearance.

SIX PLAINFIELD PARCELS SOLD AT SHERIFF'S SALES

Six parcels of land in Plainfield were bought by Mary S. Marsh, executrix, at the sheriff's sales in Elizabeth, Wednesday, for a total of $7,700. A lot at Stelle avenue and Plainfield avenue sold for $2,200, a lot at Sheridan avenue and Plainfield avenue for $1,500, a lot on the west side of Plainfield avenue, north of Sheridan avenue for $1,200, a lot at Plainfield avenue and Sherman avenue for $1,100, a lot on the west side of Sherman avenue near Plainfield avenue for $900, an adjoining lot on Sherman avenue for $800. The sales were made in satisfaction of claims against the Central Holding Company.

Four lots on the north side of South avenue, Westfield, were sold to the executors of William M. Sandford for $4,000, to satisfy claims against Emilie G. Ungerer and others.

The executors of Robert H. Cook bought for $100 property on the southeast side of Willever street, Plainfield, to satisfy claims against Laura Jones and others.

RAZING RESIDENCE ON CITY HALL PLOT

Brooks Structure, Costing $8,000 Originally, Sold to D. Steinman for $250.

The former Brooks residence encumbering the plot at Watchung avenue and Sixth street, purchased by the Common Council as the site for a city hall, has been sold by the City Hall Commission to Davis Steinman, of Plainfield avenue. The price paid was $250, the highest amount of several bids offered. Steinman has already commenced tearing down the building and according to his contract must have everything removed by July 15. He will use the material taken out of the place for building purposes in other parts of the city.

At the time it was erected, the Brooks residence cost about $8,000, and was considered one of the finest houses on Watchung avenue. The City Hall Commission at first tried to sell the house intact, intending to have it moved away, but as this would have necessitated cutting limbs from trees on adjacent streets, resulting in objections from property owners, the idea was given up. Bids were then asked for for the purpose of razing and Steinman's offer was the best of those received.

The fixing of July 15 as the date on which the plot must be cleared indicates that the Commission intends getting down to actual building within the near future. The architectural plans are being completed by the Peck & Bottomly Company, of New York, and will soon be ready for inspection by contractors and others.

$6,000 HOME ON DIXEY LANE.

M. C. Fawcett, of this city, has awarded the contract for a new residence to be erectted for him on Dixey Lane. It will be a two and a half story frame and will cost about $6,000. J. C. Manning will do the carpentering and Howard Huff the mason work. Ground for the erection was broken last week.

GRADUATION WILL NOT END THEIR BASEBALL CAREERS

Although graduation will deprive Plainfield High School of some very good baseball timber, it will not put an end to the baseball careers of the several players who will graduate. Sam Davidson, a pitcher, William Victorson and Sam Semer, all regulars on this year's Red-and-Blue outfit, will continue to grace the diamond as members of the Y. M. H. A. Semer and Davidson will also play with Plainfield A. C., while Gerald Linke has signed up with Dunellen, as has Roy Apgar. Carlton Dunham is carded as a Baptist, and Clarence Eder will assist the Dunellen Scouts during the coming months. As a diamond assistant, Clarence has Henry Fabian beaten ten different ways. Eder is a good catcher and pitches once in a while to relieve the monotony.

WESTCHESTER KENNEL CLUB TO HOLD DOG SHOW

Barks from 600 dogs will echo under the trees at the Westchester Kennel Club show on Saturday, June 24. This fixture is popular with exhibitors among the one-day summer shows about New York, and many owners welcome the chance to show their prized pets amid this picturesque setting. As in the last three years the affair will be held at Gedney Farms, White Plains.

George Greer is chairman of the committee, and the dog lovers serving as his aids are Mrs. George H Pell, Mrs. C. Davies Tainter, Frank A. Bach, John C. Bates, Charley Harriman, Alfred B. Maclay, Tyler Morse, George W Quintard, J. Macy Willets, and Howard Willets, president of the club.

The heaviest entries are in sporting spaniels, including the champions of the Cassillis, Brookside, and Nepal Kennels; bulldogs, entered by J. W. Minturn, Jr., Mrs. C. M. Platt, William Drew, W E. Oakley, and Allison M. Lederer; Chow Chows, in remarkable strength; Bostons, Pekingese, Pomeranians, Airedales, and fox terriers. St. Bernards, to be judged by Mrs. Amzi Dodd, are to be well represented.

The appearance of many newcomers will increase the interest in the competitions. In the muster are Edward Browning, of Ardsley, with Great Danes and chows; Mrs. W. K Barnum, Lyme Rock, Conn., bows, Theodore Sponheimer, Scarsdale, Irish terriers; Mrs. G. L. Justice, St. Davids, Pa., Dachshunds; Mrs. H Lee Anstey, Pekes and English toy spaniels; Miss Edna L Thomas, chows, and W. Prescott Walcott, of Readville, Mass., Airedales. Mr. Walcott seldom brings his Airedales to an open-air show hereabouts.

The competition of beagle packs in hunting style, for John M. Bowman's prize, will be an interesting innovation. The little hounds will be brought out by the masters or huntsmen in hunt club uniform.

PACERS' SCHEDULE.

The August, September and October schedule has also been completed now and follows: August 6, Original Brightons of Brooklyn; August 13, Knights of St. Peter of New Brunswick; August 20, Jersey City Colored Giants; August 27, Rahway; September 3, Tottenville, (pending); September 10, Rahway; September 17, Rahway; September 24, Keansburg; October 1, Rahway; October 8, Rahway, and October 15, Ironsides of Newark.

The following players will be used by Pfau between the Perth Amboy and Washington clubs. Pitchers, Applegate, Randolph and Stevens; catcher, Hand; infielders, Worth, Stinson, Shankey, Wyckoff, Ahearn and Mullen; outfielders, Regan, Pies, Twing, Seller and Loeser.

ALSO AN ATHLETE.

Mike Wittpenn, who twirled for the Rutgers Reserves against Plainfield High School a few weeks ago and who earned a 2 to 0 decision, is more than a pitcher. Mike is an athlete through and through. This fact was verified yesterday when it was announced that he would represent the New York A. C. in the javelin throw at the Knights of St. Peter games to be held at Nelson Field, New Brunswick, this afternoon. Other noted athletes entered in these games are Bob Nash, of Rutgers, Jack Eller, the New York cop; Hugh Monohan and H. H. Olden.

ASTOR THEATRE

The big attraction at the Astor Theatre today will be Margaret Gibson and William Clifford in "The Hidden Law," featuring The Bostock Animals in five acts, an elaborate dramatization of the remarkable story by Theodosia Harris. This is no doubt one of the best pictures produced by the Mutual Masterpictures, DeLuxe Edition, under the direction of David Horsley. Margaret Gibson and William Clifford, the popular dramatic stars, could not have a stronger vehicle for their splendid talents than this powerful story. The famous Bostock Animals furnish excitement for some of the most thrilling scenes of this unusual production which is excellently presented by a strong cast of well known players.

With the eighth episode of "The Girl and the Game" and a laughable comedy, this will make a great bill for today. Matinee at 2 p. m. until 10:45.

On Monday we present another Mutual Masterpicture—Gladys Hulette in "The Traffic Cop," in five big acts by Lloyd Lonergan. Beautiful Gladys Hulette never appeared to better advantage than she does in this extremely original treatment of an exceptionally interesting plot by the famous dramatist, Lloyd Lonergan. Founded on the parting of the ways of childhood sweethearts and the crossing of their paths later in life when the difference of wealth and position has a definite bearing upon their relations, "The Traffic Cop" abounds in new situations and excellent opportunities for strong acting which are made most of by Miss Hulette and her splendid supporting company. "The Traffic Cop," with Gladys Hulette is a splendid production, abounding in exciting situations and excellently staged. This in addition to our regular program will make an excellent bill for Monday.

RECOGNIZED OLD FRIEND AFTER TWENTY-TWO YEARS

An unusual instance of one old friend identifying another after many years of separation was witnessed at the Hotel Kensington yesterday afternoon, when W. T. Morgan, clerk of the hostelry, recognized David J. Lewis, of Chicago, whom he had not seen since 1894. The recognition was immediate and was a great surprise to Mr. Lewis, who had learned of Mr. Morgan's whereabouts, but who thought he would fail to place him. The meeting was witnessed by a large number of spectators to all of whom it seemed wonderful.

Mr. Lewis, who is now connected with a large Chicago firm handling lubricants, was a resident of Shamokin, Pa., at the time when Mr. Morgan was one of the leading business men of that city. The friends parted in 1894, Mr. Lewis taking a position as engineer with the Southern Pacific Railroad, similar to one he held with the Reading system, while Mr. Morgan transferred his activities to another city. Later on, Mr. Lewis was appointed master of motive power on the Lackawana railroad and remained in that capacity until a few years ago when he resigned to travel for the Chicago firm. Mr. Morgan has been engaged in business of various sorts for many years and he has been located in Plainfield for the past two years, originally coming here as organizer for the Order of Owls.

Mr. Lewis stopped in Plainfield yesterday on his way to a convention at Atlantic City, to call on George Lewis, local representative of the I. C. S., and also a former resident of Shamokin. Through the latter he learned of Mr. Morgan's location and called at the hotel for a genuine reunion.

Those who have been fortunate enough to meet the two old cronies can appreciate the pleasant reminiscences that they had far into last night.

Resolved, That in the judgment of "The Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work," a corporation organized under the Laws of the State of New Jersey, for benevolent purposes and not for pecuniary profit, it is deemed advisable and most for the benefit of such corporation that the same be forthwith dissolved; and to that end it is ordered that a meeting of the members of said corporation be held on the eleventh day of July, A. D. 1916, at 10.30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., the usual place for meeting of said corporation, to take action upon this resolution, and, further, that the corresponding secretary do forthwith, and within ten days from this date, cause written or printed notice of the adoption of this resolution to be mailed to each and every member of said corporation, residing in the United States, and also within ten days from this date, do cause a like notice to be published in the Plainfield Daily Press, a newspaper published and circulating in the County of Union, wherein said corporation has its place of meeting, at least four weeks successively, once a week next preceding the time appointed by this resolution for said meeting.

Notice is hereby further given that a meeting of the members of said corporation will be held on July 11, 1916, at 10.30 a. m., at Grace Church Parish House, East Sixth and Sycamore Streets, Plainfield, N. J., to take action upon said resolution.

$1,000 RAISED BY FAIR YOUNG GIRLS

Rose Tag Day for Muhlenberg Hospital Has Auspicious Opening.

By noon today two hundred fair young canvassers had collected more than $1,000 for the Muhlenberg Hospital fund. They are selling roses in all parts of the city and the attractive personality of the "taggers" with the justness of the cause for which they are working brought a generous response from Plainfield people.

Mrs. F. D. Warren, in charge of the Rose Tag Day, for the Women's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, had headquarters in the Sterling building and from there is directing the campaign. A thermometer in front of the building registered $500 at 12 noon, but less than half of the boxes turned in by the fair young women had been emptied and their contents counted. The canvass will be continued until 7 p. m.

THOMAS J. WALSH.

Montana Senator Who Caused the Democrats to Vote Suffrage Plank.

With the reading of the platform the Democratic convention was electrified into fighting factions. The split came over the adoption of the suffrage plank, a determined minority of the resolutions committee fighting to have adopted a substitute reaffirming the party's historic attitude that the states should prescribe the qualifications of electors. Only when Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, in a vehement appeal for the adoption of the committee's plank, declared that it was President Wilson's plank and that the president desired it did the convention stampede to smother the minority.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE THEIR OFFENSIVE

Attack New Lines and Take 14,000 More Prisoners.

Petrograd, June 17.—Furious fighting is reported officially from many pivotal points of the line of General Brusiloff's advance in Volhynia and Galicia. The Russians have come up to the new Austrian positions and are attacking them with great fury, while the Austrians are striking back without success, the report declares.

As indicating the renewal of fighting on a large scale after the interval during which the Austrians were retreating from their old lines the last report announces the capture of 100 officers and 14,000 men.

At one point on the front southwest of Dubno, the report says, one entire Russian company was drowned while fording a river, but the rest of the force crossed under fire and drove the Austrians from their positions.

The official bulletin says:

"On the front of the armies south of Polessi (in the Pripet marshes) the fighting continues. The enemy has suffered heavy losses in encounters with our troops. The following details of the operations in many sectors have been received:

"In the course of a powerful but fruitless counter attack by the enemy in the region of Sokul (on the Styr, twenty-seven miles north of Lutsk), north of Rojitche, we took as prisoners 20 officers and 1,750 men.

"In the region west and southwest of Lutsk during the pursuit of the enemy our cavalry fought several successful actions. Northwest of Kremenez, twenty-seven miles south of Dubno, our bold soldiers of General Sakharoff's force after a desperate fight dislodged the enemy from his fortified positions on the River Blutchevka, a tributary of the Ikwa, between Kozin and Tarnovka, two adjoining villages eighteen miles southwest of Dubno, by a vigorous assault."

WIN WITH JAPANESE GUNS.

Russian Successes Due Largely to These and New Explosives.

London, June 17.—A dispatch to the Central News from Petrograd says that much of the effectiveness of the Russian artillery in their great Galician drive is due to the use of a big Japanese gun.

These guns are said to be more powerful than any that the Russians have had heretofore and are charged with shells filled with a new explosive, the destructive power of which is terrific.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

New York.—Following upon the announcement made a month ago that the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Columbia University Medical School, would open its doors to women students, after long meeting with a deaf ear all appeals from women colleges, the trustees have now appointed two women to the faculty staff of the school. The appointees are Vera Dantschakoff, M. D., to be instructor in anatomy, and Rosalie F. Morton, M. D., as attending surgeon at Vanderbilt Clinic.

New York.—Mrs. William A. Gavin, winner of the Women's Eastern Golf championship, is one of the most prominent sportswomen in all England, and the first foreigner ever to wrest the honor from American hands. She is the granddaughter of the Earl of Harrewby, and known as one of the nerviest women in England. She has hunted big game in Africa, is an expert horsewoman, and was the second woman to fly in an airship. She is a member of the Cherry Valley Golf Club, of New York, though in this country only temporary in the interest of Red Cross work for the Allied armies.

Favorite Rhubarb Recipes

Whether for the kiddies or the grown-up members of the family, a dish of rhubarb is one of the most wholesome sweets which can be served in the early parts of the year. It is cooling and purifies the blood at a time when a blood purifier is necessary.

Rhubarb Pudding.

We all know how to make a rhubarb tart or stew it and serve with custard, but rhubarb pudding is not so well known. To make it, grease a pudding basin which will hold about a pint and a half and line it with a good suet crust rolled out to the thickness of a quarter of an inch.

Stew for 15 minutes sufficient rhubarb to fill the basin, adding a little sugar and the rind of half a lemon. Put the rhubarb into the basin and cover it with suet crust, pinch the edges together, tie in a cloth and boil for two hours. Then turn the pudding out and cut a small hole in the top to allow the steam to escape.

Rhubarb and Bread Pudding.

This is an excellent way to serve rhubarb and use up any stale bits of bread one may have in the bread pan. Grease a pie dish thickly and put in a layer of bread crumbled, then put in a layer of rhubarb washed and cut into one-inch lengths, sprinkling a little brown sugar on the fruit.

Fill the dish with alternate layers of bread and fruit, letting the last layer be of bread. Put a few pieces of dripping on the top and bake for about 45 minutes.

Rhubarb Mold.

Put a quart of rhubarb, washed and cut, into a pan with sugar to taste, and one large cupful of water. Boil until tender. Dissolve a heaped-up tablespoonful of gelatine in half a cupful of water, to which a little orange juice has been added, and when the rhubarb is cooked add the gelatine to it. Beat together quickly and turn into a wetted mold. Serve with or without custard.

New sports skirt, peasant pockets in contrasting color or self, wide circle in yoke effect finished with cuffs which can be worn up as pictured, or turned down very gracefully. In corduroy, White with yellow, green with white, rose with white, yellow with white. $5.

In corduroy without the cuffs, a belt instead, pretty color combinations, $3.50.

To Whiten Neck and Arms

Now that the collarless corsage and short sleeves are so much in vogue, the "outdoor" girl is bound to lose much of the natural whiteness of her neck and arms.

For everyday life it does not matter a bit; in fact, to many a tanned skin is distinctly becoming.

But when one is dressing for a dance or dinner party, one is apt to have somewhat of a shock at the reflection in the mirror of a neck brown as the proverbial berry, surmounting with startling suddenness a white chest and shoulders, the latter terminating in "mahogany" arms from the elbows downward.

To prevent (and gradually to cure) the sunburn, try the following:

Mix equal quantities of strained lemon-juice and rose-water, and rub well into the neck and arms every morning after washing. Allow the mixture to dry on the skin. If the skin is very brown, apply (with a sponge) a little weak peroxide once a fortnight (not oftener) and you will find it a great help.

The Hot Sand Bag.

Many people appreciate the value of a hot water bag to relieve pain or improve the circulation. It is said that a hot sand bag is still better for this purpose. A physician gives the following directions: "Get some clean fine sand and dry it thoroughly in a kettle on the stove. Make a bag about eight inches square of flannel, fill it with the dry sand, sew the opening carefully together and cover the bag with cotton or linen cloth. This will prevent the sand from sifting out and also enable you to heat the bag quickly by placing it in the oven or on the top of the stove. After once using this you will never again attempt to warm the feet or hands of a sick person with a bottle or a brick. The sand holds the heat for a long time, and the bag can be tucked up to the back without hurting the invalid."

Keeping Blouses White

Make a heavy suds with a pure white soap and rub your crepe de chine or white silk blouse out with your hands. Rinse in two clear waters, then again with a tiny bit of bluing in the water. Squeeze out as dry as possible and roll in a clean sheet. Put your irons to heat at once and by the time they are hot your blouse is ready to iron.

You will also find this a easy, quick way to do up all little soft blouses, for in one-half hour your blouse is washed, ironed and ready to wear.

Keeping the Hands White

Many women who must do their own housework find it difficult to keep their hands in good condition. An effective way of preserving their softness is to rub them in dry oatmeal after every washing, and the old-fashioned mutton tallow cure is as good to-day as when our grandmothers resorted to it.

The tallow may be rubbed on the hands at any time when they are perfectly dry, but the best time to use it is when retiring, and an old pair of gloves covered on the inside with the tallow can be worn through the night.

A CROUP CURE.

A towel wet with very cold water and wrapped around the neck and chest will cure the worst case of croup in five minutes. It breaks up the congestion.

A gargle of lemon juice and water will cure a sore throat.

Gas Range Combined With Fireless Cooker

These two great helps to housewives are now combined into one Modern Efficiency Range—the gas range that cooks everything perfectly; the fireless cooker that saves gas and that retains the flavor of the food cooked.

Either one of them apart has been a joy to the modern housewife. Together they form a perfect combination that no kitchen should be without.

The gas range with its large oven, its broiling oven and its capacious top with four burners leaves nothing to be desired in the satisfactory results obtained.

The fireless cooker becomes so at the twist of a lever which turns the oven into a no-fire cooker.

Put the food in the oven, turn on the heat until the required temperature is registered on the thermometer on the door, then turn off the heat, lock the door with a lever, and instantly the oven becomes airtight and retains the heat. The cooking is continued uninterruptedly but without running any chance of over-cooking.

The gas saving is so great that roasting and baking are no longer expensive in a gas range. Full directions accompany the range so that one knows exactly how long the food should remain in the cooker. While the oven is being used as the fireless cooker, the rest of the gas range is ready for instant use, the broiler as well as the top of the range.

It is the Invention of a firm that has made Wanamaker gas ranges for twenty years. It is a marvelous thing. Complete, $62.50.

Parasols—Special, $1, $2, $3

Well supplied though we are with parasols of all sorts, when we had an opportunity to get these special sunshades to sell at $2 and $3, we could not resist.

They are prettier and of better quality than the average $2 and $3 sunshade.

Colors for all tastes; plain and bordered effects. Charming shirred sunshades, quaint little Jap parasols, and lots of blacks and whites.

Parasols at $1

300 of them; made of a mercerized sateen in black and white stripes, solid colors and floral borders; good beach parasols, fine to carry when you wish to save your better one; some slightly imperfect silk parasols in the lot.

A New and Improved Lindeman-Angelus Player-Piano at $550

YOUR SILENT PIANO TAKEN IN PART EXCHANGE; TERMS OF PAYMENT ARRANGED TO SUIT YOUR CONVENIENCE

This new instrument at this low price, considering the quality of both piano and player, illustrates the broadening of the policy of the John Wanamaker Piano business.

It is the first time that the premiere player, Angelus, has ever been offered in combination with a piano so renowned as the Lindeman at $550.

The Lindeman piano has been before the public for three-quarters of a century, and has a reputation for unusual musical excellence.

The Angelus was the first player action to be made, and it is still the first to-day in all-around merit.

Combined in one the Lindeman-Angelus becomes a beautiful piano, with sweet, full, rich tone; with elastic and responsive touch for hand-playing; and in addition a player-piano equipped with the best player mechanism in the world.

The Lindeman-Angelus is a wonderful instrument for anyone's home. After a day's work, walk into the parlor or sitting-room, insert an Angelus music roll, the reproduction of some great artist's work, and you have literally at your feet all the delightful musical effects that are obtained by a great artist.

Piano Salons, First Gallery, New Building.

A very comprehensive collection of music rolls for all 88-note player-pianos is here for your choosing.

JEAN WEBSTER DIES; WAS FAMOUS AS AUTHOR

Mrs. Glenn Ford McKinney, known before her marriage as Jean Webster, author and playwright, died Sunday in the Sloane Hospital at Amsterdam avenue and Fifty-ninth street, following the birth of a daughter on Saturday. The child survived.

Mrs. McKinney was a Vassar graduate in the class of '01. She married Mr. McKinney, who is a lawyer, in Washington, Conn., on September 7, 1915.

She was known widely for writing the story, "Daddy Long-Legs," which was afterward put into play form and acted at the Gaiety theatre two years ago with much success by Ruth Chatterton. In the past season Miss Chatterton starred in the piece with Henry Miller.

Following "Daddy Long-Legs" there appeared a sequel to it called "Dear Enemy," which ran in magazine form. Mrs. McKinney was also the author of "Just Patty," "The Four Pools Mystery," "Much Ado About Peter" and other stories. She was a member of the Cosmopolitan Club, Woman's Club of N. Y. and the Pen and Brush Club of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wright, of Plainfield, are spending a few days in New York city and are stopping at the Wolcott Hotel.

NUGENT FOUGHT THE PLANK ON SUFFRAGE

Tried to Keep Democratic Convention From Taking Favorable Action.

When suffrage leaders begin to pass out thanks for favorable mention of their cause in the platform of the St. Louis Democratic Convention, they will have little to say to the Hon. James R. Nugent. Mr. Nugent is popularly given credit for having defeated the suffrage amendment in New Jersey last fall and he tried to prevent favorable action on the part of the Democratic convention. The following minority report on suffrage was submitted to the convention by former Representative Bartlett, of Georgia; James R. Nugent, of New Jersey; S. B. Fleming, of Louisiana, and Governor James B. Ferguson, of Texas:

"We, a minority of the committee on platform and resolutions, respectfully beg leave to submit the following minority report, to wit:

"Section 19 of the majority report reads as follows:

"'We recommend the extension of the franchise to the women of the country by the States upon the same terms as men.'

"The following report was offered to said committee on platform and resolutions, to wit:

"The Democratic party has always stood for the sovereignty of the several States in the control and regulation of elections. We reaffirm the historic position of our party in this regard and favor the continuance of that wise provision of the federal constitution which vests in the several States of the Union the power to prescribe the qualifications of their electors,' which said last quoted provision was voted down in said committee by a vote of 26 to 17, and we hereby tender said provision as a minority report and ask its adoption by this convention."

MORE TALK OF TUNNEL FROM JERSEY TO NEW YORK

Interest was aroused in transportation circles yesterday by the incorporation at Albany of the North River Terminal Underground Railroad Company with a capital of $100,000. The incorporation papers said the company's purpose was to operate a railroad from Broadway and Battery Place, Manhattan, under Battery Place and the water of the Hudson River to Communipaw. The incorporators were G. Russell, J. M. Fisk, L. C. Ferguson, H. I. Skelton, and O. P. Pell, of 54 New street, Brooklyn. None of these men could be reached last night.

The filing of the papers led to rumors that the New Jersey Central, the Reading, and the Lehigh Valley Railroads were preparing to carry out the frequently reported plan of entering Manhattan by an under-water tunnel, like the Pennsylvania's at Twenty-third street. An officer of the Jersey Central said he had heard nothing about it, and that the scheme was not being seriously contemplated so far as he knew. Another theory was that the first step had been taken by private interests to operate a subway and tube to Staten Island by way of Communipaw and Bayonne.

THE BIEDERWOLF CAMPAIGN.

It is now nearly a month since the close of the great campaign and while it is far too early to sum total results (nor can they ever be fully known) yet within the short time since its close there are abundant and positive evidences of lasting good that exceed the expectations of the most sanguine.

The influence of the great crowds, the enthusiasm of united Christian effort, the inspiring music, and the voice of the man of God and his convincing message are missed. The people are back in their accustomed places of worship and the churches have taken up the work in their several spheres of influence. Whether or not the work was of God is now being proved. That it was is already manifest, not alone by the numbers but also by the intelligence and lives of the converts.

Already hundreds of them acting on their decision have come to the churches and with joy of heart and sincerity of purpose have dedicated their lives to the service of the Lord. That this is the result of "hysteria" as some would claim is untenable. Those who were most deeply concerned in this great work were impressed with the absence of that form of excitement and emotional appeal occasionally met with in a company of this magnitude. What was most evident was the profound conviction that gripped the hearts of men and women and led them to an intelligent and positive decision to lead the Christian life. The evangelist preached no new gospel, but the gospel of the grace of God, new and old, old and new. The gospel of God's love, of a Redeemer for sinful man, and a full and free salvation through Jesus Christ. It was to the power of this gospel that men yielded and found life and joy and peace through believing and are today rejoicing in a new appreciation of their existence, a new realization of life's meaning and a new revelation of their destiny.

Will they all hold out? Do all hold out in anything? Do all keep their marriage vows? Does every bud become a perfect flower? From the Lord's inner circle of twelve, did not one go astray? If the Church could maintain this average would she not do well? During the B. Fay Mills revival here 26 years ago one church in our city took in 92 new converts and the records show that of these 75 stood true. Some till death, some still here and others passed on to other churches through removal from the city. Was it not worth while?

Who will deny that our city has been uplifted to a higher plane of moral thought and action and civic righteousness received an impetus that bids fair to wipe out certain existing evils when the opportunity is presented?

What man in town who daily mingles in our business and civic life has failed to notice a change in the conversation of men, a forsaking of past habits, more honesty in dealing and in matter of religion a concern and respect not heretofore found.

It was a great campaign, and its results for good have not yet reached their full fruitions.

COUNTY PAYS FOR THE CALVERT PROBE

Freeholders O. K. Two Bills for Auditors Amounting to $610.

Objection to paying part of the $610 claim of Wechsler & Mills, auditors, for their probe of the finances of the office of the late County Clerk James C. Calvert, was made Wednesday at a special meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, held in Elizabeth, but the bill was ordered paid by a vote of 16 to 5. Protests were made by several members against satisfying the claim for $270, which was for the original accounting, authorized by Director John N. Cady.

Mr. Cady accepted the audit for the board pending the holding of a board meeting. The investigation covered a two-year period, up to the time of the death of Mr. Calvert. Charles Denman, of Westfield, was the auditor, and it was reported that the bondsmen for Mr. Calvert were employing him. Later the freeholders voted to take over the accounting. The auditing firm was then authorized by the freeholders to probe back as far as 1907, when the fee system was inaugurated, and for this work $340 was demanded yesterday.

COLGATE STANDS BY SIDE OF HUGHES

Running on Some Platform, He Says, and Will Not Withdraw.

Senator Austen Colgate yesterday issued a statement in which he declared he had no intention of withdrawing as a candidate in the primary election for the gubernatorial nomination. The Senator does not intend to get out of his own volition, he says, and he insists that he is not going to let any one crowd him out.

The statement was issued to refute specifically an article published in Paterson Tuesday, which said Colonel Colgate "may withdraw from the race before the close of this week * * * according to statements made in this city (Paterson) last night. The report, it was said, emanated from Colgate men in Newark." In denying the veracity of the Paterson article, Senator Colgate's statement was as follows:

"My attention has been called to an article appearing in the Paterson Morning Call of the 13th inst., in which it is stated that I intend withdrawing my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor at the September primaries.

"There is absolutely no truth in the statement. I have never intimated to any person whatever that my candidacy for the nomination was in any condition except that of increasing strength, this clearly indicated by reports received from supporters in a majority of the counties.

"I want it understood positively and without reserve that I am in the field as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, having announced my candidacy two years ago.

"Again let me say that at no time have I ever considered an act of withdrawal, though repeated attempts have been made by false circulation of stories to crowd me out.

"New Jersey will vote for Hughes and the Republican State ticket by a big majority. I am standing on the same platform of Americanism as Mr. Hughes, and it is a winning platform."

The Two Extremes.

Hezekiah was a cynic; nothing ever went just right;
Things were always wrong at his place every morning, noon and night.
Pessimism was his hobby and he loved to make complaint,
And his peevish mannerisms surely would provoke a saint.
Never missed a chance to worry;
Said he always was afraid
That he would die in the poorhouse, and he saved each cent he made.
Never had a moment's pleasure; life was earnest and was real.
Always lookin' for disaster; always ready fer to squeal.
Always certain that the country was a-goin' straight to smash,
So he spent his entire lifetime hoarding up the sordid cash.

Obadiah was his neighbor. Always happy, never glum;
Always had a funny story, and he loved to make things hum.
Smoked and chawed and had good victuals, never mindful of expense.
When a circus reached the village he'd be sittin' on the fence.
Went to all the funerals reg'lar;
cheered the mourners up a lot;
Let his farm work go to tophet and was Johnny-on-the-Spot.
Life was nothing but a picnic; that's the way it looked to him;
And he got into the spirit of existence with a vim.
Both passed out a long way back and troubles worry neither one.
Hezekiah had the money. Obadiah had the fun.

What Do You Think.

A very able and talented lecturer, in the midst of a discourse last Sunday in a church, asked: "What is the most pathetic thing in domestic life?" This aroused considerable speculation on the part of at least one in the audience who arrived at the conclusion that, so far as the most pathetic thing in domestic life is concerned, it is a close race between the following:

A pair of broken suspenders.
A phonograph.
Wife's first biscuits.
A gas meter that will not work.
A child of an afternoon bridge fiend.
A lead pencil sharpened by your wife.
Daughter's first singing lesson.
A deserted switch hanging on a nail in the clothes press.
Lawn mower returned by neighbor (if any).
A cold pancake.
Uncle Henry's white vest with a streak of catsup on it.
The pay envelope at 12 o'clock midnight, Saturday.

The Old-Fashioned Girls.

They didn't tog out like a jewelry store
And wear them bangles and beads galore,
And every mornin', night and noon
They wasn't lit up like a corner saloon.
They didn't ride 'round in limousines,
Or big seven-passenger gas machines.
And when they wanted to put on style
They'd ride in a livery rig once in awhile.
But still I am somehow bound to say,
They were like the wimmen nowadays one way,
On one little stunt they would never balk;
There wasn't a time when they couldn't talk.
I guess from the days of Adam and Eve,
At least, so we are led to believe,
There never was a woman, old or young,
Who didn't have the full use of her tongue.

- Proctor's Theatre -

All of the school children in this city were given a big treat by the management of Proctor's Theatre this morning at 11 o'clock, when they witnessed the first chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine," the big educational and patriotic film novel, absolutely free. The spacious theatre was crowded to the doors and so many children attended that it was necessary to present this attraction three times. This special performance was given to interest the growing Americans in the educational and patriotic value of this spectacle and many were the praises bestowed upon the management for their foresight and zeal in this respect. This serial appears at Proctor's on Tuesday of each week, the second episode being presented on this coming Tuesday. Today the attractions include Charlie Chaplin in "The Fireman," the latest of his pictures and a sure-fire laugh productor, "Ashes," a three-part drama enacted by a picked cast of Vitagraph favorites, and several other supporting subjects to provide variety. On Monday the headline feature will be "The Conscience of John David," starring Crane Wilbur, the well known film star in a five-part production. In addition Monday, the fifth episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" will be presented, while Tuesday's entertainment will consist of Hobart Bosworth, one of the most talented of dramatic stars in a five-part Red Feather feature entitled, "Doctor Neighbor," an emotional story that will stir the heart to the depths of emotion. Among other attractions Tuesday is the presentation of the second episode of "The Secret of the Submarine." On Wednesday, William Farnum, who has a host of admirers in this vicinity, will appear in a story of the briny deep entitled "The Battle of Hearts," and the sixteenth episode of "The Iron Claw," will also be shown. This episode is the most interesting of the lot for in it patrons are acquainted with the fact, to their intense surprise, that Davy is not the "Laughing Mask" after all.

.· Plainfield Theatre.·.

A smashing, daring subject done in a smashing, daring way, best describes "Where Are My Children," the new motion picture with Tyrone Power in the leading part. The new picture preaches against race suicide, and, instead of it being a low life affair, the Universal Company has pictured a wonderfully dramatic story amid surroundings of luxury and wealth.

Richard Walton, a district attorney, is after doctors who help race suicide. He is well to do and his wife moves in the highest social circles. It develops that many of the women in her set who don't want to be bothered by motherhood are from time to time patients of a certain dactor.

Mrs. Walton's young brother visits them at the same time, the beautiful young daughter of their housekeeper comes to the Walton home. It is the old story with the young folks and she is taken to the doctor. The operation is not a success and she dies. District Attorney Walton, who loves children, and has never been able to understand why his wife was never blessed with any, takes up the case on the confession of the dying girl. He throws his brother-in-law out of his home and prosecutes the doctor for his crimes.

The doctor is sentenced to fifteen years and in a terrific moment in court he throws down his book of professional accounts for the district attorney to peruse. Walton finds his own wife's name as a patient and then, heart broken, he understands and from the other names in the books he sees at last why there are no children in the families his wife knows. Many leading clericus, including Rev. Charles H. Pankhurst, have strongly endorsed the picture. John Brisben Walker, in commenting on the production, said: "here is a motion picture which should be carried to every city and town of the world and thrown on the screen over and over again, until every daughter and every son has had its full significance impressed upon them." The Plainfield Theatre will produce the picture on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 19, 20, 21, matinee and evening.

BLUE LAWS FOR VIRGINIA.

Richmond, Va., June 17.—Richmond appears to be in for a Puritanical Sabbath tomorrow, unless the ministers, police and other interested elemnts can reach mutually satisfactory agreement for a liberal interpretation of the new ouster law which is to come into effect n that day. The new law requires that all laws regarding Sunday observance now on the statute books must be enforced. Under its drastic provisions all confectioneries, soda water fountains and other places which have long been regarded as public conveniences will be required to remain closed over Sunday.

SCIENTIST BEGINS 85TH YEAR.

London, June 17.—Sir William Crookes, the eminent scientist, received congratulations from a large circle of friends today on the beginning of his 85th year. He was born in 1832, before Queen Victoria came to the throne. He is still possessed of full mental and physical vigor and pays daily visits to the office of the Chemical News, of which publication he has been the editor for many years. Sir William and Lady Crookes recently celebrated their diamond wedding. For forty-five years they have resided in the same house in Kensington Gardens.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

VACATION PRIVILEGES AT THE LIBRARY.

The vacation spirit is beginning to grapple with one and all and, before many weeks, there will be a general exodus from our city.

To meet the demand for vacation reading the Library allows an unlimited number of books to be taken away during the summer. The time limit is decided upon for each book, according to its popularity, as no books are allowed over the regular time that are still in demand in the Library. Books of fiction, other than seven days' books, may also be taken for an extended time, provided they are not in demand.

Travel Bulletin No. 1.

Under "Public Library Notes" there will appear during the following three or four weeks, lists of books on those corners of our land most frequented by summer tourists. At this time when the love of country is uppermost in all hearts it is quite pertinent to know one's country better.

Our Country in General.

Baedeker, Karl. United States: a handbook for tourists.

Cook, Joel. America, picturesque and descriptive. 3 v.

"The object of this work is to give the busy reader in acceptable form such comprehensive knowledge as he would like to have, of the geography, history, picturesque attractions, peculiarities, productions and most salient features of our greatest country."

Embury, A. Early American churches.

"Of the original church buildings in the American colonies there is none now standing, and but a few of even the second or third generations of structures are today remaining. It has seemed to the writer that while there was yet time, it was worth while to gather together photographs and brief histories of those that still survive."

Singleton, Esther. Historic landmarks of America as seen and described by famous writers.

Skinner, C. M. Myths and legends of our own land. 2 v.

"It is unthinkingly said and often, that America is not old enough to have developed a legendary era, for such an era grows backward as a nation grows forward. But, whatever the episodes of our four historic centuries may furnish to the poet, painter, dramatist, or legend-builder idealist of the future, it is certain that we are not devoid of myth and folk-lore. It is where myth and history combine that legend is most interesting and appeals to our fancy or our sympathy most strongly; and it is not too early for us to begin the collection of those quaint happenings and those spoken reports that gain in picturesqueness with each transmission."

New England.

Abbott, K. M. Old paths and legends of New England.

"The author is anxious to relate, not what actually occurred, but what the country-folk have believed as occurring; and in pursuing this end she pours out a lavish store of things amusing, pathetic, often in a high degree romantic, the selection showing a good appreciation of what takes hold of the heart of the world."

Bacon, E. M. Literary pilgrimages in New England.

"The homes of famous makers of American literature and among their haunts and the scenes of their writings."

Clarke, H. A. Hawthorne's country.

Clarke, H. A. Longfellow's country.

Drake, S. A. Nooks and corners of the New England coast.

"Beginning at Mount Desert, the author gives pleasant description and interesting history of well-known points along the whole New England coast, York, the Isles of Shoals, Salem, etc."

Johnson, Clifton. New England and its neighbors.

"A combination of bits of travel, history, talk with country people and personal experience."

Powell, L. P., ed. Historic towns of New England.

Partial contents:

Portland, Salem, Boston, Cambridge, Concord, Cape Cod towns, etc.

Prime, W. C. Along New England roads.

"Contains a chapter on epitaphs and names."

REV. PERCIVAL H. BARKER TO LEAVE NEWARK CHURCH

Rev. Percival H. Barker, supply pastor of Christ Reformed church, Newark, who, during his pastorate has not been recognized by the Classis of Newark, is to quit the church on July 31. His resignation, effective on that date, has been presented to the church. When questioned as to his future plans, Mr. Barker said that he would seek a pastorate in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Barker went to Christ Reformed church under a storm of criticism, which began with his trial and suspension from the ministry by the Neosho (Kansas) Presbytery. The Classis of Newark has never been willing to receive Mr. Barker, and, because the church insisted on his staying with it, the classis withdrew its fellowship.

REFORMED GENERAL SYNOD IN HOPE COLLEGE OBSERVANCE

Holland, Mich., June 17.—Having elected Rev. Dr. Peter Moerdyke of this city, president, and Rev. Dr. F. H. McKenzie, of Flushing, N. Y., vice-president, delegates to the 110th annual meeting of the Reformed General Synod assembled yesterday for the exercises incident to the semi-centennial celebration of Hope College. No business will be transacted by the church judicatory until today.

In addition to choosing the chief executives, Synod elected Rev. W. V. D. Strong, of Oakland, N. J., and Rev. W. G. Hoekje, of this city, assistant clerks and listened to the synodical sermon by Rev. Dr. Isaac W. Gowen, of New Durham, N. J., the retiring president.

Dr. Gowen preached on "God's Last Message to the World," from Hebrews I, 2, "God hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son." The sermon was an orthodox presentation of the Bible statement concerning the revelation of God to man. It was exceptional in that it contained no references to the world cataclysm. "God has spoken to man," the peracher declared, "through creation and conscience and He speaks of salvation and immorality."

JUNE 17 IN HISTORY.

1673—Father Maruette and Joliet, French explorers, enter the headwaters of the Mississippi, proceeding to three days journey of the Gulf of Mexico.

1745—Louisbourg, French stronghold in the New World, captured by the British and New Englanders under Sir William Shirley, governor of New England.

1788—Convention at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to consider the Federal constitution.

1869—Harbor at Wilhelmshaven, present headquarters of the German navy, opened by the King of Prussia.

1892—Ulster convention at Belfast, Ireland, in opposition to Home Rule; 12,000 delegates present.

THE WAR A YEAR AGO—JUNE 17.

French progress north of Arras and capture cemetery at Souchez after a long contest for the position.

Russians abandon positions in Galacia and retreat toward Tarnogrod, Russian Poland.

Germans occupy several villages in Shavly district and in region east of Maripool.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 5, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to further amend an ordinance entitled an ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force, approved February 28, 1882, as amended, approved December 5, 1912," approved June 7, 1915.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 1 of the ordinance, the title whereof is recited in the title of this ordinance, be and is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 1. That section 3 of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to create and define the duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force," approved February 28, 1882, as heretofore amended, be and is hereby further amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular policemen and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary, and by resolution order to be appointed. The regular policemen shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen. Special Policemen shall not be ranked.

The duties of the several members and officers of the said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the City and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into six (6) classes, viz.:

Class A—Sixth year of service and over.
Class B—Fifth year of service.
Class C—Fourth year of service.
Class D—Third year of service.
Class E—Second year of service.
Class F—First year of service.

Provided that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time specified above or not, and upon like recommendation may require a Patrolman in any class except Class A to serve for a longer period than above specified on account of unsatisfactory service during the preceding year.

The salaries of the members of the force who are regular policemen are hereby fixed at the following rates, from and after July 1, 1916, that is to say:

Chief	$2,600	per annum
Captain	1,500	" "
Lieutenant	1,400	" "
Sergeants	1,300	" "
Patrolmen—
Class A	1,200	" "
Class B	1,150	" "
Class C	1,100	" "
Class D	1,050	" "
Class E	950	" "
Class F	900	" "

Personal equipment such as revolvers, ammunition, batons, shields, badges, etc., shall be supplied to each of such officers and policemen free of cost. Each of them, however, shall provide at his own expense all uniforms and other wearing apparel necessary for his use, as from time to time required by the Board of Police in compliance with the rules of the department, except that said uniforms and other wearing apparel for Patrolmen who have not reached Class C may be paid for by the City which shall be reimbursed for the cost of any such purchase by deducting from such patrolman's pay ten per cent. of the purchase price each month until the full amount thereof has been paid back to the city; and all such uniforms and wearing apparel for which the City has advanced the purchase price shall be regarded as the property of the City until the City has been fully reimbursed therefor as above specified.

No special policeman shall be entitled to any pay except for service rendered by virtue of an order of the Board of Police or Mayor specifying such service, and for such service shall be paid only such amount as may be fixed by resolution of the Common Council, or of the Board of Police and approved by the Common Council.

The times from which the several dates of service in the police department of the city are to be calculated are the dates at which the continuous service of said regular policemen, respectively, commenced. Said Lieutenant, Sergeants and Patrolmen shall be paid at said rates for the number of full days only of service actually performed by them respectively, and for such vacation periods as from time to time the Board of Police may determine; except that they severally may, at the discretion of the Board of Police, be paid for any time not exceeding two weeks during which they severally shall be incapacitated from the performance of duty by reason of sickness or other physical disability; but if absent for any reason for more than two weeks, they shall be paid only if and as authorized by the Common Council.

BUNKER HILL DAY IN BOSTON.

Boston, Mass, June 17.—Practically all the business activites of greater Boston were suspende today in observance of the 141st anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill. The patriotic celebration centered, as usual, in Charlestown, the scene of the famous fight. A preparedness tinge was given the military parade and in consequence the demonstration was the largest seen in many years on a similar occasion. The marchers include soldiers from the forts around Boston, sailors from the battleships now in the harbor, marines from the Charlestown navy yard, several regiments of the State militia and numerous semi-military organizations.

OUR CITIZEN'S DEMAND

Fully Complied With—A Plainfield Resident Furnished It.

There are few items which appear in this paper more important to Plainfield people than the statement published below. In the first place, it is from a citizen of Plainfield and can be thoroughly relied upon. In the second place, it indisputably proves that Doan's Kidney Pills do their work thoroughly and not temporarily. Read this carefully:

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 640 W. Front street, Plainfield, says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other medicines, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They made a lasting cure."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the fifth day of June, 1916, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

CENTENNIAL OF FT. ARMSTRONG.

Rock Island, Ill, June 17.—A week of interesting exercises and elaborate historical pageants is to begin tomorrow in honor of the 100th anniversary of the establishment of Fort Armstrong upon Arsenal Island, midway between the cities of Moline, Rock Island and Davenport. Pageants typifying the early history of this section are planned for each day, while at night there will land and water parades and electrical and fireworks displays. The old blockhouse erected in 1805 has been rebuilt and the battles of Credit Island and of Campbell's Island will be reproduced in detail.

MANY DOVER GIRLS ARE OUT OF WORK

Strike of Knitters Closes Mills and All Employes Suffer.

Dover, June 17.—The situation at the Paul Guenther Inc., silk hosiery mills, where 165 knitters went out Tuesday morning in a sympathetic strike with the workers of Guenther's mill at Passaic, remains unchanged with the exception that most of the girl employes were forced into idleness again because of lack of work. There are 720 persons employed in the mill.

So far as can be learned no attempt has been made by Mr. Guenther or the members of the union to effect a settlement. Mr. Guenther insists that the trouble at Passaic has been settled satisfactorily to him and that the mills are in operation and the local union had no occasion to declare a strike.

FINED $1,000 FOR SELLING TO GIRLS

New Brunswick Saloonist Condemned by Biederwolf, Gets Limit.

New Brunswick, June 17.—Pleading non vult to a charge of selling liquor to three school girls between fourteen and seventeen years old, Frank Newman, proprietor of a saloon in Peace street, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Peter F. Daly to serve a week in the Middlesex county jail and to pay a fine of $1,000. It was stipulated that until the fine is paid Newman must stay in jail. His liquor license was revoked.

The girls were found in the street in an intoxicated condition May 21. They are in the House of the Good Shepherd, Newark. This is the case that attracted the attention of the Rev. William E. Biederwolf, who made it the subject of warm comment during one of his sermons in the Plainfield campaign.

SIR KNIGHTS TEMPLAR MEET IN LOS ANGELES

Many Gather at the Opening of the Triennial Conclave in the West.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 17.—Knights Templar from far-away Maine and Massachusetts, from Florida and Montana and Oregon and from all the commonwealths between, poured into Los Angeles today in anticipation of the opening of the triennial conclave of their order. On arrival at the station the delegations were met by some one of the local or suburban lodges and escorted to their various headquarters. Many of the visiting bodies have brought their own bands or drum corps with them, and the scenes at the stations are those of gayety and pleasing confusion.

For more than a year the local committee of reception and entertainment, composed of the most prominent and active Templars in this jurisdiction, has been preparing for the advent of the mighty hosts that will sojourn in this city and suburbs for the next six days, and even thus early the tens of thousands of strangers are willing to admit that its work has been well done.

More than ordinary interest attaches to the present conclave, since it is to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the order in the United States. DeWitt Clinton, prominent in the nation's early history, was the first eminent commander in the United States, taking the office in New York in 1816.

The conclave program is to be ushered in tonight with a grand electrical illumination and the entrancing magnificent electrical pageant, "The Flight of the Hours," comprising nearly a score of handsome floats and 200 of Los Angeles' most beautiful women and glowing with 360,000 electric lights.

Monday will see the formal opening of the conclave, the exchange of greetings, and the beginning of the business sessions. Tuesday will be the day of the grand parade—the most impressive military spectacle, it is expected, that has ever been seen on the Pacific Coast. The parade is to be followed by daylight fireworks at the ampitheater and in the afternoon the visitors are to enjoy a Wild West show and athletic carnival.

Tuesday evening the members of the grand encampment and the members of the executive and banquet committees will sit at a banquet in the Scottish Rite Cathedral. The menu and appointments are to be typical of California.

Next to the grand parade the spectacular feature of the week will be the competitive drills, which will be held in the huge ampitheater in West Twelfth street, where grand stands have been erected to accommodate 20,000 spectators. Trophies valued at $12,500 will be awarded at the drills. The awards are six in number and each is a triumph of the silversmith's or bronze workers' art.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Little Tuk Took Care of The Baby.

It Was a Wooden Bird.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

JACK and Evelyn clapped for a story, and daddy told them about little Tuk. "As a matter of fact, his name was not Tuk at all, but Carl. When he was a baby he nicknamed himself Tuk, you see. Little Tuk was a very busy lad, because after school he had lessons to get, and he always had to take care of his baby sister so that his mother could work.

"Poor little Tuk would sit with his book on one knee and the baby on the other. He would sing songs to keep the baby quiet one minute and the next glance into his geography and learn all the towns in New Zealand and all there was interesting about them.

"Finally his mother would come home from work and take care of the baby herself. Then Tuk would run to the window and study as hard as he could, for night was falling and his mother could not afford to buy candles for him.

"'There comes the old washerwoman from the lane,' his mother would say. 'She can hardly carry herself, but she has a pailful of water from the pump. Run down like a dear boy, little Tuk, and help the old woman.'

"So Tuk would run to help the washerwoman, and when he got home it would be quite dark again and too late to study without a candle. He had to go to bed, you see. He had an old trundle bed, and he would lie in it and think about his geography lesson in New Zealand and all the interesting things his teacher had told him. He used to put his geography under his pillow, which helps some getting lessons when you haven't a candle.

"He would lie there thinking, and all at once it would seem to him that some one had kissed him on the eyes. He was not quite fast asleep and could not feel sure. But it seemed to him that the old washerwoman had kissed him and said: 'It would be a great shame if you did not know your geography lesson, little Tuk. You helped me, and now I will help you.'

"Then all at once the book under his pillow would go 'cribble, crabble!'

"'Cluck, cluck!' and there stood a hen from a town in New Zealand, and she told little Tuk all about the town—how many people lived there, what the townspeople did and about a not very important battle that once happened there.

"'Cribble, crabble, bang!' and something plumped down beside little Tuk's trundle bed. It was a wooden bird, the popinjay from Praesto. It told Tuk that there were as many people in Praesto as there were nails in its body. The popinjay was very proud of this. 'Thorvaldsen, the great sculptor, used to live close by when he was a little boy. The place is delightful,' said the popinjay."

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Nell and Olive Discuss the Situation in the Gordon Household.

"Well, I do not wonder at Ethel Gordon since I met her mother," said Olive Ellson. "Of all the trifling, shallow women I ever knew, she is the worst."

"Why, Olive, I never knew you to speak like that of any one." Nell Morton paused with her hand on the egg beater and looked in wonder at her friend.

"Perhaps because fortunately she is the only specimen of her kind with whom I ever came in close contact. Mrs. Gordon is just what you would expect such a mother to produce. A woman who, instead of helping her husband, and making his life more effective, winds him about with the web of her selfish requirements until he is thwarted in all manly efforts. The nobleness in him dies out and he spends the toil of muscle and brain for things that have no part in a real man's consciousness. All the noble aspirations die out, killed by the tormenting insect that robs all life of quiet."

"Why, Olive!" expostulated Nell, beginning to turn the egg beater in a dazed manner.

"Can't you see it?" contiuued Olive. "I have watched that young man and seen the gradual change in him since his marriage. He was so full of energy, so bright, and now the light in the eyes is replaced by a troubled look; the energy is all oozing out; a dispirited hopelessness has replaced the dynamic personality."

"Oh, come, my dear, if a man is anything of a man he will not go under because he has married a flutter-budget of a wife. Here, sit by this window and cool off a bit. This hot kitchen has warmed you up too much," laughed Nell, pushing a chair to the open window.

"If a man is strong enough he will come out all right in the end," continued Olive, taking the proffered chair, "but it takes a strong man to adjust himself to such conditions. Why think of it. A man uses up his nervous vitality all day. He should come home to let down, stretch his soul and so gather new force. If instead of resting he encounters new irritations; if home is only an added strain and more force is dissipated by friction, something has got to give way. If women would only see that, they could be a wonderful help to their husbands by keeping home conditions restful. Many a man who is a failure now might be a success."

"Now don't blame the poor women for everything. I don't mean such women as Ethel Gordon, who is a parasite drawing her life right out of her husband's strength and contributing nothing. But many women try very hard, work all day and have few pleasures. They do not create a cheerful, helpful atmosphere, but they have as much, perhaps more, to tax them than their lords. Why should they have all the responsibility of making home pleasant? It is as much up to the husbands to make their lives pleasant, I should think." Nell beat the cake she was making vigorously.

"Oh, of course, but it doesn't rest a woman to air all her troubles the minute a man comes in the door. It only makes them loom larger. If she would try to be bright and cheerful ten to one her husband would meet her half-way and both would be rested in the pleasant home atmosphere."

"So you really think it is women who set the pace if they do not make the world go round, do you?" laughed Nell, filling her cake pans. "Perhaps if they could realize that the contentment of the world hung on their words and actions they would do better."

"I wonder," mused Olive.

1916 COLLEGE TRACK AND FIELD TITLES

The season of intercollegiate track and field athletics just closed was marked by many brilliant performances. The sectional and intersectional meets brought together the cream of the college athletes of the entire country, with the result that several new world's records were established and a number of new high marks written on the records of the various intercollegiate conferences.

Beginning with Pennsylvania's great relay carnival on Franklin Field on April 28, the collegians held the center of the athletic stage until the climax was reached in the Western Conference meet at Chicago June 3. The Western meet, together with the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. competitions in the Harvard Stadium on May 27, produced a 1916 crop of intercollegiate champions, as follows:

Intercollegiate A. A. A.	Western Conference
100-yd. dash—Smith, Michigan, 10s;	Smith, Wisconsin, 10s
220-yd. dash—Moore, Princeton, 21 3-5s;	Smith, Wisconsin, 21 3-5s
440-yd run—Meredith, Penn., 47 2-5s;	Dismond, Chicago, 47 2-5s
Mile run—Windnagle, Cornell, 4 15s;	Mason, Illinois, 4m 20 1-5s
Mile run—Windnagle, Cornell, 42 15s;	Mason, Illinois, 4m 20 1-5s
2-mile run—Potter, Cornell, 9m 32 2-5s;	Stout, Chicago, 9m 29 3-5s
120-yd. hurdles—Murray, Stanford, 15s;	Simpson, Missouri, 14 3-5s
Hammer throw, Gildersleeve, Cal., 155f 1in;	Gildersleeve (disqualified)
220-yd. hurdles—Murray, Stanford, 24 1-5s;	Simpson, Missouri, 23 4-5s
Shoutput—Leversedge, Cali., 46ft 2 1-2in;	Mucks, Wisconsin, 46ft 6in
High jump—Oler, Yale, 6ft 2 1-4 in;	Fisher, Chicago, 6ft 1 1-2in
Broad jump—Worthington, Dart., 24ft 1 1-4in;	Pogue, Ill., 23ft 1-2in
Discus—Not contested;	Mucks, Wisconsin, 155ft 2in

TWO LOCAL DAREDEVILS IN BIG AUTO RACE.

When the starter's gun is fired at Olympic Park, Newark, tonight for the moonlight auto races one Plainfield car will lineup at the tape. This will probably be piloted by Joe Jackson, with Tom Frazier riding as mechanician, although the two may change positions either before or during the events. Both are skilled drivers and when competing on the same track last spring against the cream of the country's talent they established enviable reputation as daredevils. The car which will represent Plainfield is a special model of their own design and was finished last night. The novel feature in Newark tonight has attracted widespread interest and a big delegation of automobile race lovers will probably be on deck to witness the thrilling night program.

PLAINFIELD MAY HAVE A WINNER FOR THE SUMMER MONTHS.

Ralph Runyon, recognized as one of the best pole vaulters in the country today, returned to his Plainfield home yesterday from Penn State College, where he has been pursuing a course of study during the past year. Although he has not taken part in active competition for several months he is in the best of physical condition and will probably start as a competitor in the metropolitan junior title events at New Brunswick, representing Plainfield. Since entering college he has had the advantage of a collegiate coaching system and has polished off the rough edges in his style of vaulting and jumping.

WALTER JOHNSON GETTING HIS BUMPS

Walter Johnson is being picked off regularly these days. Seems as if the mainstay of the Washington team is in just as bad a slump as the balance of the club. Johnson has lost some tough games lately, holding the opposition to a small number of hits, but the fellows back of him would fail to get any runs. Johnson has been one of the most consistent batters on the entire Washington team. He has been used as pinch bitter and came through successfully and his slugging has helped his club this year to get the big start for a good berth. The Senators seem to hobble at a very critical time back of Johnson, too, as it has been very noticeable that with none on bases the Washington outfit will hold a defense like a stonewall, but once the sacks are populated and Johnson pitching some woozy thing is pulled and the game chucked away. Johnson will probably have one of the worst years on the records that he has experienced for some time.

REASON THE CUBS SHOW BAD.

"If anybody wants my unbiased diagnosis of what's the matter with the Cubs I would say that they have been suffering from a superfluity of bosses," writes I. E. Sanborn. "In my experience I have discovered that nobody thinks he knows more about how to run a baseball team than the millionaire member of a board of directors, when as a matter of fact nobody knows less about running a team than the average director, of whom there are several in the Chicago National League club, who have been so successful in other lines of endeavor they imagine they can make a mint out of baseball if their ideas are incorporated into the conduct of the team. Proof of the correctness of my diagnosis can be found in the fact that the farther the Cubs get away from their board of directors the better they play ball, and just now they are in a fair way to climb into the first division if Joe Tinker is given sole command of the ship."

DOOIN HURT IN PRACTICE.

The fallacy of trying to outwit insipient moisture was never better illustrated yesterday than when the Giants and Cardinals hung around the Polo Grounds until 4 o'clock in the afternoon trying to play a scheduled baseball game. Two serious incidents came up during the wait that deprived each team of a valued member. "Red" Dooin, while trying to catch a wet, slippery ball, was hit over the heart and carried to the club house, where medical attention was necesary. Dooin, it was said, is not seriously hurt, but probably will not be able to get into the game for several days.

SCHOLASTIC SCHEDULE ENDS.

This afternoon's baseball game on Hyde Oval between North Plainfield High School and the Alumni of that institution winds up the scholastic diamond season in these parts. Plainfield High has concluded its schedule and both schools have elected leaders for the coming year. Martin McDonough will captain North Plainfield and Arthur Kyle is slated to lead Plainfield.

ATHLETES BACK HOME.

Ralph Runyon and Craig Blair, two former Plainfield High School athletes now pursuing courses in Penn State College, returned to Plainfield yesterday for the summer vacation period. Blair is a sprinter and Runyon is a jumper and pole vaulter of note. Both have been practicing with the college team, but neither got into intercollegiate meets this year

CHAMPION AT P. C. C.

Max Marston and his fellow clubmen from the Cranford Golf Club are scheduled to play a return match with the Plainfield Country Club representatives on the local links this afternoon. The teams are evenly matched and it is expected that a large "gallery" of golf enthusiasts will follow the performers around greater Boston were suspended today

PREPARING FOR OPENING.

George W. Wriston, supervisor of Parker Field, is preparing his summer plans for work among the juvenile element at this popular rendezvous. A junior baseball league will again be formed and it is likely that several athletic meets will be conducted during the summer months between the young athletes.

MACK SIGNS YOUTH.

Boston, June 17.—Harold Crisp, a seventeen-year-old pitcher of the Needham High School team, signed a contract to play with "Connie" Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. The boy has been striking out opposing batters in large numbers, and is said to have disposed of seventy-five in this way in four successive games.

THE PENNANT WILL BE GREEN.

Joe Grimes announced this morning that the Shamrocks have entered the Parker Field League. Good-bye, pennant!

DOUBLE HEADER AT AVON OVAL TOMORROW

Newark Nationals vs. T. A. B. S. and Y. M. H. A. vs. Somerville.

Provided Jupiter Pluvius does not object, the Nationals of Newark will do battle with the Tabs on Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon. In addition to this argument there will be a skirmish between the Y. M. H. A. forces of Somerville and this city. This "prelim" attraction will mark the opening of the local Y. M. H. A. season and should prove exciting.

Among those who have signed up with the Y. M. H. A. outfit are: Benny Rosenson, the former High School captain and present City League star; Hymie Rosenson, one of the few "has beens" who still "have them;" Art Kyle, the Abstainer and captain of next year's Red and Blue team; Victorsen, the former P. H. S. third sacker; Sam Semer, another Ninth Street star; Sammie Davidson, the flinger; Aaron Hirsch, premier first sacker, and Eddie Jonap, who once performed in the New England League. The Somerville boys will present a very formidable lineup and will have Faulks, a Somerville High baseball and football star, on the hillock. Faulks pitched for the Somerville Seconds a year or so ago when that team did battle with the P. H. S. Seconds. He pitched good ball at that time, and has improved greatly since, although he has been doing mostly infield duty with the regular team.

In the "big game" the Tabs will have their hands full as the Nationals are considered first rate artists. In this game either Tone Denny or Mickey McFadden will do the twirling. In the event of no City League games today, Jack Denny may get a shot at the visitors. All that Jack asks for is a warm day, if it is warm, good-bye, Nationals.

That family affair between the East and West End contingents of the Tabs will be continued at a later date. Enthusiasm has not died down but the war has made it impossible for local druggists to secure a large enough supply of Omega Oil.

THROCKMORTON KEEPS UP HIS WINNING STREAK

The scene of the New Jersey State tennis championship tourney was shifted yesterday to the Bronxville Athletic Association's courts in Bronxville. As practically all the players in the Jersey titular event were participating in the metropolitan tournament it was thought practicable to finish the tourney on New York State territory. Harold A. Throckmorton and Cedric Major won the doubles title, defeating George Carleton Shafer and Wylie C. Grant, 7—5, 6—4, 4—6 and 7—5.

Only one match was played in the singles, that being won by Throckmorton. The interscholastic champion defeated Shafer in the semi-final round, 7—5 and 6—4. The final match will be played in the near future, when Major will meet Throckmorton.

PITCHER NEWELL WILL ENTER PLAINFIELD HIGH

While graduation will deprive Plainfield High School of many of its best diamond lights, there is some consolation in the fact that one of the grammar schools will provide the Red and Blue institution with that which it needs most—a pitcher. When graduation exercises are held at St. Mary's on June 25, Joseph Newell will receive his sheepskin. Joe intends to enter high school and has stated that he will try out for a pitching berth on the team. Coach Ralph S. Patch will greet the newcomer with open arms as the Red and Blue outfit is sadly in need of mound material.

Newell has had an envious record as a twirler. During the whole of last year he hurled in the Parker Field League and was the sensation of the circuit. This year he has been performing with Cyril Poling's Pans, with which team he has been unusually successful. He has pitched five of the six games played and has won them all, having an average of twelve strikeouts to the game. The sixth game was left to the care of Jim McCarthy and Jim proved to be a "find." Newell has fanned many City League clouters and fanned them at a time when a hit meant a run. While he is not a brawny lad, Joe is a regular "Cy Falkenberg" when it comes to statue.

ED. WANTS SOME GAMES.

The fast Shamrocks had little trouble in defeating the All Stars yesterday, the score being 11 to 8. The encounter was fast throughout its entirety and was marked by heavy hitting and fast fielding.

Ed. Connors, manager of the Shamrocks, is desirous of booking games for his charges. Ed. can be reached at his home, 418 John street, most any time.

MISS WILDEY HAS TO BEAT ONE MORE

Plainfield Racquet Star Making Strong Bid for Tennis Title.

Mrs. H. Stuart Green came through to the final round of the singles event of the women's invitation tennis tournament at Ardsley yesterday by gaining a victory over Miss Ina Kissel in straight sets, the score being 7-5, 6-3. It was a match which the elements did their best to put an end to before the final decision was reached. At the close of the first set an intermission was necessary to allow a passing shower vent its spite, and when the score was 4-2 in the second set another shower intervened. Play had hardly been resumed before a third postponement was necessary. This was when Mrs. Green was leading at 5-3 on games. After the resumption of play she quickly ran out a victory.

The work of Miss Kissel was not of the same high order as that of Mrs. Green. The latter had a fine command of strokes, and her deep well placed drives gave her a big advantage over her rival. Miss Kissel carried the first set to a close decision, but she could not hold to the high standard in the second set, and Mrs. Green ran it out with only trifling opposition.

The other semi-final round match was played this morning between Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Mrs. Robert Le Roy, and the final of the singles will be played this afternoon. Mrs. Rawson Wood won the consolation singles event yesterday by defeating Mrs. C. C. Townsend, 6-2, 6-1.

TOMMY MULLIN FORESAW ATLANTA LEAGUE COLLAPSE

When it was announced yesterday that the Atlantic League circuit would be shortened to include only four teams instead of the original six, the foresight of one Thomas Mullin, of this city, came in for some commendation. Not so long ago Tommy told a reporter for the Press that he had been offered a steady job with the Easton club of the Atlantic circuit, but had turned the offer down inasmuch as he feared that the league would not survive threatening storms. Had Tommy accepted the offer, he would have had to desert Billy Pfau and his Amboy and Washingtonn affiliations. That was something Tommy was loath to do so he made arrangements to play in Easton only on week days and to perform with the Pfau lads at the usual time. Now the North avenue lad has no cause to regret his allegiance to Billy inasmuch as the Atlantic League's chances of existing until July are about as good as the chances of the man who is trying to engineer a revival of the Federal League. Even this "Fed fan" has Rupe Mills, around whom he can build up a league, should he care to.

GAMES ARE WANTED.

The Plainfield A. A., which is not the team managed by Dipper Jones, is looking for games. The managers—yes, managers—of the club are looking for games and have requested that the leaders of capable combines here and elsewhere get busy. Both Samuel Semer and Sam Davidson are handling communications of this nature and both lament the fact that business is slow. Semer can be reached at 991 West Third street, while Davidson answers to the roll call at 657 West Third street.

SOMEBODY'S LINEUP.

Here is somebody's lineup. It looks formidable, enough, too!

C. Carson, c; E. Conners, 1b; J. Guinee, 2b; C. Dunn, 3b; S. Rosenthal, lf; G. Butscher, cf; W. Morcom, rf; McNally, ss; J. O'Keefe, p.

CITY LEAGUE MENU.

Weather permitting the following City League attractions will be staged this afternoon:

T. A. B. S. vs. Baptists.
Hope Chapel vs Netherwood.
Farmers vs. Dunellen.

Press Amateur Team Directory

For the convenience of baseball managers and fans, the Daily Press will publish a directory of teams and their managers. This feature will appear daily and will be enlarged upon and made more complete with each succeeding issue.

Directory.

Plainfield A. C. (travels). Manager, Vincent Mullin, North avenue.

National A. C. (age 10 to 14 years). Manager, William Coogan, 428 West Third street.

Royal A. C. (colored traveling club). Manager, William Kline, Babcock building.

Plainfield Colored Giants. Manager, H. G. Hobson, Plainfield avenue.

T. A. B. S. (Sunday team, home games only). Manager, James Scott, T. A. B. clubhouse, West Fourth street.

Inner Triangles. Manager, Bob Cartwright, Jackson avenue.

Farmer A. C. (Sunday team). Manager, Amos Stites, West Front street.

South Plainfield B. B. C. (Sunday team). Manager, Bob Hamilton, South Plainfield, N. J.

Spicer B. B. C. (shop team). Address, Spicer Manufacturing Co., South Plainfield, N. J

Peerless A. C. (junior team). Manager, Charlie McCarthy, Manson place.

Shamrock A. C. (junior team). Manager, Edward Connors, John street.

Lenox A. C. (uniformed junior club). Manager, Anthony Deady, West Fifth street (Parker Field League).

Central A. C. (junior team). Address, Louis Feiring, 306 Central avenue.

Quaker Juniors (Parker Field League). Address, Norman Lynch, East Second street.

Laramie A. C. (Parker Field League). Address, Maurice A. Roddy, Arlington avenue.

Happy Nine. Address, J. Fitzgerald, Clinton place.

Plainfield Athletic Nine. Manager, Cyril Poling, West Sixth street.

All-Stars (junior team). Address, I. Davidson, West Third street.

Plainfield A. A. (travels). Manager, Sam Semer, 902 West Third street.

Will the managers of the following clubs make themselves known to this office and gain due recognition in this directory?

Somerset F. C.; Highlanders; Antler A. A.; Boys' Athletic Club; Laurel A. C.

Watch for this feature daily. It will enable out-of-town managers to write directly to local leaders and will also engender keener rivalry among local clubs.

SPORT NOTES

Al Mamaux, Pittsburgh's young pitcher, stands firmly between the Pirates and the deep, dark waters of the Monongahela.

If not asking too much, will "Kid" Williams and Johnny Ertle kindly step into the ring and settle their squabble over the bantamweight championship.

Branch Rickey made 22 baseball talks before St. Louis social clubs last month. If talking won pennants the Browns would be cemented up there.

From a Boston viewpoint, the singing of "Elijah" by a great chorus was the finest performance that has been staged at Braves field in some time.

Rule I: When discussing the individual uplift work of the Giants, take a slant at the old armored horse out there behind the plate, Bill Rariden.

Willie Hoppe (not the billiard champion) totes the title of California four-round lightweight champion. We may soon learn that Arthur Pelkey is the one-round heavyweight champion.

Willie Kolehmainen, the professional runner, may not be as fast as Hannes Kolehmainen, the amateur runner, but Willie is paid regular money for running, which helps.

Minooka, Pa., has gotten away to a swell start this season, with two of its sons—Steve O'Neill, of the Indians, and Mike McNally, the Red Sox rookie—going great poppers in the big yard.

Alec McLean, manager of Gilbert Gallant, says he intends sending Gallant against Messrs. Welsh, White, Dundee, Griffiths. Not so fast, Alec. Better wait until Gilbert gets by one of that bunch.

Christy Mathewson says the nearest approach to Ty Cobb is "Demon Dave" Robertson. As Benny Kauff also is rated as a second Ty, Burns might be called a third Ty, which would give the Giants a tri-Cobb outfit.

An athletic meet right now that would bring together Ted Meredith and Bonga Dismond in a race and Bob Simpson and Fred Murray in the hurdles event, wouldn't draw more than forty or fifty thousand spectators.

John L. Sullivan, former heavyweight champion, believes he can make a world-beater out of Oran Kirkpatrick, the Harvard boxer. Kirkpatrick has trimmed everything in Harvard's heavyweight circle and looks like big ring business.

It is reported the Australian military authorities want Tom Cowler, the Australian heavyweight, to return home, join the army and go to the front. The idea, wanting to make a fighter out of Tom.

The eighty-four million weight-lifting bugs throughout the country will be interested to know that John Y. Smith, of Boston, intends trying to lift a 200-pound dumbbell to a full arm's length over his head.

Norman Taber, the holder of the world's record for the mile and who is now connected with a Providence bank, denies that he is to re-enter the running game. Although Norman hasn't said so, it is hinted the bank officials discourage running as an accomplishment of their employes.

"MIDGE" KLINE'S GIANTS TO MEET PLAINFIELD A. C.

"Midge" Kline will lead his Royal Giants against Vincent Mullin's Plainfield A. C. on Parker Field this afternoon. Of course, should it rain, the game will not be played until a later date. The battle will be the first one indulged in by the Kline "Kids" and will also suffice as an opener for the Plainfield A. C., although that team is new in name only.

This morning Kline announced that Eddie Ford, now a resident of Princeton, would perform with the Royals. Eddie is very popular with local fans and is a great first sacker and catcher. Others who will be seen in Royal uniforms are Sid Butler, the Red and Blue "prospect," Barnes, Somerset, "Tune" Kline, "Senor" Maiden, Johnson, Paul Coleman and Hall. The Plainfielders will have Ross, a new lad, on the mound, with Harry Stites behind the bat.

The game should be an interesting one as it will give the fans a chance to take a slant at the material Kline has in hand. There is that ever-impending possibility that rain will spoil the occasion. If it rains we must wait.

ARE YOU THE LUCKY ONE?

Somewhere on this page the name of a Plainfielder appears. If it is yours clip out the column in which you find it and bring it to the Plainfield Daily Press office, where you will receive in return a book containing twelve admission tickets to the Plainfield Airdome, valued at $1.20. A name will appear each night on this page; if you don't happen to be the lucky one tonight continue to watch. The tickets are good at any performance and will entitle you to the same privileges enjoyed at this popular amusement center by those who pay.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT SMITH

Three Plainfield Girls Among Those to Be Graduated From College.

ARE AWARDED HONORS

The Misses Louise Bird, Helen L. Ryder and Helen C. Strong Have Been Active During Collegiate Career.

The graduation exercises at Smith College will be held tomorrow in John M. Greene Hall. Governor Charles Seymour Whitman, of New York, will give the address, and Dr. Burton, president of Smith College, will presnt the diplomas. Of particular interest to many will be the wearing of academic costume by the graduates of the college for the first time. The seniors will wear caps and gowns for the Baccalaureate address and the commencement exercises. The bachelor of arts hoods are lined with white, displaying a gold chevron.

The alumnae collation will be served at noon in the Alumnae Gymnasium, and a meeting of the Alumnae Assembly will follow. In 1916's class supper will take place this evening. The toastmistress will be Margaret Stanley Welles, of Hartford, Conn. The whole campus will be aglow with Japanese lanterns, and the Glee Club concert will be held on the steps of the Students' building. The president's reception in the Chapin House will follow. There will be serenading by the alumnae and undergraduate classes on the campus. This afternoon the college orchestra will give its closing concert, and an exhibition of painting, sculpture, interior decorating and crafts by former students and alumnae will be held. There were many other features during the day.

Among the members of the 1916 graduating class there are three from this city: Louise Bird, Helen Louise Ryder and Helen Clark Strong.

Miss Bird, during her freshman year, served on the candy committee for the Junior Prom. garden party. As a sophomore she became a member of the Phi Kappa Psi, an honorary society, the Spectator Club and Oriental Club, and she taught at the People's Institute. Junior year Miss Bird served as assistant news editor of the Weekly, as secretary of Division A, and became a member of the Philosophical society. During her senior year Miss Bird acted as editor-in-chief of the Smith College Weekly, a paper published by the students, until she resigned about the middle of the year. She was general chairman of the Faculty Reception committee and a member of the following clubs: Phi Kappa Psi, Spectator, Philosophical and Manuscript. Miss Bird has accepted a position with the Co-operative Book Store, which is going to open in Northampton next September.

Miss Ryder during her junior year sang in the college choir and was a member of the Debating Union.

Miss Strong during her first two years played on the archery team and, as a sophomore, served as a teacher at the People's Institute. Junior year she became a member of the Debating Union, of the Vox and Oriental clubs. She served as treasurer of the Chapin House and had a chief part in Division A dramatics, one of four entertainments of its kind which the students of the upper classes give each year. Miss Strong also served on the committee on a Commencement Orator, and played on the substitute hockey team. As a senior she was a member of the Glee Club, Vox and Oriental clubs and played on the regular cricket and substitute hockey teams. The commencement exercises this year will take place tomorrow.

DUTCH ARMS BAND WILL PLAY IN NEW YORK CITY

The Dutch Arms Band of Trnility Reformed church has accepted an invitation to play at a military exhibition to be given by members of Grace M. E. church of New York, of which Rev. Dr. Christian Resiner is pastor. The demonstration will be given at One Hundred and Fourth street, New York, on Thursday, June 22. This will be the first time that the local band has played in New York city. Teh band has also made an engagement to play for a preparedness parade at Summit on the morning of July 4.

DUTCH ARMS ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the Dutch Arms' Men's Club of Trinity Reformed church will be held on Monday night, June 26, at which time officers will be elected. It is also hoped to have a prominent speaker on the subject of "Preparedness," announcement of which will be made later.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Miss Avice Harned, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., announces the engagement of her cousin, Miss Virginia M. Metcalfe, of New York, to George M. Clarke, of this city.

—Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

WATCHUNG TROOP IN EXHIBITION

Local Organization Shows Efficiency for Benefit of Muhlenberg.

More than $200 was raised by the military exhibition of Watchung troop at the horse show grounds Saturday afternoon. A crowd of between 400 and 500 people paid admittance to the grounds and enjoyed the maneuvers of the cavalrymen. One half of the money is to be turned over to Muhlenberg Hospital, and the donation will be a handsome addition to the fund raised by the Women's Auxiliary Saturday.

The first number was a mounted troop drill, in which two platoons participated under Capt. Borden. After the troop drill the troopers dismounted, and pitched a shelter camp, following which a rough-riding drill was gone through. Those participating in the rough-riding drill were Sergeants Rolston and Righter, Corporals Vandeventer, Butterfield and Wardlaw, and Troopers Butterfield, Fullerton, Perkins, Rogers, Stevenson, Shoemaker and Vandeventer. A novice race and a rescue race served to show the efficiency of troopers in saddling and riding and furnished excitement for the spectators. The program ended with a sham attack on the quartermaster's wagon by a dismounted squad, which was relieved when the remainder of the troop came to the rescue. Members of the Watchung Troop were highly commended for the creditable showing they made in the exhibition. The exhibition committee was made up of Brown Rolston, Austin W. Andrews, Jacob L. Vandeventer, Walter L. Righter, Daniel Runkle.

MRS. CONNORS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Third Member of the Faimly to Pass Away Within Eight Months.

Mrs. Sarah Connors, widow of Edward Connors and a well known resident of the West End, died at 8:30 Saturday night, at her home, 529 West Fifth street, following a long illness. Her death is the third that has occurred in the family within eight months. Mrs. Connors' son, David, passed away last October, and her husband died in March last, after an illness extending over a period of a year or more.

Mrs. Connors was a native of Ireland, but came to this country when a young woman. Plainfield had been her home for more than forty years and she enjoyed a very wide acquaintance. She was one of the eldest members of St. Mary's church, where years ago she was active in the various parish societies. Her illness began last winter and despite the best medical attention the exact nature of the malady could not be determined. A consultation was to have been held by physicians today, but the sudden turn for the worse came Saturday afternoon and she sank rapidly.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Sarah Sullivan, and three sons, Edward and Frank, living at the Fifth street address, and Joseph, of Brooklyn, the latter a member of the plain clothes staff of New York's police headquarters. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow morning at 8:30 and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER CANCELS ENGAGEMENT HERE

President E. B. Bryan, of Colgate University, who was to have delivered the commencement address for the Plainfield High School on Thursday night, has been obliged to cancel the engagement for personal reasons, and arrangements have been made whereby Professor E. W. Smith, of Colgate, will take his place.

The fact that President Bryan will be unable to come to Plainfield will be a great disappointment to his friends here and others who had anticipated hearing him speak, but Professor Smith is said to be an able speaker and no doubt will make an interesting address.

FINED $10 FOR DRIVING HORSES WHILE DRINKING

HOW PLAINFIELD RESPONDS TO CALL FOR MILITIA

Company K, Second Regiment.

Four Company K leaders from Plainfield, Captain Charles Peterson, Lieutenant James Conklin, Lieutenant A. R. Phillips and Battalion Adjutant A. I. Littell, who left yesterday afternoon for a week's stay in the Officers' Instruction Camp at Sea Girt, were ordered out of bed by General Edward W. Hine at 12:15 this morning and instructed to leave immediately for home. The orders were meager and affected every man in the encampment.

Upon his arrival in Plainfield Captain Peterson found no further instructions awaiting him and until some further notice arrives he will keep his men in readiness for mobilization, General Hine informed the officers that the State Guard would be held in readiness for forty-eight hours at least, it being thought that no further orders of a definite nature will be received prior to that time.

Company K has en enlistment of sixty-five men and is one of the most efficient and best organized companies in the State. According to the statistics given out by the New Jersey National Guard following the last annual inspection in Trenton the Plainfield company was recommended for efficiency, while eleven out of the twelve companies in the Fourth Regiment, one of the three in the First Brigade affected by the preliminary orders, were marked "inefficient." The First, Fourth and Fifth New Jersey Regiments are included in the First Brigade.

The Second Regiment, including Plainfield, and the Third New Jersey Regiment, are brigaded with the Delaware regiment, but up to a late hour this afternoon no orders had been issued affecting this division. Ten out of the twelve companies in the Second Regiment have first class ratings, this section of the National Guard being rated as the best in New Jersey.

Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry.

Captain Albert L. Borden, of Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, N. J. N. G., received orders this afternoon to muster his men at the headquarters, 1120 Putnam avenue, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and proceed to Sea Girt Wednesday morning. The troop will report in full regalia and will in all likelihood remain at the Putnam avenue headquarters from tomorrow morning until departing time Wednesday. The orders were communicated immediately to First Lieut. Daniel Runkle, who with Lieut. J. M. Charles, has been at the headquarters all day. The orders are official and notification has already been sent to the men.

The troop is comprised of sixty men. There are at present several vacancies and it is desired to fill these at once. Any local man of good character is eligible and he may obtain further information by reporting at the head quarters or by 'phoning 2650. Lieutenants Runkle and Charles will meet the remainder of the troop at that place the latter part of this afternoon where definite plans will be made. Anyone having a good horse for sale is also urged to communicate with the men in charge, furnishing the price and complete description of the animals. Several are needed but immediate action is essential.

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, in his official announcement last night, included one squadron of New Jersey cavalry but when seen by a Daily Press reporter this morning Lieutenant Charles refused to give out any information concerning future moves until definite orders had been received regarding the local detachment. These came this afternoon.

The local division, known as Watchung troop, belongs to the First Squadron and since organization has developed surprisingly and is admirably qualified for immediate action.

First Field Hospital Corps.

Major H. B. Corbusier received orders this afternoon to notify members of the First Field Hospital Corps of New Jersey to report at the Elizabeth armory immediately. The corps, consisting of the following Plainfielders among others, Clinton Berrien, Lester Chandler, Irving Manley, William Tomsen, Ralph Seals and Major Corbusier, will remain at the armory until Wednesday morning, when they will proceed to Sea Girt. Nearly every county in the State is represented in this detachment and a number of the members have already reported at Elizabeth.

In an interview with a Daily Press reporter this morning Major Corbusier requested that a general call be issued for recruits. Anyone desiring to join the organization should report at the Elizabeth armory this afternoon, where further details regarding registration will be announced.

Mules and saddle horses are also needed. Prices and detailed descriptions of the animals should be furnished to Major Corbusier at once. The corps was ordered this morning to "prepare for field duty" and pending the arrival of definite orders this afternoon Major Corbusier got into touch with all of his men. This division is made up largely of the younger generation, many being High School students, and those affected in Plainfield secured leave of absence from their studies this morning.

This Field Hospital Corps is the first of its kind ever organized in New Jersey and Major Corbusier has been the active head since it was founded. The men have been drilled thoroughly in first aid and other departments of work assigned to an organization of this nature in the regular army.

ALAN FITZ RANDOLPH WEDS MISS WILLIAMS

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie at Home of Bride's Parents.

Miss Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Williams, was married at their home, 920 Hillside avenue, Saturday evening, to Alan Fitz Randolph, son of Mrs. John J. F. Randolph, of East Seventh street. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie.

Miss Williams wore a white lace gown with an overskirt and train of white faille taffeta, with the veil worn by her sister, Mrs. H. W. Hazard, Jr., at her wedding in January, and carried a shower bouquet of pink orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Williams was unattended. Mr. Randolph had, as best man, James Ormsbee Murray.

A short musical program was rendered by Dr. E. Mettler Davis, organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph will return to Plainfield for a few days before leaving for Akron, Ohio, where Mr. Randolph has a position with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Mr. Randolph graduated from Princeton in 1913, and has recently received the degree of chemical engineer from Columbia.

PERRINE IS RELEASED WHEN TRIED IN COURT

Clark S. Perrine, arrested here last week while trying to give away his money on the street, was given a suspended sentence when arraigned in police court this morning. Perrine is a real estate dealer of Westfield. He was charged with disorderly conduct, drunkenness and resisting an officer. Judge William N. Runyon appeared for him and on his plea for clemency and Perrine's promise for future conduct Judge De Meza suspended sentence. Perrine then received the $8,472.05 that Chief Kiely has been holding for him and went back home.

ENTERTAINS AT LUNCHEON.

The Ladies' Visitation Association of the First Presbyterian church, was entertained at luncheon Friday at the home of Mrs. C. E. Herring. Twenty women in all attended the affair. The home was beautifully decorated for the event with roses, peonies and other cut flowers. During the session announcement was made that 12,080 visits had been made by the association during the past year. The association is a new organization in the church, and much interest is taken in its work.

—In announcing that the receipts of "Rose Tag Day" amounted to upwards of $3,100, the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital desires to express to all contributors to the fund deep appreciation of the very generous response to the appeal made. The Board also wishes to publicly thank the Mayor of the city for his co-operation, and the merchants of the city for their courtesy in donating window space for the posters.—Adv. ***

TOTAL OF $3,127 FOR HOSPITAL FUND

"Rose Tag Day" Was Splendid Success in Plainfield.

A total of $3,127 was raised by the Women's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday for the hospital fund. This amount is almost twice that raised last year when public subscriptions were solicited, and those in charge of the event are highly pleased. Mrs. Frank D. Warren was in charge of the workers and 145 young women volunteered their services for the day. They sold roses on the streets, giving the flowers in exchange for whatever the contributor cared to give, and almost all turned in full boxes. Last year the "Mile of Dimes" plan resulted in the collection of $1,000.

At 7 o'clock Saturday night the "taggers" reported to headquarters in the Sterling building and there they drew for theatre seats. Four prizes were offered, each prize being two seats at any New York theatre. They were won by Miss Grace Wilcox, Miss Helen Terry, Miss Adele Demarest and Mrs. R. C. Davidson.

HEAVY SHELL FIRE AGAINST THE FRENCH

Germans Bombarded Verdun Forts Through all of Sunday.

Paris, June 19.—There was an increase in the violence of the German bombardment against the French position west of the Meuse River last night, it was announced by the War Office today. At the same time the infantry attack was delivered against the French position at Hill No. 321 on the eastern side of the river. Hill No. 321 lies southwest of Douaumont and south of the Hauhremont forest. To the west of the Meuse the French positions at Le Morte Homme and Chattacourt were under heavy shell fire all day Sunday and last night, it being particularly intense after sunset.

DRANK TOO MUCH AND COULDN'T DRIVE HORSES

Otto Duderstadt, a farmer living at Bethel, N. J., imbibed too freely here Saturday and when he started to drive his team of horses home he was unable to manage them properly. His condition attracted the attention of a policeman who sent him in on a charge of drunkenness. After hearing the evidence in the case Judge De Meza this morning fined him $10 which was paid.

CASE IS DISMISSED.

Newton S. Foster, of North Plainfield, charged with reckless driving, was released when tried before Judge De Meza in police court this morning. Foster struck the bicycle of Isaac Walters and damaged it, but it was proven that he was not at fault and the case was dismissed.

BOY SCOUT CAMP FUND TOTALS $264.49

Appeal Made to Plainfielders to Assist Members in Carrying on Summer Work.

The fund being collected for conducting a Boy Scout camp here this summer is growing slowly. Of the amount needed $264.49 is in hand. There is still $535.51 needed to carry on the work as planned. An appeal is made to the people of Plainfield to help in this worthy work of training the boys of this city in the helpful principles of scoutcraft.

At a meeting held at the home of Theodore A. Davis, president of the Boy Scout Council, William A. V. Thomsen, one of the original scouts of America, originally trained under Ernest Thompson Seton and formerly scoutmaster of Champion Troop 5, of this city, was elected to be official scoutmaster of the camp for the entire summer. Contributions may be sent to Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr. It is planned to start the camp in the first week in July, and the money ought to be in hand by that time. The camp is to be opened to Boy Scouts and all boys between the ages of 12 and 15 who want to become scouts this summer. Applications may be made direct to any scoutmaster or Commissioner Searing.

100,000 ORDERED TO MEXICAN BORDER; PLAINFIELD TROOPS GET INSTRUCTIONS TO JOIN JERSEY MILITIA AT SEA GIRT

PRESIDENT WILSON CONSIDERING PLAN TO CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS—"WAR IS HERE" HEARD ON STREET CORNERS—ENTHUSIASM SHOWN.

SERIOUS CRISIS NOW CLOSE AT HAND DECLARE OFFICIALS

Jersey Guardsmen Prepare for Departure—First Field Hospital Corps and Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry Make Preparations in Plainfield for Trip to Sea Girt Early Wednesday Morning—Captain Peterson, of Company K, Ordered to Remain in Readiness for Forty-eight Hours.

Mobilization of New Jersey's militia, under orders issued today by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, will probably not take the various detachments further than their respective headquarters before Wednesday, when they will move on to Sea Girt. Captain Albert I. Borden, of Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, N. G. N. J., was ordered this afternoon to muster his men at the Putnam avenue headquarters tomorow morning, where they will remain until Wednesday. Major H. B. Corbusier, of the First New Jersey Field Hospital Corps, was instructed to send his men to the Elizabeth armory this afternoon, where they will stay until Wednesday morning, joining the cavalry and other detachments in the move to Sea Girt. Captain Charles Peterson, of Company K, together with his fellow officers, was sent home from the Sea Girt camp early this morning, pending further orders. He is now at the local armory prepared to bring his men together at a moment's notice.

Nearly 200 men will leave Plainfield with the field corps and cavalry troop, and advertisements inserted in local papers today for recruits, mules and horses, may swell that number considerably. Officers have been "on edge" since an early hour this morning ready to obey demands made on them by the State or Federal authorities and are prepared for whatever action is taken.

While high officials insisted this morning that there is no intention of immediate "armed intervention" in Mexico, they, at the same time, declared that American rights will be protected at any cost. Carranza must surrender unconditionally or the United States will take it upon herself to force matters.

President Wilson this afternoon is considering the proposition of issuing a general call for volunteers, and those close to him in military matters say that some action may be taken in this direction before nightfall. The Mexican situation is a serious one, but optimism regarding the outcome rules supreme.

Now that the political situation has been cleared up there will be no further fooling with Carranza and that he is aware that Uncle Sam is serious this time is evident. More than 100,000 National Guard troops have been called out and additional war vessels have been delegated to Mexican waters.

Excitement and irritation along the border shows that the conditions there are menacing and serious. Those concerned have many times been given to understand that the Mexican question had come to a head but the latest move is a convincing one and no one doubts the fact that the United States means business.

Carranza is worked up to a fever. He is employing every possible means to increase his army to its greatest strength and his attitude evidenced last night toward the possibility of effecting a peaceful settlement has entirely changed. He realizes that it is a question of fighting or "throwing up the sponge."

National guardsmen are mobilizing with zest in every State and the District of Columbia: Infantry, cavalry, artillery, signal and sanitary corps. Only coast guard militia is not being mobilized. The men are being sent to their State headquarters, those from New Jersey preparing for the trip to Sea Girt.

Bustle was evident in every New Jersey armory today. But one brigade, the First, comprising the First, Fourth and Fifth Regiments, has been ordered out from this State so far but all are in readiness for the call and are as busily engaged in preparing as those already under instructions. Even in this part of the country the bitterness against the Mexican "Greasers" is intense and should the general call for volunteers be sounded it is safe to conclude that Plainfield, Union county, New Jersey, and in fact, the entire East, would be largely represented.

None can be found among the men who is not enthusiastic to get into real warfare across the border. "War is here," was the expression heard today on every street corner and in every conversation group and the stand of President Wilson has been hailed with hearty endorsement.

New York, June 19.—A despatch from Tuscon, Ariz., to E. F. Hutton Co., says that officials of the Southern Pacific of Mexico there have indicated that the Carranza Government has placed censors in all the company's offices and that all messages must go through in Spanish.

Washington, June 19.—Consul General J. E. Silliman, former United States agent with Carranza, is now on his way out of Mexico. He has left Saltillo and is expected at the border in a short time. Secretary of War Baker indicated that no further news of battle between the Carranza troops and American troops has been received. Officers of General Staff believe General Pershing's forces are safe from attack for the next forty-eight hours at least. Despatches showing Pershing has already moved in defiance of the threat of Trevino have been officially confirmed.

That intervention in Mexico must follow the mobilization of the organized militia along the border is the opinion freely expressed by both Democrats and Republicans at the Capitol today. Senator Works, of California, Republican author of a resolution providing for intervention in Mexico said, "I believe that intervention must follow. We must go into the country and take care of it and the people for a time."

Sea Girt, June 19.—The commissioned officers of the entire New Jersey National Guard had everything in readiness here for the opening today of the annual tour of the school for officers.

When word reached camp last evening that the President would, within a few hours, call on the various states for men, Governor Fielder had just reached the camp from St. Louis. After a brief conference with the Governor, Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., with Lieutenant-Colonel David L. Hill and Colonel John L. Rogers, of is staff, left by automobile for Trenton. Upon General Sadler will fall the work of getting the troops to Sea Girt and seeing that they are cared for.

During the night as many of the officers as could get automobiles started for Newark, Jersey City, Plainfield and Paterson. Under the presnt plan the Second and Third regiments will not be called into the field at this time. Strong pressure, it is said, is being brought to bear upon Governor Fielder to include two regiments from South Jersey, if pos-

SUPREME COURT CASES' TOTAL BIGGEST SINCE YEAR 1890

Washington, June 19.—More cases were disposed of by the Supreme Court during its recent term than during any other term since 1890, according to a summary of business just completed by James D. Maher, clerk of the court. A total of 547 cases were passed on, while in 1890 the court considered 610 cases. There still remain 522 cases on the docket.

This record was made despite the vacancy on the bench caused by the death of Associate Justice Lamar and the illness of Justice Day.

Of the 1,069 cases before the court during the term, 462 were from state courts, 312 from Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals, 186 from Federal District Courts, thirty-seven from the Court of Claims, twenty-five from the District of Columbia, fourteen from the Court of Customs Appeals, fifteen from Porto Rico, thirteen from the Philippines and five from Hawaii.

WEST VIRGINIA TO CELEBRATE.

Charleston, W. V., June 19.—Governor Hatfield of West Virginia has proclaimed a holiday tomorrow to celebrate the fifty-third birthday of the State, and incidentally to demonstrate the State's "splendid development, its great resources, and the spirit of its progressive people." In connection with the celebration the West Virginia Board of Trade has organized a series of what may be called booming festivals all over the State.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR FIELD MASS

Knights of Columbus to Celebrate Anniversary in Weequahic Park June 25.

BISHOP TO OFFICIATE

It is Expected That 50,000 Catholics Will Attend Unique Service to Be Held as Public Act of Thanksgiving to God.

Most of the details for the celebration of a solemn high field mass in Weequahic Park, Newark, Sunday, June 25, have been completed. The function is to be held under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus as a public act of thanksgiving to God for the growth and prosperity of the city. The ceremony is one of the events in connection with the observance of the city's 250th anniversary.

As the ceremony will be unique in this State, it is anticipated that it will attract fully 50,000 Catholics to Weequahic Park and a large concourse of people of other faiths. The ritual will be of the most solemn character in the church and the splendor of the occasion will be added to by the presence of Bishop John J. O'Connor, possibly that of Bishop James A. McFaul of Trenton, and of Abbot Ernest Helmstetter, of St. Mary's Benedictine Abbey, who is a prelate of episcopal rank within the order to which he belongs. In addition there will be a number of monsignors from various cities in the diocese. Bishop O'Connor will be attended by the color guard of the fourth degree Knights of Columbus.

Monsignor Patrick Cody, of St. James' church, the senior priest among the Catholic clergy of the city, is to be the celebrant of the mass "in coram pontifice." The deacon will be Rev. M. P. Corcoran, pastor of St. John's, the oldest Catholic congregation in the city. The sub-deacon will be Rev. Edward F. Quirk, of St. Joseph's, the largest congregation. There will be two deacons of honor, Rev. James McKeever, of St. Rose's and Rev. Rudolph Huelsebusch, of St. Augustine's. The masters of ceremonies will be Rev. John A. Duffy, chancellor of the diocese, and Rev. John A. Dillon, superintendent of the parochial schools. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Michael J. White, rector of St. Bridget's church. Monsignor Isaac P. Whelan will be the assistant priest to Bishop O'Connor.

Music of the mass will be rendered by an orchestra of sixteen pieces and a composite choir of about 150 voices directed by Professor A. J. Hollywood, of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The parts of the mass to be sung by the choir will be Wiegand's Mass in F, with the "Veni Creator" by Mendelssohn and the "Veni Jesu" by Cherubini at the offertory. The orchestra will render the march from "Athalie" by Mendelssohn at the entrance of the celebrant and clergy and Gounod's "March Solennelle" as the recessional. The responses will be made by a chorus of chancel boys.

There will be no seats except for the specially-invited guests, who will include the Committee of One Hundred, of which Monsignor Cody is a member; priests of the diocese and members of the anniversary celebration committee of the order. There will also be on hand an extra detail of police.

The altar will be erected upon the eminence near the field house and will overlook the grounds given over to the baseball fields. The space available for the accommodation of the expected throng will cover nine baseball diamonds. The services will be available to the general public without any reservation. The services will start promptly at 11 o'clock and approximately will last an hour and a quarter.

CHURCH FESTIVAL AND SALE A GREAT SUCCESS

Despite the threatening weather prevailing the early part of Saturday afternoon, the annual festival and sale conducted by the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest proved to be one of the most successful affairs ever held under the guild's auspices, the spacious grounds surrounding the parish house being thronged with visitors both afternoon and night. The many tables and booths were all generously patronized and as a result over $100 will be realized by the Guild. A feature of the festival which proved especially popular to the younger folks was the dancing, music being provided for this by the Men's Club.

Mrs. Milton Peterson was the general chairman of the entire affair and she was assisted by the following general committee: Misses Alice and Lizzie Forster, Mrs. E. Brown and Mrs. E. Bennett. The other tables were in charge of the following: Ice cream, Mrs. Juan Babcock; cake, Mrs. Dorothy Kenenguiser; fancy table, Mrs. E. Chamberlain and Mrs. A. Corbin; spinning wheel, Mrs. C. N. Harrison; candy, Misses Alice and Lizzie Forster; apron, Miss Helen Babcock, Miss Alice Price and Miss Mabel Price; soda water, John and Louis Kriney and Ralph Ludgate.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL EXERCISES.

FRELINGHUYSEN TO FUTURE TEACHERS

Tells Them of Responsibilities of Creating a Spirit of Patriotism.

In his address to graduates of the Montclair Normal School this afternoon former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen told them of their responsibilities in training children in the following address:

"The state of New Jersey is proud of you today as you go forth to the noble and inspiring work of educating the youth of the state, armed with the certificate of efficiency which we give you to show that you are qualified.

"I congratulate Dr. Chapin on his preparation of you for this great work—I know he has a warm place in your hearts, and he deserves it. In the years to come, remember that it was his learning, skill, patience and love that fitted you to become proficient in this profession which you have chosen, and as you become more experienced as teachers—for you must not cease your studies—remember that this learned man was the builder that laid the foundation of the education you received here.

"Teaching is the highest type of public service. With the great Master as an example, who said, 'Go ye into all the world.' Teaching has ever since been the great civilizing force. Without it, the world would return to barbarism and savagery, and in this, the 20th century, it is now undergoing its greatest test. The intelligence of the world is the basis of our hope that soon we will again enjoy universal and lasting peace.

"The old system has passed away and been replaced by newer and better methods, yet America has today a greater and graver responsibility. The old district school was the shrine of liberty and the children of the earlier days were taught patriotism by the hearth stones of those who had fought for civil and religious freedom. For the past fifty years, the gates of Castle Garden have never been closed, and through them has flowed a steady stream of immigration, of every race and creed. Upon these has been the imprint of ideas, customs, tongue, creed, and racial instincts, different from ours. They have come to this land of liberty with hope of better opportunity for themselves and their children. No greater test of a great beneficient system of government could have been made than this. Had any one nation of Europe been overtaxed with such a burden, it would have impaired and exhausted their digestive apparatus.

"We have absorbed and assimilated these people into our national life with such ease that we have not until recently appreciated the grave dangers that might arise, should we neglect the important duty of developing a renewal of faith and allegiance to this land of adoption.

"The great refining influence that has been breathed into the minds of these adopted sons and their children has been this public school system of our land. The conflict in Europe, involving many nations, whose children are here, has aroused sympathies and memories that might affect and impair the allegiance they owe to this country in which they have come to build their homes. We have no objection to the affection they entertain for the land of their birth, nor their sympathy for it—it would be unnatural for us to expect this—nor do we fear that this exists in the minds of those who are not swayed by ignorance and superstition. We have too many evidences of devotion and sacrifice to fear this, yet there has come like a clarion call the demand that loyalty and allegiance to any other land cannot replace that which they owe to the country that has welcomed them and given them a refuge and is educating their children. There can be but one country for them, and that country is America. They must not only live for it, but they must be prepared to die for it if need be.

"This has caused us to consider whether we have been neglectful in our teaching of the obligations and standards of citizenship in our schools, and has aroused us to the fixed determination that now and immediately, the doctrine of 'Undiluted Americanism' shall be part and an important part of our curriculum, ere it be too late.

"Let us not impugn the loyalty of those of foreign birth, or their children to even the third generation. In a test of loyalty and devotion, I know they will be a credit to America.

"No matter what subject you are called upon to teach, impart each day some knowledge of our government. How and why it was created, what it means, why it is different and better than any other system of government. Make them familiar with its construction, its different branches, and how justice is imparted. Burn into their minds the words of Washington and Lincoln. Those who are familiar with the Constitution of the United States, the Declaration of Independence, Washington's Farewell Address, Lincoln's Flag Speech at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, his Gettysburg address, Wesbter's Reply to Hayne, Hale's "A Man Without a Country," and has some definite ideas of religion is bound to be a good American, and if you are called upon, as you probably will be, to teach in the high schools, you will have in your classes boys who will in a few years become citizens of this great Republic. Teach these to be patriotic, not the bombastic, 'Fourth of July' kind that goes up like a rocket, displays its brilliancy for a brief moment, then returns to earth, a blackened and useless stick, but teach them to try fervently to do their share of service when the time comes and make a bit of sacrifice for their country, their state, or their city.

"This means imparting a thorough knowledge of history of the government politically and otherwise. I have recently been much surprised in going about the State to find how few men even know that the method of selecting U. S. Senator has been changed by constitutional amendment, and what few people know that they have the right to vote directly for their election.

"Inform them of great political events, and tell them that when they have the right to vote to cast their vote for the best man to govern them. Teach them not to despise the right to vote, and not to neglect to vote. Do you know that out of the 450,000 men entitled to vote in New Jersey last election, 100,000 citizens neglected to exercise the right of suffrage. The right to have a say in representative government was purchased at a tremendous sacrifice, and the man who does not appreciate it is a very poor citizen. Teach them not to refer derisively to those who represent them as 'politicians.' Some one must do the work, and bear the burdens of the government, and it will be their fault if they are not good men. If they are called to public service, offer counsel, then to enter it and serve their country and their locality to the best of their ability. It is the highest type of service to serve their country, and they should serve it well. There are many positions under the State where they can render useful and valuable service.

"In the State Legislature, in Municipal government, on school boards, and in other directions. Teach them to try and render some public service. Teach them not to criticise their country. It is the greatest country on the fact of the Globe. Its work in the leavening of the world has just begun, and it needs courageous, capable Americans in the years to come. Teach them to try and be one of these and to stand for its honor and dignity and train and discipline themselves to fight for it if need be.

"Teach them to be thrifty and save something out of what they earn, not be miserly, but enjoy the legitimate pleasure of life, yet to save; not to consider it cheap if they have to consciously refuse to do something that they cannot afford to do, for if they do it, it is false pride. Teach them not to hesitate to tell the truth about their financial conditions, even if it does hurt their pride and not to mortgage their income by making obligations ahead. The installment plan is a very poor system of credit. To live clean lives, that a clean body and a clean mind means happiness during their whole lives."

COLD STORAGE FOODS MUST BE LABELED

State Department of Health Will Enforce the Law After July 1.

Trenton, June 19.—The State Department of Health is making preparations for the enforcement of the new Cold Storage Act which goes into effect July 1. Plans for its enforcement are being developed with the expectation that local boards of health will enforce the provisions of the section with reference to the placarding of cold storage food when offered for sale, as it is believed that this work properly comes within the scope of local board of health activities. From the consumer's point of view the requirement as to the placarding of cold storage foods is one of the important provisions of the act. With reference to this point the law reads as follows:

"It shall be unlawful to sell or to offer or expose for sale, articles of food which have been held in any cold storage warehouse for a period of thirty days or over without notifying persons purchasing, or intending to purchase the same, that they have been so kept by the display of a placard conspicuously marked "Cold Storage Goods," on the bulk mass or articles of food, and it shall be unlawful to represent or advertise as fresh, articles of food which have been held in any cold storage warehouse for a period of thirty days or over."

The words, "Cold Storage Goods," on placards displayed in places where such goods are sold must be in solid black letters at least one inch in height. The penalty for failure to make such announcement where cold storage goods are offered for sale, or for advertising as fresh goods that have actually been in cold storage, is from $10 to $50.

The foods which under the law are regarded as subject to cold storage methods of preservation include fresh meat and fresh meat products, except in process of manufacture; fresh food fish, game, poultry, eggs, milk and milk products, and edible fats and oils. It will be noted that the most important foods in this list are the nitrogenous or proteid foods.

The new law makes better provision than the old for the supervision of cold storage plants by providing for the licensing of such plants by the State Department of Health. The act also straightens out some legal difficulties that have hampered prosecutions under the old law. The amount of foods in cold storage must be reported to the State Department of Health monthly instead of quarterly, as heretofore.

APPRECIATE WORK OF "ROSE TAG DAY" CORPS

Hopsital Board Also Thanks Troop D and Others Who Made Affair a Success.

The executive committee of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospittal at a special meeting Saturday adopted resolutions thanking the members of the Woman's Auxiliary Board for the splendid results attained through the "Rose Tag Day" observance and congratulating the women as well as every "tagger" for their untiring efforts. The members of Watchung Troop were also thanked for the part they took in helping the hospital in giving a military drill at the horse show grounds which netted a considerable sum of money. The members of the Young Men's Auxiliary are also thanked for their work.

The executive committee directed that a copy of the resolutions be sent to the Plainfield Daily Press, the Courier-News and to Owen H. Fleming, chairman of the publicity committee, in special recognition of the valuable assistance rendered in making "Rose Tag Day" a notable success.

In publishing the list of "taggers" on Friday the names of a few were unintentionally omitted. They were members of Mrs. A. W. Kleinecke's team and included the Misses Louise Patterson, Katheryn Drayton, Helen Terry, Dorcas Bomann and Dorothy Lyon, all of whom worked hard for the success of the affair.

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOHN N. MITCHELL

Well Known West End Resident Expires After Second Stroke of Paralysis.

John N. Mitchell, a resident of this city for the past thirty-four years and especially well-known in the building trades through long connection with Season Williams as foreman on contracts, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at his home on West Fifth street, near Prescott place. He suffered a paralytic stroke three years ago, but had apparently recovered from this with the exception of a slight impediment of speech, and nervousness. He was about to enter the house for dinnter after sitting on the porch early yesterday afternoon, when he was seized with a fit of vertigo. Blindness and complications ensued and Dr. Sidney Titsworth was summoned, but the physician was unable to render any aid and the patient died at 4 o'clock. It is quite probable that his demise was caused by a second stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Mitchell was born at Lebanon, Hunterdon county, sixty-four years ago, and after learning the mason's trade came to Plainfield in 1882. He was a capable workman and his services were eagerly sought by local contractors. After working for a number of them he secured a position with Seaman Williams and remained with him a long time, acting as foreman on brick work at the time his first illness began three years ago. Mr. Mitchell enjoyed the friendship of hundreds of local people and was greatly respected for his many attractive personalities. He was a member of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men and also the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

The deceased is survived by his wife, one sister living in Bound Brook, one brother in Hunterdon county and another in the Middle West. The funeral will take place at the late home on West Fifth street Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph. Burial will be in the family plot in the cemetery at Lebanon.

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM AT COONTOWN CHURCH

An attractive Children's Day program was given at the Congregational church, Coontown, yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance of members of the Sunday school as well as the church. Appropriate selections on a Victrola, together with recitations and songs by the children and special numbers by the choir added to the interest. Rev. George Bowers made a short address.

The address of the afternoon was made by S. S. Swackhemer, of North Plainfield. He deplored the country's move for preparedness, stating that if the people had the love of God in their hearts peace would rule the world. Mr. Swackhemer also touched on temperance and said that the churches of the land were the strongest institutions for righteousness and all that is good. The church was attractively decorated for the occasion and altogether the service was an enjoyable one.

FOURTEEN ARE BAPTIZED.

Fourteen new members were baptized at the evening service at the First Baptist church, yesterday. About an equal number will be baptized Wednesday night and next Sunday night sixteen candidates will be baptized by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong.

RECEPTION TO NEW MEMBERS.

A reception to the new members of Hope Chapel will be given in the Sunday-school rooms next Friday night, by the older members of the congregation. The affair will be directly in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR 100,000 MEN

Answer Carranza Order to Quit Mexico.

GAVE U. S. SEVEN DAYS

Militia Is Called For Duty on the Border.

15,000 FROM NEW YORK.

Specified Purpose Is to "Repel Invasion," but Armed Intervention Will Follow, All Official Washington Believes.

Washington, June 19.—Militia of every state in the Union, with the exception of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico, already called out, today are mobilizing to answer the president's call for 100,000 guardsmen for border service. Armed intervention in Mexico at last is foreshadowed by the action of President Wilson.

The action is understood to have been precipitated by a dispatch from General Funston predicting trouble all along the Rio Grande in an effort on the part of the Mexicans to force the Americans to withdraw from Mexican soil.

The action was also said to have been precipitated by an ultimatum from General Carranza advising President Wilson that if American troops are not removed from Mexico within seven days a state of war will be considered as existing between the United States and Mexico and that at the end of the time stipulated all armed Americans remaining in Mexico will be treated as invaders.

Under section 8 of the constitution the militia may be called out only "to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions." In the present instance it is said the last specified purpose is intended.

It is said to be a debatable point in law whether in an effort to repel an invasion the militia could be sent across the Mexican frontier to meet an advancing foe. In army cricles opinion was expressed that if the Mexicans attempt any aggression General Funston will need all of the national guard to defend the border owing to the tremendous stretch of the international boundary line.

Fear For Americans.

It is anticipated that the Mexicans would first aim in the direction of the Big Bend district of Texas, where most of the recent raids have occurred and where it has been extremely difficult for the regular army forces of the United States to patrol.

General Pershing, with headquarters at Namiquipa, is believed to have sufficiently established himself to overcome any force that may attack him. His weakest point has been at Pulpit pass, an opening in the mountains dividing the states of Sonora and Chihuahua, through which a Mexican force might attack his line of communication. Recently, however, he has placed a large force at the eastern end of the pass, and General Funston has concentrated another large force, including the Sixth field artillery, at Douglas, Ariz., where it could be rushed to the western entrance to the pass.

Carranza Note Delayed.

Secretary Lansing said today that he could not say when the American reply to the Carranza note demanding an immediate withdrawal of the Pershing expedition would be sent. In many official quarters, however, and particularly in army circles, the opinion is freely expressed that long before the American reply is sent to Mexico City all Mexico will have risen in arms against the United States.

In this connection grave fears are expressed for the safety of the Americans still living in Mexico. In the last few days, however, the army and navy have jointly arranged for transports to be rushed down the east and west coasts of Mexico in the event of anti-American outrages to take off refugees who are able to make coast ports.

Although every state in the Union and the District of Columbia is affected by the call, not all of the organizations of each state are called out. None of the coast artillery units of the national guard is affected.

According to the last reports of the division of militia affairs of the war department, the "paper" strength of the entire national guard exclusive of coast artillery was something over 117,000 enlisted men.

The total number of enlisted men called out, exclusive of signal corps and medical corps, is 93,518, divided as follows: Infantry, 76,115; cavalry 6,435; field artillery, 9,328 and engineers, 1,040.

The New York state contingent called out, the largest of any summoned, includes one division of three brigades of three regiments each of infantry one regiment, one squadron and one machine gun troop of cavalry, two regiments of field artillery, two battalions of engineers, one battalion signal corps, three field hospital companies and four ambulance companies.

PYTHIAN MEMORIAL DAY IS OBSERVED

Local Knights of Pythias Conducts Its Annual Impressive Service in This City

Under the auspices of Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., Pythian Memorial Day was fittingly observed in this city yesterday by the decoration of graves in the various local cemeteries. Beside the full membership of Crescent Company, in charge of Captain J. E. Flannery, a delegation of twenty members from Unity Company of Elizabeth, and another of ten members from Port Chester Company, of Port Chester, N. Y., took part in the exercises. The Port Chester delegation was to have been much larger, but owing to the accidental death of one of the men who was to be in the party Saturday afternoon, the arrangements were of a necessity broken up.

After meeting the visiting delegations at the North avenue station the Pythians formed a procession and headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps marched to the North Plainfield cemetery. The ritual services here were afterward repeated at Evergreen and Hillside cemeteries and the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains.

Captain J. E. Flannery acted as commander and he was assisted at the gravesides by Chaplain William Watkins, Oliver R. Pierson, Fred Douglas, Charley McGinley and S. J. Robinson. At the conclusion of the memorial services the local company and its guests enjoyed a banquet in Unity Hall on West Fourth street. A program of music was discoursed by Suhr's Imperial Band, while the diners were at the table.

The plans for the memorial celebration were arranged by a committee composed of Captain J. E. Flannery, W. E. Bacon, C. L. Nichols, S. J. Robinson and Charles Hoff.

PLAINFIELD CONCERN FILLING WAR ORDER

Sloane Company Making Planes — Rumored Deal With Truck Makers.

An unconfirmed report reached here this afternoon that the United States Government had ordered the officials of the International Motor Company to ship twenty trucks a day to various parts of the country where troops are now mobilizing. Although the information came from a party familiar with the proposition no member of the motor firm could be reached this afternoon to put official endorsement on the matter.

It is known that the company has between 30 and 40 trucks of the type required stored in various parts of the city, principally in the old Spicer plant at West Fourth street and Madison avenue; the oil cloth factory on North avenue, east of Berckman street, and in the building located at South Second street and Clinton avenue. These are now in readiness for delivery and will probably be sent overland to the points designated for use in the prospective Mexican campaign. They were originally intended for shipment to the European allies.

The Sloane Manufacturing Company, with a factory on North avenue the Netherwood section, is now under contract with the United States Government to furnish twelve aeroplanes for war service. Work on these will in all probability be rushed and they will go into use in the Mexican invasion. An inspector representing the Federal Government was in Plainfield yesterday, his object being to inspect the 'planes now being constructed at the local factory.

MEET FOR RIFLE PRACTICE.

The rifle section of the Plainfield Branch of the National Special Aid Society will meet at Co. K armory this afternoon for its weekly practice in rifle shooting. Captain Charles A. Peterson, of Co. K, is the instructor and the women are making excellent progress.

CORNELL THE WINNER.

Poughkeepsie, June 19.—Cornell won the 8-oared freshmen boat race today leading from start to finish, and crossing the line 2 1-2 lengths ahead of Syracuse. Pennsylvania was third, and Columbia fouth. The race was rowed during a heavy rain.

FIRE AT GAS HOUSE.

Hot ashes set fire to a barrel of oil at the gas house, corner of Fourth and Washington streets, shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Firemen were called and extinguished the blaze with a chemical stream. Little damage was done.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature recorded at the State Trust Company today was as follows: 9 a. m., 75 degrets; 11 a. m., 77 degrees; 1 p. m., 75 degrees.

MISS MAGER BRIDE OF CYRIL BRACEWELL

Rev. C. S. Gillespie, of Grace M. E. Church, Officiates at Home Wedding.

An attractive home wedding took place Saturday night at 7 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mager, at 86 Grandview avenue, the borough, when their daughter, Miss Marion C. Mager, became the bride of Cyril Bracewell, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. S. Gillespie, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, assisted by the Rev. D. D. Smalley, of Martinsville, the latter an uncle of the bride. The wedding took place beneath a bower of roses arranged in the parlor. As the bridal party entered the room, Miss Grace Carroll played the wedding march.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Harold Mager, wore a charming gown of white crepe meteor with pearl trimmings and a veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her bridesmaids, the Misses Edith Mager, a sister, and Myra Stebbins, wore becoming frocks of pink and blue crepe meteor and carried arm bouquets of pink roses. Evelyn Young was the flower girl for the occasion and wore a pink silk frock and carried a basket of pink roses. William Nevius, of Newark, was the best man, while the Messrs. David D. Smalley, Edwin Smalley, Harold Mager and Peter Mager acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, sixty guests from this city, Newark, New York, Paterson and Martinsville, attended the reception at the Grandview avenue residence and showered congratulations on the young couple. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bracewell left for a short honeymoon trip, after which they will reside at their newly furnished home at 3 Verdon street, the borough. Mrs. Bracewell was the recipient of numerous handsome and useful gifts, among which were cut glass, bric-a-brac, silver, linen and furniture.

Both Mr. Bracewell and his bride are well known to both Plainfields, and the latter was graduated from the North Plainfield High School in 1911. Mr. Bracewell is engaged in business in Newark.

100,000 MILITIA GET ORDERS

sible. The officers from that section seem to think that one of the regiments from that section should be brigaded with two of the North Jersey regiments. As the three regiments under the direct command of General Hine have long been brigaded, it is thought that any vacancies that may arise in the regiments called can be filled by volunteers from the South Jersey commands.

All three of the North Jersey regiments are mustered up to their peace footing strength.

The present plan is for the regiments to begin gathering today, and by Wednesday night, it is expected, all of the commands will entrain at their headquarters and come here. Meanwhile workmen will hustle to get everything in readiness here. The food question was settled a year ago, and a meat handling firm a few miles up the coast has been under contract to deliver on call whatever was asked for.

It is expected that 3,574 men will have reported here by Thursday morning. Some of these will be, however, absent on duty, being left at home to recruit more men if the order is issued to do so.

Trenton, June 19.—The New Jersey National Guard is ready to mobilize at Sea Girt within 24 hours. Governor Fielder and Adjt. Gen. Wilbur F. Sadler Jr., have everything in readiness.

General Sadler returned to this city last night from Sea Girt, following a conference with Governor Fielder, and went to his office in the State House.

The Adjutant General at once put in motion all the necessary machinery to comply immediately with whatever order might be issued from Washington.

General Sadler said that approximately 5,000 men were available and that he thought there would be a general response. Practically at once, according to General Sadler, the places of any of the guardsmen not responding could be filled.

BRAKEMAN'S INJURIES FATAL.

Peter Hess, a resident of Brooklyn, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday from injuries received in an accident in the Lehigh Valley freight yards at South Plainfield, a week previous. Hess was employed as a brakeman and was severely crushed while coupling cars. He was forty-five years old and leaves a family. The body was sent to his home in Brooklyn and the funeral and interment will be in that city.

MRS. ARTHUR H. BALLENTINE.

Mrs. Emma Pope Ballentine, wife of Arthur H. Ballentine, died yesterday in Muhlenberg Hospital, to which she was taken for treatment two days previous. She was twenty-six years old and had lived in this city most of her life. The funeral will be held at her home, at 218 Watchung avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will take place at Basking Ridge.

DR. CHAMBLISS RETURNS.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, former pastor of the First Baptist church, who has been visiting relatives and friends here for a short time, has returned to his home in the south. He came North to attend the graduation of his grandson, William Johnson, of East Orange, at Rutgers College.

MADE RECORD RIDE ON BLIND BAGGAGE

Negro Boy Rode Eighteen Hours to See "Kinfolk" in Plainfield.

Vincent Scott, colored, of Chicago, thinks a lot of his "kinfolks" in Plainfield. In order to visit them for a few days he made a record ride from the Windy City to New York, landing Saturday after eighteen hours on the blind baggage of the fastest train in the world. Scott, who is seventeen years old, climbed onto the blind baggage of a passenger train in Chicago, not knowing that he was starting on the most daring ride ever made by a "hobo." For eighteen hours he sat with knees against his chin, and not once did he move even a hand, for the slighest motion meant death. When he alighted at the Pennsylvania station in New York he could not walk. He is being held in New York, but will probably be released soon and permitted to come to plainfield to see his relatives, whose names are not known.

SWEDISH CHURCH OBSERVES ITS FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

The fifteenth anniversary of the Swedish Lutheran church was appropriately celebrated with a special service on Saturday evening, when a large congregation enjoyed an excellent program, including addresses by the present and former pastors, and also by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church. There was special music by the church choir and a quartet, and at the close of the service there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

Rev. Mr. Anderson, pastor of the church, was in charge of the program, and he gave a short historical sketch of the church, showing how the membership has grown to about one hundred. All departments are in excellent condition. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson made an interesting address on "Church Unity," and Rev. Mr. Estlund, a former pastor, told of his work with the church.

MISS EDITH FITZSIMONS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Miss Edith H. Fitzsimons, a native of St. Thomas, Ont., but a practicing nurse in this city for a number of years, died at 5:45 this morning at her home, 955 Union street. She had been ailing with heart trouble for the past four years and she had been an invalid the greater part of that time.

Miss Fitzsimons was the daughter of the late Dr. George Fitzsimons, of St. Thomas, a prominent physician in that city at the time of his death some years ago. The daughter entered the training school of the Protestant Episcopal Hospital in Philadelphia, from which she was graduated in 1906. She came to Plainfield a year later and had been very successful in the pursuit of her profession until illness compelled its abandonment. She had a wide circle of friends to all of whom her death comes as a great shock.

Miss Fitzsimons is survived by one sister, Miss Alice Fitzsimons, who is also a graduate nurse and resides at 955 Union street, and brother, living in Chester, Pa. The body will be sent to St. Thomas, where the funeral and interment will take place.

ELEVEN CHILDREN BAPTIZED AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH

The Sunday school and members of the First M. E. church joined in a pleasing Children's Day service yesterday morning, a feature of which was the baptism of eleven children by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, the pastor.

The Sunday school practically took up the entire service, various members taking part in a program of recitations and songs under the direction of the different teachers. Dr. James R. Joy, as superintendant of the Sunday school, had charge of the general program. The quartet choir of the church also sang several selections during the service. Dr. Joy's Bible class of men had one hundred members present.

DEATH SUMMONS COMES TO MRS. MARY E. WINTER

Mrs. Mary E. Winter, aged seventy-five years, died Saturday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law, Ernest Zeek, 1125 West Front street. She had been ill for four months. Mrs. Winter was born at Phoenicia, N. Y., seventy-five years ago and was the widow of Dr. Harrison R. Winter, a practicing physician in Phoenicia, at the time of his death in 1888.

Mrs. Winter had made it a practice of spending her summers in Phoenicia and the winters in Plainfield with Mr. Zeek. She attended service at the Monroe Avenue church and through this gained a wide local acquaintance. Beside her son-in-law she leaves no relatives. The funeral will take place at Mr. Zeek's home tonight at 8 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. D. B. F. Randolph. Burial will be made tomorrow at Kingston, N. Y.

Mrs. William E. Day, of North Plainfield, who has been in Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment, is reported as improving slowly.

CARPENTERS FAIL TO BANISH LIQUOR

At Meeting of Union Resolution Is Tabled.

FOR VOCATIONAL TRAINING

New York District Council Suspended by National President For Failure to Accept Terms Offered by New York Employers — Principal Officers Are Re-elected.

Newark, June 19.—Efforts of a few total abstainers to force through a resolution condemning the liquor traffic led to an animated discussion at the convention of the New Jersey Council of Carpenters of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, which concluded their session in this city.

The resolution dealing a blow to "John Barleycorn" was introduced by a delegate named Griffin, from the southern end of the state. When it reached the committee on resolutions an unfavorable report was returned. In due course the resolution was read on the floor of the convention and led to considerable discussion.

Delegate Griffin and one or two others stuck to their guns and urged the convention to adopt the resolution, but the majority of the delegates were opposed to it and voted it down. Owing to the fact that about 1,200 carpenters of the state are employed in breweries, there was considerable uneasiness among officials of the organization that such a resolution had been offered, but its overwhelming defeat reassured them, and the squall speedily blew over.

The carpenters also went on record as favoring vocational training in the public schools and passed resolutions sustaining William L. Hutchinson of Indianapolis, the national president of the organization, in suspending the New York district council for refusing to abide by his decision in a strike case.

In an effort to secure an advance in wages averaging 50 cents a day, the carpenters of the New York district recently went on strike. The national president being appealed to, came here and secured a promise that the men should be granted an increase of wages on July 1 and a similar increase on Sept. 1, making the standard wage $5 a day. The men who had been fighting to secure an agreement beginning with May 1 refused to go back to work, and President Hutchinson suspended the New York district council and locals affiliated with it. The council has served an injunction against the national officers, and the case will be argued this week.

There were 145 delegates in the convention, all sections of the state being represented. Reports read indicated that conditions in New Jersey for members of the craft were better now than they have been in many years.

TIE-UP WOULD BE SERIOUS.

Trainmen Discuss Consequences at Convention at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, June 19.—"New York city would be starved in three days," said Oscar F. Otsby of New York city, retiring president of the American Railway Supply Manufacturing association, in discussing the possible seriousness of the pending railroad strike which may follow the break in the conference just brought to an unsatisfactory close here.

Twelve thousand cars bring food alone into the various terminals each day to supply New York's millions of people. Western delegates and, in fact, the entire congress here are deeply concerned over the outcome, but feel certain that the employees would not be a unit on any such action. It was reported from an authoritative source that the locomotive engineers are not in sympathy with the movement.

Representatives are not making any secret of their uneasiness, but say the concessions asked for are impossible. The railroads are only partially prepared for the strike. "It would be impossible to immediately replace the 900,000 skilled men employed. The entire country would be affected, but despite the grave consequences it can hardly be expected of the railroads to operate under losses which would result should they accede to the demands," one official said.

The railway supply manufacturers reported that the trade was enjoying the zenith of prosperity.

SWIMMER'S BODY FOUND.

William Grover Believed to Have Hit His Head Against Stump.

Red Bank, June 19.—The first swimming fatality of the season in this section of the state occurred here when William Grover of Newman Springs road, Middletown township, near here, was the victim.

Grover, who was thirty-one years of age, left home shortly before and did not put in an appearance at luncheon, but the family thought nothing, as it was his habit daily to go in swimming. About 1 o'clock the father left the house to locate his son and found his clothes and bathing suit on the banks of the river, a short distance from the bridge. Not suspecting a fatality, he waited for his son to appear from the water. Finally he became alarmed and summoned neighbors, who dragged the river bed. About 4 o'clock the body was found.

MRS. FLORENCE KELLY TO ADDRESS BUSINESS WOMEN

The business women of Plainfield and vicinity will be given an unusual opportunity to hear one of the most influential women in the United States tell of the effort to better conditions under which women work. They should not fail to hear Mrs. Florence Kelley, secretary of the National Consumers' League, who will address the Plainfield Association of Business Women this evening in the rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association, 210 East Front street, at 8 o'clock.

All professional, business and industrial girls and women are not only invited but are urged to attend, because it is desired to complete the organization of the new Association of Business Women by adopting the Constitution at this time.

MME. RAPPOLD, OPERA STAR, ENJOYS INDIAN LEGEND

Mme. Rappold, the grand opera star, and several friends witnessed the third and last performance of the sixth annual portrayal of the Indian legend of Watchung, given on the mountainside of Watchung Saturday night. The woodland stage was all the more beautiful because of the afternoon shower, the trees fairly glistening in the bright light, while the moon lent its aid, appearing over the big chief as though purposely placed there.

The playing by the cast surpassed that of other performances, the leading roles being exceptionally good. Edward F. Bodin took the part of "Deer Prong" in the absence of Thomas C. Fetherston. Much credit for the splendid production is due to Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann, the untiring coach, and to the dramatic critics, Charles C Wheeler and Edward T. Canning. In spite of the unfortunate weather conditions this year's affair was a great success in every particular.

TO WIN SUCCESS IN FOREIGN TRADE.

"Nearly all the methods of doing business which make a merchant liable to prosecution in the United States under the general charge of restraint of trade are not only necessary in the open markets of the world to insure appreciable success, but are permitted and even encouraged in England, Germany, France and other great manufacturing and trading countries. By this it is not meant that immoral practices are permitted or encouraged, but that manufacturers and business men are allowed a free hand to meet foreign competition. This is one of the reasons why free-trade England has in the past been able to meet the competition of protected countries, for it is in itself a form of protection, disguised as liberty, and it has given English manufacturing an advantage not enjoyed by American industry. Given such liberty plus protection, as in the case of Germany, it is not difficult to sense the greater competitive of the German producer as compared with his rivals. One of the most interesting reflections induced by this war, a so-called trade war, is that Germany, by the exercise of a system combining protection and freedom was fast progressing toward first place as an international trader. The United States had been passed in the race, and Great Britain, the only one left to conquer, was being caught up with at the rate of about fifteen per cent. a year. As things were in the early part of 1914, it was only a matter of time, and not a long time at that, before Germany would have accomplished all her people desired in a commercial way without a conflict at arms. If the present war was looked upon in its inception by ambitions German traders as a short cut to supremacy, they must realize by this time that no matter what the ending of the war may be, it was by far the longest route to the desired goal."—James Davenport Whelpley, in the July Century.

EDITORS MEET IN GOTHAM.

New York, June 19.—More than 1,000 delegates are expected to attend the sessions of the National Editorial Association, which begins in this city tomorrow and will continue until Friday. An elaborate program of entertainment has been prepared for the visiting editors and the ladies accompanying them. The business sessions will be presided over by the president, Lee J. Rountree, of Georgetown, Texas. Among those who will address the association are Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Congressman L. C. Crompton, of Michigan; John Temple Graves, of Washington; Dean Will H. Mayes, of the Texas School of Journalism, and Dean Walter Williams, of the University of Missouri. At the opening session the editors are to be welcomed by Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchell.

SWEDISH SINGERS AT OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., June 19.—Omaha is in gala attire for the annual convention and festival of the western division of the American Union of Swedish Singers, which has its formal opening tonight. The national colors of Sweden and the United States are blended harmoniously in the decorations. The festival program provides for a series of five concerts, in which the participants will include large delegations representing the Swedish singing societies of Kansas, Minnesota, Illinois, Colorado, Nebraska and Iowa.

WILL ATTEND CONVENTION.

William E. Coe and Chauncey F. Stout, circulation managers of the Plainfield Daily Press and Courier-News, respectively, left this city yesterday for Grand Rapids, Michigan, where they will attend a three-day convention of the International Circulation Managers' Association. The convention will convene today. Mr. Stout is a member of the program committee for the session. The Plainfield men will return the latter part of the week.

June 17, 1916—Recaptured by Russians.

London, June 19.—Russian forces under General Lechitzky have occupied Czernowitz after fierce fighting at the bridgehead over the River Pruth. The fate of the Bukowina capital was settled a few days ago by the capture of Sinatyn, farther down the river, which cut the railway communications from the north. Since then the Austrian commanders have been struggling desperately to hold the enemy in check at the bridgehead to gain time to save as many guns and supplies as possible before evacuating the city.

Evacuated by Austrians.

The capture of the city was reported here last Friday, but the first official news of its evacuation came today from Vienna and Petrograd.

The capture is an important one, as it entails the command of several important railway lines. The city had been untenable for several days because of the tremendous Russian bombardment. It is expected that further details of the capture will show that both sides suffered sanguinary losses.

The recapture of Czernowitz by the Russians comes at a dramatic moment, happening only a few days after the Austrians, with imposing ceremony, had unveiled on the city hall a double headed Austrian eagle such as the Russians had removed during their occupation of the city last year.

Russian headquarters announces the capture of Czernowitz in the usual laconic terms. It gives no description of the desperate fighting known to have occurred for the crossings of the Pruth river after the Austrians blew up the bridges, but adds the interesting fact that the Austrians are being pushed into the Carpathians, which is the only alternative to being driven into Roumania, where they would be interned.

This pursuit appears to show that the Russian cavalry is still active, but military critics here are beginning to wonder how long the Russians can maintain the rapid advance, which must be tending to attenuate their lines of communication.

A Little Chat On Telephone Etiquette

DO YOU remember the old, well-thumbed book we used to have on the parlor table at home — the "Handbook of Etiquette and Guide to the Social Graces"? We consulted it for everything — from the Inaugural Ball to acknowledging an invitation.

If a revised edition of that old work is ever brought out, it will contain a chapter on telephone manners. People are beginning to pay more attention to their telephone manners than formerly.

The telephone "Hello" is no longer in use among particular people. It is becoming obsolete because it is both meaningless and time-wasting.

In the modern, up-to-date business establishment, the telephone is answered thus: "Jones & Company, Mr. Smith speaking."

This same man in his home will answer his telephone thus: "Mr. Smith speaking."

When his home telephone is answered by a servant, he has instructed her to say: "Mr. Smith's residence."

Next week we are going to bring our series of chats to a close.

REV. HAROLD SCHENCK PREACEHS AT TRINITY

Minister is Greeted by Large Congregation at First Service Since Ordination.

Rev. Harold W. Schenck, of this city, who has just become the pastor of the Franklin Reformed church, Nutley, occupied the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning for the first time since his ordination and installation. He was greeted by a large congregation of the church of which his father, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, was pastor for so many years and all thoroughly enjoyed his sermon, which was well prepared and effectively delivered.

"Moses' Choice," was the subject of the discourse, the text being, "By faith Moses when he was come to years refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season."

Mr. Schenck characterizsed Moses as one of the greatest and noblest persons in Hebrew history, a scholar, leader, prophet, priest, law-giver and the servant of God. He briefly sketched his early life, which was an eventful one and throughout all he remained true to God. "In all lives there comes critical times," said Mr. Schenck, "times of choice, when wise decision means success and foolish one, failure and condemnation. Moses faced just such a crisis when the time came to openly announce his course and he reached a noble and courageous decision.

"Certain it was that Moses was on 'mount temptation, decision and destiny.' What would you have done, friends, if you had been in his place with such unequal odds? Moses decided that he would rather suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasure of sin, and he added, 'I esteem even reproach greater riches than the treasures of Egypt.'

"Moses was noble and courageous. We feel like shaking hands with a man like that. He was not impulsive, but his decision was that of a man. It meant much to him for he could have had all that the world had to offer. He must have had a vision of the spirit of the Redeemer's words. There was nothing in the pleasures of sin for Moses, and he rightly decided the matter.

"We are living in an age when young men and women are often willing to sell their very souls in the mad rush for pleasure, for stimulants and temporary pleasures of the world. Moses could have anything that the world had to offer but he selected that better part. Consider friends, the choosing period of your lives. Perhaps, it is only the choice in a small matter, but it may mean a great deal, something that may change the destiny of your life. Why are you still undecided? Confess Christ today. Count all things but loss and in Christ be made whole."

COMMUNITY CENTER WILL GIVE ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT

The public is invited to attend an entertainment at the Washington School this evening at eight o'clock to be given under the auspices of the West End Community Center. An interesting program has been prepared by the entertainment committee. "Other People's Money," the short comedy which was given several weeks ago at the Evergreen avenue School, will be repeated as well as "The Silent System," a comedy sketch presented by Charles L. Lewis and Miss Lillian Lamson.

A feature of the evening will be a spelling match in which the residents of the West End are to take part. Frederick W. Cook is to be the master of ceremonies and has prepared a list of words with which to trap the best spellers. The yearly exhibit of Miss Scarborough's sewing class will be held is the kindergarten room. Many of the pieces which have been finished by the class during the past year will be shown.

$30,000 NECKLACE IS FOUND BY ASHMAN

Atlantic City, N. J., June 19.—Much mystery surrounding the loss of a $30,000 diamond necklace by a Philadelphia woman whose name was suppressed by the police, was cleared up today.

The jewels, thought to have fallen from a handbag on a ferryboat between Philadelphia and Camden, were returned to their owner, Mrs. Jacob H. Lynn, by the driver of an ash wagon, who claimed to have found them on a street here late last night.

So overjoyed at the recovery of her necklace was Mrs. Lynn that she did not ask the name of the man, but induced him to accept a $50 bill as a reward for his honesty.

WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Playing in the first round of the women's handicap doubles tennis tournament at the Plainfield Country Club this morning the ladies returned the following scores: Mrs. W. B. Tyler and Mrs. R. S. Rowland defeated Miss Jean Wharton and Miss Estore Crane, 6-1, 6-3; Mrs. Charles King and Mrs. Ralph Hallock defeated Miss Dorothy Lyon and Miss Dorothy Parvin, 6-4, 6-2; Miss Pauline Gates and Miss Augusta Burke defeated Miss Elsie Burke and Miss Dorothy Burke, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0; Miss Morris Dumont and Miss Edith Beers defeated Miss Mary Rushmore and Miss Louise Earle, 6-4 9-7; Mrs. Walter Righter and Mrs. George Hodge defeated Miss Katheryn Yates and Mrs. William Barlow, 6-4, 7-5.

ALL PACIFIC FLEET ORDERED TO MEXICO

Ships on Atlantic Will Also Do Patrol Duty.

Washington, June 19.—Orders have been issued for the Pacific fleet to leave at once for Mexican waters. In addition, four warships and three destroyers will be rushed to Mexican ports on the Atlantic. The battleship fleet, of which Vice Admiral Mayo will take command, will be held in readiness.

Secretary Daniels returned from St. Louis and proceeded at once to arrange for the navy to lend its aid toward the precautionary campaign which the president opened by calling out the state militia. Secretary Daniels conferred with Rear Admiral Benson, chief of operations, and arrangements were forthwith made for the dispatch of a sufficient naval force to both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts to assure the safety of Americans on the Mexican coast lines.

Rear Admiral Winslow, commander of the Pacific fleet, will take five ships and three destroyers to strategical points on the west coast without delay. The selection of these vessels will be left to him, but it is said that the bulk of his effective force will go. At the present Admiral Winslow's flagship is the San Diego, which is at San Diego, Cal. The Denver, in command of Admiral Trench, is also at San Diego. These vessels of the Pacific reserve fleet are available for duty: The Pittsburg, Colorado, Maryland, South Dakota, St. Louis and West Virginia. The navy department expects to learn from Admiral Winslow which vessels he has selected.

POSTPONE GARDEN PARTY.

The world-wide garden party, which was to have been held Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Harris, on Central avenue, has been postponed to the coming Saturday, June 24, at the home of Miss Anna Boice, on Park avenue. The party is held under the auspices of the missionary societies of the First Baptist church.

EDITOR RUSSELL DECLARES WAR.

What promises to be the most spectacular political conflict ever waged in Union county was started Saturday when Editor L. T. Russell, of the Elizabeth Evening Times, printed a declaration of war against Dennis Collins, the Union County Board of Freeholders, the Elizabeth City Council and others prominent politically in the county seat. Mr. Collins was not mentioned by name, but there can be no doubt as to his identity.

Every voter in the county should be vitally interested in the case of Mr. Russell. He has not yet proven any of the many serious charges that he makes, but will doubtless be forced to do so or make satisfactory retraction. He begins his editorial notification of a belligerent state by stating his belief that "the home and fireside and not the brewery-owned rum shop and gin mill is the social unit, the foundation rock that freedom, civilization and Christianity are builded on," and this introductory clause arouses no controversy.

Editor Russell declares that for years the city printing of Elizabeth has been held over his head as the price of his surrendering The Times "to an influence in the city of Elizabeth which I believe to be inimical to the best interests of every home and the happiness of every father and mother in the city." That he is just now losing the printing contract would indicate, in the face of this statement, that he had earned it in the past. He also charges that not satisfied with taking from him the printing contract, the "brewery-head city comptroller" with his "yelping pack of beer-lunch lackeys and echoing parrots" have sought to destroy The Times and drive its publisher out of business by circulating false reports concerning the financial standing of the paper. These statements he denies, and upon this overt act he justifies his declaration of war.

Here are some extracts from the red hot editorial in Saturday's Times:

"To make my position and my future purpose perfectly clear and unmistakable, let me say here, once and for all, that if the changing of one comma, or the dotting of one 'i' or the crossing of one 't' in an editorial expression of what we believe to be an honest sentiment or a just indictment of any individual, institution or influence whose record and practices and known purposes made clear their utter contempt for public decency and personal rights, meant the choice between the sheriff turning the key in the lock in our door or a brewery comptroller opening the city treasury door to us, neither he nor any of his kind nor any of the mongrel followers of him, ever had or ever can have enough money or temporary burglarized power to cause us to waver one iota from what we conceive to be our public duty when serving the party we love and the public that makes our existence possible.

"To remove every element of doubt and make what is perfectly evident to everyone clearer still, as to our purpose and determination to stand or fall on this declaration, I here and now challenge and defy the breweryized Council and municipal combination, and the contractor-Freeholder-County alliance, and throw down the gauntlet to the whole pack of them that this is to be a finish fight on the theory that the Democratic party cannot survive a corrupting and degrading brewery influence, and that the day has long since passed when the public and the taxpayers will surrender to the domination of this self-serving combination.

"The community is confronted with one man's arrogance bred of public contempt that is a challenge to every high ideal in life, to common decency, to every home, to every father and mother who must raise up their boys to supply patrons to his rum shops and gin mills, and out of these the jails and penitentiaries are filled and from the gin mill adjunct—the dance hall—the houses of ill repute are recruited. Is it possible that an honored and powerful political party and a municipal government will lend themselves, their power and their prestige, to such a service, to such a sowing that inevitably returns such a harvest?

"I am fully conscious that this is both an uneven and unfair fight, where rats and weasels and skunks and snakes in the grass will abound on every side, and cannot be decisively won except with the aid of the taxpayers, who know they are being plundered and robbed, and of the homes that know they are being debased and debauched, of the fathers who know they are being pauperized, of the sons, who realize their young manhood and future hope in life is being blighted, of every wife and mother, who sits by a dim light in the wee small hours of the night, watching for a belated father or a wayward son who has been ensnared and led astray.

"We promise in this struggle to give the best that is in us, neither to give nor ask quarter, to take the full consequences without a murmur, and we ask in return only such support as the justice of our cause and the sincerity of our purpose and our loyalty and good faith makes clear to all."

If this editorial is but an introductory step in a campaign of startling disclosures of the mismanagement of the public affairs of Elizabeth and Union county, as Editor Russell promises, then his hands should be held up by every decent voter, but he cannot hope to win before the people by mere reiteration of well-known principles of honest and clean government, and flowery appeals for justification in a personal quarrel with public officers. Mr. Russell must prove his case.

N. P. H. S. NOTES

The seniors have passed the ordeal which the examinations offered, all meeting with success in their efforts, and will now enter the last week of their high school days.

Two more seniors have realized the advantage of higher education and have determined to enter upon a collegiate career. May Hoagland and Helen Yates added to the list which now totals twenty-one, more than fifty per cent. of the class, the former going to Pratt, while the latter will seek Syracuse.

The class picture of the present fourth year classmen will be taken Thursday. Contrary to previous customs, due mainly to the largeness of the class, a group picture will be photographed. Incidentally the members of the baseball squad will be placed in a similar predicament next week.

TAX APPEAL DISMISSED.

Elizabeth, June 19.—The State Board of Taxes and Assessments, in a session at the Union County court house dismissed the appeal of Henry W. Rogers, who wanted a $3,000 reduction on a $6,000 assessment on machinery and tools in a factory at 43 Spring street. Decision was reserved on the appeal of Erna Clauson-Kaas of Plainfield for a reduction of $4,500 on a $12,000 assessment on land and buildings in Woodland avenue, Plainfield.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

And You Know It.

He tips his hat politely as he helps her on the car,
And finds a seat for her, it matters not how scarce they are;
He sits right straight through every show and never tries to slide
Out of his seat between the acts to buy a clove outside.
He asks if she would object if he enjoyed a smoke.
When she approaches with a "touch"
he never says he's broke.
He never goes out evenings, for he doesn't care to roam;
He wears his smoking jacket all the time that he's at home.
He treats her as politely as he'd treat a neighbor's wife;
He wouldn't let a swear word out,
not e'en to save his life.
He hangs his clothes up carefully and simply dotes on style;
He has no slouchy manners and he always wears a smile.
He doesn't growl about hard times,
or quarrel with his food.
He's simply shocked at everything that savors of the rude.
He gets home from his office on the minute every day,
And there is no transaction that can make him stay away.
His household etiquet is simply great and life is one sweet song.
Yes, gentle reader, it's a cinch they've not been married long.

What More Need Be Said?

A party of automobilists were returning home the other evening and the chauffeur alighted at a farm house to ask the way. He went around to the back porch, where he observed a pail of milk. Seeing a dipper handy, he took a long drink.

He knocked at the door and the farmer came out and gave the necessary directions as to the proper road. As the chauffeur was about to leave he eyed the pail again and asked: "Will you let me have a drink of the milk?"

"Aw, you don't want any of that," replied the farmer. "It's swill and I am going to take it out to the hogs."

A certain very sick chauffeur staggered back to the car.

The Modern Suffraget.

She does not look as once she did, a change we cannot fail to note;
The bloom of youth has come upon the woman who demands the vote
Remember what she used to be? An ancient damsel with a face
That would upset the old town clock when she spoke in a public place.
An old poke bonnet, grim black dress and side curls that defiance screamed;
Of straight-front corsets, Marcel waves and picture hats she never dreamed.
She used to shout a wild harangue and pound the table with her fist,
As she demanded women's rights and placed all men on Satan's list.
Of course she did her best, but somehow men refused to fall
For her insurgent arguments delivered in the old town hall.

How different a creature is the dainty modern suffraget,
With pleasant smile and piles of hair surmounted with a trim aigret.
Experience has made her wise; she's not defiant any more;
And, planning her franchise campaign, she first goes to the dry goods store.
Her arguments are of the kind she knows will jolly men along.
She fixes it so they can't fail to listen to her siren song.
She doesn't hire the old town hall and vain abuse and satire reel,
But at the quiet fireside now she makes her eloquent appeal.
She doesn't call unpleasant names and doesn't fret or fume or fuss.
She's going to win out some day, for she certainly looks good to us.

- Proctor's Theatre -

AT PROCTOR'S WEDNESDAY.

Crane Wilbur as author and actor has provided himself with a splendid vehicle in the form of "The Conscience of John David," a five-part allegorical drama appearing at Proctor's Theatre today. Allegorical in type, the allegory has been suggested to more human impulses and emotions and the characters are well drawn, and several of them present interesting studies, special mention being made of Mae Gaston, in support of Mr. Wilbur, who is an attractive figure and does her work convincingly. The story concerns John David, a wealthy idler, who is engaged to the worldly woman. At a dinner to his friends, he announces the engagement. Then the wanderer appears and becomes one of the guests. The wanderer turns out to be John David's Conscience, who had been driven out some years before. At the dinner a telegram arrives saying that David's fortune has been swept away; the guests hearing the news take their hasty departure. Conscience alone remains. David goes to his fiance's home and finds her with another whom he attacks, and believing he has killed him flees West; Conscience goes along. In the West David makes friends, and one bitter enemy. He meets and falls in love with a sheriff's daughter, and they are married. In the meantime his enemy, suspecting he is the missing John David, sends East for a detective. As the ceremony is being performed, Conscience stands at David's elbow and prompts him to give up the girl and confess to the murder. The assemblage is in a wild uproar, when a telegram arrives from New York announcing that a Japanese butler, who had a grudge against the murdered man had confessed hiding under a sofa and killing the man while he was struggling with David. David is freed of the charge, and all ends happily, David, the girl and Conscience going away together. There are several comedy films shown today in addition to the seventh episode of "The Mysteries of Myra." Tomorrow Hobart Bosworth appears in "Doctor Neighbor," together with the second episode of "The Secret of the Submarine," while on Wednesday William Farnum is presented in 'The Battle of Hearts," his latest Fox production.

THE RUSSIAN STEAM ROLLER

--Astor Theatre--

The big attraction at the Astor Theatre today will be the Mutual masterpiece picture, de luxe edition, "The Traffic Cop," with Gladys Hulette, a five-part thrilling drama. Beautiful and talented Gladys Hulette never appeared to better advantage than she does in this extremely original treatment of an exceptionally interesting plot by the famous dramatist, Lloyd Lonergan. Founded on the parting of the ways of childhood sweethearts and the crossing of their paths later in life, when the difference of weath and position has a definite bearing upon their relations, "The Traffic Cop" abounds in new situations and excellent opportunities for strong acting which are made most of by Miss Hulette and her splendid supporting company. This is no doubt one of the best films produced by the Mutual Company, which is a thrilling love drama of the metropolis. Tomorrow we will present for your approval J. Warren Kerrigan in the sensational romantic drama, 'A Son of the Immortals," supported by Miss Lois Wilson, the State-wide prize-winning beauty of Alabama's 400. "A Son of the Immortals" is a Bluebird production, with J. Warren Kerrigan in the star part. None of the younger generation of leading men is so popular as Mr. Kerrigan, and the dashing personality and good looks that has made him a favorite among the ladies is shown to better advantage than even in this newest Bluebird. The plot involves a young American who is unexpectedly set to rule upon the throne of an imaginary kingdom, and the way he breaks down tradition and sets at naught precedents of royalty makes a subject for photoplaying decidedly out of the ordinary. Many tremendously spectacular scenes are created by the use of great mobs of people in street riots and public demonstrations in which the king and his enemies are concerned; numerous explosions of bombs, set with deadly intent, and some stirring battle scenes bring the Kerrigan photoplay considerably above the average in spectacular outcomes. With this big production we will show other photos of comedy and drama. Always something interesting at the Astor Theatre. Watch for our big feature for Fourth of July, something to make you sit up and take notice.

WOMEN JURORS.

San Diego, Cal.—The jury which recently convicted the Mexican bandits of highway robbery in this city was composed exclusively of women. Since California has been given the ballot women have served on juries frequently, but this is the first case when all of the 12 good "men" and true were ladies. They were Mesdames Dr. Rosamond Dailey, forewoman; Emma A. Davis, Louisa Harrison, Nannie Everley, Daisy Clark, Minnie Paul, Bertha Butler, Nellie Richards, M. C. Bleifuss, Lucy Waggoner, Amelia Bell and Katherine Wildt.

CONVENTION OF PRESSMEN.

Rogersville, Tenn., June 19.—The annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America began here today at the national home maintained by the organization. The sessions will continue a week or longer. The annual reports to be presented by the several officers show the union to be in a flourishing condition as regards both membership and finances.

JERSEY NAVAL MILITIA TO TAKE 163 MEN ON CRUISE

The First Battalion of the New Jersey Naval Militia, stationed in Newark, will take fourteen officers and 163 enlisted men on the annual cruise from July 15 to 29. This number will make up the complement of the U. S. S. New Jersey, of the crew of which the Jersey bluejackets will form a part. The Third Battalion of the New York Naval Militia will also be aboard.

The Jersey bluejackets will leave their station ship, the U. S. S. Adams, at the Plank road bridge on the morning of July 15 and go by trolley to the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry in Jersey City. There they will board a navy yard tug and go up the North River to the New Jersey's anchorage off Ninety-sixth street.

When the naval militiamen from the two States are aboard the New Jersey will go to sea. Most of the time will be spent in ship and squadron manoeuvres in Block Island Sound. The ship will put into Newport and there the men will have shore liberty.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

CAMPAIGN AGAINST "SEVEN SISTERS."

At the same time announcement came from Trenton of figures showing a falling off in state revenue from the corporation tax and incorporation fees, a telegram was sent out to a large number of newspapers yesterday containing what purported to be an interview with Assemblyman Carlton Godfrey, of Atlantic City, a member of the legislative committee appointed to revise the corporation laws. He was declared to have announced that the committee was preparing bills for the repeal of the "Seven Sisters" and to "bring back to New Jersey its former substantial revenue from corporations."

Mr. Godfrey's absolute denial of having said the things credited to him has been conveyed to the News. He insists that he has given out no interview and will have nothing to say without the authority of the committee. But the fact that an attempt has been made to put the committee on record in this way shows how strong is the campaign of those who are working so hard to overthrow the "Seven Sisters" and thus discredit the beneficial legislation fathered by President Wilson when Governor.—Newark Evening News.

NOT TO BE TOLERATED.

If the liquor interests will co-operate in a campaign to end the selling of intoxicants to minors, and shall prove themselves able to stop the evil, then the plan will be more satisfactory than would taking the matter into court and attempting to have the offenders indicted. There is no question but that the law has been grossly violated, and it is not at all surprising that agents of the Children's Aid Society found 175 violations in two weeks.

In case the promise of the representative of the organized retail liquor dealers is not kept, then the violators should be shown no further consideration, but should be prosecuted to the limit. No one will dare to stand up and defend the practice of selling liquor to children. Public sentiment, now that the facts have been made public, will be strong for the enforcement of the law, preferably by co-operation, but assuredly in any case.—Newark Evening News.

WOMEN SHOULD GET THE HABIT AS WELL AS MEN

Don't eat bite of breakfast until you drink glass of hot water.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexion; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's idigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, billiousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS PLAN THIMBLE PARTY

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, State President, Will Also Tell of Chicago Convention.

"Please bring thimble."

Such are the closing words on the post cards sent to members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield announcing a meeting for tomorrow, Tuesday, at the residence of Mrs. Henry C. White, 99 Rockview avenue. Mrs. E. F. Feickert is to tell about the Chicago convention, as she saw it, and it is to hear her that the suffragists are summoned.

Women are not content to spend an afternoon listening with idle hands, so Mrs. White, the president of the Plainfield League, will supply table covers which can be neatly bound and simply decorated, and then be ready for use as prizes on some future day when a card party shall seem to be expedient.

Contrast a woman's political meeting with a man's. He goes forth to his pow-wow with nothing more constructive in his pocket than a few cigars, good ones to smoke himself, and more dubious ones to give to the friends with whom he discusses the nation's uplift. A woman finds some useful work to occupy her hands when she gathers with other women to her their spirited leader.

The suffragists feel that the votes for women planks in the Republican and Democratic platforms give cause for rejoicing to those who are fighting for a true democracy representative of the women of the country, as well as of the men. While the declarations might have been more generous, they are, nevertheless, a long step forward.

It is probable that while thimbles and fingers are busy, the League members will discuss with a good deal of satisfaction, the fact that the lawyers in the Eno will contest now on trial before a jury of men in New York city, brought out the fact of the late Mr. Eno's opposition to woman's suffrage as one of the evidences of his insanity, and incompetency to make a will.

WELL KNOWN N. J. NEWSPAPERMAN DIES

Charles J. Allen Succumbs After Long Suffering From Bright's Disease.

Charles J. Allen, one of the best known newspaper men in the State of New Jersey, died at his home, 72 St. Paul avenue, Newark, Saturday morning. Mr. Allen had been a sufferer from Bright's disease for many years. He was 52 years old, and had been connected with Newark papers since early manhood, until a short time ago when he became Secretary of the State Board of Tenement House Supervision. Mr. Allen was formerly a captain in the National Guard. He is survived by a widow, one sons and one daughter.

AGED RECLUSE PASSES AWAY IN NEW BRUNSWICK

New Brunswick, June 19.—Reputed to be well-to-do, William A. Peters, eighty years old, died from heart disease Saturday on the sidewalk at George and Schureman streets in front of the building where he had lived alone and friendless. Peters had led the life of a hermit in the third floor flat of the building, which he owned. The second floor was tenanted and four stores on the ground floor were let to shop-keepers, but with none of them did he have any intercourse other than a collection of their rents.

Failure met an attempt by the police to locate a daughter who was said to be living in Brooklyn. At the address where application was made it was said that the woman had not been there for twenty years. A sister is said to be living in Kentucky, but no trace of her has been found. Mr Peters' only activity was in the First Methodist church. He had lived in New Brunswick for forty years.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION SPEAKERS

New Haven, Conn., June 19.—Former President William Howard Taft, George Grafton Wilson, professor of International Law at Harvard; Dr. James Brown Scott, chairman of the Neutrality Board of the State Department, and Charles H. Sherrill, former ambassador to the Argentine Republic, will be the principal speakers at the luncheon today of the Alumni Association of the Yale School of Law. It will be, in a way, a "war luncheon," the subject for discussion being "International Law," in which Prof. Taft will increase the scope of his work during the coming year by the addition of an extra course.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Soldier Sowed Some Turnip Seed.

It Kept Growing Bigger and Bigger.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

"WE can't go to sleep till we have one of daddy's stories, can we, Evelyn?" asked Jack. So daddy began: "Once there were two brothers who were both soldiers. But one had grown rich and the other never had any luck and was always poor. So he decided to be a gardener. He stripped off his red coat, dug his ground well and planted a lot of turnip seeds.

"When the crop came up one plant was much bigger than all the rest. It kept growing bigger and bigger till it seemed as if it never would stop growing. At last it was so big that it filled a cart and two oxen could hardly draw it. But the gardener did not know what to do with it.

"One day he said to himself: 'What shall I do with it? If I sell it 'twill bring me no more than another would. For eating the little turnips are sweeter than this big one. Perhaps the best thing to do is to give it to the king as a mark of my respect.'

"So he yoked up his oxen and drew the turnip to court, where he gave it to the king. 'What a wonderful turnip!' cried the king. 'I have never seen such a big one before. Where did you get the seed? Or was it just your good luck?'

"'I am no child of fortune,' said the gardener. 'As a poor soldier I never had enough to live on. So I set to work tilling the ground. My brother is rich. All the world knows him. But I am poor, and everybody forgets me.'

"Then the king took pity on him, saying: 'You shall be poor no longer. I will make you richer even than your brother.'

"So the king gave him money and lands and flocks and herds. When the brother heard of this—how one turnip had made the gardener so rich—he was very envious. He tried to think how he could please the king and have the same good luck himself. He got together some fine jewels and horses. If the king had given his brother so much for one turnip, what might he not give for jewels?

"The king took the jewels and horses and said he knew not what to give in return for so rich a gift unless it be the wonderful great turnip. So the soldier was forced to put the huge turnip in a cart and drag it away. When he reached home he was so mad to think he had wasted jewels and horses for nothing but a turnip that he hardly knew upon whom to vent his rage. At last wicked thoughts came into his head, and he made up his mind to find his brother, the gardener, and kill him."

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel's Fertile Brain Devises Another Scheme for Depleting the Family Exchequer.

"It is so dreadful to live off the beaten line of travel, in an out-of-the-way place that no one can reach," stormed Ethel Gordon, frowning at a letter that she held in her hand. "Here Maisie Folsom is going through Kansas City on her way to San Francisco, and if I only lived there I could see her."

"Why can't she get a stopover and come here and see us anyway. It is only an hour's ride." Ralph's tone was encouraging.

"She spoke of wanting to come, but as she is traveling on a limited ticket she will not have time to come down here. She says if I can come down she will start in the evening and go on from Kansas City the next evening——"

"That will give her nearly a day there, and you could have quite a visit, I should think," interrupted Ralph.

"But I wanted her to see my home. Before she ever gets here again I suppose we will have to move into a cheap tawdry place where I would not want her to come," complained Ethel.

"Perhaps she will stop on her way back; that will be before the lease expires," sighed Ralph. "Meantime you go down to the city and have a good visit."

"My! I am mighty glad I got that suit, while mother was here. I would not have gone to see her with the suit I wore away from Milwaukee for anything." Ethel was happy over the prospect of showing her new finery and brightened as she thought of the approaching visit with her friend.

"Well I never could see why a suit that is three months old and is good and in style——"

"Oh, no, the fall suits are very different. They——" began Ethel, but Ralph did not notice the interruption.

"A man wears a suit till it is worn out, or worn shiny, if he is very particular, and a woman's suit is thrown aside after one season. It is a very extravagant way to do. No wonder it costs so much to dress women."

"Oh, that is very different." Ethel's tone was airily superior.

"Does she say when she will start?" asked Ralph after a pause.

"Yes, next Thursday. I shall have to write at once to make sure she gets the letter." Ethel was already pawing around in her disorderly writing desk hunting for her pen and monogramed notepaper.

"How much can I have to spend?" she asked as she fished out the box from the chaos.

"You surely will not need a great deal for one day in the city." Ralph was frowning as he always did when the subject of finances was broached.

"Oh, yes, I shall. I want to take her to dinner at McIntyre's and that is an expensive place."

"Why is it necessary to go to the most expensive place in the city?" grumbled Ralph. "Trust you for that, though."

"If I can not entertain her as I should like to I will simply say I can not come, and stay at home as I always do." The dimpled chin stuck at a very unattractive angle as she looked sullenly at her husband.

"Here is a five. It is the last bit of money I have and it is ten days to the first." He handed the bill to her.

"That is nothing. I get used to being without money. I never have a cent to spend." Ethel reached for the money with a very dissatisfied expression on her face.

"I know you never do, and you never allow anyone else to have any, either. Money burns a hole in your pocket the first day you get it. You surely ought to have married a rich man."

"I wish I had," she replied spitefully.

FREDERICK WARDE TO SPEAK HERE!

FREDERICK WARDE, DISTINGUISHED SHAKESPEAREAN ACTOR.

FREDERICK WARDE, the greatest living actor of Shakespearean tragedy, is coming for an address at the Chautauqua on "Shakespeare and His Plays."

He will be here on the third day of the five day program. He was for years a member of Booth's company, in which he had the part of Laertes. He left the stage in the height of his career to go on the platform to make the plays of Shakespeare more popular with the masses, which he has done to a remarkable degree. In that respect he has accomplished more than any other living man.

He will appear in this city on but one of the ten Chautauqua programs and be gone. A season ticket will enable you to hear Frederick Warde for but a few cents. Think of it!

LOCAL AUTO RACE FANS SEE PLAINFIELD DAREDEVIL WIN PRIZES AT NEWARK

Plainfield was well represented in one of the most thrilling automobile races ever held on a New Jersey track Saturday night at Olympic Park, in Newark, when Joe Jackson, driving an F. and J. Special, manufactured by himself and Tom Frazer, another local automobile enthusiast, captured a second and third. Joe Dickinson, the Westfield boy, who was the sensation of the day meet held at the same park on Decoration Day, 1915, was the star of Saturday night's event, capturing five of the six numbers in his big white Stutz. Many Plainfielders occupied seats in the grandstand to witness the first night auto card ever promoted in this section.

While Joe Dickinson was the racing star, George T. Theobold, of Brooklyn, came through as the hero of a fire in the big 150 horsepower Sunbeam Special, the English car with the aeroplane engine, and which is owned by George Adams, the Brooklyn millionaire sporting man.

The fire was the most spectacular event of the night. It occurred about midway on the program, when Theobold was giving a mile exhibition in the car. It was said that Ralph De Palma had registered 130 miles an hour with the machine at the Sheepshead Bay Motordrome and Theobold intended to show some of this speed. He had gone one lap to get up speed and was passing the grandstand when flames were seen to shoot from beneath the body of the machine on the right side. The driver shut off his power, but the car didn't halt very quickly, and it was not until the far end of the first turn was reached that the driver, who had alighted, was able to stop his machine.

Flames Envelop Car.

By that time the front part of the auto was enveloped in flames. Many of the spectators ran to the scene, as it was thought the car would be destroyed. Jack Porter, assistant to Manager Shoemaker, with a fire extinguisher, jumped into another car and got to the blazing machine in time to put out the fire before much damage was done.

Next to the fire the tussle between Dickinson, in his Stutz Special, and Fred Wilcox, in Theobold's Mercedes, held the center of the stage.

Dickinson carried off the honors in the Australian pursuit by a close margin over Wilcox, but as the latter complained that he got the worst of the start because he was at a dark point on the track and didn't see the starting signal Dickinson agreed to race it off with him for two laps of the track. The men got away from a standing start, but the Stutz, being the smaller car, was the quicker to start, and Dickinson got the lead. He also was able to block Wilcox from taking the lead by carrying him wide on the first turn of the second lap, and held him so that he won by two lengths. The time of 1 minute 17 4-5 seconds for the mile is said to have been the best ever done on the track from a standing start.

The two clashed again in the handicap, Dickinson starting from scratch and Wilcox having 12 seconds handicap. They passed the rest of the field and for a mile fought it out between themselves. Wilcox's skidding on the turns had the spectators on their feet most of the time, and he won by the length of the home stretch.

This was the only race Dickinson lost. His triumph in the Olympic Park trophy event gives him a second leg on the trophy, which is to be decided upon the point system at the end of the season.

George Adams made a runaway of the three-mile Class E event for cars of 300 cubic inches and under. He got a jump on his two competitors with the drop of the starter's flag and opened a lead of nearly 100 yards before the machines got under full headway. Joe Jackson, of Plainfield, in the J. and F. Special, followed him for a lap and a half, when he blew a tire and retired.

Five cars faced the starter in the third event, for cars of 450 cubic inch displacement, but only four got away. Dickinson won easily a quarter of a lap ahead of Jackson in the J. and F. Specialty.

Real Thrills Are Had.

Real thrills were experienced by the spectators at the start of the Olympic Park trophy race. It was at five miles, and being free-for-all every one of the six machines at the track had a try. Rene Gourand, with the Mercer special, had the pole position, and took advantage of it to get away in the lead. He beat Joe Dickinson to the jump, but Joe hastened once under way and soon was at Rene's heels. In fact the entire field moved in blanket formation to the turn. Here they hit a dark spot in the track and as the cars went into semi-obscurity the spectators held their breath.

Once around the turn danger of a crash was over, and the shifting of positions brought the cars in single file to the backstretch. In this shifting, too, Dickinson had overtaken Gourand and breezed into the lead on the backstretch. Harold Leonard, of Hackensack, piloting his ninety horsepower Fiat, went into second place and took up the running after Dickinson. The latter was never pushed and won by 100 yards. Fred Wilson Theobold, in his Mercedes, came fast on the last mile and took second place as the Fiat developed trouble. The Mercer quit at a mile and the J. and F. Special went out at three miles.

N. F. H. S. ONE OF TWO ABLE TO BEAT STATE NORMALITES

Included in the record of the Newark State Normal School girls' basketball team, just made public, are the results of two games with North Plainfield High School, one a 16 to 12 victory and the other a 20 to 18 defeat. The team won twelve out of fourteen contests, the other team besides North Plainfield to beat it being Bloomfield High School. Practically the entire basketball force was graduated this year.

CARLSTROM HITTING HEAVY FOR INTERNATIONAL CLUB

That Albin Carlstrom, former third baseman and shortstop for the Plainfield Central New Jersey Baseball League club, is making good in fast company has been proven forcibly of late by his clever fielding and hitting with the Buffalo club, of the International League. One of his recent feats was to smash out a home run Saturday with two men on the bases in the seventh inning, beating Rochester. He also scored three putouts and one assist on that occasion. His hitting and fielding have been the sensation of the Bison's playing this year and it would not be a great surprise to see Carlstrom break into the big circuit next spring.

SOCCER FOOTBALL PLAYER KNOWN HERE, WAR VICTIM

Word has been received from Dundee, Scotland, that Private William J. Kidd, of Passaic, a well known soccer football player who performed in Plainfield on numerous occasions when the old New Jersey Association Football League was in operation, was killed in action "somewhere in France." Kidd went to Scotland soon after the war broke out and enlisted in the Canadian Royal Highlanders. He at one time played with the Brooklyn Celtics and has many friends in and about Plainfield.

HOPATCONG FISHING.

Indications of a good bass season are found in the reports coming from Lake Hopatcong. The opening day John S. Schwinn, of Newark, got a string of seventeen bass and some pickerel and perch. Andrew Lee and John Martin, two local fishermen, were among the others making good catches. Lee got ten bass and Martin twelve pickerel and one perch. Lee and Schwinn caught their bass by casting, Martin troiling for his. The weather was unsatisfactory, there being a strong wind and a steady rain, but despite that there were many fishermen on the lake.

BASS BITING AT BRANCH BROOK.

Twenty bass have been caught in Branch Brook Park waters since the opening of the bass season. The heaviest was one of four and a half pounds. The total in pounds is forty-five.

PRETTY FAIR BASS, THIS.

One of the largest bass reported since the season opened on Wednesday was caught on Friday by Fred Tunison, of Asbury Park. It was a large-mouth bass and weighed six and three-quarter pounds and was taken in Lake Carasaljo, at Lakewood, which was recently stocked by the State Fish and Game Commission.

105 MILES AN HOUR.

Chicago, June 19.—Dario Resta won all three heats of the match auto race with Relph De Palma at the Speedway yesterday. He was victor in the 50-mile event in 31 minutes 57 2-5 seconds, an average of 97 miles an hour. The 24-mile heat was won in 13 minutes 42 2-5 seconds, an average of 105 miles an hour, and the 10-mile race in 5 minutes 51 1-5 seconds, an average of 102½ miles an hour.

QUITS LEAGUE, WILL PLAY INDEPENDENTLY

Easton-Phillipsburg Team, Holding Mullin and Grimes, Takes Action.

Directors of the Easton-Phillipsburg team of the Atlantic League, with which Tommy Mullin, of this city, and "Red" Grimes, of Somerville, were affiliated, met in Phillipsburg, Saturday night and decided to keep the club together for the purpose of playing independent baseball. Grimes will probably remain with the outfit, but Mullin has expressed a willingness to sever all relations with the league and will devote his time to performing at Perth Amboy in the future in Sunday baseball.

There is a possibility that the Stroudsburg (Pa.) team of the Penn-Jersey League may quit that organization. If it does the Easton-Phillipsburg club may try to obtain the franchise.

RANDOLPH BUMPED; LOCALS MAY "JUMP"

Tommy Mullin and Plainfield Pitcher Disappointed in Washington.

Pitching at Washington, N. J., in the Penn-Jersey League, Saturday afternoon, Cliff Randolph, of Plainfield, got his bumps at the hands of the Bethlehem outfit. Sixteen hits were scored at the expense of the Queen City product. Tommy Mullin also played with Washington.

Both local players have expressed dissatisfaction over their jobs in this "bush" league. They say that baseball rules as the king of sports in that part of New Jersey as long as the team is winning, but that the home fans won't stand for a single defeat without knocking the "daylights" out of the players.

The trip to and from the suburban town also bothers the localites, it being necessary to leave here at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when the team is playing at Washington, and when the team is scheduled for Stroudsburg, another town on the circuit, the Plainfielders leave here Friday nights.

MATINEE TROTTING RACES CALLED OFF BY RAIN

The matinee trotting races scheduled for Saturday afternoon at the Weequahic Park track, Newark, were called off on account of the muddy condition of the track.

The races will be run off on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with the following classes represented: 2.35, 2.28, 2.19, 2.24, 2.15 and free-for-all.

Thirty-six entries have been received, among them being those of Dr. H. E. Winter and Adam C. Blair, of Plainfield.

PLAINFIELD CYCLISTS ARE RATED IN TITLE STANDING

According to statistics issued yesterday by Walter Bargott, secretary of the Cycle Racing Association with headquarters in Newark, two Plainfield boys have ratings in the standing of amateur cyclists in the all-around competition being conducted at the Newark Velodrome this year. Both are members of the Queen City Wheelmen, a local cycling organization.

Willie Simons and Horgen Mortensen are tied for eleventh with seven other riders, having earned two points each. The Plainfielders have each won a third place to date. W. Spencer is leading with four firsts, two thirds and a fourth, totaling 25 points.

M. G. A. GOLF TOURNEY ENTRIES CLOSE TONIGHT

The Hackensack Golf Club of Hackensack will hold a one-day invitation tournament tomorrow, morning play starting at 9 o'clock, and afternoon play at 1:30 o'clock. The tournament is open only to members of the Metropolitan Golf Association and is to be an eighteen-hole handicap event.

Entries must be mailed by 6 o'clock tonight to the tournament committee. Any player not rated on the printed M. G. A. handicap list must present, before starting, a letter from his club secretary showing club rating and the rating of another member of the club, who has an M. G. A. rating. If no such letter is presented the committee reserves the right to give the player a very low handicap or place him at scratch.

JACK DILLON AMBITIOUS; "WILL KNOCK MORAN OUT"

A good sized crowd of boxing enthusiasts gathered at Washington Park, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon as the guests of Jack Dillon and watched him go through his training schedule for his fight with Frank Moran on June 29. Dillon insisted that there be a free gate during all his training for the fight.

Dillon punched the bag yesterday, skipped the rope, worked at the pulleys and finished up with several rounds of boxing with his sparring partners. After his workout he made the classic declaration that he never felt better in his life, and again said that he would win the bout by a knockout. In talking of the match, he said, "I accepted $10,000 less than Moran is to receive for I wanted to prove my right to a fight with Willard and that I can knock out Moran, something that Jess Willard failed to do."

"Bat's" Tab Tips

"Kid" Brennan did good work in left field on Sunday. Four came his way and he grabbed them all.

Wall, the T. A. B. S. new third baseman, made a good showing. He brought in two runs in the fifth by a well placed drive along third base. Later he also got a two-base hit. He and Kyle made a double play.

The seventh inning looked lucky. With three men on bases and no outs, one run would have tied the score for the T. A. B. S. All the T. A. B. S. rooters were on their feet. It failed to materialize.

LOW SCORES ARE POSTED FOR SPRING POINT CUP

The weekly play for the Spring Point cup at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday attracted a large field and many low scores were posted. There was also the usual sweepstakes event in which many players took part. The leading scores for the Spring cup were as follows:

S. T. Perrin, 89; 17-72; H. L. DeForest, 96, 19-77; M. J. Dumont, 92, 14-78; D. O. Rogers, 85, 7-78; L. G. Carman, 89, 10-79; W. G. Cooke, 98, 18-80; O. H. Fleming, 92, 10-82.

These scores were posted in the sweepstakes event:

H. T. Eaton, 84, 14-70; H. L. DeForest, 96, 19-77; D. O. Rogers, 85, 7-78; J. P. Stevens, 102, 25-78; O. H. Fleming, 92, 10-82. In the evening there was the weekly dinner dance which was largely attended.

TELLING LICK WAS NOT FORTHCOMING

Tabs Failed to Connect With Men on the Bases.

The T. A. B. S. lost a close contest to the Newark Nationals on Avon Oval yesterday afternoon to the tune of 6 to 4. Inability of the Abstainers to connect safely with men on bases was the big obstacle in their path to victory. No less than twelve men were left stranded on the bags.

Denny was considerably off in his pitching and did not twirl his usual good game, while Lyons for the visitors, although filling the bases quite often, was strong in the pinches.

Wahl, playing third for the T. A. B. S., put up a good game at the far corner, and also made a couple of timely bingles. O'Loughlin came across with some timely scoring. Next Sunday the Erie A. A. of Kearney, will be the attraction at Avon Oval.

FEW SCORES RETURNED FOR PRESIDENTIAL CUP

Play for the President's cup was the chief attraction at the Hydewood Golf Club Saturday, but owing to the heavy rain which fell during the early part of the afternoon many of the golfers either did not go out nor return scores. The rain made the course heavy and some of the players found it difficult to make good scores.

The best cards returned in this competition follow:

F. W. Thompson, 103, 48-75; W. H. Nischwaitz, 95, 17-78; Clarence J. Hand, 109, 16-83; H. E. Blaizer, 93, 7-86.

MISS WILDEY DEFAULTS; MRS. STUART VICTOR

Miss Edna Wildey, of Plainfield defaulted to Mrs. Robert LeRoy in the semi-final round of the Ardsley Club's invitation tennis singles tourney Saturday afternoon, thus qualifying her opponent for the finals which she had lost to Mrs. H. Stuart Green.

Instead of the close contest that had been anticipated because of Mrs. LeRoy's surprising triumph over Miss Marie Wagner in an earlier round, the final developed into a one-sided affair, in which Mrs. LeRoy managed to win only two games. Mrs. Green counted ten straight games before her opponent could check her temporarily and prevent the defeat from being even more decisive.

THREE BRIDGES SWAT BALL.

Flemington, June 19.—The Three Bridges club defeated the New Brunswick A. C. Saturday afternoon in a hard hitting baseball game, 11 to 3. Smith, the Three Bridges pitcher, fanned eleven and Tonney one. The score:

MAHONEY AND DONNELLY TAKE FIRST PRIZE IN T. A. B. S. HOUSE TOURNEY

The last game in the T. A. B. S. House tournament has been bowled. This tournament, which has been in progress since the first of February, has been very popular and much interest was shown until the end. It will be repeated next season.

In all eighteen teams were listed and with the exception of a few each team rolled twenty games.

First prize, which was a silver loving cup for each man, was captured by Mahoney and Donnelly. This team won fifteen games and lost five. They were followed by "Dan" Guinee and James P. O'Keefe, who annexed eleven out of twenty. This team was presented with second prize.

The highest team score made by any team in a regular game was 404. This was done by Rohrs and Diskin, who received first prize. The second best team score of 392 was by "Dan" Guinee and James P. O'Keefe. They were given second prize.

Eveready Preparedness

Don't go on your vacation without an Eveready Flashlight. Don't do it. Tuck an Eveready in your grip for use on the way—and all summer long.

Maybe those weird shapes of the night have never sent your heart to your mouth—maybe you know every highway and byway at night as by day—BUT leave it to the DARK to trap YOU sometime—UNLESS YOU'RE PREPARED. Eveready is the "light of preparedness." To have an Eveready with you is to be "armed" against the dark. You can never tell what danger the dark hides—without light.

CHIEF DOANE TO VOLUNTARILY QUIT FIRE DEPARTMENT AFTER FIFTY-ONE YEARS OF SERVICE

REQUEST THAT HE BE RETIRED IN PERSONAL LETTER SENT TO COMMON COUNCIL LAST NIGHT—ACT A SURPRISE

WILL STILL BE CITY BUILDING INSPECTOR

November 1 Named as Date of Retirement—"Still as Able, Physically and Mentally, as at Any Time in Life," Says Veteran—New Pay Schedule for Firemen.

Chief T. O. Doane, for fifty-one years a member of the Plainfield Fire Department and its chief since 1888, last night submitted a personal letter to the Plainfield Common Council in which he assented to and asked for his retirement under the pension act. November 1 was named as the date he is to leave active service.

Chief T. O. Doane.

Although giving up the fire department altogether, Chief Doane will continue to serve the city as building inspector and the salary of that office will be increased from $500 to $1,100 a year. His appointment will also be for life. The Council last night increased the salary of Chief Doane to $2,400 a year. This goes into effect July 1, and will mean that he draws a pension of $1,200 a year upon retirement. When he leaves the department the salary of the fire chief will be reduced to $1,800. With the $1,100 salary as building inspector and $1,200 pension Chief Doane will be drawing almost $200 a month from the city.

Although no action was taken on the letter last night, the request of Chief Doane will be granted. His letter came as a surprise to all members of the Council except those on the fire committee. It was referred to this committee for action, but later developments showed that Chairman Cose had known of the letter and had decided to approve of the retirement.

The new pay schedule of the firemen is practically the same as that for the police department adopted at the last meeting of Council. It grades members of the department as policemen are graded, according to the number of years of service. The salary of the chief is fixed at $2,400 so long as Chief Doane is in office. The ordinance frankly stated that the purpose of this increase was to make the pension for him $1,200 a year. The new fire chief will receive only $1,800 a year. The salary of the assistant chief is fixed at $1,700 a year, of captains at $1,500 a year, of six-year men at $1,200, five-year men at $1,150, four-year men at $1,100, three-year men at $1,050, two-year men at $950, and one-year men at $900. The new

GIVE TROOP D A ROUSING SEND OFF

Troop D, National Guard New Jersey, will leave Plainfield tomorrow morning for Sea Girt, from which point they may leave within the next two weeks for active service along the Mexican border. The membership of this organization consists of some of the best known young men of this city, and they have responded to a man to the call to arms. Every citizen who is able to be at the freight yard tomorrow morning before 8 o'clock should be there. The members of the troop should be shown that the sacrifices they are making are fully appreciated by the people of their home city. Those who know Plainfield know that there will be a royal send-off for the citizen soldiers, who in such a short time have developed their command into one which ranks with the best organizations in the State. Display the National colors tomorrow, not only along the line of march, but in all parts of the city. Show your pride in the fact that Plainfield possesses such an excellent military organization, by turning out in force to bid them farewell.

MILITARY BAND WILL GIVE LOCAL TROOPERS GREAT SEND OFF WHEN THEY LEAVE PLAINFIELD TOMORROW

Captain Borden's Men in Readiness for Trip to Sea Girt.

Hurried preparations, requiring the attention of every man enlisted in Troop D, First Squadron, New Jersey Cavalry, are in progress today at the local headquarters, 1120 Putnam avenue. When the call to muster was sounded at noon yesterday, the men responded to an individual and assembled at the Putnam avenue rendezvous this morning.

When a Daily Press reporter sought an interview with officers at the temporary camp this morning, he was met first by a sentry and, after passing a satisfactory verbal examination, was finally ushered into the presence of Second Lieut. James M. Charles, who had temporarily assumed charge while Captain Albert G. Borden was putting several horses offered for sale to the troop through their paces in the riding ring, about one hundred yards from the camping site.

All was hustle and bustle this morning. Every man had his respective duty to perform. The work was progressing in a splendidly-organized fashion and in a manner that would reflect with credit even on a troop of regulars. Although more than fifty men were on duty it was an easy matter for the officers to get in touch with any individual at a moment's notice, the system of assignment being so thorough.

All during the morning and afternoon, sisters, wives, mothers, brothers and other relatives of the troopers appeared at the camp in automobiles and on foot. They were all turned back by the sentry, however, and in order to communicate with the Major Corbusier's Corps Packing up in Elizabeth Armory.

Present conditions indicate that the First New Jersey Field Hospital Corps, of which Major H. B. Corbusier, of Plainfield, is the active head, will be recruited up to full strength, sixty-five, before leaving for Sea Girt tomorrow morning. As exclusively told in the Daily Press of yesterday the corps was ordered by General Sadler to report at once to the Elizabeth armory and plan for the departure to the State mobilization camp at Sea Girt tomorrow.

The Plainfield men, as soon as they were notified, went to Elizabeth and will remain in the armory until it is time to leave for camp. The Plainfielders besides Major Corbusier are Raymond Manley, Acting Orderly; Alfred Seal, Taylor Brokaw, James Stranahan and Clinton Berrien. The following applied for enlistment this morning and are being examined: Wright McAnnaney and Clarence Patrick. Corporal Wagner and Private Molitz, of Bound Brook, and Private Brakely, of Dunellen, are also in Elizabeth making ready.

Major Corbusier returned to Plainfield this afternoon for a short stay preliminary to leaving and is spending this afternoon rouding up a number of applicants who will make likely material for the corps. Every member of the hospital division has put in appearance and all are enthusiastic over the prospective campaign against Mexico.

The program calls for the departure from the armory shortly before 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and the men will board the Central railroad train which leaves Plainfield about Company K and Captain Peterson Disappointed—Await Orders.

Captain Charles Peterson, up to a late hour this afternoon, had received no instructions from Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler affecting Company K, of this city. Conditions now indicate that the Second Regiment, of which Company K is a member, and the Third Regiment, with headquarters at Camden, will not be represented at the Sea Girt mobilization camp when it assembles tomorrow.

The troops that will be sent under Governor Fielder's call issued to General Sadler are the First Infantry of Newark; Fourth, of Jersey City; Fifth, of Paterson; First Artillery, Company A., of Orange; Company D, Camden; Cavalry: Troops A and C, Newark; B, Red Bank; D, Plainfield; Signal Corps, Jersey City; Field Hospital, Plainfield; Ambulance Corps, Red Bank.

Officers of the Second Regiment, among them being Captain Peterson, Battalion Adjutant Albert I. Littell, Lieut. A. R. Phillips and Lieut. James Conklin, of Plainfield, have been noticeably disappointed by not being included in the first orders and forwarded the following telegram to General Sadler last night:

"In call for troops we hope that in view of the last Federal inspection the Second Regiment will be given due consideration."

Captain Peterson spends a greater part of his time at the Company K armory and is in readiness to muster his men at a moment's notice. The Captain met Second Lieut. James M. Charles in the Daily Press office yesterday and was noticeably affected by

NOTE HANDED TO MEXICAN AMBASSADOR IN WASHINGTON TODAY IS FIRM IN DECLARING AMERICAN RIGHTS.

GEN. JACINTO TREVINO.
Carranza Chief Who Ordered Pershing to Quit.

Washington, June 20.—State Department officials no longer conceal their apprehension over the turn of events in Mexico. Anti-American demonstrations are increasing and it is feared that the lives of many foreigners in the interior are imperiled. A train has been chartered to take refugees from Mexico City to Vera Cruz. Secretary of the Navy Daniels brought up the question of a blockade of Mexico at the Cabinet meeting today. The entire Mexican situation was canvassed.

Washington, June 20.—The American Government today answered the challenge of Carranza in its long-awaited note to the Mexican leader. The stand is taken that American troops must remain in Mexico until the safety of the border is assured, and until the present chaotic conditions in Mexico are eliminated. The note concludes:

"The Government of the United States cannot recede from its settled determination to maintain its national rights and to perform its full duty in preventing further invasions of the territory of the United States and in removing the peril which Americans along the international boundary are subjected to. If, on the contrary, the de facto government is pleased to ignore this obligation and to believe that in case of a refusal to retire these troops there is no further recourse than to defend its territory by an appeal to arms, the Government of the United States would surely be lacking in sincerity and friendship if it did not frankly impress upon the de facto government that the execution of this threat will lead to the gravest consequences."

The note makes it clear in unequivocal terms that as long as the menace to the border continues and there is any evidence of an intention on the part of the de facto government or its military commanders to use force against the American troops, instead of co-operating with them, the government of the United States will not permit munitions of war or machinery for their manufacture to be exported from this country into Mexico.

The note deals with Carranza's contention that the United States threatens to subvert the integrity of Mexican territory and declares emphatically that the Ameircan Government has at no time had the thought of annexation in its mind.

A general exodus among the American colony in Mexico City has commenced, and all who are able to do so are leaving for Vera Cruz or northern border points. J. Linn Rodgers, representative of the United States to the Carranza government, called at the Foreign Office last night for the purpose of arranging for a special train to leave there Wednesday to carry Americans to coast ports.

During the demonstrations yesterday the American Consulate in Mexico City was stoned. The stoning occurred while Vice Consul Rowe was in the building and only ten minutes after Special Representative Rodgers had left the place. Mr. Rodgers has protested against the stoning.

Gen. J. J. Pershing, American expeditionary commander, has cavalry detachments operating south and west of the Namiquipa base in pursuit of bands of Mexican marauders, according to several reliable reports in Columbus, N. M., today. It was asserted that Gen. Pershing received reports of the presence of bandits almost simultaneously with Gen. Jacinto Trevino's warning that any movement of the American troops other than toward the border would be considered a hostile act.

Pending advices from Gen. Frederick Funston, it was said, he gave no orders to give chase until Sunday.

While some anxiety was expressed here over the move, it was believed that Gen. Trevino will not seize upon it as an excuse for attacking the detachments. It was pointed out that the movement is minor and in no way affects the general expeditionary campaign.

Gen. Carranza, in a statement to the press last night, reiterated his declaration that any movements of American troops except to the northward, would be considered hostile and that Mexican commanders had been ordered to repel them.

SIX BIDS IN FOR NETHERWOOD ENGINE

Lowest is From the Robinson Company—Award at Next Meeting.

Six bids for the new triple combination motor driven engine, chemical and hose wagon were received by the Common Council at the meeting last night. A seventh was sent to the Council but came unsealed and was thrown out of the competition. This engine is to be sent to the Netherwood station when purchased.

The bids follow: James Boyd & Company, $8,000; Aarons-Fox, six cylinder, $9,250; four cylinder, $8,500; American-La France, $8,500; South Bend Motor Fire Works Company, $8,250; Seagraves Company, $9,000; Robinson Fire Apparatus Company, $7,600; Watross Engine Works Company, $7,900.

The bid of the Boyd Company was submitted by D. A. Woodhouse, a former Plainfielder. Mr. Woodhouse said that the price of the engine was $9,000, but because of his boyhood associations here he would deduct $1,000. He has been selling this city fire apparatus for twenty-five years, he said, and some is still in active service. Boyd engines are in use in Philadelphia, Camden, Perth Amboy and other nearby cities and he invited members of the Council and the fire chief to inspect them there. The American-La France representative said that his company had a service station open night and day in New York and that all engines were inspected every three months. Other representatives were present and invited inspection of their apparatus in nearby towns.

After the bids had been referred to the fire committee a communication from the Netherwood Residents' Association was read in which that body went on record as recommending that the Council buy an Aarons-Fox engine, with the Seagraves apparatus as second choice. This was referred to the fire committee. The bids will be reported on at the next meeting of the Council, July 3.

PRESBYTERIANS TO RALLY.

In order that the members may get acquainted with the large number of new members who have recently been received into the First Presbyterian church and with those who expect to unite shortly, it has been decided that, after the prayer meeting tomorrow evening, a short, informal reception will be held. It is hoped that all members will join in a rally of joy and good-will.

MOTOR COMPANY TO INCREASE PLANT

Automobile Concern Plans Erection of Buildings for Manufacture of Parts.

The American Motor Corporation, which is to locate its plant on West Front street near Grant avenue, for the manufacture of automobiles, has prepared plans for a more extensive plant than at first decided upon. The present group of buildings will include an assembling shop 60x400, an office building, two stories, 44x44x30 feet, and a heating plant, 30x50 feet. The assembling shop and heating plant will be one story buildings.

After the company takes possession of this plant, which is being erected by John E. Dunn, it will then put up two or three additional structures either four or six stories high, it being the purpose of the company to manufacture all of the parts for its car at this place. At first the parts will be brought to the local plant and assembled there. The entire works ito to be operated by electricity and all of the buildings will be of modern and fire-proof construction. From an architectural point of view they will be very attractive. The construction work is now well underway and it is hoped to have the present group of buildings complete by September 1.

GAVE WHISKEY TO BOY, MUST PAY $10 FINE

James Turner, of West Third street, admitting giving whisky to a 16-year-old-boy when tried in police court this morning, but said that the boy, James Ross, had a headache, and the intoxicant was given as a medicine. The boy got hold of the whisky bottle again and got drunk, according to Turner, but Judge De Meza held him to blame for the boy's condition and assessed a fine of $10.

NEWARKER SHOT BY CHAS. T. NIGHTINGALE

Former Plainfielder Captures Stranger as He Tries to Escape With Loot.

Harry King, who says his home is at 211 Elm street, Newark, is in the General Hospital at Stroudsburg, Pa., from a gunshot wound in his right thigh. He was shot Sunday by Charles T. Nightingale, proprietor of the Gap Inn and former Plainfielder, after Nightingale had discovered him escaping from his store with cigarettes, candy and chewing gum, which he had stolen. King will live, the physicians say, although his wound is considered se[illegible]

Nightingale [illegible] returning home. As he neared the house where he also conducts a store, he saw King, he says, his arms full of loot. Nightingale ran into the house, grabbed a shotgun and held King prisoner. Then he proceeded to march his man, with hands up, to the Monroe county jail at Stroudsburg.

After they had gone a short way King, Nightingale relates, dropped his hands and reached for his hip pocket. Nightingale, a yard or two behind him, pulled the trigger of his shotgun. The full charge entered King's body. Nightingale then called help and had King brought to the hospital.

To County Detective William Neimyer the prisoner said that he was twenty-four years old, and had worked in the Van Court Inn at Roselle Park, and at Grimm's dairy farm, Cranford. A bicycle, which he was about to mount when Nightingale halted him, the police say, was stolen.

Plainfielders will remember Mr. Nightingale as a well known resident of this city, whose home was for a long time on Sanford avenue. He was the founder of the Climax Bottle Stopper Works, now defunct, and for which the factory building at East Fourth and Washington streets, now occupied by the Baird Surgical Works, was erected. The concern at the time was one of the largest of the kind in the state. Mr Nightingale left Plainfield about eighteen years ago to enter the hotel business at Delaware Water Gap, and he has been the proprietor of several big establishments since that time.

WANT $500 FOR JULY 4 PROGRAM

Local Committee Plans Big Celebration for Plainfield People.

Plainfield's Fourth of July celebration this year is to be the best in its history, also perfectly safe and sane. No fireworks of any kind will be officially set off, according to a decision of the committee in charge. Principal features of the program will be the singing of patriotic songs by a chorus of 500 voices and a patriotic oration. The speaker has not yet been selected, but he will be an orator of ability and note.

The Playground Commission has joined with the Recreation Committee in arranging the celebration and the general committee is now asking $500 for expenses. De Witt Hubbell, at the Plainfield Trust Company, is treasurer of the fund and checks can be made payable to him. Members of the committee in charge of the celebration that asks for the $500 are Champlain L. Riley, Clifford Braider, S. T. Carter, Jr., F. T. Dickerson, Thomas C. Vail, J. J. Carroll, Charles C. Sminck, Harry Marshall and A. B. Jones.

Clifford Braider is to have charge of the big chorus and will begin the work of rehearsal at once. He will use the Biederwolf singers, for the most part. Another musical feature of the celebration will be the appearance of the Venetian Quartet, of New York, Italian singers in costume. Garabaldi, the great Italian liberator, was born on July 4th, and the day means almost as much to Italians as to Americans. The Dutch Arms Band is to furnish music.

The celebration will be held in City Park at 4 p. m. on the day of the Fourth, and Architect Fisher is drawing plans for a big grandstand to accommodate the chorus, the band and others on the program.

MR. AND MRS. BURDICK SILVER ANNIVERSARY

New Market Couple Celebrate Happy Event, Entertaining Many Guests.

In the presence of many relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse G. Burdick, of New Market, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home Saturday evening. Eight of these guests were present at their wedding, which was performed across the street from their present residence in what is still the home of Mrs. Burdick's mother, Mrs. Albert Ayres, by the late Rev. L. E. Livermore. The Burdicks have lived in the present home since they went to housekeeping, immediately after their marriage.

The program of the entertainment included violin duets by Mrs. Charles S. Day and Archie La Rue; vocal solos by Mrs. H. L. Polan and Miss Edna Burdick; vocal duets by Miss Merle FitzRandolph and Miss Ethel Rogers; also a vocal duet by Miss Edna Burdick and Mrs. H. L. Polan, with a violin accompaniment. The feature of the program was, perhaps, the reading of a poem of her own composition by Mrs. H. L. Polan. The poem was entitled, "The Matrimonial Voyage." The program was concluded with a few remarks by the Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of Plainfield. Delicious refreshments were then served, after which the guests departed. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick received many presents of cut glass and silverware.

Mr. and Mrs. Burdick are both highly respected in New Market and vicinity. Both are active in church work. Mr. Burdick has been superintendent of the Sabbath school of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church for the past ten years. He is also vice-president of the Dunellen and New Market Sunday-school Union and a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist Tract Society. Mr. Burdick's only fraternal affiliation is with Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of New Market. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick have two sons, Byron and Russell. Mrs. Burdick, whose name was Mrs. Herbert Kenyon at the time of her marriage to Mr. Burdick, has one son by her former marriage, Harry Kenyon, who is employed as bookkeeper and cashier by the firm of Boice, Runyon and Company, of this city.

ENJOYING A VACATION.

C. B. Carman, of Jackson avenue, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation from his duties as draughtsman in the office of the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Company at South Plainfield.

WILLOW GROVE ANNIVERSARY.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Willow Grove chapel will be held tomorrow. One of the features of the day's program will be a strawberry and ice cream festival and luncheon, served in the grove adjoining the chapel, if the weather is pleasant, and, if not, in the chapel.

LOCAL GUARDSMEN.

In case the United States has war with Mexico, local people will have considerable interest in the movement of troops. Frank Osman is a member of Company K, Maurice Hall belongs to the Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., Frank Carter is a unit in the New York Coast Artillery, and Elbert Morely also belongs to the New York National Guard. Of those in active service, Raymond Archibald belongs to the marines and is stationed in Porto Rico, and Fred Coombs is in the navy and stationed in Oriental waters.

HARD CIDER MAKES TROUBLE.

Larry Wallace, of Terril road, and Joe Green, of Plainfield, drank too freely Sunday afternoon of hard cider after they had had quite a quantity of other stimulants, and when Marshal Logan and Recorder Charles Sheelen approached them on Farley avenue, started trouble. After spending the night in a cell, the pair had their ardor for prize-fighting dampened and were really meek. Wallace had a fine of $10 and a suspended sentence of sixty days hung over him for a year, while Green got free with a $3 fine. Wallace paid the fine and has the sixty days staring him in the face whenever he oversteps the mark.

Mrs. William Townsend, of Russell road, will entertain the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon.

A meeting of the Fanwood Township Sunday School Association will be held in the lecture room of the Baptist church tonight.

Mrs. Thomas Louden, of Martine avenue, has purchased an automobile.

BAKER CUTS DOWN ON MEAT TO AID BATTING

"Home Run" Baker has been in a batting slump.

"I've had many a hard battle getting started," he says, "but this is the hardest one I ever had."

As a possible corrective, Baker is limiting his meat eating to one meal a day. He thinks perhaps that dietary measure will work an improvement, for he has been feeling logy, he says, and hopes that less meat will tone him up.

LOCAL HORSES TO RACE.

Three Plainfield horses have been entered in the harnes races at Weequahic Park, Newark, tomorrow afternoon. These events were postponed from last Saturday afternoon owing to the wet condition of the track, and the program tomorrow is slated to be one of the best of the season. The Plainfield steeds belong to Adam C. Blair and Dr. H. E. Winter.

BOSTON HEIRESS A BRIDE.

Boston, Mass., June 20.—A special train conveyed a large party of guests to Beverly Farms today for the wedding of Miss Phyllis Sears, who is known as the wealthiest young woman in New England, and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., of this city. The bride is the daughter of Herbert M. Sears, of Boston and Beverly. She inherited millions on the death of her mother, and more millions on the death of her grandfather. The bridegroom is a son of Bayard Tuckerman, of New York and Boston. He is a Harvard graduate and one of the best known gentleman jockeys in the country.

CLASS DAY AT HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., June 20.—Class day at Harvard, with its many gatherings in which the seniors played the leading parts today, proved to be one of the most interesting and delightful in years. All day long the famous yard was thronged with daintily-gowned young women who had assembled from all parts of the United States to aid their friends in the senior class in observing the day in a fitting manner and, according to time-honored and traditional customs. The "spreads," which are always a prominent feature of class days at Harvard, were unusually elaborate.

C. E. LAWN PARTY.

Plainfield Women Effect An Organization to Be Affiliated With Y. W. C. A.—Miss Mattison Chosen President.

Permanent organization of the Plainfield Business Women's Association was effected last night at the meeting of the society held in the parlors of the Young Women's Christian Association. The association will affiliate with the Y. W. C. A. and the members will be given membership privileges of the building. The club will be known herafter as the Plainfield Business Women's League. During the session Miss Margaret O. Mattison, the president, presided, and a constitution and by-laws were adopted.

The speaker at the meeting last night was Mrs. Florence Kelley, general secretary of the National Consumers' League. Mrs. Kelley is well known in Plainfield, having appeared here on several previous occasions. She is a speaker of unusual ability and presents her arguments in a convincing and instructive manner. During her address last night the growth of the National Consumers' League was outlined as well as the problems that confront the large organization. In part she said:

"It can be said with truth that poverty is the regular inevitable by-product of our present industry, as wealth is its normal product. We carry on our industry to produce wealth, and incidentally we produce wholesale poverty. I believe that it is because we have dealt with myriads of incidental things and not with this fundamental cause of permanent and growing poverty, that we assemble in greater numbers year after year, and go home increasingly baffled by the evil, and bewildered by the myriad remedies that we discuss.

"The National Consumers' League was instructed in September, 1908, at Geneva, Switerland, by the International Conference of Consumers' Leagues, in which representatives of twenty nations participated, to agitate for the creation of minimum wage boards until these should be introduced and carried to success and usefulness.

"Insufficient wages are proof of incompetent management and of the greed of employers. They presuppose the existence in the community of dishonorable earnings by women employes, and of charitable supplements to honest girls and their families. Such outside aid must be permanent and continuing. In all the great cities there are department stores which base their wage rates upon the knowledge that the social evil and the wide variety of the activities of private charity will eke out the pay-rolls.

"Insufficient wages underlie a vast proportion of the need for correctional and reformatory work. They entail upon the community a child labor, tuberculosis, underfeeding, lack of refreshing sleep, and the consequent nervous breakdown. They underlie industrial employment of mothers, whose neglected children consequently fail in health and morals. The children in turn crowd the hospitals, dispensaries, juvenile courts and custodial institutions."

DIAMOND JUBILEE CELEBRATION

Honolulu, June 20.—The celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Oahu College, the oldest educational institution west of the Rocky Mountains, was ushered in today with a reunion of alumni and other friends of the college from many parts of the world. The exercises and festivities in connection with the diamond jubilee will continue three days. One of the most attractive features is to be an elaborate pageant illustrating old Hawaiian history and legends.

CAPTAIN VOGEL ANSWERS CALL.

Captain W. F. Vogel, proprietor of the Diamond Disc Studio on West Front street, left yesterday to join the 71st Regiment, New York, of which he is a member. The regiment mobilized at the armory in New York last night and will at once proceed to the State Camp at Beekman, there to await orders to go to the Mexican border.

RECREATION NOTES.

The Zephyrs and Athenians will meet in the High School gymnasium for exercises tonight. The swimming pool will also be open for their use.

The public swimming classes will meet tomorrow night on the following schedule: Women, 7:30 to 8:30; Girls' Friendly Society, 8.30 to 9; men, 9 to 10.

FLORIDA "DRYS" MEET.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—The State convention of the Prohibition party in Florida met in this city today and was called to order at 10 o'clock this morning by State Chairman J. P. Coffin. The work of the convention will include the nomination of a complete ticket of state officers and the selection of delegates and alternates to attend the national convention at St. Paul next month.

"FRAT" SOCIETY TO MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chi Gamma Chi will be held in St. Joseph's Hall, Thursday night at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Mid-Summer Fashions--Which Stand Out Boldly as Distinctive

The woman who secures "distinction without difference" in her summer costume deceives herself and achieves nothing. Too many so-called "popular" ideals are favored nowadays—too many duplications appear here, there and everywhere.

CITY WILL HAVE ADVISORY BOARD

Ordinance Creates Body to Search for Municipal Improvements.

MAYOR SUGGESTED IT

Need of City Planning Imperative, He Says in Letter to Council—Five Members Are To Serve Without Salary of Any Kind.

Upon recommendation of Mayor Calkins, the Common Council last night passed upon first and second readings an ordinance creating a Research and Advisory Board, the duties of which will be to investigate municipal improvements and plan for the future of Plainfield. The board will have five members, who shall serve without salary, and will not be authorized to make any expenditures except that the money be first appropriated by the Common Council. The ordinance was introduced by Councilman Sminck, chairman of the Public Affairs committee. Mayor Calkins explained the need for such a board in the following communication:
